In all honesty, I feel that the province should be doing more to help finance the higher education of tomorrow's Ontario. But what is it doing? It is depriving many of the means of getting a higher education and it does this in the name of their betterment and progress.

Education Minister Davis should take heed. Many of the students are dissatisfied and worried about these extra three weeks you have hacked off our summer. To many, it will mean revoked summer employment or none at all. And to many that will mean no money and of course no money, no college. We had planned on college but for many of us this new development will make that dream much harder to realize.

Little Girl from Guyana Can Stay: Minister Rules

Toronto Star

We applaud Immigration Minister Alan MacEachen this week for placing compassion ahead of department regulations.

The rulebook said Annabelle Lopes should be sent back to her native Guyana because she was not deemed healthy enough to stay in Canada.

The 7-year-old girl, who is deaf and has a heart murmur, arrived two years ago. Immigration officials eventually ordered her deported.

But Mr. MacEachen intervened and ruled there were "very strong humanitarian reasons" for letting the child and her mother stay in Canada.

We have had frequent examples in past years of how immigration regulations, rigidly applied, have brought disappointment and tragedy to someone who had hoped to build their lives in Canada.

It is heartwarming to see that the new immigration minister doesn't hesitate to bend the rules for the sake of a little girl.

Milwaukee Journal

The observation is not entirely lacking in truth, judging from the plight of Sen. Eugene McCarthy. He ran a dramatic, youth powered presidential campaign and now is facing a pile of unpaid bills reportedly totaling $1.3 million. While no campaign for high office is cheap these days, McCarthy's trouble was compounded by volunteers abusing auto, airline and telephone credit arrangements. One story, for example, tells of someone charging a rented car in Oregon to the McCarthy campaign and driving it to Texas, where it turned up recently.

Exuberant young people, of course, were vital to McCarthy's drive, and candidates in the future doubtless will try harder to draw them to their sides. But the McCarthy phenomenon seems also to raise a question about how to tap youthful enthusiasm without risking a run on the campaign treasury.

Beauty Queens

Christian Science Monitor

The professionals who stage beauty pageants have sought hard to overcome the Cinderella girl image of the beauty queens they crown. Even glamorous is too heavy a word for today's queen. She is more mail-order-catalogue model than pin-up girl. As she parades before judges and a million TV viewers her smile is more apt to be bewildered than alluring.

Yet the pageants go on, profitable for the promoters and advertisers, if for no one else.

An Old Rivalry

Toronto Versus Montreal

Printed Word

On the medical scene from time to time there appears the ailment that confounds science because it affects only one small part of a community. Neurosis Torontonensis is that kind of ailment. The only people who suffer from it are certain of the elected representatives.

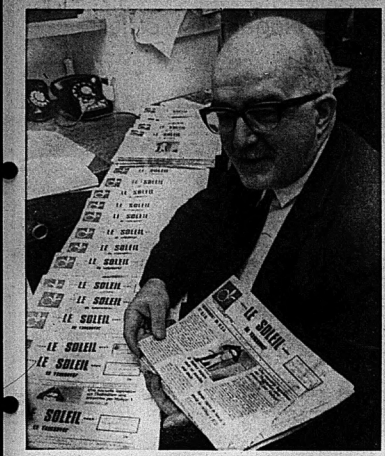
Brought on by Expo 67, the major symptom is a gregarious that deepens in intensity whenever a choice is to be made between Toronto and Montreal. Or when a councillor thinks that something may become a matter of choice if Toronto doesn't snap it up first. Strangely, the voters are not stricken to the same degree. Nor the mayor of Toronto, who is less easily intimidated than his conferees.

Latest manifestation is Metro council's approval of disruption of traffic arteries on several days twice a year for auto racing.

The residents object, the local member of the Parliament objects, the mayor of Toronto objects, the Council of Women objects and common sense dictated that the idea be laughed out of the council chamber. But the neurotics overcame common sense: if Toronto didn't agree to the Grand Prix, Montreal might fall heir to it.

If someone offered Toronto the chance to become the site of the tiddly-winks championship of the world, the Metro council in its present state, of jitters, would accept to prevent it taking place at Man and his World.

In their own cool way, most Torontonians don't care. More sensible than some of the people they elect, they are more interested in the quality of life in their city than in being the auto-racing capital of the world.



Junk Mail Costs Millions

Orillia Packet and Times

Isn't it time that Postmaster General Kierans stopped messing about with hare - brained schemes, like cheaper cutbacks and vague "sock it to 'em" threats aimed at nobody in particular, and put his postal service on the only kind of business-like basis open to him? Is it not time he singled out the real culprit that costs Canadians millions of dollars in subsidized postal "bargain, the flood of unsolicited "junk" mail which clutters our post offices? And it isn't a little that this vast sea of paper garbage was made to pay its own way, instead of getting a free ride on the taxpayer's back, paying no more for transportation right across the continent than the neighborhood newspaper pays for delivery within a mile area?

Surely the only possible answer is for Canada to adopt the kind of postal zone rates for publications that operates so successfully in the United States. The daily or weekly newspaper mailed out to a subscriber in the neighborhood, and an extra demands upon existing mail services, requiring no extra staff or extra transport, no extra delivery to get it to its destination nearby, where it is welcomed as a regular part of the reader's mail. Such service — and it is, in every sense of the word, a boon to the reader — should be charged for by the local post office at a rate commensurate with the modest load imposed by it.

But the catalogues and quick prospectuses, the trade puffs and publicity handouts and all the rest of the vast paper that washes, unsolicited, into everybody's front door entrance, are a wasteful load. All these, and the nationally-circulated magazines and papers put an enormous burden on the postal services.

Nixon May Raise Gold Price

Tuesday's 4.2957, in Frankfurt at 3.9983 marks against 3.9988, and in Paris 4.9400 francs against 4.940375.

Shortly after the initial high opening in the Zurich market, the price of gold climbed a further 12¼ cents to $41.825 an ounce. An estimated five tons of metal changed hands in the first two hours, far above normal turnover but still below the crisis level of last March.

A Zurich banker said much of the demand for the metal was coming from France, apparently in fear of renewed social unrest there.

"Demand is very heavy and owners are hanging on to their gold waiting for a higher price," he said.

British commentators were critical of Kennedy's news conference remarks about gold. He said he felt he should not "make statements that will cause speculation one way or the other" and that he wants all the flexibility he can get in dealing with the gold issue and other problems.

Kenneth Fleet, financial editor of the London Daily Telegraph, said this would be seen both in America and Europe as "complete confirmation of the feeling that the new administration will do something about the official dollar price of gold."

American Indians Protest Custom Duty Collection

Members of the reserve decided at a community meeting Tuesday night to blockade the bridge, connecting the United States and Canada.

Five Indian representatives met with Canadian Indian affairs officials in Ottawa Tuesday but came to no conclusive terms.

The Indians are protesting the imposition of customs duties on goods they buy in the United States and take into Canada. They say this is in violation of the Jay Treaty of 1794.

Under the Jay Treaty, they say, Indians living along the border were given free access to both countries. The Indians say that a 1956 decision by the Supreme Court of Canada that extends customs duties to everyone abrogates terms of the treaty.

After Tuesday's meetings in Ottawa, Canadian Indians Affairs Minister Jean Chretien said "I don't know what we can do about it, but I'll look into it."

A spokesman for the Indians said early today that, because of cold weather, the blockaders would use automobiles.

The Indians, all Mohawks, discussed other complaints with the Canadian officials, such as delays in receiving payment for land expropriated by the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority and leasing of reserve land to cottage-owners.

Daughter of Millionaire

FBI Searches for Kidnapped Girl

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Federal agents led a country-wide search today for 20-year-old Barbara Jane Mackle, kidnapped from her sickbed at a motel near Emory University.

The whereabouts of her multi-millionaire parents also remained a mystery. Officials refused to comment on the case.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Robert F. Mackle of Coral Gables, Fla., told police that Barbara was kidnapped about 4 a.m. Tuesday by a young gunman and boy about 12.

Mrs. Mackle said she was held at gunpoint, chloroformed and then tied up by the boy while the daughter was taken from the room into freezing weather in her nightgown.

Mr. and Mrs. Mackle, members of a land development family, were last seen about 16 hours after the abduction was reported. Accompanied by FBI agents, the Mackles were riding in a car about the terminal area of the Atlanta airport.

Police said they had no ransom note. But Detective Capt. J. L. Smith said Mrs. Mackle was "told what to do."

Neither police nor federal agents reported any leads in the case.

An Emory official said Barbara had been ill with the flu or a similar ailment for several days.

The father, secretary-treasurer of Deltona Corp., a $65,000,000 homebuilding business in Miami, entered Mrs. Mackle's motel room with another man about 5:30 p.m. Tuesday. The couple left the motel at 7:12 p.m. and drove to the airport.

An FBI agent, Jack Keith, said the couple would spend the night where they could get "some rest, a little peace and quiet."

Police Action Protested

PARIS (CP) — The main French University Teachers Union today accused the government of deliberately provoking students by posting police around certain, well-chosen colleges.

The union said in a statement the deployment of police this week around colleges at Nanterre and the Sorbonne in Paris and in the provinces was a government attempt to mask failure in applying its university policy.

The statement came as the French National Students Union prepared for a series of protest meetings at colleges throughout France.

The teachers union said that "by grotesque deployment of enormous forces in battledress, the government is deliberately provoking the students, hoping to throw onto them, in the eyes of the public, the responsibility for the situation it created."

VON Nurse Reports on Home Visits

A brief discussion took place regarding the holding of the annual meeting in February 1969 and what form it should take.

The nurse-in-charge, Miss Norma Gusdal, reported that 306 home visits were made in October and 269 in November 1968.

Miss Gusdal also commented on a one-day course which she attended at the Emergency Measures Centre in Belleville, on Community Planning. The training would be of use in the case of a nuclear or national disaster. She also attended a meeting of the East Lake Ont. branch of the V.O.N. at Kingston where the subject was "Coronary Care."

This year Mr. Pearson has a goal of $1,000 worth of

Women Donate Blood to Help R-H Negative Mothers

GIVING WITH A SMILE — Once each month Injections of this serum globulin help other Jeannette Comeau of Metaghan River, N.S., RH-negative mothers have healthy babies. The Frances Irwin of Halifax and Marilyn Dawson of donors themselves have lost babies through blood Dartmouth, N.S., donate their blood from which incompatibility and can never benefit from the is derived the RH-immune serum globulin. program, introduced in Halifax in June.

(CP Photo)

The mother of a four-year-old daughter, Mrs. Dawson lost her second baby two years ago because of blood incompatibility.

Dr. James Corston, under whose direction the RH unit to help RH-negative mothers was set up in the Grace Maternity Hospital here, asked her to be a volunteer donor. She gladly accepted.

"I suppose I'll continue to be a donor for another 10 or 20 years. It's my one holiday a month; I can lie down all afternoon."

Shirley Mills, another woman with RH-negative blood, lost twins a year and a half ago. Since last December she has been making the 75-mile drive from her Sheet Harbor home to Halifax to donate blood one afternoon a month.

"Where I lost out, I can help someone else," Mrs. Mills said.

Frances Irwin, who lost four babies because of RH incompatibility, became a donor and a working mother at the same time.

When Dr. Corston asked her if she would take part in the volunteer program, he also inquired if she had secretarial experience, and persuaded her to be the RH unit's administrative secretary.

She has a 14-year-old son and an adopted eight-year-old daughter, and finds it's not too difficult to combine two careers.

Jeannette Comeau of Metaghan River in southwestern Nova Scotia read about the RH unit while attending summer school here and decided to volunteer as a donor.

In all, 12 mothers who have lost babies or had babies badly affected through RH incompatibility take part in the volunteer blood donor program here, and more are needed.

During their three-hour stay in hospital each month, the Red Cross takes from them what amounts to two normal blood donations, and processes the blood immediately.

The blood then is returned to the donors minus the plasma from which is derived the serum globulin to be used in treating other RH-negative mothers.

An injection of RH-immune serum globulin is given to an RH-negative mother within 48 hours after delivery of an infant, provided she has no antibodies present in her blood. Subsequent injections will be given after each successive birth, a hospital spokesman said.

Trouble arises when an RH-negative mother conceives an RH-positive baby. The injection forms a barrier against the baby's positive blood leaking into the mother's blood stream and causing formation of antibodies. The antibodies could affect the next infant she conceives.

The injections are useful only if the mother has not yet formed antibodies. The volunteer donors can never benefit themselves from the program to which they are contributing because they have high concentrations of antibodies, Mrs. Irwin said.

The RH unit, sponsored by the Nova Scotia government, the Canadian Red Cross and the provincial medical society, also helps mothers carry babies severely affected by blood incompatibility until they weigh enough to survive in the outside world.

Intra-uterine blood transfusions—injecting red blood cells through the mother into the baby's abdomen—combat the severe anemia which could cause the baby's death, a unit spokesman said.

Habit of Rolling in Bed Continues

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Your question "would any rock-and-roller's like to share experiences with Embarrassed?" prompts this letter.

Yesterday I turned 47 years old, married 27 years, have three grown children. Ever since I can remember I have rolled in bed at night. My parents tried to stop me when I was seven by making a harness that fitted around my shoulders and secured it to the bed. My sisters used to tease me, saying, "What will you do when you get married?" Well, I've never stopped. My husband has never grumbled about my rolling in bed.

I would like Embarrassed to understand that this is nothing to feel ashamed of.

All my family and close friends know that I roll in bed and I could really tell you some amusing times we've had over it. But it is no joking matter because I need this rolling in bed just the same as people need vibrating chairs and mattresses. They relax and soothe.

This nervous habit started with me because of fear of the dark when I was very young.

Your consultant tells Embarrassed that this habit will stop. I doubt this very much. If their nervous system needs it as mine does it will stay with them.

My husband has suggested I sign this letter: — Mrs. Unashamed of Bed-Rolling and Mr. Unashamed.

Dear Mrs. and Mr. U.: Would your illness song be, "Don't Fence Me In"? Embarrassed will be grateful for your reassurance.

Dear Doris: I am a girl 18. I belong to Junior Achievement. I have asked a boy to our party.

1. Do I provide the transportation to and from the party?

2. Do I pay for anything that might come up? (pizza, chicken, etc.)

3. When should I thank him; before my mother takes him home, or when we let him off at his house? My mother will be there and I'll be embarrassed then. — Junior Achiever.

Dear Achiever:

1. Not necessarily. But if your mother is doing taxi service, from your house and back, what's the problem? We presume The Escort can get to where you are on his own. If she takes him all the way to his home after, he is the lucky one.

2. No; he does, unless there are refreshment tickets which you can purchase ahead of time.

3. This time, boy thanks girl probably when he is let off. Whereupon you say it was a pleasure, and that you appreciated his coming as your partner and looking after you so well.

Let's hope he did.

Ann Landers
People Stare at Child With Burn Scars

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have an eight-year-old granddaughter who was severely burned when she was three-and-a-half years of age. The burns healed eventually, but her once beautiful little face is now badly disfigured and the skin is red and purple.

Whenever the child goes anywhere, people insist on staring. Some even gasp, as if the sight is revolting. I have been present when strangers have come up and asked, "What happened to the child?" All this within her hearing, mind you.

Can't they see that she met with an accident? Don't they realize it hurts us when she is singled out — and it hurts her, too.

Please Ann, tell me what to say to these rude and thoughtless people. I can't find the words. — OREGON GRANDMA.

DEAR OREGON: The next time someone asks: "What happened to the child?" reply, "What possible interest could you, a stranger, have in the details?" And look the clod straight in the eye when you say it. He might learn something.

* * *

DEAR ANN: I'm an average looking, hard working, fun loving 21-year-old girl who has a great job. I live with two of the most wonderful people in the world, my parents.

I'm not thinking of getting married for at least five years, but something has been bothering me. I love children and I want a large family, but I don't want to have children. I want to adopt them.

Ever since I can remember I have been petrified of doctors. I hate pain. When anyone even talks about giving blood I must excuse myself. I get physically ill.

It would be unfair to marry a man and not tell him how I feel about this. Yet I realize no normal male would agree to adopt a family if he could have his own. Please tell me what to do, Ann. — M.I. CONFUSED?

DEAR FRIEND: One of the strongest drives of all animals, including the human animal, is the drive to reproduce. An important element of romance and married love is the desire to produce a child with the combined qualities and characteristics of yourself and your beloved. When fear eclipses the most basic of human drives, it indicates the presence of a severe psychological impediment.

I'm glad you don't plan to marry for at least five years. You are not ready for marriage and you won't be ready until you rid yourself of this crippling fear. Get professional help, girl.

Mrs. F. W. Sills and Miss Bessie Buckley have returned from Detroit where they attended the funeral of their sister, Mrs. Edward (Anna) Nolan.

Party on 25th Anniversary

A surprise party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Matthews was given by their daughter Pat at the Tops Motor Hotel, on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary, December 12.

The 50 guests in attendance enjoyed a bountiful dinner, previous to which, Grace was said by the master of ceremonies, Frank Weaver. Toasts to the couple were proposed by Jim Grills and Ray Fletcher. Following the dinner many lovely gifts were opened and guests were invited to the Matthews' home for a time of fellowship and refreshments.

Mrs. Matthews is a native of Bournemouth, England and the couple were married in Christchurch, England, December 17, 1943, while Mr. Matthews was serving overseas with the 14th Field Regiment, 24th Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery.

Cranberry Yule Log Similar to A Jelly Roll

By MARY MOORE

How can you make a Yule Log out of cranberries? I will tell you.

This "log" is somewhat similar to a jelly roll. (To you practical bakers the batter turns out a beautiful jelly roll cake and calls for only two eggs.) But the filling is a cream cheese spread and a little cranberry sauce. The topping glaze is cranberry sauce dotted with chopped apples to give a red rough loggy effect.

CRANBERRY YULE LOG
(serves 8 to 10)

Batter:
2 large eggs
¾ cup granulated sugar
½ cup scalded milk
1 tablespoon butter
1 cup sifted cake and or pastry flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
Filling:
¾ cup (6 oz.) while cream cheese
1 tablespoon light cream
½ cup cranberry sauce
Topping:
1½ teaspoons plain gelatine
2 tablespoons cold water
1 cup hot cranberry sauce
½ cup chopped apple

To make the Batter break eggs into beater bowl and beat until light then add sugar slowly, while beating until foamy and thick. Beat in vanilla. Add butter to scalded milk. Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder and salt. Now add the milk-butter mixture and sifted dry ingredients and beat five seconds on "low". Turn off power, scrape down sides and beat five seconds on "low". Remove beaters. Line a 9" x 13" (jelly roll) pan on bottom with buttered wax paper and turn in batter and smooth top. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. 30 to 32 minutes — until it shrinks from sides. Have ready an icing-sugar sprinkled tea towel and immediately turn cake out on it, peel off wax paper and roll up enclosing towel. Cool on cake rack.

Filling: Beat cream cheese with cream until of spreading consistency and spread on unrolled cake. Spread the ½ cup cranberry sauce over the cheese. Roll up again NOT including towel of course. Place on serving plate.

To make Topping Glaze soak gelatine in cold water 5 minutes. Heat the 1 cup cranberry sauce just to boiling. (NOTE: one 14-oz. can jellied cranberry sauce is sufficient for both amounts needed.) Stir soaked gelatine into hot cranberry sauce until dissolved. Stand pan in larger pan containing ice water to chill it. As soon as it begins to congeal add chopped apple. Now start to coat top and sides of cake roll. You must work patiently applying small amounts. If any flows off pick it up and make it stay on. This is easier than it sounds for remember the gelatine mixture is thickening all the time. Keep on until you have applied all of the glaze. With damp cloth wipe off any glaze that drips down onto plate. Chill in refrigerator until set and cold. It will be fine overnight. Serve for dessert or with coffee to late evening Christmas guests.

Cranberry Yule Log is so Christmasy you will be enticed into making it by Mary Moore's explicit directions today. An extra dividend is the two-egg batter for the cake part which gives practical bakers an inexpensive and easy jelly roll recipe.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "How can you think of going to a party on Monday? That's when we planned to trim the tree. We always do it together the night before Christmas eve."

Family customs should not be so inflexible that high school age youngsters find them more of a duty than a pleasure. Adapt plans, if possible, to fit the needs of a growing family.

Women Are Neater

NEW YORK (AP) — Young men are the country's worst litterers, pollster George Gallup Jr. says. He said a survey shows adults between 21 and 35 litter twice as much as those between 35 and 39 and three times as much as those over 50. "Men," he said, "are much more guilty of littering than women."

Quebec Is Urged to Protect Its Territorial Integrity

QUEBEC (CP) — The Dorion commission on Quebec's "territorial integrity" has urged the province to protect its boundaries and take particular care of the Hull, Que., region near Ottawa.

Tabled in the legislature Tuesday, the third instalment of the commission's report says drastic measures are necessary to keep Hull in Quebec.

There was an immediate danger that Quebec would lose the region in a merger with Ottawa to form a national capital similar to Washington, D.C.

The report by geographer Henrie Dorion, whose original terms of reference were to investigate the Quebec-Labrador boundary dispute, suggests:

— The Quebec government take unprecedented interest in the Hull area;

— The formation of a tripartite committee for the proper development of the Hull region;

— Abrogation of legislation that established the National Capital Commission.

The Hull region should be given the necessary structures, administration and financial tools to avoid joining Ottawa as the capital of Canada.

The Crown agency plans and co-ordinates public lands in the area around Canada's capital, including those on the Quebec side. Involved is an 1,800-square-mile area.

But the Dorion report says Quebec must rebuff "centrifugal forces being exercised on western Quebec" because of its proximity to the capital.

Quebec also had "to check the ill-omened loss of sales taxes" in Hull to Ontario. Preferably, this would be accomplished by some agreement with Ontario.

Quebec has a sales tax of eight per cent while Ontario's is only five.

The report says Quebec should study the "inevitable disparity" of taxation in the Hull-Ottawa region.

Quebec's department of industry and commerce should place heavier emphasis on getting more industry in Hull, possibly through incentive measures, industrial parks and grants.

While suggesting that the National Capital Commission be disbanded, the report says Quebec should seek formation of a tripartite committee that would work toward development of the Hull region.

Such a committee would be composed of representatives from Quebec, Ontario and the federal government. But Quebec also needed its own commission, including a federal representative, that would make recommendations to the tripartite committee.

Quebec's commission would comprise, besides the federal official, municipal and regional representatives. It was a necessity for the preservation and growth of western Quebec.

The report says any expropriation powers held now by the National Capital Commission that are used in Quebec should be turned over to the Quebec government.

Any land in Quebec already expropriated by the comission also should be returned to Quebec.

Hull, which requires a complete municipal reconstruction, should become the centre of French-language culture for the region.

Scientists May Find the Key to Knowledge of Solar System

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Three American astronauts are set to orbit the moon. If their mission succeeds, others may land on the lunar surface next year.

Why is the United States investing $20,000,000,000 on the project?

Why not spend that money on earthly problems such as the plight of the cities or to find a cure for cancer?

Many people wonder why anyone in his right mind would risk a 250,000-mile trip to a bleak, barren globe which has no apparent value.

Col. Frank Borman, Capt. James Lovell Jr. and Maj. William Anders are scheduled to embark Saturday on their lunar orbit mission.

They'll be followed next year by other U.S. astronauts—and perhaps Russian cosmonauts—who will land on the moon and begin the explorations of this alien body.

The moon's most immediate resources is scientific knowledge. Many consider it the key to the knowledge of the solar system.

On earth, the atmosphere and oceans wear away surface features in 10,000,000 to 50,000,000 years. Mountain-building activity turns over large areas in about the same time.

But on the moon there are no oceans or atmosphere to destroy the surface, and there is little if any, mountain building. Thus, the moon may have retained a record which dates back billions of years to the infancy of the solar system.

During the last five years, the United States and Russia have sent several unmanned spacecraft to study the moon. They have hit it, orbited it, photographed it and soft-landed on it. The, provided a treasure house of knowledge, brought into doubt centuries-old theories—and raised more questions than they answered.

But until man has brought back samples of the lunar surface, there will only be conjecture about such things as the moon's origins.

One theory is that the moon was part of the earth that split away many millions of years ago.

Another theory says the moon originated independently from the earth and during its travels through space was captured by the earth's gravitational field.

Still another holds that the earth and the moon essentially originated at the same time as "twin planets," perhaps created by the same gas cloud.

Thus a trip to the moon may result in knowledge that can clear up this scientific mystery as well as lead to understanding how the earth itself was formed.

Scientists generally agree our solar system, controlled by the sun, was formed more than 4,000,000,000 years ago, possibly by a great gas cloud exploding out from the sun or by the collision of two massive stars.

By placing huge radio telescopes on the moon, man could peer deep into space, seeking clues to the origin of the universe. Much of the telltale light and radio waves emanating from stars and other distant bodies is blocked from reaching earth by the thick blanket of the earth's atmosphere.

Pregnancy Number Refuted

Dymond Brands Shulman's Charges as 'Slanderous Filth'

TORONTO (CP) — Allegations made in the legislature by Dr. Morton Shulman that staff and patients at Ontario hospitals engage in sexual relations were termed "slanderous filth" Tuesday by Health Minister Matthew Dymond.

Dr. Dymond said if the New Democratic Party member for Toronto High Park would make these allegations outside the legislature, he would not enjoy immunity from a lawsuit.

Dr. Shulman told the house last week he had learned from a psychiatrist working at Brockville Psychiatric Hospital that sexual intercourse between male and female patients was taking place and that the same was tolerated between female student nurses and male patients in provincial hospitals.

He said there were more than 400 pregnancies among mentally retarded patients in Ontario institutions last year.

Dr. Dymond said Dr. Shulman's statements "impugned the morals, the integrity, the professional ability and the reputation of every staff member in hospitals under the direction of the department of health."

He said Dr. Shulman's remarks were "so vicious, vile and malignant as to cause one to wonder why ever this member made them without first seeking to determine if there might be just a shred of fact to substantiate them."

The minister said he had had calls and visits from parents of student nurses seeking proof of those statements, "and I cannot give them any proof, for such does not exist."

The minister accused Dr. Shulman of having "firmly established his own unique credibility in his usual sweeping, confused, vituperative manner."

Leaping to his feet, Dr. Shulman asked whether house rules permitted Dr. Dymond to use the time allotted for ministerial statements "to make other than factual remarks."

Speaker Fred Cass said he recalled the member's original speech and thought the minister had every right to reply to it, but agreed it should be factual.

But Dr. Dymond continued to read from a prepared text without omitting any phrases, including a declaration that the Shulman statements were "slanderous filth."

"I suggest the least this member can do is right in some small measure the great wrong he had done to the staff is to name those whom he claims to know are involved, in order that the innocent may be cleared," he said. Such naming should be done outside the house so that the NDP member would not enjoy immunity from a lawsuit.

The minister said Dr. Shulman's figures on the number of pregnancies were "dreadfully wrong."

"The fact is, there were five pregnancies last year among 26,000 patients in Ontario hospitals," he said. "Of course, even that is too many but if we are to use modern methods of care to allow great freedom to patients in order that we may try to develop in them some sense of responsibility, then we must take some risks . . ."

In other legislature business:

Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said the government will restore protection to homeowners with artificially inflated mortgages under the Expropriation Act. He said a new bill will mean a homeowner will not have to make further mortgage payments when compensation paid on his home is less than the mortgage on it.

The legislature was told slum landlords often provided mortgage money at an inflated price and could receive a sudden windfall when a house was expropriated.

Ontario Legislature Briefs

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart announced in the legislature Tuesday night that the cabinet has decided to restore protection to homeowners with artificially inflated mortgages under the new Expropriation Act.

The provision had been stricken from an early draft of the act on grounds that it involved tampering with private contracts but its absence was criticized by both government and opposition members last week.

The new section will be aimed at slum landlords and unscrupulous mortgage companies who hope to make high profits quickly out of inflated mortgages.

The new clause, which implements a recommendation of a Ontario law reform commission, provides that in cases where the value of a first mortgage exceeds market value of the property at the time of expropriation, the mortgage holder will be paid only the market value but the mortgagor will be relieved of any need to pay the balance.

TORONTO (CP) — The legislature was told Tuesday night that the family of a Toronto taxi driver shot to death by a youth he was trying to disarm could have received compensation under Ontario's Law Enforcement Compensation Act had the act's wording followed the stated intentions of the government.

James Bullbrook (L—Sarnia) said compensation for the family of Larry Botrie was denied.

Mr. Bullbrook said he agreed with the compensation board decision in view of the wording of the act. The operative section of the statute requires that the victim be injured or killed while "assisting a peace officer as defined in the Criminal Code."

Mr. Bullbrook also described Ontario's system of shelter exemption grants as "probably the greatest fiscal fraud ever perpetrated by this government."

He said one of the shelter grants went to Michigan Governor George Romney who has a cottage in Bosanquet Township in Lambton County.

TORONTO (CP) — No changes will be made in legislation concerning school buses in Ontario until the results of a study have been discussed with ministers of other provinces, Transport Minister Irwin Haskett said Tuesday.

He told Fred Burr (NDP—Sandwich Riverside) that it is hoped uniformity in school bus legislation can be achieved.

Mr. Burr had asked in the legislature if the minister would consider amending sections of the Highway Traffic Act so that cars approaching school buses in the 25-mile speed zones would have to stop if bus lights were flashing.

The law now requires approaching cars to stop under these conditions on roads and highways zoned for faster speeds.

TORONTO (CP) — No women are hired in Liquor Control Board outlets because of the physical demands of the job, Provincial Secretary Robert Welch said Tuesday in the Ontario legislature.

He told Mac Makarchuk (NDP—Brantford) males are required because the duties include unloading trucks and carrying heavy cases.

However, he said the board is considering hiring women to work in the new self-service liquor stores proposed for major Ontario cities next year.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

Precarious Truce Said Not Answer to Peace

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul appealed to the world's leaders today for peace and said it could not be guaranteed by a precarious truce or an unstable balance of power.

"Without peace there can be no confidence and without confidence no progress," the Pope said.

"Peace is the duty of those responsible for the fate of peoples, a duty of every citizen of the world."

The Pope's message was issued in connection with the World Day of Peace he has proclaimed Jan. 1.

The pontiff appealed to the world to unite in celebrating this peace day so that "the first sun of the new year must shed upon the earth the light of peace."

He added this appeal to youth:

"We dare to hope that, above all, it will be youth who will grasp this invitation as a demand which can interpret everything new, lively and great, yearned for by their trusting and spirits, because peace demands the correction of abuses and coincides with the cause of justice."

"The necessity of war," Pope Paul said, "could be justified only in exceptional and deplorable conditions of fact and law which should never be certified in modern world society.

"Reason, and not might, must decide the destinies of peoples. Understanding, negotiations, arbitration, and not outrage, blood and slavery, must intervene in the difficult relations between men.

"No precarious truce, unstable equilibrium, fear of reprisals and revenge, successful conquest or fortunate arrogance, can guarantee a peace worthy of that name."

Chambly Village Lies Deserted

MONTREAL (CP) — Chambly Village, an attempt to preserve the bygone days of New France, lay deserted and hopelessly broke Tuesday as the village corporation's board tendered its resignation here and abandoned its provincial charter.

The decision to abandon the charter, acquired in 1961, was taken two years ago but not implemented.

Now, the village, opened near Chambly, 15 miles south of Montreal, in July, 1962, and run by Jacques de Chambly Historical Village, Inc., a non-profit organization, lies deep in snow and debt.

The idea for the village was similar to one that made Upper Canada Village near Morrisburg, Ont., a successful tourist attraction.

Curator Antoine Prevost, 38, said in an interview that many of the village's cottages were broken into a month ago and valuable donated pieces stolen.

Stolen items included a diamond-point armoire, a collection of spinning wheels, beds, a large number of chairs and china pieces, paintings and sketches.

"These people knew what they were doing," said Mr. Prevost. "They took chosen pieces, some quite valuable."

He said there was a caretaker on the premises but "we don't pay him enough to have him stay up all night."

Insurance had lapsed because the corporation could not afford to pay the premiums.

Mr. Prevost holds no hope for recovery of the items "which probably now are in the United States or Ontario."

A barrier blocks access to the fieldstone houses. It has been there since the summer of 1966, the last season the village welcomed visitors. They totalled between 30,000 and 40,000 in five years.

The 13 buildings are locked and deserted.

Mr. Prevost says the corporation's debt is about $200,000.

The Montreal Trust Company, which has a mortgage on the village, is the main creditor.

More than 300,000,000 persons visited United States museums in 1967.

Greater Freedom Urged

ZURICH (AP) — A group of Roman Catholic theologians, warning of immeasurable damage to their church, have urged greater freedom in the expression of divergent theological concepts.

They put forth their views in a petition released in this Swiss city Tuesday, reflecting what many believe to be a deepening crisis in Roman Catholicism. The theologians asked for a renewal of the Vatican Curia and called for development of a "healthy theology" that must not be jeopardized by "any form of inquisition."

The theologians asked Pope Paul to make major reforms in the Vatican Curia, the central administration of the Roman Catholic Church, and called for the retirement of cardinals over 75.

Vatican circles said they believe the petition was an attempt to get rid of Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani and his followers. Cardinal Ottaviani is 78 and still works at the Vatican's Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, the former Holy Office, although his resignation as its head was accepted last January.

Tense Nova Scotia Racial Situation Is Solved by White and Black Action

HALIFAX (CP) — A tense racial situation that threatened to erupt into major trouble earlier this month appears to have been defused by wholesale government concessions and efforts by the Nova Scotia Negro community to find a consensus.

The appearance of a handful of militant Black Panthers here late in November raised fears of racial strife. The situation did not get as bad largely because of the unexpected type of discrimination they encountered here, according to a Negro spokesman.

"Black Panthers who came here told me they felt misled about conditions here. . . . Someone fed them poor information. . . . They were told conditions were terrible," says Rev. Wrendred Bryant, past moderator of the American United Baptist Association of Nova Scotia.

This was borne out by T. D. Pawley of Boston, a lack Panther, who told reporters he found subtle but not open discrimination and tension in the Halifax-Dartmouth area, home for almost half of Nova Scotia's 15,000 Negroes.

His organization stood ready to help blacks here to fight for equal opportunity but it was up to the black community to decide what assistance it wanted.

He and an aide held meetings with Negro leaders and said they prepared a report for Stokeley Carmichael's visit here earlier following a black writers' conference in Montreal.

A human rights conference which followed is regarded by many as having come just in time to avert a confrontation between blacks and whites.

Premier G. I. Smith pledged at the conference that his province would set an example in human rights legislation and then proceeded to outline immediate changes contemplated by his government.

These included increases in fines for discrimination levied under the Human Rights Act; public inquiries following complaints of discrimination to be made mandatory and complaints and inquiries published; charitable, philanthropic, educational and social organizations to be brought under the act; the Human Rights Act to be enforced by local agents in provincial centres and the act to apply to all housing of more than one self-contained unit.

He also promised a determined effort to meet Negro demands for better education and housing, more jobs and assistance to young people with talent.

His announcement of a director for the provincial human rights commission, a long-awaited appointment, however, created an uproar when it became known he was a white man.

Marvin Schiff, 31, of Toronto was the target of the outcry by Negroes who had expected a black man to receive the appointment.

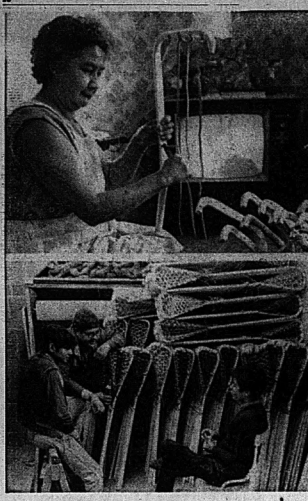
Mr. Schiff said he would make "damned sure" that things he wanted to happen for minority groups in the province did happen "or else I resign."

"The conference was successful in that the premier agreed to accept our demands . . . but it showed the lack of a black consensus," said Dr. William P. Oliver, member of the provincial adult education staff and a former Baptist minister.

"You can't legislate goodwill, attitudes. . . . The problem is beyond legislation. . . . We have people who have to find themselves."

To try to achieve a consensus among the scattered Negro settlements in Nova Scotia an all-black meeting here in November formed a Black United Front as a "co-ordinating and catalytic body."

Dr. Oliver is chairman.



With the BUF scarcely off the ground, its aims and objectives still vague, it has already come under criticism from an older, more established Negro organization for its alleged tendency to think of achieving objectives immediately.

Ross Kinney, a layman, moderator of the African United Baptist Association which purports to speak for more than 90 per cent of Nova Scotia's Negroes, disassociated the AUBA from the front.

He is supported by Mr. Bryant, who disagrees with the structure of the BUF and thinks "there is a ton echelon Halifax City group" while the problems are province-wide.

He fears that eventually the Nova Scotia Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the AUBA may become subservient to the "super committee."

Dr. Oliver feels the BUF can contribute to "a transition from the slave-master complex."

Two Unexplained Explosions Shake Kitchener Area Hotels

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Two unexplained explosions an hour apart shook two hotels in the twin cities of Kitchener and Waterloo Tuesday night. There were no injuries.

The first occurred in the Station Hotel in Kitchener in a hallway adjacent to a washroom and beer parlor, damaging two doors.

The second, in a small room next to a beer parlor in the Waterloo Hotel, blasted a hole in the ceiling and caused an estimated $4,000 damage.

Michael Kelly, 22, a waiter at the Waterloo Hotel, said he went into the room when customers told him they smelled something burning. He saw four sticks of dynamite tied together by a long, slow-burning fuse.

He said he made two trips upstairs for water to extinguish the dynamite.

"I was standing there staring at it wondering when it would go off, when it started sizzling."

Then he "ran like hell for the door" as the dynamite exploded.

Kelly said the only sensation he experienced was a ringing in the ears.

Burnham's Margin Is Small

GEORGETOWN (Reuters) — Prime Minister Forbes Burnham appeared today to be certain of victory over Marxist Cheddi Jagan but without a comfortable working majority in the National Assembly.

With returns from seven districts still outstanding in Guyana's first general election since it gained independence from Britain in 1966, Burnham's People's National Congress led with 114,113 votes. Jagan's People's Progressive party had 108,103.

The final result, expected this afternoon, will depend on the voting in crucial and controversial overseas ballots.

Most observers believe the majority of 53 National Assembly seats will go to Burnham but no one is sure how many of the 68,000 overseas Guyanans, mostly in British, Canada and the United States, voted.

The PNC's former coalition partners, the United Front, had polled 13,297 votes and the Guyana United Moslem party 711.

Burnham, who now has fought four elections with Jagan since 1957, said again Tuesday he will not form a coalition government again as he did in 1964.

He said that if he failed to win a clear majority in the National Assembly he would consent to head a caretaker government only until new elections.

Water Supply Project Is Planned in Peel

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Five Peel County municipalities agreed Tuesday to participate in a $38,000,000 water supply and sewage disposal project.

The agreement ended more than three years of negotiations.

Under the 20-year scheme, the Ontario Water Resources Commission will supply Mississauga, Port Credit, Streetsville, Brampton and port of Chinguacousy Township with municipal water piped from Lake Ontario and will accept sewage for treatment and disposal.

Construction Under Way on New Road Between Picton and Skyway Bridge

By DONALD MacKENZIE
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — Not only are the provincial parks in Prince Edward County soon to have better roads but the whole county will be more easily accessible as Highway 49 from Picton to the Skyway is slowly completed.

The 12-mile road has been divided into three sections, with the first completed by the H. J. McFarland Construction Company, officially opened last year.

Now construction has started at the other end.

It will run along the old highway 49 to the Picton Golf Club and then cut north behind the Lake Ontario Cement plant and back to the old highway. Eventually a third contract, not yet opened for tenders will connect the two new concrete sections of road.

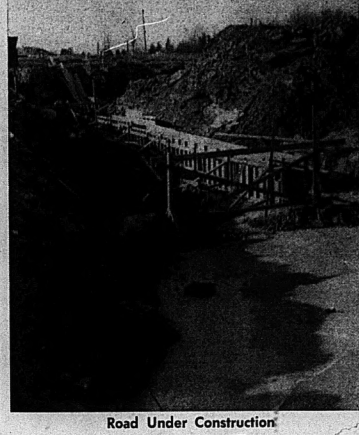
The four and a half mile section from Picton toward the bridge is also being built by the McFarland Company who expect it to be completed by next fall.

At this time not much can be done because of weather, since the law forbids using frozen ground in grading.

However workmen are building and installing concrete culverts and storm sewers in Picton and along the road near the golf club.

The only earth moving that is being done is behind the Cement plant where a large pile of waste is being carted away.

In the McFarland engineering department Dave McIntosh stated that after the sewers were completed the job would probably be left alone until spring.



"Then the real work will begin," he said, "with the earth moving, grading and laying the concrete."

When completed the section of Highway 49 from Picton, like its earlier completed sister section from the Skyway, will be a granular base road with concrete paving.

Other construction jobs in the county at the time are leading into the Provincial parks one at North Beach and another five-mile stretch from Cherry Valley to the Outlet.

For upwards of a 1,000 youngsters in the city and district, Belleville firemen will prove again this year there really is a Santa Claus.

Over the past 50 years city firemen, through their firefighters association have engaged in collecting toys, repairing them and then distributing them at Christmas to those who might otherwise go without.

In recent years the work of restoring toys has been taken over by the Kiwanis toy workshop but the firemen's role as "Santa Claus in blue" continues.

"We try to include a new toy along with those the Kiwanians restore," said Fire Chief Ted Poste." This means the association must raise over a $1,000. At one time we were able to gain some revenues from bingos and other activities such as exhibition hockey games but these sources have dried up.

"What with our involvement in the Santa Claus parade and our muscular distrophy projects, it has put a strain on the free time of the men."

It was with this in mind that the firefighters' association joined with the Salvation Army and the Christmas Exchange to form the community Christmas Fund.

"There is no duplication in our work," pointed out the chief. "The firemen concentrate on seeing that every youngster who might otherwise not get a toy does so. We augument the food and clothing baskets provided by the other two groups, and we all work from the same master list."

Contribution to the Christmas Fund can be made by mailing donations to the Christmas Fund, Box 815, Belleville or by telephoning the United Community Services at 962-9531.

Keith Allison packs last of 400 pairs of skates before shipment to Cree Indians in northern Manitoba yesterday. The Belleville businessman personally launched project to provide recreation for reservation, where his brother is United Church missionary.

Appeal Pace Quickens

TRENTON — Everyone is involved here as the United Christmas Appeal is shifting into high gear under the direction of the Salvation Army to make sure everyone sees Christmas as a special day.

Organizations here are working to make sure there is a sparkle in everyone's eyes when they look under the tree on that special day.

Captain Sloss of the Trenton Salvation Army said "We have 125 families on our master list, and it is they who will be receiving our special Christmas baskets."

Last year the master list, upon completion, contained 127 names. More names can be added to this year's list, until Monday when the gifts will be packaged.

Although most of these are from Trenton, the Salvation Army is also co-ordinating aid for Frankford, Wooler and Brighton.

"We divide the needy families into three groups, small, medium and large," explained Mr. Sloss, "and this, determines the size of the Christmas basket."

The baskets contain chicken or a small turkey, along with all the extras that go with a festive dinner.

Much of the food has been collected by groups such as the Trenton Sing-Out Club and the High School Key Club which canvassed the town.

But money for the traditional turkey and other extras depends on public donations.

"We are falling behind last year in this department," said Mr. Sloss.

He said that donations can be made by cheque, or money can be dropped into the Salvation Army bubbles that dot the streets of Trenton.

And since the festive season is for the younger ones, each package will contain that magic ingredient — toys. Handling this job are the firefighters at CFB Trenton.

"They work all year for this one day!", explained Mr. Sloss, "and in many cases have the toys looking better than new."

The deadline for donations will be on Monday, for it is then the task of packaging and delivering the Christmas gifts will begin.

"Volunteers will sort out the food and toys on Monday evening at the Citadel and then packaging will begin.

"And then at nine o'clock Tuesday morning Kiwanians, Key Clubbers and other service organizations will join in bringing the good cheer to the needy families.

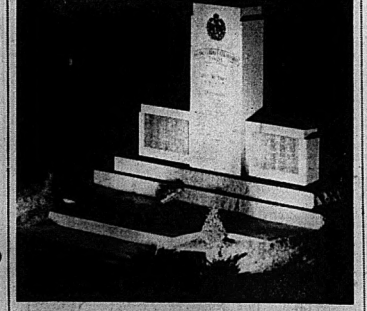
Area Snowmobiling Expands

TWEED — Snowmobiling is expanding at a tremendous rate in Canada and the United States. It is not generally realized up to now that Canada has supplied most of the machines used in both countries.

The Ontario Safety League was early to recognize the potential growth of the new sport, and has been working to help it develop along the best lines for over three years.

The League's Outdoor Recreation Department has field tested different makes of snowmobiles over the past three winters. This led to the production of a pamphlet, "Snowmobiling . . . Winter Fun for the Whole Family," that is available on request. It deals with the snowmobiler's responsibilities: operation, hazards, clothing, equipment, and survival tips in case of emergency.

By agreement the text and illustrations were made available to the International Snowmobile Industry Assn., in Washington, D.C., who produced the pamphlet in quantity in the United States.



In the fall of 1968 the O.S.L. was busy with two additional programs. One was the production of a booklet to help the public know just where they can go to get good snowmobiling facilities. The booklet, available free on request, is titled, "Snowmobiling . . . Where to go in Ontario."

The other activity was the production of two 3"x10" trail markers, which have been accepted as the official markers by the Ontario Federation of Snowmobile Clubs. They are supplied at a small charge to clubs and resort operators. One is bright orange with a design and the word "Trail". The other is bright red with the word "Danger".

Experience has shown that there is a real need for adequate signing in areas used by snowmobilers.

Apart from consideration of safety, it adds to the enjoyment of riders to be guided to the best areas, and warned off unsuitable terrain, and dead end trails.

But production of signs by individual operators is a costly and time-consuming affair; hence the welcome given by the industry to the effective, inexpensive trail markers produced by O.S.L.

Skates for Indians Is Christmas Project

And it's not necessarily gift - wrapped.

Today, it's on its way in 10 cardboard cartons all set to surprise the Christmas out of a whole community.

The cartons contain 400 pairs of skates — of all sizes— and the destination is a Cree Indian reservation at Oxford House Lake 700 miles north of Winnipeg.

They'll be flown in just in time for Christmas and as yet the Crees haven't a hint of what's on the wing.

Familiar to Bellevillians as operator of the city's Shopette stores, Mr. Addison has no direct personal interest in the Cree community. His brother, Rev. Dale Allison is United Church missionary on the reservation.

The Crees live by a big body of water frozen through the winter and an obvious recreation asset. There was one drawback: They had no skates.

At the time, Mr. Allison kept quiet about the problem. Later, mulling it over, he decided to solve the problem and last Friday canvassed city sports stores for traded - in skates.

He purchased all the used pairs in circulation. Shopette customers added more. Then, says Mr. Allison, Belleville Kiwanis Club added a bulky shipment.

By yesterday, with his stores' staff volunteering to help, he was counting skates by the score into cardboard cartons.

There also was a shipment problem. The skates had to be moved fast to make it to the isolated community by Christmas.

They arranged the formula that sees the skates shipped by rail to Toronto flown to Winnipeg and taken by air express north to Oxford House Lake.

Mr. Allison also is paying for the shipment, although he refuses to quote the personal cost of the entire project:

"We're all just hoping they will get quite a surprise when the skates arrive up there," he says.

Flyers Use Seasonal Goal Splurge to Advance Into Fourth

By SCOTT BUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Philadelphia Flyers of the National Hockey League celebrated New Year's Eve two weeks early, and with goals instead of noisemakers.

The Flyers trounced Pittsburgh Penguins 8-2 Tuesday night in their biggest scoring splurge since last New Year's Eve when they beat Los Angeles Kings 9-1.

The victory, watched by 6,986, moved Philadelphia into a fourth-place tie with Minnesota North Stars in the Western Division and out of a last-place tie with Pittsburgh.

FORBES KENNEDY

In the only other NHL game Tuesday, Oakland Seals edged Minnesota 3-2 to move one point behind second-place Los Angeles in the Western Division.

Making the biggest contribution to the Flyers' celebration were Dick Sarrazin, Brit Selby and Andre Lacroix who scored two goals each.

The triumph was the second in a row for Philadelphia after a streak of 11 winless games. Despite the scoring outburst, the Flyers still have less goals than any other NHL team—58.

Sarrazin, called up from Quebec of the American Hockey League 10 games ago, also picked up two assists.

The 22-year-old native of St. Gabriel de Brandon, Que., has scored five goals and seven assists since his recall. In his rookie season as a professional last season at Quebec, Sarrazin gained only 17 goals and 19 assists in 69 games.

The Penguins and Flyers both had 26 shots at goal. But fine goaltending by Philadelphia's Bernie Parent, who stopped 17 shots in the final period, helped produce the lopsided victory.

Billy Hicke scored two goals to lead Oakland to its victory before 10,720 fans at Minneapolis. Joe Szura scored the other Oakland goal, and Danny Grant and Claude Larose tallied for Minnesota.

Hicke scored the winning goal at 10:04 of the final period when he beat Cesare Maniago with a 20-foot shot after taking a pass from Mike Laughton.

Minnesota outshot Oakland 37-29, but Seals' goaltender Gary Smith had little trouble with most of the North Stars' shots.

Elsewhere, coach Claude Ruel of Montreal Canadiens said that centre Jean Beliveau apparently has recovered from the flu and will play tonight against Los Angeles Kings.

Beliveau worked out Tuesday morning and "looked fit", Ruel said in an interview.

Toronto Maple Leafs mean while returned rookie defenceman Rick Ley to Tulsa of the Central Hockey League. Ley was called up from Tulsa last weekend because Tim Horton had the flu.

In other games tonight, the Maple Leafs will welcome Oakland and Chicago Blacks Hawks visit New York Rangers.

Top Spot At Stake Tonight

The action begins in earnest today as the Class "AA" Basketball league as powerful B.C.I. travels to Trenton to start defence of their Bay of Quinte Junior and senior basketball titles.

The Collegians, who are sharing their season later than other teams will be on the spot because in all three divisions — bantam, junior and senior, there appears to be strong teams capable of challenging BCI teams for top spot.

Quinte and Picton stand atop the senior division, both teams having won two games and lost none. Collegian senior coach Wally Beever does have an idea where his team stands though, for Monday night BCI defeated arch-rival Quinte 66-57 in a game to decide the Belleville representative at the Queen's University Golden Ball Tournament to be held during the Christmas holidays.

The second feature tonight will take place at Picton where the undefeated senior teams of Quinte and Picton will clash in a battle to determine first place.

Midgets Off to Slow Start

Blake Kerr's Imperial Midgets are looking forward to the Orillia Midget Hockey Tournament Dec. 26 to redeem themselves after a poor start against OMHA competition.

The midgets have a disappointing record of one win, four losses and one tie in league games to date, but they are hoping to show well in the three-day, 16-team Orillia invitational tournament.

The tournament is a round-robin double-knockout affair and Belleville's first game will be against Hamilton at 4 p.m. Dec. 26.

The 16 teams will include one from Detroit and others from across the province.

The midgets have seven holdovers, including three third year players, plus eight graduates of last year's all-Ontario Kinsmen bantam champions, but they have yet to jell as a unit. They are a small, light club, with a reputation for starting slowly but picking up in the second and third periods.

Dale Caul and Peter Ackerman play the other defensive spots, and they protect goaltender Paul Muldoon...a second year midget.

Bill Bunnett, Allan Genereaux and Gary Thompson form a second line, and Greg Scarlett centres for Terry Meagher and Mike Rollins.

Belleville plays in a league with teams from Trenton, Picton, Napanee and Gananoque. The midgets are a "AA" club and will play off with the winner moving on in with the moving moving on in the provincial playdowns.

Blazers Top Three Lead Race

KANSAS CITY (CP) — A 19-point spree in four games last week has enabled the Oklahoma City Blazers' line of Jim Lorentz, Tom Webster and Grant Erickson to strengthen their positions atop the Central Hockey League scoring race.

Lorentz tallied seven points to boost his record to 17 goals and 25 assists for 32 points. Webster scored nine to lift his total to 47 and Erickson added two to build his count to 46.

Webster, who leads the league in goals with 21, is a right winger in his first year of professional hockey. Niagara Falls Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series last season.

Games Against Czechs

Tough Test for Nationals

WINNIPEG (CP) — Czechoslovakia's national hockey team, scheduled to make a six-game exhibition swing through Canada this month, is almost unchanged from the lineup that won a silver medal at the 1968 Winter Olympics.

A roster of the Czech team, issued by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, omits the names of four members of the silver medal squad and lists a few unfamiliar names.

But basically the team is intact and should provide a good indication of what Canada and other countries can expect in the world tournament at Stockholm next March.

Most notable absentee from the team which arrives today for games against Canada's national team is Vladimar Nadrchal. 30, the goalie who has been around since the 1957 championship.

Others who played in the Winter Olympics but have been omitted from the touring Czech team include Petr Hejma, Jiri Kochta and Jan Klapac.

The unfamiliar names Mraksvia, Bednar and Eberman —reached CAHA executive director Gordon Juckes in a telegram which asked that they be added to the advance lineup.

No first names or positions were given for the players and it is assumed they are young players whom the Czech coaches want to observe under fire of international competition.

The Czechs play Canada's nationals in Montreal Dec. 30, Ottawa Dec. 22, Vancouver Dec. 23, Winnipeg Dec. 25 and 27, and Fort William, Ont., Dec. 30.

They return home Dec. 31.

Vladimir Durdis, 26, a veteran of five national teams, will be in goal while Vaclav Nedomansky, Josef Cerny, Jaroslav Jurik and Josef Golonka also will play.

Besides the Czechs, Sweden, Russia and Japan will play in Canada this year.

Barrage Girls Lose to Picton

Gwen Bronsky led the Picton attack with four goals and Helen Green scored the fifth goal. Judy Rappel replied for Barrigans.

Gordie Howe's HOCKEY

It's old hat now, I mean the two penalty-box system. Remember when everyone shared the same box, and the fights that would erupt?

Now you get the fight out of your system before you go in the box, because the last couple of years the National Hockey League has insisted on separate boxes for the visiting and home teams and you don't get that chance to renew the fight. Not in the same way, anyway.

It's a good thing, too. At least to my way of thinking.

Looking back over the 23 seasons I've been in the league, I think the most brutal fight I ever watched was in the penalty box. It was during a game between the Detroit Red Wings and the Black Hawks and was played in Chicago.

It matched a pair of tough customers, too. Black Jack Stewart with our club and John Marincic, who is now an assistant to the general manager with the Minnesota North Stars.

That fight started on the ice, of course, but it was continued in the penalty box. Stewart grabbed Marincic's jersey and punched with his free hand while Marincic did the same thing.

Bill Gadsby, our coach, was playing for Chicago then and Sid Abel, our general manager, was playing on a line with me. They agree to this day it was the most brutal fight they had ever seen.

Fighting in the penalty box was quite common at one time but it was almost considerably when the league decided on an automatic $50 fine for this kind of thing. I always remember Ted Lindsay after the rule on the $50 fines were announced. He'd enter the box and turn to whatever player he had had a row on the ice with and growl: "I can't afford it . . . can you?"

Remember when players from opposite teams would go into the penalty box and sit with their heads down? Quite often they were sibling there swearing at each other.

This is why sometimes one player would suddenly jump up and start swinging again. It was that heads-down cussing that triggered the situation all over again.

Another advantage of the two-box system is less apparent, but just as important. When rival players shared the same box, the player from the home club entered last. This often led to a traffic jam at the door when the penalty time was up and they were leaving the box. The home player would block the visitor for several seconds, maybe long enough to keep him out of a crucial play.

To my way of thinking, the new system is much, much better.

Russians Welcome As Pros: Campbell

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League's attitude toward a meeting between North America's top pro circuit and Russia's national team has not changed, NHL president Clarence Campbell said Tuesday.

"If ever we reach the stage when the Russians will play against our league we'll just treat them as professionals," Campbell said. "We haven't changed our attitude."

Campbell was commenting on recent reports from Moscow that the Russians now are ready and willing to meet either Montreal Canadiens or Toronto Maple Leafs as an indication of their advance in the hockey world.

Campbell, however, does not see the possibility of any such confrontation for at least two years.

He said the situation is complicated by the fact the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association continues to run Canada's national hockey teams at Winnipeg and Ottawa. That only is the case until the recently-formed "group named Hockey Canada takes over next year.

Campbell said it is natural enough for the Russians to express a desire to confront either the Canadiens or Leafs "because these teams have been publicized throughout Europe."

Rangers Get Halifax Star

KITCHENER (CP) — In an effort to move up from last place in the 10-team Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, Kitchener Rangers Tuesday acquired Bob Whitlock, a 19-year-old forward from Halifax Junior Canadiens.

In exchange for Whitlock, a native of Charlottetown, the Rangers will send two unnamed players to the Maritime Junior Hockey League team.

Whitlock played two seasons with Halifax and this year started out with Edmonton Oil Kings of the Canadian Hockey Association's Western Canada Junior League, before returning to Halifax in November.

Whitlock scored 54 goals last season, four more than Sheehan, and played 20 fewer games in this lineup.

Brent Madill, Kitchener general manager, said he hopes Whitlock can live up to his Halifax performances.

Whitlock's father, Roy (Buck) Whitlock is a legendary figure in Maritime hockey. Although the elder Whitlock never played in the National Hockey League, he was a standout for many years for east coast Junior, senior and professional teams.

NHL Amends Waiver Rule

By STERLING LYON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The National Hockey League has strengthened its rules to make the off-season player draft more beneficial to weaker clubs in the 12-team circuit.

Now, the amended rules will make it impossible for a club to get a player like defenceman Larry Hillman as Montreal Canadiens did earlier this season in a straight deal with Pittsburgh Penguins.

Hillman was left unprotected by Toronto Maple Leafs last June and claimed by Minnesota North Stars. The North Stars sold him to Montreal early this season but NHL president Clarence Campbell ruled the deal was contrary to league bylaws.

The rule stated that any draft eligible player had to be placed on the waiver list and made available to any club in the league for the $30,000 waiver price before he could be sold or traded. Pittsburgh Penguins then moved in, paid the necessary $30,000 and sold him to the Canadiens.

The deal stands, but it can never happen again.

The club that picked Hillman up for the waiver price would now have to place him on waivers again before he could be re sold or traded.

"The purpose of the draft is to help the weaker teams by making players available to them and the Hillman deal defeated this, although it was a matter of interpretation of the rule and nothing could be done about it," Andrews said.

Packers Shut Out; Colts, Cowboys Top NFL All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Green Bay Packers' domination of the National Football League all-star honors has ended.

Baltimore Colts and Dallas Cowboys each placed four players on the 22-man offensive and defensive units picked for The Associated Press by a 48-man committee of sports writers and sportscasters and announced today.

Earl Morrall, a back-up quarterback for years, finally moved front and centre as an all-star. He replaced John Unitas, the 1967 all-star who gave way to Morrall at Baltimore this year because of a bad elbow.

The starting backfield consisted of Morrall and the fleet running back combination of Leroy Kelly of Cleveland Browns, the two-time rushing champion, and Gale Sayers of Chicago Bears, despite the knee injury that put him out of action for the season Nov. 10.

Clifton McNeil of San Francisco 49ers, was named flanker on the basis of his league-leading 71 pass catches.

Bob Hayes of Dallas Cowboys was the split end and John Mackey of Baltimore the tight end.

The five-man offensive line was manned by Mick Tingelhoff of Minnesota at centre, Gene Hickerson of Cleveland and Howie Mudd of San Francisco at guard and Ralph Neely of Dallas and Bob Brown of Philadelphia Eagles at tackle.

Los Angeles Rams had three starters on the defensive team, including end Deacon Jones, tackle Merlin Olsen and safety Eddie Meadow.

Carl Eller of Minnesota was Jones' partner at defensive end and Bob Lilly of Dallas again teamed with Olsen as the defensive tackles.

Dick Butkus of Chicago was picked as the middle linebacker with Chuck Howley of Dallas and Mike Curtis of Baltimore as corner linebackers.

Bobby Boyd of Baltimore and Sam Barney of Detroit Lions won the corner back jobs and Larry Wilson of St. Louis Cardinals was back again at safety to team with Meadow.

Only 10 repeated from last year's team. They are Mackey, Neeley, Hickerson, Sayers and Kelly on offence and Jones, Olsen, Lilly, Howley and Wilson on defence.

Ten of the 16 teams placed men on the first team, but for the first time in recent memory, there were no Packers.

Raiders, Jets Dominate AFL Teams

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Oakland's defending American Football League champions and New York Jets, current Eastern Division kings, dominate the two 45-man all-star squads picked Tuesday for the annual AFL East-West game Jan. 18.

Oakland, which meets Kansas City Sunday in a playoff for the Western Division title, placed 20 men on the West team while 18 Jets made the East team.

Jets' quarterback Joe Namath will start in the East backfield along with running backs Hoyle Granger of Houston and Jim Klick of Miami. Wide receivers Don Maynard and George Sauer, both of New York, also were first team selections.

Miami's Bob Griese will share the quarterback job with Namath.

San Diego's John Hadl will start at quarterback for the West, with Daryle Lamonica of Oakland behind him. Hewritt Dixon of the Raiders and Cincinnati rookie Paul Robinson are the West first string running backs, with Lance Alworth of San Diego and Warren Wells of Oakland at the wide receiving spots.

Houston placed 11 players on the East squad, Buffalo Seven, Miami six and Boston four. San Diego followed the Raiders with five West all-stars. Kansas City had 10, Denver and Cincinnati two each.

Baseball Pension Pool Debate Begins

NEW YORK (AP) Baseball's long, cold winter is heating up and things promise to get even hotter when players read a litle note Marvin Miller has sent them.

Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players' Association, included the note with his recommendations for turning down a $1,000,000 pension proposal offered by baseball's owners. The words Miller uses to describe the offer run the gamut from "inadequate," to "outrageous," to "fraudulent."

The letter made Tuesday would increase the owners' contribution to the pension plan to $5,100,000 annually. The plan was presented by the Players Relations Committee which includes Joe Cronin, president of the American League, and Warren Giles, president of the National League.

Miller said he had met with the committee and that the offer fell far short of what the players feel is justified.

What angered Miller was the owners' contention that the offer would substantially increase the pension pool. "... The offer actually will permit no increase in benefits to the players whatsoever."

Father Advises Son To Refuse Lucrative Offers

ADELAIDE (AP) — If Arthur Ashe listens to his father, he will spurn a $500,000 offer to go on a pro tennis tour and dedicate himself to helping black people find their place in American society.

"You can build your castle too high," Arthur Ashe Sr., father of the world's greatest amateur tennis player, said today. "It's nice to be rich and famous, but there is more to life than that.

"Our kids in the ghettos need a lot of help. I would like to see Arthur, who can be an inspiration, do his part. I think that is what Arthur wants, too."

The elder Ashe was flown to Adelaide — through funds collected by friends in Richmond, Va. — to watch his son lead the U.S. Davis Cup team against Australia in the challenge round starting the day after Christmas.

Because Ashe, holder of the U.S. amateur and open titles, the Americans are heavily favored to win the trophy they have been able to take only three times in the last 18 years.

Ashe, who gets out of the army in February, has been the object of spirited bidding by pro groups, with one offer said to amount to $100,000 a year for five years.

To make this purse, however, he would be subject to playing one-eight stands on tour in head-to-head competition with other pros.

"This is not what Arthur wants," his father said while watching the American team work out. "A man can do more with his feet on the ground than moving all the time.

"I hope American tennis officials will make a move which will enable Arthur to continue to play tennis, but also devote some time to social work which he wants to do."

Ashe has said he will be playing tennis for money next year, if the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association follows England's lead to permit players to accept prize money without turning pro he is almost certain to turn his back on rich pro offers.

Goalie Gary Waugh Sparks Kings to Victory Over Barrie

COLLINGWOOD (CP) — Sparked by the goal-keeping of Gary Waugh, Collingwood Kings beat the league-leading Barrie Flyers 4-2 before 800 fans Tuesday night in an Ontario Hockey Association Senior series game.

Barrie's regular goalie, Ken Tayne, suffered a broken finger in the second period when he stopped a slapshot.

Tayne was replaced by Bob Saunders.

Basketball Coaches Form Association

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A drive will be started early in January to enroll members in the recently-formed National Association of Basketball Coaches of Canada, Howard Lockhart of Waterloo Lutheran University, the organization's president, said Tuesday.

"Our primary objective is to enroll all university and college basketball coaches in Canada and then expand as the association develops," the university's assistant athletic director said in an interview here.

The association will hold its first annual convention and clinic in conjunction with the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union's basketball tournament next March at the University of Waterloo.

"This is something which many coaches around the country have expressed a need for over the years and now it is becoming a reality," Lockhart added.

Objective of the new association is to further the cause of basketball at the university, college and high school level. High school coaches will also be eligible for membership.

Filion Fails to Reach Milestone

TORONTO (CP) — Herve Filion, 28, world champion harness racing driver from Angers, Que., Tuesday failed in two tries to reach the 400-win milestone for 1968.

Filion's best effort was a third place finish with favored Chief Billjohn in the fifth. He was seventh with Guilty Way in the third, trailed the field with Howy's Champ in the fourth and failed to finish, driving Spring Hill Tommy, in the opening race.

Filion, who needs two wins to reach 400, set a new world record for victories in one season Dec. 10 when he posted three wins at Montreal's Blue Bonnets Raceway. The old mark of 384 was set in 1964 by Eddie Freundi of Dusseldorf, West Germany.

Filion, who has moved to Greenwood for the balance of the winter meet, will try again tonight. He is scheduled to drive Shadow Roll in the fifth and Thunder Royal in the eighth race.

Aces Whomp Picton, Trenton Trips Teachers

Belleville Aces and Trenton CFB won their second games of the season last night at the Trenton Air Base in Bay of Quinte Men's Basketball League action. The Aces' overpowered Picton 95-38 and Trenton upset league-leading Belleville Teachers 75-61.

John Chalmers with 32 points and Tom Lornie with 28 were the big guns for the Aces who led 48-14 at the half and were never threatened.

Ned Ratsbosh with 26 points, Joe Theriault with 16, and Paul Hargreaves with 12 were the top scorers for Trenton as they handed the Teachers their first defeat.

Midgets Beat Wellington

A shorthanded Imperial midget squad downed Wellington 4-2 last night in their final exhibition game before travelling to Orillia Dec. 26 to compete in the Orillia invitational tournament.

The locals were minus four top players, out of the lineup with the flu, but they were never headed as Mike Rollins led the way with two goals and an assist. Allan Greaux and Doug James added single goals and Dale Caul and Greg Scarlett picked up two assists each.

International Aid Commission Uninhibited

MONT GABRIEL, Que. (CP) —Former prime minister Lester B. Pearson said Tuesday his World Bank commission studying international aid is uninhibited by political difficulties and will try to recommend a new foreign aid charter for the future.

Mr. Pearson presided at the first meeting of the seven-member international commission and announced he will go to Chile next month to study foreign aid problems in Latin America. All South American countries have been invited to send representatives.

Mr. Pearson was invited last summer by Robert S. McNamara, World Bank president and former U.S. defence secretary, to form the inquiry commission and submit a report by the end of 1969 on what needs to be done to consolidate world plans for foreign aid and improve its performance.

At the end of the initial two-day closed conference, he told a news conference the commission is not limited in the scope of its inquiry, nor bound by any political considerations of the governments of the member countries.

Commission members served as individuals, drawing on their experience as politicians, bankers and economists.

Mr. Pearson said it is important to find out whether there is, as Mr. McNamara recently suggested, a deterioration of political will to help the developing countries. If that does exist, Mr. Pearson said, the commission should find ways of strengthening that will.

A Tight Fit

The problems of modern transportation on the Great Lakes are shown as the motor vessel Whitefish Bay, since converted from a bulk-cargo carrier to a self-loader, fits tightly into St. Lambert lock on the St. Lawrence Seaway. The locks are 766 feet long and 80 feet wide, and the largest vessels on the St. Lawrence are 730 feet long and 75 feet wide. The trade advantages on the Great Lakes west of Welland Canal may pass to the United States, where ships of 800 feet are being built to use the new 1,200-foot Poe lock into Lake Superior at Sault Ste. Trudeau May Be Softening On Proposed Role Changes

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau indicated Tuesday what may be a softening on the government's proposed rule 16-A.

The proposed rule would give the government power to set in advance time limits on debates on all legislation.

Gerald W. Baldwin, Conservative House leader, asked in the Commons whether the government would seriously consider withdrawal of 16-A.

Mr. Trudeau did not promise withdrawal. But neither did he say the government would press ahead with 16-A.

He said Mr. Baldwin's question may be premature.

More debate was scheduled on the proposed rule changes. "I would not like to make a commitment now," he said.

The rules debate resumes Thursday.

However, it is not definite that the Commons will adjourn Friday.

The opposition has vowed to fight 16-A all the way and is understood to have assigned debaters for Christmas Eve if necessary.

Mr. Baldwin suggested that the all-party agreement, the Commons turned Tuesday from the rules debate to anti-dumping legislation.

The rules debate resumes Thursday.

However, it is not definite that the Commons will adjourn Friday.

The opposition has vowed to fight 16-A all the way and is understood to have assigned debaters for Christmas Eve if necessary.

Mr. Baldwin suggested that the all-party agreement refer back to the Commons special committee on procedure three parts of the proposed new rules which the opposition finds unacceptable.

He said the Commons then could pass the vast majority of proposed rule changes, which had all-party support.

The Commons could start the New Year under a completely new regime of rules, Mr. Baldwin said.

Mr. Macdonald outside the Commons told reporters such a procedure would be possible.

However, he gave no firm indication whether the government plans to bow to opposition pressure or to invoke closure to kill the debate and force a vote Friday.

Stanfield Raps Procedures During Press Conference

TORONTO (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Tuesday night proposed rule changes in parliamentary debating procedure will deprive the Canadian people of finding out how legislation will affect them.

Speaking at a news conference, Mr. Stanfield again accused the federal government of trying to manipulate Parliament by seeking the power to determine the length of debate on any legislation in advance.

Mr. Stanfield said that if the government limits debate, the opposition parties will be prevented from learning about details of legislation and informing their constituents.

He said in that trying to adopt Rule 16A, the government acted as if the Canadian people were not interested in the function of Parliament.

"I hope we can prove them wrong," he said.

Mr. Stanfield said people can make their views known by writing to their MPs, starting telephone campaigns or writing to newspapers.

Describing the proposed rule as "unreasonable and unnecessary," he said parliamentary procedure must not be destroyed "in the name of efficiency."

Infusion of Christmas Spirit

Commons Debates Anti-dumping Legislation

OTTAWA (CP)—An early infusion of Christmas spirit Tuesday lifted the Commons out of the week-old battle over new rules into calmer debate on anti-dumping legislation.

Aiming at a holiday from Friday, Dec. 20, until Tuesday, Jan. 14, the House amicably agreed to limit talk to two days on a new internationally-agreed system for detecting and dealing with imports dumped into Canada at cut-rate prices.

Herb Gray, piloting the anti-dumping legislation through the Commons as parliamentary secretary to Finance Minister Edgar Benson, promised the new system will permit quick and effective action when dumping causes or threatens injury to Canadian producers.

While MPs on all sides of the House welcomed the prospect, they raised a number of doubts about just how fast and effectively this would be done.

Key feature of the new system, to come into force by international agreement Jan. 1, is a five-member tribunal to assess within three months the danger or extent of injury as a prelude to imposing special duties on damaging imports.

Until now, such duties have been levied on the general test of whether the imports were brought in at prices below-those charged in the country of origin.

"If the dumped goods cause injury, threat of injury or material retardation to production in Canada, dumping duties will be applied," Mr. Gray said.

Opposition members were less hopeful.

"Dumping . . . can, does and will continue to cause serious injury to Canadian industry," said Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary Centre).

The harm will be done before it is detected, and the effectiveness of the new system will depend almost entirely on how well it is administered by public servants being given wide power to act quickly.

Mr. Harkness, a former agriculture minister, expressed the hope that quicker action also will be taken against low-priced fruits and vegetables imported just as the Canadian producers market their later-maturing produce.

Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo) urged that in deciding questions of injury to Canadian producers economic factors such as this country would be required to bear more of the burden of proving that their prices are legitimate.

Hazards of Smoking Object of Investigation

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons health committee on Thursday begins what is expected to be a thorough and protracted investigation into the hazards of smoking.

The committee will have before it at least six bills from MPs in three political parties as a basis for its inquiry.

The committee is scheduled to hear a statement from Health Minister John Munro Thursday and then, late in January, begin calling witnesses.

"It's going to be a big production," said Barry Mather, NDP member for Surrey, who gave up smoking some years ago and has been a leader in the movement to impose controls on cigarette advertising.

Marvin Howe, Conservative MP for Wellington-Grey, has given formal notice on the Commons order paper that he will sponsor a bill to empower the government to control the tar and nicotine content of cigarettes.

Informants said Mr. Munro will put the full weight of his department behind the committee investigation.

Mr. Munro recently published the first of twice-yearly reports by his department on the tar and nicotine content of 85 brands of cigarettes sold in Canada.

The first report is believed to have had a significant effect on sales of various brands.

Canada to Be Short Of New Flu Vaccine

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro said Tuesday the government hopes to have a stockpile of vaccine to combat Hong Kong flu by the middle of January, but he indicated there might not be enough to go around in Canada.

He suggested the food and drug directorate, which has ordered supplies of vaccine, would have to decide priorities for distribution, with elderly people probably first in line.

Asked by P. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe North), a medical doctor, whether MPs would be immunized, Mr. Munro said it was a question whether MPs have priority over other Canadians.

Outside the House, Mr. Munro said the initial batch of vaccine to arrive in mid-January will only be around 10,000 doses.

"It's not very much," he said.

The Canadian government had long urged U.S. vaccine manufacturers to take out Canadian licences to market the vaccine in Canada. Canadian companies had also been urged to produce it.

Manitoba Wants Fairer Tax Sharing Arrangement

WINNIPEG (CP) — Finance Minister Gurney Evans said Tuesday his federal counterpart won't be listening but that won't stop Manitoba's plans to continue pressing for "fair" tax-sharing arrangements.

He told a news conference:

"Manitoba will be pressing strongly for a fair tax-sharing arrangement with the federal government at the finance ministers' conference later this week. But (federal finance minister) Mr. Benson won't be listening.

"He already has stated, in effect, that he will turn a deaf ear to the urgent requests of the provinces on this basic and vital issue.

Mr. Evans was outlining the position he will take at the finance ministers' conference scheduled for Thursday and said the best Manitoba can hope for at the one-day meeting is an agreement to meet again.

He said the federal government refuses to negotiate and be bitterly attacked its position on medical care insurance.

If the federal government "feels that strongly" about the program and the precise terms it established, "then let them take over and administer the whole program."

"After all, the federal government has just imposed the largest single tax increase. . . . Is this is a social development tax, then let it be used for the most expensive new program that Ottawa has foisted on the land medicare."

Minister Promises to Plead Case of Newfoundland Fisheries

OTTAWA (CP) — The Newfoundland fisheries industry, already said to have two strikes against it, won a promise from Fisheries Minister Jack Davis Tuesday that he will go to bat for it at the cabinet meetings.

The minister told a provincial delegation headed by Newfoundland Fisheries Minister Aidan Maloney that the final decisions, however, are up to his cabinet colleagues.

He did promise to recommend a support program for the fiscal year which begins April 1, 1969. Mr. Maloney told a news conference after day-long talks he was hopeful the industry "will get the same level of federal support" it received in 1968.

The industry received some $4,500,000 of an $8,500,000 crash program of federal deficiency payments to the Atlantic fisheries this year.

The first strike against Newfoundland fishermen—and the East Coast industry generally—came with an end to the program Oct. 31.

The second blow was a drop in U.S. prices paid the industry for its products coupled with stiffening competition from other fishing nations aiming at the American market.

Tuesdays' meeting discussed a report by a team of consultants commissioned by the federal government a year ago to examine the Newfoundland fishing industry, and a brief from the industry.

Mr. Davis said he and his department officials want to learn all they can about the problems besetting the fishery before making recommendations. Although it was too early to announce solutions at this time "here is a need to continue a program of support." This he would recommend to cabinet.

Mr. Maloney said federal support will have to "at least match the deficiency payments of 1968." He had come here "hopefully to get some solutions to problems facing the industry.

Mr. Davis said one reason for delays in arriving at solutions is that the total impact on "trade and commerce" with the U.S. must be considered and "this all takes time."

The U.S. is by far the biggest market for Canadian fish and any new support policy here must be weighed against a possible backlash policy south of the border to protect U.S. fishermen.

Mr. Davis said he believes the Newfoundland industry must know the federal government's intentions early in 1969 because of the East Coast trawler operation. But for now:

The meeting here was held in a crisis atmosphere with reports that several Newfoundland fish-processing plants will close if help is not forthcoming.

The British Unilever Corp., which operates a plant at Harbour Grace, Nfld., already has announced that it will shut down at the end of January.

LONDON (Reuters) — British authorities today searched for a suitable institution to treat an 11-year-old girl sentenced to life detention for strangling two small boys.

Britain apparently has no suitably secure institution where Mary Bell, described as a mentally sick, precocious and cruel child, can get psychiatric treatment.

The judge who sentenced her in Newcastle-on-Tyne Tuesday admitted he had not found a mental hospital which would take her for what psychiatrists said would be years of treatment.

Some legal authorities speculated a special unit may have to be created solely for Mary's benefit. The problem will have to be solved quickly by Home Secretary James Callaghan.

A government consultant said that because child care units in special top security hospitals were abolished, there was a problem finding a place for someone under the age of 15.

Her close friend, 13-year-old Norma Bell, no relation, also charged with the crime, was acquitted.

In a 10-day trial in the grimy coastal town the two girls, next-door neighbors, were accused of murdering Martin Brown, 4, and Brian Howe, 3. They denied the charges.

Mary Bell, described during the trial as "a manipulator of children," was said to have exercised a powerful influence over slower-witted Norma Bell.

Said Judge Sir Ralph Cusack: "This girl is dangerous. Steps must be taken to protect people who might be the subject of her attention."

The prosecutor in court described Mary as "a most abnormal child, aggressive, cruel, incapable of remorse, a girl moreover possessed of a dominating personality with a somewhat unusual intelligence and a degree of cunning that is almost terrifying."

The case may also begin a controversy over the impact of television violence on young minds.

She was asked if she knew what would happen if the throat of a three-year-old boy was squeezed. She said: "Yes, he would die. I know because I watched The Saint."

When detectives arrested her she said: "I will phone for some solicitors, they will get me out."

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: Could you give me a few good hints that would be a real help on starting my car in winter time and keeping it going?

ANSWER: The first thing to do is to have a tune up, install snow tires; fill a box with sand, along with a small shovel, or purchase a pair of steel trac-treads ($1 pair); see that your anti-freeze is up to par, along with your battery. Now, the most important item for your car in cold weather is gas line anti-freeze. This is the cheapest item (35 cents) of your whole winter tune up, and the most unthought of. I can't understand why it is not pushed at every gas sale. One small 35 cents can well do a filled tank, and will keep your gas line from freezing up in any zero weather.

QUESTION: As a private motorist, I would like to ask your organization why the government is allowed to raise the gasoline tax to be the highest in the continent, and now increase licence plates. It's time we got together to do something about it.

ANSWER: You are not alone in your thinking, and for your information the OML has already presented a brief to the Minister of Transport concerning these tax increases. More about this on a later date.

QUESTION: Why are some cars allowed to drive around at night with only one headlight endangering other oncoming motorists? Why are our police allowing this dangerous practice to continue, particularly along our local highways?

ANSWER: This has been brought to the attention of the police authorities, provincial and city, and we have been assured that everything possible is being done to alleviate this most dangerous situation.

QUESTION: Why don't we use reflective licence plates for Ontario on our cars instead of the metal ones, so they can be seen and identified as being on a car at night time?

ANSWER: It is our view that all provincial governments should pass legislation to bring them into common use.

The Ontario government agrees it would be a good thing to some extent but says the costs would prohibit it.

Stiffer Betting Tax Slows UK Gambling

LONDON (CP) — There's little prospect of a happy Christmas for the racing industry this year. Betting tax returns are down sharply and the drop in gambling, and that's bad news for everyone.

The tax on betting turnover was doubled last March to five per cent. Bookmakers complained then that the extra burden—lowering the odds paid—would scare off customers and put them out of business. A drop in gambling would in turn hit racing which relies on subsidies from betting.

The latest figures issued by the excise department seem to bear this out. The October turnover fell by 22 per cent on the amount circulating during the same period in 1967. At the old rate of 2½ per cent, the tax man took £2,822,040 with £4,389,000 from the increased tax.

In the long run, bookies say this indicates serious trouble for various racing activities that depend on handouts.

The Horserace Levy Board backs the sport with an annual slice of the takings of bookmakers and the officials Horserace Totalisator Board —tote for short—which operates the pari-mutuel system at the tracks. This year chairman Lord Wigg gave the industry a record £3,040,000.

If gambling falls off, then the grants will have to drop right along with it.

The decline indicates small punters are cutting down their betting or switching to more profitable games.

Bookies report that professional gamblers, who need a clear 10 per-cent profit to stay in business, find the tax too stiff as well and are forsaking the horses.

Particularly badly hit are Beyond that, they hope to convince the treasury department that the current tax is unjust.

Although total turnover runs at about £900,000,000 a year, the bookies say there is only about £100,000,000 in circulation. Calculated this way, the current tax pans out at about 25 or 30 per cent of the cash in play, they say.

Racing will have to wait until the new year to see whether the unhealthy trend is maintained. There are no comparable figures for November and December last year when many tracks were closed under quarantine regulations during the serious epidemic of foot-and-mouth disease.

If the returns for January and February are as bad, then the bookies plan to scour long and loud.

track bookmakers who operate on a narrow profit margin, competing with the tote. The little operators are being forced off the tracks.

Betting shops which have proliferated on every main street in recent years are riding the crisis a little easier, spreading their operations across sports ranging from greyhound racing to bauty contests.

The bookies want a two-tier system which would take the pressure off the track men.

It Is That Time of Year Again To Pick Canada's Top Athletes

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

It's that time of year again.

Lacrosse has wound up the season and the track and field performers are between dates. The ball swimming meets are all over.

Hockey is still with us, but with a 76-game schedule it will be months before the National Hockey League shakes down into Stanley Cup play.

It's time again for the sports editors across the land to engage in that great off-season pastime of choosing the top male and female athletes for the last year.

But just what is an athlete? If you support the argument that an athlete is anyone whose field of endeavor is chronicled under sport pages, then Abe Yanofsky of Winnipeg could have been male athlete of the year on the basis of his chess triumphs a few years back.

History books note that in early times, athletes were persons of good birth and position who entered the lists for glory—a definition still adhered to by some leaders in amateur sport in Canada today.

The professional athlete came along about the fifth century AD, and has been fighting the stigma ever since.

Then there were the athletes, whose job it was to look after the athletes' diets, administering fresh cheese, dried figs and wheaten bread and unlimited quantity—something Punch Imlach of Toronto Maple Leafs might give a look to once he has those sideburns under control.

Punch would probably draw the line at the aleipters' other principal chore, however; the anointing of limbs with oil and the rubbing in of ashes and dust afterward. After all, a head coach and general manager can do only so much.

It was written of Henry V that he "was so swift a runner that he and two of his lords, without bow or other engine, would take a wild buck in a large park."

The common folk were discouraged from athletics, however, because it was felt it seduced them away from the practice of archery.

However, three Henrys later, things had taken a turn for the better and Richard Pace, secretary to Henry VIII, advised the sons of noblemen to take to sports and "leave study and learning to the children of meaner people."

Sir Thomas Elyot suggested about that time as suitable indoor exercises "tables, tennis, labouyring with joynes made of ledde, lifting and throwing the heavy stone or bar, playing at tennis," and said "rennying" was "good exercise and laudable solace."

IT WORKS
BECAUSE IT
SWINGS!

That's the principle behind the pendulum clock, invented in 1656. Earlier clocks were found only in cathedrals and public structures; today it is a rare home that doesn't contain at least one timepiece. Nowadays The days of the sundial and the hourglass are gone and the modern world depends upon accurate clocks.

If the days of your older clock are gone in your home, chances are that a home somewhere in this area would love to use it.

Projects Approved By Housing Group

TORONTO (CP) — Housing projects for families, senior citizens and students worth $9,669,411 have been approved by both Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. and Ontario Housing Corp.

Stanley Randall, Ontario minister of trade and development, said in a statement today the federal approval of six OHC and Ontario Student Housing Corp. loan applications will enable the province to proceed with family housing projects in Welland and Kapuskasing, senior citizen projects in Windsor, Preston and Bowmanville and a residence for 260 married graduate students at Queen's University, Kingston.

Federal loans approved total $8,702,469.

The projects are financed 90 per cent by the federal government and 10 per cent by the province.

A 24-storey, 400-unit senior citizen high-rise in Windsor. The $4,564,000 building will be the tallest in the city.

Queen's University residence, to be built at a cost of $2,652,728. It will contain 100 one-bedroom and 100 two-bedroom self-contained apartments in 19 three-storey blocks, to be ready for the 1969 fall term.

Twenty family units will be built at Kapuskasing with two, three-and four-bedroom units in semi-detached housing, to be ready by fall of 1969.

OHC will erect 44 one-bedroom senior citizen units in a single two-storey building in Preston.

A 14-unit senior citizen project will be built in Bowmanville.

Department Wants Right to Intervene

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States justice department has asked permission to intervene in new Federal Power Commission hearings on whether the present Canadian-American ownership of Great Lakes Gas Transmission Co. constitutes a violation of U.S. anti-trust laws.

The department, in taking this unusual step, notes in its petition that Americans Natural Gas Co. of Detroit is part owner with Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. of Great Lakes—a situation to which the department j"may desire to direct attention."

There was no immediate indication when the FPC would rule on the justice department's petition but a meeting of interested parties is scheduled for today.

The FPC agreed Nov. 21 to hold new hearings. It raised the possibility that Great Lakes could be required to divest itself of some or all of its setup including other U.S. or Canadian interests.

In ordering the new hearings —for which no date has yet been set—the FPC said that appropriate alternatives in the Great Lakes system owned as originally proposed are "not necessarily limited to a Great Lakes owned and operated solely by Trans-Canada."

On the contrary, in considering the possibility of some diffusion of ownership "it will be incumbent upon us to consider the possibility of participation of other United States and Canadian interests with Trans-Canada in the ownership and operation of Great Lakes."

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Prices slipped in light mid-morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today, following a two-day slide in response to weakness in New York and tighter credit conditions.

Golds edged up on news of a spurt in the price of bullion on the London and Continental gold markets, although volume was light.

Campbell Red Lake gained 1½ to 36, Giant Yellowknife ¼ to 12¾ and Camflo 15 cents to $5.30.

In industrials, Maclaren Power A fell 2½ to 18½, OSP Industries 1½ to 24½, Trans-Canada Pipe Lines ¼ to 12¼, Industrial Acceptance ¼ to 24½ and Bell ¼ to 48¼.

Among the most active issues, Brinco and Domtar lost ¼ each to 5¾ and 12.

Among western oils, Charter rose 2¼ to 18¾ and Home A 1¼ to 41. Ranger dropped ¼ cent to $9.70 and Mill City 23 cents to $2.77.

On index, industrials dropped .72 to 188.93. Golds gained 4.16 to 242.77 and base metals .14 to 112.53. Western oils lost .31 to 240.59. Volume by 11 a.m. was 897,000 shares compared with 909,000 at the same time last day.

The market closed Tuesday with a sharp loss, although trading was the lightest since mid-November.

The industrial index fell 1.02 to 189.65 and the western oil index 2.66 to 241.50. Losses outnumbered gains widely.

Brokers say the downward trend this week, which followed a powerful surge to record levels, is due to weakness in New York where Wall Street investors have been anticipating tighter credit conditions and an increase in the federal reserve board discount rate.

The discount rate, equivalent of the Canadian bank rate, is the amount of interest the central bank charges on loans to commercial banks.

The weakest industrial groups were steels, real estate issues, retailers, food processors and banks.

Canadian Tire A fell 2 to 69, Seaway Hotels 1¼ to 50, Shop and Save 1 to 24¼, Revenue Properties ¼ to 18 and Stelco ¼ to 26¾.

Overland Express lost 4¼ to 12½ after a big drop Monday. More than 50 per cent of the shareholders have formed a voting trust agreement in support of the present management to ward off a possible takeover bid.

Golds continued to edge up in response to the rising price of bullion on the London and continental free markets. Dome gained 2 to 82 and Giant Yellowknife ½ to 12½.

In the list of heavy traders, Mill City lost 15 cents to $3.00, Dynamic 27 cents to $2.60, New Continental 15 cents to $2.40 and Permo seven cents to 94 cents.

The shares of these companies have been rising fast recently on news of a uranium find in northeast Saskatchewan.

On index, golds rose 4.37 to 238.61. Base metals fell .36 to 112.29. Volume was 3,583,000 shares compared with 4,374,000 Monday.

Indomethacin Helpful in Arthritis

By Dr. George C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am an arthritis sufferer and my doctor has been prescribing indomethacin for about a year and a half. It seemed to help me immediately. However, I read an article in a magazine recently stating that indomethacin has not been fully tested and the side effects are many, including even death. Do you think this drug has been tested enough, or should I stop taking it? I am very upset about this. Mrs. J.B.

Similar worried letters continue to reach me; I'll answer the best I can and, I hope, allay a good deal of this worry.

Remember, to begin with, that there is no drug known to any man which is 100 percent perfect. Neither is there any drug about which we yet know all there is to know. That includes aspirin, digitalis, and other old standbys we have had for many years.

A big (and highly technical argument broke out some months ago in a U.S. senate subcommittee hearing. It was a hearing dealing with business, but the dispute centered around indomethacin. It could have centered around some other drug, but it didn't.

The upshot, however, was great worry on the part of patients using the drug.

The facts, as I read them from reports of the dispute, are these:

There are differences of opinion on the testing and on the effectiveness of indomethacin.

There are (as with all drugs) side effects in some patients. There are some patients whom the drug does not help. But there have been something like 1,000,000 patients using this drug by now and finding that proper dosage helps them and does not harm them.

The "deaths" mentioned in the hearings are debatable: They were children already severely ill, and the drug in question — as well as other drugs — was used. Some died. But that is a far cry from saying that indomethacin caused their deaths. For other children, also seriously ill and given the drug, did not die but get better.

There is a suspicion that the drug may, in children, interfere in some way with their ability to fight off infections. The present situation is simply this: the drug is not recommended for children.

For adults, indomethacin continues to have approval of the U.S. Food and Drug administration, continues to help patients for whom it is so appropriate. And if, in adults, there are side effects, the drug can be stopped and the side effects then disappear.

The best middle-of the road judgment I have seen is that by Dr. William S. Clark, president of the Arthritis Foundation, writing in the Bulletin of the Rheumatic Diseases that indomethacin:

"Provides excellent relief in ankylosing spondylitis and acute gouty arthritis. In rheumatoid arthritis the potency of the indomethacin is comparable to that of aspirin. It also seems to relieve the pain of degenerative arthritis of the hip. For the most part a safe drug, its main side effects are gastrointestinal irritation, and reversible central nervous system effects, headache, dizziness and muziziness."

Thus my answer has to be that if your doctor finds it suitable in your particular case and it helps you, and you have no side effects, why worry? If you do have side effects, then stop the drug.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you discuss the use of meat tenderizers for diabetics? — A. A.

There is no reason why diabetics cannot use them like anyone else.

* * *

Note to Mrs. J. S.: I repeat my advice: raw eggs can contain germs and cause diarrhea. To be safe, cook them. Dropping a raw egg into your coffee will not "cook" it like a backwater town, and doesn't help the export situation an iota."

She thinks the federal government has failed to see the export possibilities in the whole Canadian software industry. This includes clothing and other articles such as blankets made from fabrics or fibres.

"Most Canadian trade commissioners couldn't tell you who the top Canadian clothing makers were if you asked them," she says. "They should familiarize themselves with Canadian export markets, or we'll never make it."

She would like to see a branch of the trade and commerce department devoted to software experts. Its job would be to assess export potential in each country, set a Canadian export target, then assist manufacturers to meet it.

In 1967 Canada produced nearly 4,000,000 pounds of wool from about 500,000 sheep—a product worth a total of about $1,800,000 to Canadian sheep breeders.

All but about 300,000 pounds was exported in its raw state. At the same time Canada imported slightly more than 55,000,000 pounds, mainly from Australia, New Zealand and the United Kingdom.

But wool-product exports are, in the words of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, "virtually nil." They are not even substantial enough to be listed in the bureau's massive tabulation of Canadian commodity exports.

Although Canadian wool production is down considerably—by about 7,000,000 pounds was produced in 1962—Mrs. McGillawee says tariffs and shipping costs are the chief barriers to woollclothing sales abroad.

She sees potential markets both the U.S. and Japan. But U.S. tariffs on Canadian wool goods are 20 to 30 per cent, with an excess charge of 25 to 37.5 cents a pound. Shipping costs to Japan about triple the factory price of Canadian soft goods, Mrs. McGillawee says.

'Tremendous Opportunity'

Export of Canadian Clothing Is Slack

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's 1,300 clothing manufacturers shipped about $355,000,000 worth of goods last year.

Yet they exported less than one per cent of their production, worth about $1,200,000.

"There's tremendous opportunity for the export of Canadian clothing," she says. "But we're botching it by our poor public relations job on Canada, and our naive method of approaching export."

Just back from a seven-week tour promoting Canadian wool clothing in Australia and New Zealand, Mrs. McGillawee says buyers abroad have no idea of the high quality of Canadian stylings and fabrics.

She blames both the manufacturers and the federal government for the situation.

The manufacturers she calls too disorganized even to get together to stage a good promotion in the United States, which she thinks is ripe for Canadian clothing sales.

"We have associations coming out our ears. But the manufacturers aren't organized. Montreal and Toronto won't work together and neither will work with Vancouver. And the various fibre people are so competitive they won't tell each other what they are doing, let alone co-operate on an export show."

The results, says Mrs. McGillawee, is that three or four small manufacturers combine with the help of a federal subsidy, and produce their own show in some New York hotel.

"But it makes Canada look

Croll Attacks Lord Thomson

OTTAWA (CP) — The Peterborough Examiner strike hit the Senate Tuesday as Senator David Croll (L—Ontario) accused the Thomson newspaper of trying to smash its editorial unies.

He said the policy of the newspaper group established by Canadian-born Lord Thomson of Fleet is to deny newspaper guilds their legal rights for as long as it can.

The Toronto senator said the company refuses to discuss union security and the question of transferring employes, without their consent, with the striking unit of the American Newspaper Guild. The company's position also is indefensible and disgraceful.

"It is clearly out to smash the newspaper union and does not care how it accomplishes it."

There is "little doubt" that a legal charge of bargaining in bad faith against The Examiner could be sustained.

The anti-Thomson attack by Senator Croll, once labor minister in Ontario's Hepburn administration, came during an upper house debate on a money bill.

When Senator Croll sat down, a Manitoba Conservative, Senator G. S. Thorvaldson got up and said the senator had made a vicious personal attack on a noted individual, on a Canadian company and on a group of people.

Senator Thorvaldson said his sense of fair play demands that time be permitted in the Senate for a rebuttal to Senator Croll.

He obtained a deferment of the debate on the money bill, which had been scheduled for third and final reading before Senator Croll got up.

Earlier, Senator Croll said the guild was certified in May as the bargaining agent for most Examiner editorial workers and is attempting to obtain its first working contract.

However, "it is meeting with the sort of opposition that is a throwback to the dark ages of industrial feudalism."

The company's take-it-or-leave-it offer to the employes, on strike since Nov. 2, is "a sad commentary on the kind of thinking" that motivates The Examiner executives.

Senator Croll said the company offer is for a maximum of $117 a week, rising to $125 after three years. The guild now seeks $150—"surely a modest sum" in the circumstances.

The Examiner owners and Peterborough citizens should know that in some cities garbage-collectors make more money, "and some of them can neither read nor write."

Strictly Personal

The Now and the Then Folk

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"Don't you want to be one of the Now people?" asks an ad for a new soft drink, going on to urge: "Become one of the Now generation!"

The only thing I can think of that is worse than being one of the Now people is being one of the Then people. As a member of civilization in good standing, I reject both the rawness and the thinness of the generation, I opt for the alwayness.

To be a Now person means to be wholly concerned with the present and the immediate future; to be involved in fads, sensations, and the whole pulsating ephemera of what's going on; to be perpetually on the qui vive for the newest, the latest, the coolest, the in.

It also means to be insensitive to the past, to cut oneself off from the roots of tradition, to favor the sensory and the subjective over the rational and the real, to become a new kind of technological barbarian, which is more frightening than the old kind of preliterate barbarian.

To be a Then person means to cling i. the past for its own sake, to apply lessons that are not relevant today, to engage in a nimious nostalgia, envy rage and fear toward "modern youth," and to imagine that 20th Century problems can be solved by 19th Century moralism or 18th Century politics.

These are false alternatives, for they are not exclusive alternatives. There is a better way than either: and that is to be an always person, transcending both the frantic cult of the new and the feeble cult of the old.

This means selecting from both what is valuable, and discarding what is useless or harmful — which, of course, implies the ability to make such judgments. It means, further, learning to discriminate between values that are permanent and universal and mere matters of convention or taste or the times.

The always person does not throw out the baby with the bath water as the Now person does — who thinks that because we have had a false and hypocritical morality in the past that therefore all morality is merely a matter of taste or preference. Nor does he, like the Then person, operate on the basis that everything that was true for previous generations is equally true and relevant today.

Life is primarily the art of selecting and combining, not accepting or rejecting any philosophy in toto. The Now generation rejects the past too categorically, just as the Then generation embraced it too hysterically. To be all authentic person, in any age, means in some way to surmount the age and stand for the kind of order that permits and encourages graceful change.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For Dec. 19th,

Your birthday today: Whatever your life habits have been, prepare to find them changing. Fresh avenues of self-expression open in many directions. Select according to your intuition, and proceed. Today's natives have an ear for music, and many are composers or performers.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Legal documents today are likely traps. Sign nothing without advice. This will precipitate arguments. If you are not involved in legal negotiations, the arguments come anyhow. Stand firm.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Ask a question like "why don't we . . ." rather than announcing you have received a picture of how things ought to be.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Speculative switches are under a cloud. Avoid fooling with material resources, particularly if not yours. Watch to see who is upset by your unexpected financial wisdom.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): The news is not so cheerful. There is no better course to follow than to put in as busy a day as you can manage.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): New adventures have not been checked out well enough; you are not sure what you're putting into. Travel is generally hazardous. Your tact gets a good workout.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Be overcautious about money. Romantic and sentimental interests, particularly if brand new, have an unstable quality.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Job performance is normal or better. Expenses range upwards from estimates: no point economizing. Your personal theories are way ahead of the people around you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Drastic business or financial moves are outside the cover of supporting trends; postpone them. The later the hour is, the stiffer the going. Drive carefully.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan 19): Pursue existing well-established plans. A "breaking" remark or two will come back hundreds of times to plague you! Leave people their dignity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Be consistent in word and deed. Words have to be watched even with people who are erratic and independent. Travel is likely to be unsatisfying.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Important people probably back your views in ordinary discussion. Spending will not bring the results you hope for. You may even spoil friendships over the issues involved.

Unable to Walk Since June, Two Emaciated Sisters Found In Unheated Toronto House

TORONTO (CP) — Two emaciated elderly sisters—one of them blinded by cataracts, the other crippled—were taken to hospital Tuesday after they were found in their unheated house lying amid piles of rubbish.

They found Alice Dutton, 71, and her sister, Hettie, 76, lying in the garbage-filled room. Alice, with badly ulcerated legs, was on a mattress. Hettie was lying on the floor covered by a fur coat.

Firemen and police found a cardboard box near them, containing hundreds of dollars. In another room was a bank passbook with a balance of more than $500 and six uncashed old-age pension cheques.

Edward Norris, Toronto district fire chief said Hettie told him she and her sister only wanted a nurse and asked not to be taken to hospital because "we've been there before and we weren't treated very well there."

Chief Norris said Hettie told him neither of them had been able to walk since June.

"There were paths made through the garbage where they had crawled—just like animal tracks," Chief Norris said. "The one on the mattress looked like a skeleton with just a bit of flesh on."

Hettie, who has cataracts, said she had fallen and could not be of any help to her sister. It was she who telephoned the fire department to ask for help.

Chief Norris said when his men arrived they thought at first they had come to the wrong house. The bottom and third floors of the building were vacant.

"We went all over the place and couldn't hear a sound," he said. "Finally, we came to the locked door on the second floor and forced it with our shoulders."

Inside, both sisters were found half-frozen. Their only source of heat was a small, coal-burning heater which had gone out. The room was knee-deep in garbage and tables and chairs were littered with debris.

Six bags of coal sat in the room and about 30 paper bags filled with coal ash were stacked on the floor.

Many of the windows had been broken and empty coal bags had been shoved into the holes. Water pipes in the building had burst because of the cold and water poured from a third-floor bathroom into an overflowing sink in the kitchen and then down through the ceiling of an empty room on the ground floor.

Poison Bead Necklaces Plentiful in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal boutique owner says necklaces made of the same variety of poison beads that sparked a nationwide search in the United States last week have been on sale here for at least a year.

Louise Parent called the federal health department Monday after her husband noticed that the beads matched the published description of the shiny, egg-shaped red and orange beads sought in the U.S.

The health department inspector confirmed that the necklace beads were tropical beans containing a deadly poison which could kill in seconds if the beads were chewed or sucked.

The U.S. search, involving more than 110 cities, began a week ago after Sears, Roebuck was informed of the poisonous nature of the beads. The firm had shipped 300 to 400 pieces of costume jewelry decorated with the beads to stores across the U.S.

Mrs. Parent said she had three necklaces of poison beads in her boutique, priced at $2 each, but had not sold any. She had seen similar necklaces on sale in other stores for at least a year.

"I have seen women wearing them, and I recall having seen them in most boutiques at Man and His World this year, and even at Expo 67."

Mrs. Parent said she does not know the name of the Montreal importer, who appears to be unaware of the dangerous nature of the beads.

In Ottawa, a government spokesman said this is the sort of situation where federal officials have no power to act.

If the beads had been imported as food or as drugs, they would be covered under food and drug regulations of the health department and could be taken off the market. But when they were not brought into the country as food or drugs, no federal regulation applied.

The government is working on new legislation that would cover "the void" left by present law and would empower the consumer affairs department to seize dangerous products.

Council Gives Okay

Bridge on Sidney Street Will Cost Over Million

Ray Peacock

Work Planned In Two Stages

By Roy Peacock, Staff Reporter

Construction of a new Sidney Street bridge at a cost to the city of close to half a million dollars was approved by city council at a special meeting Wednesday afternoon.

The bridge, with its approach ramps and a re-located intersection with West Moira Street, will be constructed in two stages — the first in 1969 and the second in 1970.

But to take full advantage of this year's capital works quota the city will seek to have the cost of the first stage construction included in the municipality's 1968 capital works program.

Yesterday council received the report of Damas and Smith, consulting engineers, which recommended construction of a four-lane bridge over the CN tracks at an estimated total cost of $1,017,900.

The Transport Commission will subsidize the overhead bridge construction to a maximum of $250,000; the railway will contribute $62,000 and the Ontario Government 33 1-3 per cent of the remainder, leaving $475,000 as the city's share.

But council decided to do the work in two stages and engineers have estimated this will add another $14,000 to the cost.

Plans call for construction of a four-lane bridge over the railway tracks with provision being made for four CN tracks instead of the present two.

The present Sidney - Moira Street intersection will be moved slightly to the south thus eliminating the present right angled turns on Moira Street.

Also plans call for the re-located Moira Street to cut south of Sidney Inn. Several houses in the area would have to be razed, while about 10 properties or parts of properties would have to be acquired by the city.

Site of New Sidney-Moira Street CN Overpass

A new $1,000,000 railway overpass project for the Sidney - Moira Street area has received an okay from city council. City's share of the two-stage project will amount to nearly half a million dollars. Above intersection will be re-located.

Arms Sales Hurt Swiss Reputation

BERN (AP) — Illegal shipments of arms to Nigeria and other areas of conflict and tension have harmed the prestige of neutral Switzerland, President Willy Spuehler told Parliament today.

At the same time, he disclosed that official investigators have established that the quantities of rockets, cannon and ammunition involved in the unlawful deals were much higher than originally estimated.

He charged the country's largest arms manufacturer, the Zurich engineering firm of Oerlikon, Buehrle and Co., had "discredited the humanitarian vocation" of the Swiss people by shipping arms to tension areas.

Hydro May Stage 'Rotating Strike'

TORONTO (CP) — Employees of Ontario Hydro will take a vote during the next four weeks to determine whether they will endorse a rotating strike to support their demands for a new contract.

The vote was called Wednesday by the executive board of Local 1000 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees after it had rejected proposals for a new contract made by management. The proposals were in addition to a report by a conciliation board received last week.

Ransom Payoff Bungled

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A ransom payoff for kidnapped co-ed Barbara Jane Mackle was broken up here today, the FBI reported, when a policeman chased a suspicious car near Miami's bayside and recovered a suitcase stuffed with $500,000.

Also found in the car, abandoned by two persons near downtown Miami, was a skin-diving suit, apparently used in making pickup of the money from the waters of Biscayne Bay, the FBI confirmed.

A source close to the millionaire land developing family said in Atlanta, Ga., earlier that Barbara Jane is alive and unharmed. He declined to elaborate.

Reuters news agency reported that it was believed Miss Mackle had been returned alive and well to her home.

FBI agents, county and city police swarmed into the bayside area where Dandy P. S. Self found the money in the abandoned car. Helicopters and dogs were thrown into the search for the fugitives, one of whom carried a carbine rifle.

Priority For French Advocated

QUEBEC (CP) — Liberal Leader Jean Lesage said Wednesday the Union Nationale government should introduce legislation immediately to elevate French to the status of a priority language in Quebec province.

During debate of supplementary spending estimates, Mr. Lesage listed several sectors, where, he said, legislation could help Quebecers "live, work and play in French".

This included legislation to ensure that:

—Publications, instructions and signs in factories workshops and offices give priority to French.

—Public billboards and fixed signs be in French or in French and English with French in the place of priority.

Davis Flooded With Protests

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Education Minister William Davis was besieged with protests Wednesday as more than 1,800 Ontario high school students walked out of classes in North Bay, Fenelon Falls and the Toronto area in demonstrations against extension of the school year.

In Toronto, an estimated 600 students assembled in front of the Ontario legislature and demanded that Mr. Davis change his department's directive requiring classes to continue until June 13—a 10-day extension from last year.

But in Niagara Falls, a student spokesman said 600 at the city's vocational institute will walk out of their classes today. He said a meeting with Mr. Davis will not help because the minister "won't listen."

And in Kitchener Wednesday, more than 700 students at Eastwood collegiate signed a petition protesting the extension. The full list will be sent to Mr. Davis Friday and organizers say they hope to get more than 1,000 signatures.

A group of student council presidents representing nine of London's 11 high schools said Wednesday they hope to organize student councils across the province to pressure Mr. Davis to reverse his decision.

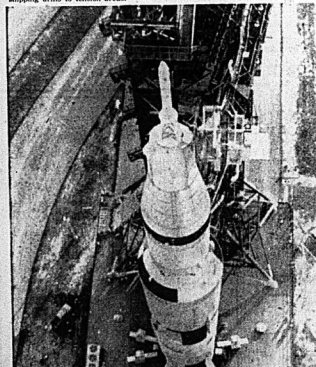
A delegation of London students will meet in Toronto today with Dr. J. R. McCarthy, deputy education minister. Alex Farquar, a student council president, said if nothing comes of the meeting the nine student council presidents will travel to different districts in Ontario to organize the students.

Students from 15 Toronto-area schools, stood on the legislature grounds facing 14 police officers lined up at the doors of the building. The students chanted:

"Hell no, we won't go. Half a month has got to go."

In a regulation last week, Mr. Davis ordered regular secondary school classes to end June 13 with final examinations to begin June 16. Last year, regular classes ended June 3.

Finance Ministers Gather Amidst Chorus of Demands



OTTAWA (CP) — The federal-provincial conference of finance ministers opened today with a chorus of varied demands from the provinces for more tax money from Ottawa.

The ministers met in closed session at Ottawa's old union station, but most of the provincial delegates stated their demands in cordial interviews at the outset of the day-long meeting.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson, chairman of the meeting, made no comment to reporters as he went to the conference. One asked him for "a word of hope," and he said "there is always hope."

The variety of provincial demands ranged from Ontario's Charles MacNaughton, who said he wants "a bagful of money" to Saskatchewan's D. G. Steuart, who said special help is needed immediately for western farmers who are stuck with a frozen damp wheat crop.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Colimbia, promoting his proposed new division of the country into five big provinces, said Canada's financial difficulties will not be solved until the provinces get back full taxing rights, and Ottawa stops promoting shared cost programs.

Set to Soar

Fuelling of Apollo's Rocket Starts

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 8 launch team began today the critical task of activating the three fuel cells that will provide electrical power for the space ship on its intended moon orbit flight.

The operation, expected to last several hours, involved piping in supercold liquid hydrogen, at a temperature of 423 degrees below zero, and liquid oxygen, at 297 below, into the fuel cell system. The two combine during flight to produce electricity and a by product, drinking water.

The three astronauts who will fly the mission, meanwhile, slowed their rugged training pace as the countdown neared the final hours for Saturday's launching.

Col. Frank Borman, Capt. James Lovell Jr., and Maj. William Anders are to ride the awesome power of a Saturn V rocket into space at 7:51 a.m. EST Saturday.

If all goes well, they'll orbit the moon for 20 hours at Christmas, paving the way for other astronauts to land next year.

The trio Wednesday night watched the fiery blastoff of a Delta rocket and probably impressed a wish that their Saturn V works as well. The Delta performed perfectly and hurled a communications satellite into orbit.

Lovell and Anders also spent a few hours with their wives, who flew here by private plane Wednesday from their homes near Houston, Tex.

Marilyn Lovell brought the four Lovell children with her, and they plan to remain here to watch the launching.

Valerie Anders returns today to Houston, where she and Susan Borman will watch the blastoff of the Saturn V on television.

After the rocket hurls the three astronauts to the vicinity of the moon, they will act as explorers, geologists, photographers, physicists and navigators. And Lovell probably will have some fleeting thoughts of a family man as the spacecraft zips over a lunar mountain he has unofficially named "Mount Marilyn" for his wife.

"The reason for us going around the moon has been justified on the basis that this will teach us how to operate in this environment, how to communicate, how to track, how to determine the position of the spacecraft," said Anders, Apollo 8's systems expert and chief lunar photographer.

Lovell, chief Apollo 8 navigator, is to track lunar landmarks during six of the 10 orbits of the moon to see how well astronauts can determine their location and find landing sites.

The astronauts have photographs of lunar areas which will tell them what to look for along the flight path.

Rural Station Closings

Quinte Officials Close Ranks at Transport Hearing

Local spokesmen closed ranks yesterday in challenge the Canadian National Railways move to close rural stations in the Quinte area.

The confrontation between the railroad and local community leaders came in the final moments of a day-long session of the Canadian Transport Commission.

Chief spokesmen on both sides of the dispute were Harry Fast, CN Rideau area manager and Reeve William Shannon of Marmora.

The formality of the hearing was suddenly enlivened in its last moments as the reeve attempted to pin the CN official on the defensive.

At one point Mr. Fast warned that Reeve Shannon was putting words in his mouth.

Reeve Donald Rodgers of Stirling charged local economy could be penalized by as much as $250,000—the amount the railroad expects to save by the large-scale shutdown.

And commission chairman D. H. Jones wanted to know what happens to station agents displaced by the centralization program.

Reeve Shannon rose to cross-examine Mr. Fast after the railroad manager had presented a detailed summary of the CN's case in testimony lasting more than three hours.

The closing of 10 Rideau area stations — including Marmora, Stirling, Frankford, Madoc, Colborne, Campbellford and Wellington — would mean no withdrawal of freight or express services, he assured.

Service would be centralized from a master agency in Belleville and there would be no adverse effects to private customers.

The streamlining would effect an annual savings of $250,000 to the railroad, he claimed.

Telegrams, now handled by local agents, would be telephoned, and in the event of isolated customers, automatic phone service messages could be delivered by taxi or police — if the occasion warranted.

Mr. Shannon challenged the use of police "paid by the public" as "messengers for the CNR!"

"It seems a strange thing for a company of your status to do," he told Mr. Fast.

"It's not the duty of the police to deliver messages," objected Mr. Fast. "I'm talking about emergency situations."

Both men exchanged arguments over the possibility of customers having to flag down trains in the absence of a station agent.

Mr. Shannon said there were 40,000 people in North Hastings affected by the closings—and all must now do business by telephone through the Belleville agency.

"I'm thinking of the person who is hard of hearing, who doesn't use the telephone, who isn't good at English," he said.

He pondered if the ultimate economic situation would be "when the CN has no employees at all!"

Mr. Fast reiterated that the change was caused by technological progress and the need for greater productivity.

The CN, he reminded the hearing, "is a commercial enterprise that works and lives in a competitive situation."

He would not reveal the financial operations of individual stations involved in the scheme because it was "private information."

Charged Reeve Rodgers: "By saving $250,000 the CNR could be penalizing the economy of our district."

"If it's going to be spent in Montreal or Toronto for additional hotels this isn't going to benefit us . . . we're concerned with the economics of our county."

"I don't feel that the change of service is going to affect the economy of the county", replied Mr. Fast.

Mr. Fast also said it is not usual practice for the railroad to offer "alternate employment" to displaced personnel according to seniority.

Some station agents have volunteered for retire ment while others may stay in their communities where they already have established businesses or found employment.

Despite his assurances, however, the commission chairman sought more details on the disposition of agents affected by the plan.

"... Most important in our view is the effect of what is going to happen to these employees," he stressed.

Mr. Grills told the commission that the villages involved in the program "feel they are losing something that's part of the community.

"Economic must have its place too, but I do hope the CNR will think a little beyond that," said the MP.

The railroad also owed its personnel "some serious consideration," he felt.

One service the centralization program cannot replace is telegraph money orders, Mr. Fast admitted.

Questioned by Belleville barrister Robert Temple on behalf of Reeve Shannon, Mr. Fast said the service could be handled by banks or post offices.

However, he did not know if banks would telegraph money orders.

The only other community formally objecting to the move is Forlar, a village of less than 100, north of Gananoque. Fred Lake, deputy reeve of Bastard-Burgess South, said Forlar's only dairyman Talmage Stone filed a brief with the commission protesting the railroad plan.

County Backs Areas

There's growing uneasiness throughout Hastings County that rural and small town life is being eroded by economic concentration in big urban areas, the Canadian Transport Commission was told today.

The warning came from Hastings clerk-treasurer Carl Bateman as the county threw its weight behind Marmora village in its fight to retain its railroad station.

The move by Canadian National Railways to close down rural stations in the Quinte district is only one more instance of growing centralization victimizing less-developed areas, said Mr. Bateman.

As spokesman for county council the clerk-treasurer turned in what probably was the most eloquently plea to date as the commission sat for the second day in a hearing on the CN application to concentrate freight and express administration in Belleville.

"There is growing uneasiness . . . that this is simply another step in a growing wave of centralization that seems to geared to the benefit of urban populations," said Mr. Bateman.

Such centralization was contrary to the spirit of Confederation which grew to develop and enhance Canada's lines of communication, he added.

Through the years, large business enterprises have exploited the natural resources of the county, he told the commission.

"Now the people of this county feel that the large corporations after having depleted our county of a good many of our natural resources are suddenly withdrawing their services to where the profits are available."

Removal of station agents and station buildings may be just the first step of ultimate abolition of railway service. Next, the tracks may be removed, said Mr. Bateman.

Once removed by new discoveries of natural resources would "have to be very profitable" if the railroad was to reopen services, he warned.

Reeve Clarence Graham, chaiman of the county's industrial committee, said any lessening of railroad service would adversely affect county economy.

"To leave Central Hastings without an agent or representative of the CNR would . . . be a hardship and adequately substituted for by a remote control machine," said Reeve Graham.

MRS. PETER BRAWLEY
Marmora

Requiem Mass for Mrs. Rose Brawley of North Hastings Ave., Marmora, who died in Belleville General Hospital on December 16 was celebrated at Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, on Thursday, December 13, by Rev. T. G. Scanlan. Mrs. Brawley had been ill for 16 days.

Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Doyle, she was in her 80th year. Born and educated in Marmora Township she was a devout member of the Sacred Heart Church and Altar Society; also an active member of the CWL and Senior Citizens' Club where she was a popular entertainer in both.

Her husband predeceased her in 1952. Surviving are sons Thomas of Belleville, Patrick of Oshawa and one daughter, Mrs. Carl (Mary) Heath of Hastings; one stepson John of N.W. Territories; ten grandchildren and seven great grandchildren. Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Eddy Phillips of Belleville, Mrs. Margaret Forestell of Peterborough and four brothers, James Doyle, Fort McLeod, John Doyle, Marmora, Patrick and Henry Doyle, Fort McLeod.

Interment was in Sacred Heart Cemetery.

GORDON ANDREW WRIGHT

Following a lengthy illness, Gordon Andrew Wright, 53 Boswell Street, died in hospital early this morning. He was in his 64th year.

Mr. Wright was born at Pontypool, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wright and he had resided in Belleville most of his life. He was a garage mechanic and served in many garages in the district.

Mr. Wright was a member of Calvary Temple.

Also surviving are one brother, Elwood Wright and three sisters, Mrs. Leonard (Anna) Brawley, Mrs. Wm. (Maude) Farnsworth and Mrs. Melissa Thompson, all of Belleville.

Mr. Wright is resting at the Thompson Funeral Chapel. Service will be held in the Chapel on Saturday, Dec. 21 at two o'clock.

Interment will be in Belleville Cemetery with Rev. D. M. MacKnight, assisted by Rev. Leslie Mann officiating.

ERNEST HUDSWELL
(Toronto - Tweed)

The deceased was the son of the late William Hudswell and Rose LeSage. He was born in Toronto, and came to Tweed, when about two years of age.

Surviving are one brother, Rev. Father Leonard Hudswell, of the Scarborough Foreign Mission. (Father Hudswell is at present in China in the mission fields).

Mr. Hudswell rested at the Cassidy Funeral Home, Tweed, until Wednesday morning, thence to St. Catherine's Roman Catholic Church, Tweed where Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. Michael Dwyer, S.F.M. and Rev. John Grant -read the Epistle. Both these priests were of the Scarborough Mission Fields along with the brother of the deceased. Regan C. E. Baker of Tweed was present in the Sanctuary.

The bearers were: Joseph Murphy, Louis Genore, Jack Merasw, Kenneth Genore, Simon Genore and Simon Merasw. Entombment was in the St. Carthagh's Cemetery vault.

MRS. WILLIAM ERNEST TUMMON

The funeral for Mrs. Mary Ethel Tummon was held from the Grant Funeral Home to Foxboro United Church on Wednesday afternoon.

Rev. Abel Parsons conducted the service in the church and also said the graveside prayers at Foxboro Cemetery. During the service, Mrs. Rita Hough sang "Beyond the Sunset".

JAMES DOUGLAS YOUNG

James Douglas Young, retired machinist and resident in the senior citizens complex on Turnbull street, died in hospital early this Thursday morning.

Mr. Young was born in England, 70 years ago, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Young and had resided in the city for many years. He was employed as a machinist with the Stewart-Warner Company for some years until his retirement.

Mr. Young was a member of St. Michael's church. Fraternally he was a member of the Knights of Columbus Council No. 1009.

He was a veteran of the First World War and was a member of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch No. 39.

Mr. Young took an active interest in sports being a better than average alley bowler

He held the distinction of bowling a perfect game of 450. He was also a member of the senior citizens.

Surviving are his wife, the former Maude Scott Scruby, two sons, Harold Young and Clinton Young, both of Belleville.

Also surviving are 16 grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Fall Invasion of Rabid Foxes Creates Problem for Residents

PICTON (Staff) — At least five people in Prince Edward County may have been advised to take anti-rabies treatment by their family doctors in the past two weeks.

The statement came from Lloyd Allenton, Chief Inspector of the Hastings and Prince Edward Health Unit.

Although there have been increases in the county for both the number of rabid animals found and the number of animals brought to the Health Unit for rabies checks the reasons for the increases differ.

Causing the increase in rabid animals in the county from the usual three or four annually to 50 confirmed so far this year, is the invasion of infected foxes into Prince Edward from Hastings County.

Dr. J. F. McCorquodale, sub-district veterinarian in Belleville said the unit felt the animals may have moved across the channel late in the winter.

"Although we rounded up several we may not have been soon enough."

Dr. McCorquodale also pointed out the increase in the number of cases reported this year is three or four times the usual number.

Mr. Allenton, the chief inspector, attributes much of the increase in reports and animals brought in for checks to publicity.

"In the past couple of years people have heard and read much more about rabies than ever before and as a result they're bringing their animals in for checks."

"For instance a couple of years ago if a dog or other animal died under somewhat unusual circumstances nothing was thought of it." Today the animal will usually be brought in for a rabies check."

Mr. Allenton said he felt it was excellent that people have become more conscious of the disease and were taking the time to have it checked out.

However if people are more willing now to bring their animals in for a rabies check once they are dead, they are not doing as much to prevent them from getting that way.

Dr. McCorquodale recalled the free government clinic set up in Prince Edward during the summer to have animals vaccinated against the disease.

Both livestock and pets could have received the free shots but Dr. McCorquodale said that the turnout of ratepayers with their animals was disappointing.

Most of the cases of rabies in Prince Edward County animals this year have been discovered in 19 foxes. Sixteen cattle, five dogs, two raccoons, four cats, one horse and three sheep were also found to be rabid.

Picton Strikers Get Donations

PICTON (Staff) — Almost 100 children from the families of 100 people out on strike against the Proctor-Silex plant in Picton are going to have a very merry Christmas after all.

Hundreds of toys, foodstuffs and candies have been sent to the strikers from supporters in other parts of the province.

Over 250 new toys, almost 1,000 chocolate bars, 400 bags of caramel corn and hundreds of apples have come in for distribution to the children from International Harvester's Union Local 1903 in Hamilton.

And last week from Brookville came foodstuffs and canned goods for the parents. Mrs. Kay Brown, one of the strikers, said that when the food was given out there was an average of nine to 12 articles per person.

Glenn Pattinson, vice-president of the International Union of Radio, Electrical and Appliance workers arrived with more gifts from Hamilton today.

All of the toys, including the tractors, guns, game sets, dolls and other toys will be sorted out by the strikers tomorrow and distributed on Friday.

Large bags of goodies, including the candies, apples and corn have already been sorted up and are ready for distribution.

The 96 children, who will have a happier Christmas range between the ages of one and 16 years.

Besides the foodstuffs which came for the striking parents the IUE union is also giving each worker $10 to help along with extra Christmas expenses.

Mrs. Brown, who has the gifts stored in her basement, said yesterday that she felt everybody would be well taken care of for the Christmas season with the generous gifts and donations that have been made.

"We could always use more money," she said laughing, "but I think everyone should have a merry Christmas."

Members of the IUE in Picton have been out on strike against the Proctor-Silex plant in the town for the past six months.

McKeough Looks Into Requests For OMB Investigation in Picton

TORONTO (CP)—Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough promised Wednesday to investigate requests that an investigation be ordered into the affairs of the town of Picton.

Replying in the legislature to questions from NDP Leader Donald MacDonald, Mr. McKeough said the requests were made in two letters sent to the Ontario Municipal Board by a Mr. Moore and an H. Evans.

He said the municipal board has agreed to forward the letters to his department where they would be studied and any necessary action taken.

Mr. MacDonald also asked Attorney-General Arthur Wishart whether he was aware "of the public threats of physical violence . . . made by Reeve Barney Hepburn of Picton" against a Kingston Whig-Standard reporter because of stories in the newspaper concerning the town's administration.

"If so, is there any action that the attorney-general can and will take through the local Crown attorney to cope with such threats of physical violence?"

Mr. Wishart replied that although he had "some awareness" of the situation no complaints had reached the Crown attorney's office. If some complaints were forwarded they would be given immediate attention.

The newspaper said the threats were directed by the reeve against reporter Jack Brett.

Another Tax ?

The Province of Ontario appears hell-bent on establishing its own system of income tax collection, with emphasis on the old Robin Hood dictum of robbing the rich to help the poor.

Provincial Treasurer Charles McNaughton gave a hint of what was to come the other day when he envisaged a provincial income tax unless the federal government turned over a greater share to the province from federal income tax now collected in Ontario.

If this does come about it is clear where most of the provincial tax burden is going to fall. That is, on those who can afford it most. "We are convinced," said Mr. McNaughton, "that the burden of taxation must be lifted from those families with low incomes, especially those on fixed incomes which have shrunk through inflation."

The provincial treasurer claims that under the existing system of collection "we are denied any opportunity to design and use the income tax to meet our objectives."

As an example he cited property tax relief which, he said, could be handled much more efficiently through exemptions from the income tax base.

At the moment a proportion of the income tax collected by the federal government goes to the province. According to Mr. McNaughton Ontario wants not only a greater sum but more control over it.

What happens will depend on the outcome of the federal-provincial fiscal conference which opens today. As of now it is just another straw in the wind of the complexity that marks provincial relations with Ottawa.

That there is room for greater provincial control seems clear. How it is to be achieved, without increasing inflationary pressures (marked by the new rise in the bank rate) is another matter.

Anti-Litter Campaign

Litter is a problem in Belleville to which we have drawn attention many times. It may be said to be a problem in most places — with the exception of Scandinavia where public education and court fines ensure that it is minimal. Now those other countries where litter still gets tossed around freely are taking steps to achieve the kind of near-perfection of Scandinavia.

Britain for instance has "litter defence volunteers," and the idea has spread to New Zealand where a National Anti-Litter Council has embarked on a long-term campaign of public education. It began in September with an advertising program followed by a National Clean Up Week.

Playing a leading role in the campaign are service clubs and giving it added impact is a corps of "litter maids" wearing short tunics bearing the legend: "Don't drop liter — Keep it to Yourself."

Service organizations were told by the litter council's acting chairman, J. W. Thompson, that nearly five tons of rubbish are collected from the streets of Wellington, the capital city, every day.

Here in Belleville, as in other communities throughout Canada, litter is everywhere. And it is going to take a campaign similar to the one described above to bring about any real improvement.

Biafra Fights On

The Nigerian civil war drags on, and the Biafrans of the breakaway eastern province, are making a comeback.

Not so long ago Nigerian federal forces were said to ge closing in on the remaining Biafran strongholds. Defeat seemed only days away. Then came more arms for the secessionists. These, combined with the tremendous fighting spirit of the Biafrans are holding the federal forces at bay.

World sympathy seems to be more with the Biafans than with the federal government. Certainly they are the underdogs, yet their morale is high.

Meanwhile, the country at large is plagued with the problem of feeding starving refugees. Canada has done its best in this respect, but now the last Hercules aircraft engaged on supply missions has returned to this country.

Continuing efforts must now be made toward bringing about a ceasefire in this messy war. Only then can the country return to a condition of stability that would permit proper relief to the starving civilian population. At the same time it would offer an opportunity for a negotiated settlement of the conflict.

Trudeau Plays Puzzling Game With Defence Policies

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's review of defence and foreign affairs policy has confused a good many people including Defence Minister Leo Cadieux and probably External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

In particular the review encompasses Canada's involvement in NATO and NORAD but no one seems to know which way the government is heading.

Mr. Trudeau makes it sound as though he would like to get out of these alliances or to modify Canadian participation. Yet Mr. Cadieux says Canada will remain in NATO certainly through all of 1969 and declares he is keeping our military forces up to scratch.

And both the defence minister and Mr. Sharp appear before the Commons committee on defence and external affairs, and declare how important NATO is to Canada.

It is difficult to know what is in the prime minister's mind. At last word he had authorized Mr. Sharp to consult with the academics and find out what they think about the armed forces and foreign policy.

After this announcement some wags on Parliament Hill were saying rudely that if certain professors carried any weight, Canada would end up in the Warsaw Pact.

In the Commons Mr. Trudeau has commented that Canada could, if she desired, give notice next year of getting out of NATO. On another occasion he said that of course Canada would meet her commitments under NATO.

Yet Postmaster General Eric Kierans is permitted by the prime minister to make widely publicized declarations that Canada should get out of both the Atlantic Pact and the North America air defence pact.

One leading minister of the Trudeau cabinet who has not been heard from too much lately on defence and foreign policy is Senator Paul Martin, who formerly presided over External Affairs.

Senator Martin is known as a master of the long involved sentence which, when unravelled, means nothing at all. Yet just a month before the Liberal convention that made Mr. Trudeau party leader, Mr. Martin made a very clear and realistic declaration that might serve the prime minister well under present circumstances.

Mr. Martin said NATO as the key to Canada's collective defence arrangements. He said the link with Europe which NATO represented, gave Canada an extra-continental partnership to balance the close bilateral relations with the United States.

The NATO tie, Mr. Martin noted had facilitated vastly increased political and economic relations between Canada and Western European nations.

He observed that Canada's military contribution to NATO was relatively small but it was important to European stability and the preservation of peace.

"In this situation," said Mr. Martin, "This government sees no alternative at the present time to Canada's continuing to make an appropriate contribution to NATO forces in Europe."

Senator Martin said this in March. If his assessment was correct then, it ought to be even more applicable today following the resurgence of Soviet aggression in Europe.

But Mr. Martin was even more explicit in his views on NORAD. He noted some people believed Canada, by keeping to itself, could avoid becoming a target in her own right and being involved in an attack on the U.S.

Apart from any obligation to contribute to North America defence, he said this view ignored that Canada is geographically located along the main path which any Soviet and even Chinese attack against the U.S. would likely follow.

Even if there was no intention of attacking Canada, "there would always be the possibility that an accident or miscalculation would result in nuclear weapons coming down on Canadian territory, as well as the danger from fallout," he commented.

Mr. Martin also said it was difficult to imagine that an enemy in attacking the U.S. would allow Canada to remain a willing — or even unwilling — asylum for U.S. population, as well as a reservoir for food, arms and industrial capacity.

"We cannot prudently do otherwise than assume that a potential attacker would expect Canada to be sympathetic to the U.S. and thus likely in the event of a nuclear attack, to lend assistance if we were capable of doing so."

This enemy, Mr. Martin believed, could never ignore this possibility, and "I believe he would be right."

He is right there in the cabinet to give counsel to the prime minister if that is the message Mr. Trudeau wants to hear.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Adolf Hitler became commander-in-chief of the German army 27 years ago today—in 1941—after ousting Field Marshal Von Brauchitch. Hitler took over after the Nazi forces suffered setbacks in the Caucasus and failed in their assault on Moscow. His decision was also planned as a morale boost to the German people on the entry of the United States into the Second World War.

1812—British forces occupied Fort Niagara.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—Londoners gave eyewitness accounts of new German rocket-driven glider bombs: four war criminals were hanged in a public square in Moscow following the first war criminal trial of the war; American troops captured the Arawe air strip in southwestern New Britain.

An Older Student Counters Slur on Rising Generation

Letter to The Hamilton Spectator

Re the advertisement sponsored by a Committee for Concerned Retailers, December 7, I fail to see any justification in singling out teen-agers for an intimidating campaign by "Concerned Retailers".

I happen to be attending Mohawk College as a mature student (I'm getting a second chance to re-educate myself). Much of my life is centred around young people. Most of my association is with this group. And I can assure any "concerned" retailer that the young people are the most open minded sincere group around today. There is none of the hypocrisy we have among people of my age group. This world would be a lot better place if all the people possessed the honesty of our young people.

If these retailers are so concerned about protecting the good name of teenagers, they would do well to try to find out why people turn to crime.

If our retailers are so concerned about crime, let them turn against the ones who set up conditions to create crime. Let them turn against those who charge exorbitant prices for valueless goods. Against those who manufacture defective cars. Against those whose moral principles are that it is never a sin to charge as much as the traffic can bear.

He is identified with "social conservative" philosophies with emphasis on human resources. In this area he may be judged most severely. It is one thing to talk about new approaches in general terms, it will be another to put them into effect in specific actions. It must be apparent that we need direct and forceful action in such fields as mental health, penal reform, assistance to the Metis and Indian people which will aid them to make their own way, and welfare fin which he has promised a "new approach").

Hanoi in the Doghouse

Communist China Reduces Aid to North Vietnam

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

PARIS (AP) — China is so displeased with Hanoi's willingness to negotiate a peace settlement, it is slashing aid to North Vietnam, Western diplomats say.

The diplomats say they have detected a steady scaling down of Chinese military aid to North Vietnam since March 31, when President Johnson first limited the bombing of the North. Since then the Chinese are said to have withdrawn nearly half their estimated 50,000 man labor force from North Vietnam.

Indications are that the total cessation of bombing Nov. 1 and preparations for expanded peace talks here have infuriated Peking even more.

Without making any official pronouncements, Peking is allowing its mass media to feature anti-Hanoi criticism, a favorite ploy of propagandists in Communist capitals.

Reports reaching the West also tell of more forceful expressions of displeasure, such as popular demonstrations against the North Vietnamese inside China.

One dispatch said a North Vietnamese consulate in Nanking recently was surrounded and attacked by Red Guards. Others tell of Red Guards seizing shipments of Chinese arms bound for Hanoi.

After one such seizure of a munitions train, Premier Chou En-lai was moved to complain against Red Guard behavior.

Some diplomats say an angry Peking is trying to disengage from the North Vietnamese war effort. Others say that Chinese labor for rebuilding roads, railways and other communications is no longer needed since the bombing stopped, so it was simply withdrawn without any substitute aid offered.

—Leading Albanians from Premier Mehmet Shehu down have been criticizing Hanoi's participation in the Paris peace talks since October. Albania, China's only European ally, portrays such participation as "revisionism," taboo in the Communist rulebook. And Chinese organs have been publishing these criticisms.

—Again this week Peking publicized a statement by Shehu saying peace is not going to be achieved at the Paris talks but on the battlefields of Vietnam.

—In Hanoi, Albania's ambassador sounded off at a national day reception against revisionists. His speech was so heated the envoys of nearly all Communist states staged a walkout. The Chinese stayed.

In the early stages of the Vietnam war, when Moscow and Peking were competing for influence in Hanoi, the volume of Chinese aid roughly matched that of the Russians.

But as the nature of fighting changed to require the use of more sophisticated weapons, the Soviets rose to the occasion and the value of their aid jumped accordingly.

In 1967 it was estimated the Russians provided about $700,000,000 worth of aid, and the Chinese only $250,000,000, mainly in light weapons.

Now that the scale of fighting has reduced, Soviet aid has changed again. Instead of a military emphasis, experts say the Soviets now are providing more economic and reconstruction help.

Captain June Dwyer in charge of the Salvation Army operation for Belleville and the surrounding communities likes her job — especially when it comes to sending out assistance to needy families for Christmas. She signs one of the many vouchers being distributed from community Christmas fund made possible by the generosity of local citizens.

Army Provides Food

Enthused by the latest results from the Christmas Fund Appeal Salvation Army captain June Dwyer reported a big boost in a cash contribution from a local industry this morning.

Captain Dwyer said she had received a call from the Northern Electric personnel manager R. Caverly telling her the company's head office at Montreal had put a cheque in the mail for $200.

The money is earmarked for hampers and vouchers delivered to needy families in the community before Christmas.

She said the Salvation Army expects to collect assistance for 110 families and if necessary will be responsible for more. Our concern is to see that no on in Belleville goes hungry on Christmas she explained.

Captain Dwyer said she was not afraid to forecast the Appeal would meet the challenge "because I know from past experience how kind and considerate the citizens and merchants of Belleville can be at times like this."

In addition to helping with the Appeal the local Salvation Army workers hand out bags of treats at the Hastings Manor, the Belleville General Hospital and area nursing homes.

On the Sunday before Christmas they distribute gift packages to prisoners in the County Jail.

Bridge

According to engineers the entire bridge construction can be completed without closing the area to traffic.

The bridge itself would be constructed in two stages, one half being built just west of the present structure.

Following completion of the first half, traffic would be diverted over the new bridge and the present structure would then be torn down to allow for construction of the second half.

But to allow the first phase of construction to go ahead next year, the city will have to do a re-shuffle of its capital works bridge construction program.

Earlier this week council decided to go ahead next year with the new Dundas Street bridge over the Moira, but to delay the Dundas Street roadway construction for one year.

This means that the Dundas roadway and the second stage of the new Sidney Street overhead bridge will be done in 1970.

Also yesterday council voted to request a delay of one year for the proposed new CN overpass at the Haig Road extension in the northeast section of the city.

Trustees Sign Petition

Quinte Board Winds up Activities

Bay of Quinte District High School Board, after only a year of existence, quietly wound up its activities at its final meeting last night.

"It has been an interesting year, with never a dull moment," commented superintendent D. C. Stirling in his final report.

The board was formed a year ago with the merger of the Bay of Quinte, Stirling and Centre Hastings boards. It goes out of existence Dec. 31 when the new Hastings County Board of Education takes over all schools in the county.

Despite the fact members felt the last meeting was not the time to set policy, trustees decided to go on record as opposed to paying for taxis ordered by a parent when school buses failed to arrive to transport students to school.

The decision was made after a parent in the Stirling area asked the board to pay the bill for a taxi she ordered early in December when the school bus was two hours late.

In similar circumstances in the future, the trustees said, a parent should notify the board office and let officials decide how to get the students to school.

Agreeing "we can't hold up the path of progress", trustees voted to sign a petition for storm and sanitary sewer extension past Centennial Secondary School on Palmer Road.

The extension is being requested by residents at the northern end of Palmer Road. The sewers now end at the school. The board was told a housing subdivision is planned for vacant property to the east of Palmer Road and the sewers would be necessary to service the area.

Cost of 1,325 feet of sewers in front of the school is expected to be about $19,875.

Before the meeting began, the trustees, their five administrative officials and five principals, met for a group photograph. The short-haired and clean-shaven 1968 trustees were in sharp contrast to those of 1897, whose pictures were exhibited by BCI principal W. R. MacKay.

The formal portrait was found last week by a caretaker in the basement of BCI and will be preserved in the board office.

Christmas Fund Hits Half Way Mark

By noon today the Christmas Fund Appeal was halfway to the target set by the organizers at the beginning of the week.

On Monday $6,600 was sought to make a better Christmas possible for some 300 needy families. But since then another 50 have been added to the list of families requiring assistance.

Fund director Mrs. Selma Bochnek praising the way the public was responding to the appeal said money, food and clothing items so far donated had exceeded expectations.

She said the volunteers working for the Appeal were inspired by the interest shown.

A fund spokesman said 29 separate letters arrived in the morning mail with donations ranging from $2 to $50. A tally of the total cash received from this source amounted to $307.

Two unions, Local 1022 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees with a cheque for $25 and the United Mine Workers with $20 helped lower the target.

And the employees' group of the commercial division at the local Bell Telephone office enhanced the collection with a contribution of $50.

Individuals and groups are also phoning in to say pledges of cash, clothing and food are on the way, a fund volunteer reported.

The total number of families sponsored by this morning was 203. There was enough to provide hampers, vouchers and cheques for the families but donations are still required for nearly 150 more families if all of the needy are to enjoy a happier Christmas.

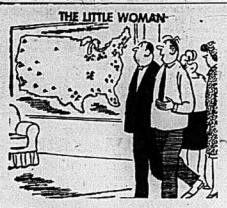
Cambodia, Viet Cong Announce Release of American Prisoners

SAIGON (AP) — The Cambodian government announced today it will release 11 American soldiers it has held for five months, and the Viet Cong offered to release three U.S. servicemen it captured.

The Southern allied commands announced, meanwhile, that American, South Vietnamese and enemy casualties all increased last week although no major sustained ground fighting was reported.

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the Cambodian chief of state, told a news conference in Phnom Penh he was releasing today the 11 Americans and a South Vietnamese soldier captured with them so they can spend Christmas with their families.



Sihanouk complained that Washington had fulfilled none of the conditions he set for the release. But he said: "As a Buddhist, I want to show that there is a contrast between us and American Christianism."

The prince complained particularly because President Johnson had not acceded to his request for a personal letter saying efforts would be made to stop violations of Cambodian territory by U.S. and South Vietnamese troops.

Presumably, the Australian embassy, which represents the U.S. government in Phnom Penh, will arrange for the prisoners to be flown to Bangkok.

The 11 Americans and the South Vietnamese were captured last July when their patrol boat strayed into Cambodian waters.

The release of three Americans held prisoner by the Viet Cong was made contingent on a Christmas Day battlefield meeting between U.S. and Viet Cong delegations to arrange the transfers of the men.

"Emily can tell you exactly where and when every major clearance sale in the country is taking place."

Airport Plan Soon: Hellyer

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Paul Hellyer said Wednesday he hopes to make an announcement on the future of Toronto International Airport later this week.

Mr. Hellyer said in the Commons he conferred Tuesday with the Ontario government about some aspect of the plan to extend airport and alternative proposals to build another large airport in the area.

Nixon: Price of Gold Won't Change

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Nixon and his advisers see no need for any new instructions to cabinet nominees about talking in public, despite the flourry of gold price speculation set off by the comments of David Kennedy, who is to head the treasury.

Ronald Ziegler, Nixon's press assistant, said cabinet appointees should and will continue to discuss their views and philosophies.

But one area is off limits: There will be no policy pronouncements from the 12 cabinet designates or the president-elect himself until after the Jan. 20 inauguration.

Kennedy was one of three cabinet designates due to see Nixon today. Ziegler said that meeting was arranged before the troublesome gold question arose.

That happened Tuesday in Washington when Kennedy, hewing to the Nixon instructions against policy statements, refused to flatly commit himself to the current $35 an-ounce price of gold.

This was taken by dealers in European gold markets as a hint that the new administration might not be wedded to the price which has stood unchanged for 34 years. Gold purchases and prices rose.

Nixon acted to dampen the speculation by announcing through Ziegler, that he anticipates no change in the gold price.

Ziegler said Nixon has decided on the appointment of a new United Nations ambassador, a Democrat, and that an announcement is due shortly. That job is expected to go to Sargent Shriver, now U.S. ambassador to France.

Inquiry on Government Information Services Will Certainly Keep Them All Working Hard

A questionnaire circulated last week to all government departments and agencies by the "task force" on information services is stamped "restricted."

One information officer said the questionnaire is so long that he has had to establish a task force to answer it.

Another said the questionnaire seeks a mass of data which will never be used because there will never be time to correlate it. The information "task force" is supposed to report its finding to Prime Minister Trudeau in March.

One of the consultants hired by the inquiry is Merrill Menzies of Winnipeg. He was a speech-writer for then prime minister Diefenbaker in the 1962 election campaign.

The inquiry so far has turned up such stray bits of information as:

An officer who has headed the information branch of his department for 15 years did not know the locatio n of the parliamentary press gallery:

Another public relations officer for a department spent most of his time using departmental information to write articles which he sold to magazines.

Back to the questionnaire:

It submits several proposals as objectives for government information services and asks for approval or otherwise. These proposals include:

"To provide advice and guidance to the public."

"To assess the opinions of the various publics of the department."

"To actively support the department in implementing policies, programs and services."

"To gain public support."

"To foster public understanding and confidence."

One information officer said anybody who answered this part of the questionnaire with other than "yes" would lose his job.

It asks about each department's "press clippings service, press clippings summaries and press clippings analysis."

It also asks each department and agency of government to supply information on:

Personnel management services, audio-visual aids, displays and exhibits, editing services, seminars, mailing lists, film production, graphic and typographic design, training courses, information programming, budgeting and expenditures, library services, briefings, methods of responding to press queries, feature articles, parliamentary returns, photographic services, response to public inquiries, public relations counselling, radio and television production, public speaking and translation services.

The inquiry wants samples of departmental press releases, newsletters, periodicals, pamphlets, staff magazines and all other publications.

It wants all directives and relevant documents on information policy in each department.

It wants departmental annual reports, lists of information programs going back several years and evaluations of these programs.

It wants lists of departmental facilities for printing, audio-visual aids, radio and television production, photography and exhibits.

It wants any available surveys of public opinion and descriptions of any films made.

It wants organization charts of all information branches of government together with the names of all information officers, photographers, clerks, technical writers and translators.

It wants to know the positions filled by all these persons and the exact number of months each person has been in his present job.

It also wants to know about bilingual capability of each person engaged in information services.

After that, it wants lists of budget allocations, salaries and costs—by region—and statements of expenditures.

If there is any confusion about the questions, says the questionnaire, telephone calls can be made to the "task force."

Various Sunday School Concerts Highlight Christmas Season

FRANKFORD — Earl Hewlson was master of ceremonies for the Nursery Department of Frankford United Church Sunday School in presenting their program on Sunday afternoon, December 15. Carols were sung and the Manger scene was performed.

On Monday evening, December 16, the Primary Junior and Senior Departments presented their program in Rose Lowery Hall. John Carter was master of ceremonies.

Several musical selections were rendered by Mrs. R. Bauer's class, Mrs. H. Huer's group. As well, Mrs. L. Mater's class presented "the heart gifts". A sing-song of carols was conducted by Mrs. Jack Beach.

A Christmas banquet was held in the Dr. McMullen Recreational Centre on Saturday, December 14, for the Frankford Free Methodist Sunday School family. More than 115 attended, and enjoyed a delicious turkey supper.

Master of ceremonies was Gerald Donnell. A welcome was brought by the nursery and primary classes, followed by a song.

The highlight of the evening was a visit from "Happy Harry", a ventriloquist, Rev. Weldon Johnston of Warden Avenue Free Methodist Church, Toronto. Rev. Johnston with puppet entertained the children.

School superintendent Bob Campbell thanked the speaker, the food committee and the various women for their work and preparation. Bags of candy were distributed to everyone, bringing a very enjoyable evening to a close.

Members of Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle and many friends and guests gathered for the annual Sunday School Christmas program presented on December 13. Superintendent, Paul Spurrell welcomed everyone.

The program commenced with a "welcome" by little Miss Colleen Dunlop. A selection by the rhythm band was given by the nursery and beginners' classes, under the direction of teachers Mrs. G. Curry and Mrs. A. Watson. A piano solo was given by Miss Paula Spurrell.

Several musical selections were presented by the primary boys' class, girls' class and junior boys' class. Teachers of these classes are: Mrs. M. Wilson, Mrs. M. Patrick and Mr. K. Wright. A piano solo was rendered by Miss Paula Twiddy.

A film was later shown after which the junior girls' class presented an illustrated song in complete costume. A recitation was given by an adult class member, Mr. Elgin Payne. The intermediate boys' class presented a play in complete costume, class teacher is Mr. G. Post. Intermediate girls presented a playlet. Their class teacher is Mrs. G. Miller. A piano solo was given by Miss Lori Rogers, and an organ solo by Miss Jo Ann Dunlop.

The teen boys and girls presented a play, under the supervision of K. Helm and Mrs. R. Reilly. Pastor, Rev. J. Dunlop spoke to the gathering, and presented gifts to several of those present.

The superintendent, Paul Spurrell thanked the Sunday School staff for their hard work in putting on the presentations. Rev. Dunlop and his wife were presented with a gift on behalf of the congregation by K. Helm, Mrs. Dunlop was also given a gift on behalf of the Women's Missionary Council by Mrs. H. Grant. Both Rev. and Mrs. Dunlop responded.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I told you to be home by 8. I won't have you breaking our house rules. You can't go to any more afternoon movies with the girls."

Mother: "The movie should be out by 4:30, so I'll expect you home around 5. If you're going to be late, will you please phone so I won't worry."

Be reasonable about rules for teen-agers. The main idea is to know at all times where your child is. If she is delayed, she should let you know.

U.C.W. Meetings

MOUNT PLEASANT - RAWDON U.C.W.

The Christmas meeting of the Mount Pleasant-Rawdon United Church Women was held on December 11, with 32 ladies in attendance. Special holiday decorations added to the occasion.

Mrs. Kenneth Weaver and Mrs. Donald Knight were in charge of the program. They gave the devotional based on the Bible lesson. Two vocal solos were rendered by Mrs. Carleton Pots and Mrs. Thomas Scarles. A pageant was presented by eight people in costume. Several carols were sung and Mrs. W. C. Cox gave a vocal solo, and a candlelight ceremony followed.

Mrs. Burton Sharpe presided over the business when donations were made to the various funds. Mrs. Harvey Couch received her U.C.W. life membership certificate and pin. This was a gift from her aunt, the late Mrs. Mary Vandervoort. Plans were made for a fellowship hour at the Sunday evening service.

Arthritic Patients Entertained

A most delicious turkey dinner was served by the Ladies Auxiliary, after which they were entertained by an amusing skit "The Night Before Christmas" with Judy Hume, Deborah Hope, Lisa Childs, Debbie Lake and Susan Bishop taking part.

A selection of Christmas carols was played by boys of the Moira Secondary School Band, Stephen Rose, Robert Mathews, George Sheffield, Doug Williamson and John Luffman. A carol sing-song followed.

The Arthritis Clinic will be open on the week of the 22 December on Monday only and the week of the December 30 on Monday and Thursday.

'The Hoarder' Is New Animated Film for Children

MONTREAL (CP) — Evelyn Lambart says she is working on an animated film for children which "will speak to everyone all over the world."

"It's all about a greedy bird who steals everything," explained the artist who joined the film board in 1942.

"He even attacks the sun."

The sun, with an expressive face, has dozens of little colored rays, each painted separately on thin metal. Heads and beaks and wings and fat bird bodies, gaily squiggled and striped, are scattered over Miss Lambart's drawing table, each piece carefully manoeuvred into place on black paper with tweezers, ready to be filmed.

"There won't be any dialogue with the film," she says.

Miss Lambart worked closely for 20 years with Norman McLaren, artist and film maker at the NFB. But for the last five years she has been working independently of McLaren within the confines of the animation department.

The tall, grey-haired woman admits that "sometimes I think I don't really even know what the rest of the world is like."

Another of her films, Fine Feathers, eight minutes long, took one year to make and now is being considered for the Children's Palme d'Or at the world's fair in Osaka in 1970, again with just music "so it can be understood in other cultures."

Recently the animator completed five short physics films, using animals to explain the five basic ideas.

"These physics films were the first I'd done on my own. At first I was afraid of making my own decisions, but now I am accustomed to it and I enjoy it."

She maintains that having fun is important.

"That's why I like short projects. I want to keep it simple, work it out. You have to keep your enthusiasm. I hate overloaded things, there's too much of that in the world."

Born in Ottawa, Miss Lambart went to the Ontario College of Art in Toronto.

"I knew I wanted to draw and paint and use photography, so I came to the NFB."

WON'T GIVE UP

BOLTON, Kan. (AP) — Sallie Gullick 68, reports she has harvested the only cotton grown in Kansas this year. She says the 4,500-pound crop grown on the 17-acre farm left much to be desired but she isn't discouraged. "I just love to plant, chop and watch the plants grow," she said. "Next year I'll be at it again."

Roast Goose Change in Holiday Menu

By MARY MOORE

When I roasted a 13½-pound goose (undrawn weight) during 1968 I made copious notes for the benefit of hostesses. Goose is not commonly used but when ambitious holiday cooks want this know-how is difficult to find in regular cookbooks.

ROAST GOOSE

Stuffing:
7 cups soft 2 or 3-day old white breadcrumbs (about 1 loaf)
½ cup butter
1 apple or 4 soaked and stoned prunes
½ cup finely chopped onion
½ cup finely chopped celery
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon sage
¼ teaspoon basil
¼ teaspoon marjoram
¼ teaspoon rosemary
¼ teaspoon pepper

Ask your butcher to dress the goose and give you the giblets.

Make stuffing one day in advance: in very large frying pan melt butter and gently sauté until limp but not brown. the onion, celery and apple or prunes then add all seasonings and bread and stir over medium heat until breadcrumbs begin to crispen. Cool. Turn into strong plastic bag and chill in refrigerator overnight.

Seven hours before serving time insert bagful of stuffing, open end down, into cavity of goose and slowly withdraw the spilling. Skewer opening shut. fing out. This is a very useful trick and prevents crumbs spilling. Skewer opening shut. The wings and legs to body. Prick skin all over with skewer at 1" intervals to facilitate fat flowing freely. Place a trivet in roaster and put in oven at 250 deg. Fahr. for 7 hours but tip of fat as it accumulates — about every hour. We had about 1½ pounds excess fat.

No other steps are necessary. The goose was moist, tender and a grand change.

NOTE: We have to work in so many Christmas dinner menu items I will be using space is usually alloted to Readers' columns this week-end for Christmas dinner items. However they all are items you have been asking for or expecting according to your letters.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

1ST BAYSIDE BROWNIE PACK

The 1st Bayside Brownie Pack held their December meeting at Quinte View School.

Madam Commissioner Millie Broughm assisted by Brown Owl Janice Warkentin enrolled the following Teenies: Jacqueline Rose; Lynne Warkentin, Kim Loader, Penny Allen, Colleen Purdey, Teresa Le Grand and Claire Gagne.

2ND BAYSIDE BROWNIE PACK

The second Bayside Brownie Pack, with Brown Owl, Jean Millar, held their pre-Christmas meeting at Quinte View School. Brown Owl was assisted by Grey Owl Bettina Dunn, Tawny Owl Elaine Consul, also one Brownie mother, Mrs. Musfelt who attended, to assist the officers.

The Brownie meeting was in the form of a Christmas party, and the time was spent by making Christmas crackers. These favors were made by the Brownies and are to be given to each patient at the Green Acres Nursing Hoem.

Audio Visual Centre Can Use Greeting Cards

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: May I add another address where used greeting cards would be very welcome: Saw Lader, Director, Christian Audio-Visual Centre, 82nd Street, Mandalay, Upper Burma.

"The faithful workers of the Christian Audio Visual-Centre in Mandalay can use greeting cards of all kinds. These are completely re-processed with new Burmese text added, and prepared as cards, as bookmarks, as calendars, as framed pictures, as Christian wall plaques nine different ways in all! These are sold to provide the funds that make possible the organization's service for Christ throughout Burma." — Pass The Word Around.

Dear Pass: On checking I learn that Mr. Lader's Centre depends solely on what old cards are sent, since no new Christmas cards are being imported. Their sale helps to finance the Bible-broadcasting to remote, isolated spots — a great source of spiritual strength.

Doris Clark

LOTS OF LOVE

Before your gifts are all wrapped up
And gaily ribbon-tied,
Oh, please remember to enclose
A lot of love inside.

The gift itself may be quite small,
But love tucked in with care
Can change it to a wondrous thing,
An off'ring rich and rare.

The gift itself may soon wear out,
Its usefulness be past;
But always you can be quite sure
That love tucked in will last!

(Supplied to us by Mrs. A. M. Dalke, Box 686, Mission City, B.C.)

Mr. Lader asks that name of sender be included inside parcel as well as outside. Declare contents: "Used greeting cards of no commercial value."

• • •

Dear Doris: My wife and I recently attended a wedding and reception about 200 miles from here. We went to the wedding, the other relatives could not — but most of them sent wedding gifts.

Now this is the rub: It is now seven weeks since the wedding but no one has received thank-you notes or cards acknowledging the gifts. You should hear the remarks being made! "The little bride and her mother are clerical workers. There should be no problem in handling the chore. The mother seemed quite sophisticated. What kind of ill-mannered people are they?"

They are not my relatives except by marriage. They talk on and on and make insulting remarks. I say, "Why don't you draw the oversight to someone's attention?" Then they clam up and change the subject.

Sometimes I am tempted to do something about it myself. Should I? Or should I let them grumble and grouse for the next umpteen years? — Outsider.

Dear Outsider: Oh, shucks! Haven't people any more to talk about?

Your impulse to wise up the recipient is understandable — but wait a bit longer. Etiquette says three months after a wedding is the frozen limit for acknowledging gifts.

And a thank-you card simply won't do unless a personal note is added.

Women's Hospital Auxiliary in Need of Volunteers

The December meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary was held in Education Hall and began with a dessert luncheon.

The table was beautifully decorated in Christmas decor. There was a splendid assortment of delicious desserts on the table, after which tea and coffee were served. Mrs. Greaves and her committee were in charge of the event.

Following the luncheon Mrs. G. W. Harvey presided at the business meeting which was Mrs. Harvey's last meeting in her term of office.

Reports were given by the various volunteer groups.

The Opportunity Shop presented a cheque for $1,700 — to the Auxiliary. It was of interest to all that 20 years ago the 'Op Shop'' raised $700 in its first year and this year it raised $10,000 — the "Op Shop" will be closed December 21 to January 6. Mrs. R. S. Rolston gave the report on Cradle pictures and also presented a cheque for $300.

Mrs. C. D. Ashley is still in need of volunteers for making puppets.

Hospital Volunteer Services had an excellent report but it is in need of more volunteers.

Mrs. W. D. Leslie displayed the Christmas gifts for each patient in the Hospital and these will be distributed on Christmas morning.

Mrs. W. S. Greaves thanked all who had donated desserts.

At the close of the meeting Mrs. H. Brown took the chair to accept nominations. Mrs. M. Jones on behalf of the nominating committee presented a list of proposed officers for 1968. As there were no nominations from the floor the chairman declared these officers elected as follows: president, Mrs. B. E. Burley; 1st vice-pres., Mrs. J. E. Nelles; 2nd vice, Mrs. C. D. Ashley; recording secretary, Mrs. W. J. Musgrove; treasurer, Mrs. E. S. Fairman; Corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. C. Moore.

Mrs. Harvey once again took the chair and reported to the auxiliary on the dessert and coffee party given by the Board of Governors of the Hospital for all the volunteers.

Piano Students Honored By Harmony Studio Club

The Harmony Studio Club met recently at the home of Mrs. Emily Veley, R.M.T. to honor the successful students from the June Conservatory examinations.

Two Grade IX students - Dorothy Maddocks and Sheryle Cretney presented several selections at the piano. Carolyn Lewis also favored with a piano solo of grade - work.

Mrs. Veley presented cards of congratulations to the following pupils for having obtained the highest mark in his or her grade: Piano - Grade III - Helen Keskula; Grade IV - Joel Oliver; Grade V - Ann MacGregor; Grade VI - Debora Grass and Grade VIII - Linda Noakes.

Theory - Grade I - Debora Grass; Grade III (Harmony) - Susan Sweet and Sheryle Cretney (tie); Grade III (History) - Susan Sweet; Grade IV (Harmony and History) - Mr. B. Walton and Grade V (Form) - Mrs. Gwethelyn Purdy. Mrs. Veley also presented all students who had obtained first class honors with special cards.

During the evening Elizabeth Shorey and Ann-Kugel each played a Christmas carol. Joel Oliver and Debora Grass each accompanied Mrs. Veley in piano duets of Christmas music.

Mrs. D. Cretney presented the successful students with certificates.

Refreshments were served, including the cake honoring the successful Grade VIII students - Penny May, Jean Wallbridge, Marilyn Townsend and Linda Noakes.

Shoplifter Repents; Sends Money Back

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a teen-ager and one of the luckiest people on earth because I haven't been caught. I began to shoplift about a year ago. I was with a friend who picked up two tubes of lipstick in a drugstore. It looked so easy I decided to try it.

To make a long story short, I have shoplifted $47 worth of items from a big department store. (I kept track.) A few weeks ago I began to feel ashamed of myself. I also began to break out in a cold sweat every time I passed that store. Yesterday I decided to make a New Year's resolution: Stop stealing.

I have $39 saved and I want to send it to the store. I'll send the rest when I can. Please tell me how to go about returning the money without revealing myself. Does this make any sense to you? — NEW LEAF.

• • •

DEAR NEW: Yes, it makes a lot of sense. Send the money (well wrapped so it doesn't show through the envelope) to the Store's Credit Manager. Enclose a note saying, "This is part payment for merchandise I shoplifted. The balance will be sent later.

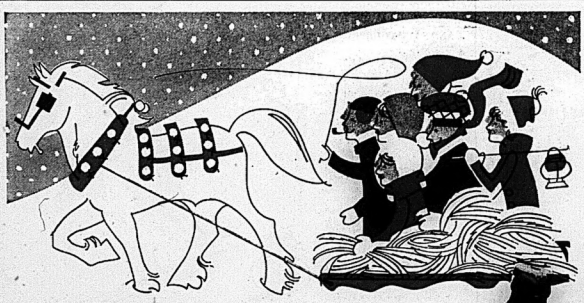
And now, I have an idea. Between us we could start a national trend toward honesty. I suggest that every person who is shoplifting — and wants to quit — follow your lead. Mail to the credit manager of the store you've stolen from, as much money as you can spare. It will serve as a symbol of "The New Leaf."

If the credit managers who receive these envelopes will let me know the names of the stores, I will publish them. Wouldn't it be wonderful if I heard from every one of the 50 states?

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I were married two years ago in Washington, D.C. It was a hurry-up affair in the judge's chambers because my fiance was leaving for Vietnam and received his orders suddenly.

Both if us regret that we didn't have a church wedding with all the trimmings. We have decided "better late than never." We want to be remarried on our third anniversary and invite all our relatives and friends to a real honest-to-goodness, bride-and-groom affair — New rings, satin gown, rice and the works.



My mother blew her stack when I tol ther. We have a little daughter now and my mother says no woman in her right mind would have a fancy church wedding after she has had a child. I think she is being very narrow-minded and old-fashioned.

Please print your answer so my mother can see it. — WHEELING, W. VA.

DEAR WHEEL: I'm printing your letter so you can see it, Doll. I agree with your mother.

Johnson, Humphrey Among U. S. Flu Victims

NEW YORK (AP) — The influenza epidemic continued to claim victims throughout the United States today, slowing down business and threatening to delay the Christmas mail.

President Johnson, a flu victim, was in Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland, and Vice-President Hubert Humphrey was reported still recuperating from the disease in Phoenix, Ariz.

Johnson entered hospital Wednesday morning. Humphrey was stricken Sunday.

In Washington, Postmaster-General Marvin W. Watson said absenteeism among postal workers because of the flu could slow down the delivery of holiday mail.

In New York City, where an estimated 300,000 persons are suffering from the disease, a cold wave and a strike by truck drivers who deliver fuel oil threatened to add even more names to the sick rolls.

"A critical medical emergency has been created by the coincidence of a major flu epidemic, snow and freezing temperatures," said Dr. Albert M. Schwartz, president of the New York County Medical Society.

"Any stoppage of fuel oil to homes and apartment buildings is critical and intolerable."

City Health Commissioner Edward O'Rourke said 107 New Yorkers died of the flu last week.

One death was blamed on the flu in Altamont, N.Y., near Albany, and winter vacations started earlier than planned for thousands of students in several colleges in New York State.

In Colorado, the state health department said the current flu epidemic was the worst since it began keeping records in 1920. The department estimated that there were 100,000 cases in Denver and 41,000 cases elsewhere in the state.

Hospitals in Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Iowa and Maryland imposed visiting restrictions in order to keep the flu virus from spreading to patients. Schools in Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Iowa and New Mexico closed early for the Christmas holidays because of flu and related illness.

Your Dollars

Your Credit Rating

By KEN WEERES

Have you ever wondered what procedure a loan manager goes through when you apply for credit? Just who does he talk to and how does he determine whether or not you are a good credit risk?

Before anyone can obtain a loan the lender will do a thorough check on the person's credit standing. What determines a good credit rating? Usually a person's credit rating is determined by the five C's: character, capacity, collateral, conditions and common sense.

Character refers to your attitude and responsibility, not only in money matters but in all your dealings. Your honesty trustworthiness and reliability are the important characteristics a loan manager wants to also consider your capacity which refers to your job, your income and debts. Is your income high enough and stable enough that you can meet all the payments?

Collateral is the financial resources and tangible possessions you can put up as security. Do you have a car, furniture or other articles which can be sold if you cannot meet the payments? Also, the manager will look at the economic conditions in your community. Is there danger of strikes, layoffs, or anything else which may cause you to be out of work?

And common sense refers to your attitudes toward spending. Will you hold your credit purchases in reasonable limits and use common sense in financial matters? Or are you reckless and careless in buying and spending? These are the features which a credit investigation looks for when deciding to give you a loan.

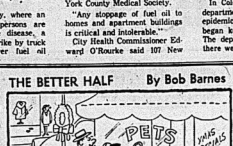
How does he find out this information about you? In several ways. First the application form you are required to fill out is checked for truthfulness. Phone calls and letters are sent to all persons with whom you have had previous dealings. The information gathered is checked against the application form you have filled out.

The investigator also contacts firms you may have had loans from before. This is probably the most important reference because it shows the manner in which you handled credit in the past. Moreover, your landlord, employer or neighbors may be contacted. At all times this is done as discreetly and confidentially as possible.

Also the retail credit bureau may be contacted. This bureau is an institution set up and maintained by merchants. Its purpose is to act as a clearing house for information on borrowers. All your credit activities such as late payments, repossessions and so on are recorded in your file. On the other hand, if you have a good credit record this also is recorded. This information is available to all member stores across Canada.

If you have been refused a loan, try to find out why. It is possible that there may have been an error or mix-up in names. Try to get it straightened out.

If you have a poor credit record because of faulty payments in the past, it need not prevent you from getting credit again. Honest attempts to clear present bills, holding a steady job and so on will help you re-establish a good credit record.



If you are at present in serious financial difficulty you can clear yourself only by making a determined decision to do something about the situation. Set a date, perhaps two or three years away, to get your problem straightened out. Also contact your creditors and tell them how you plan to meet your obligations — then do it. Most creditors are helpful in assisting a person in difficulty, providing he makes an honest attempt to help himself. And remember do not try to take out more credit. It can only add to your difficulty, no matter why you are borrowing.

Several provinces have special agencies to assist families in dire credit difficulties. If you require this type of help, talk to your creditors, bank manager or credit bureau, to see what agencies exist in your province.

New Jersey Police Charged After Riots

PATERSON, N.J. (AP) — Eight policemen have been indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy to violate and violation of civil rights of Negro residents during racial disorders last summer.

The indictment said the policemen assaulted one Negro, and broke windows of several business establishments operated by Negroes.

U.S. Attorney David Satz Jr. of New Jersey said the policemen were charged with violating an 1872 Civil Rights Act, the first such indictments against policemen brought in the state. The justice department said they were the first in any section of the country in many years.

"Enough people came forward immediately with enough evidence to warrant presentation to the grand jury," Satz said.

Leafs Win; Habs Tie

Dejordy Is Back and Hawks Move Step Closer to Fourth

By SCOTT BUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DENNIS DEJORDY

Goaltender Denis DeJordy of Chicago Black Hawks went out of his way Wednesday night to prove he belongs in the National Hockey League.

The Black Hawks, behind DeJordy's fine goaltending, defeated the Rangers 3-1 to move within one point of fourth-place New York in the Eastern Division.

DeJordy stopped 34 Ranger shots, including 17 in the opening period in an attempt to regain the regular goaltending job he lost about five weeks ago.

In other action, Toronto Maple Leafs downed Oakland Seals 5-2 and Los Angeles Kings held Montreal Canadiens to a 2-2 tie.

DeJordy, a 30-year-old native of St. Hyacinthe, Que., was sent to Dallas of the Central Hockey League by the Black Hawks last month and Jack Norris was recalled.

However, DeJordy's demotion failed to stiffen up the Chicago defence, as he was recalled this Monday and Norris sent out.

Chicago coach Billy Reay sat out Dave Dryden, the regular netminder and started DeJordy Wednesday. Reay's decision was based on the fact the Black Hawks have allowed more goals than any other team in the Eastern Division.

Bob Nevin's 18th goal of the season, in the second period, spoiled a possible shutout by DeJordy. Jim Pappin scored two goals for the Black Hawks and Dennis Hull added one.

The loss extended the Rangers' losing streak to seven games, and was watched by 17,269 New York fans.

Yvan Cournoyer's 16th goal of the season late in the third period enabled the Canadiens to tie Los Angeles in front of 15,327 Montreal fans.

YVAN COURNYEA

The Kings took a 2-0 lead early in the second period when Ron Anderson and Larry Cahan scored within two minutes and 35 seconds. Dick Duff picked up Montreal's other goal on a power play late in the middle period.

The tie left Montreal with 40 points and a three-point lead over the runner-up Boston Bruins in the Eastern Division. Los Angeles trails the first-place St. Louis Blues by seven points in the Western Division.

The Maple Leafs, playing before 16,336 hometown fans, stretched their unbeaten streak to seven games—six wins and a tie—with their victory against Oakland.

Toronto's goals went to Mike Pelyk, Jim Dorey, Floyd Smith, Bob Pulford and George Armstrong.

The game was the fourth on the road in the last five days for Oakland, and Seals' coach Fred Glover blamed the loss on the tough scheduling.

"How does anyone expect us to perform any better with a schedule like we've had to follow," he said.

The Russians May Be Coming But Not for a While

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pride in their product, as well as nationalistic esteem, has brought cries of "bring on the Russians," from the headquarters of the National Hockey League, Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs.

The comments started last week after it was learned that the Leafs and Canadiens were both interested in playing the Russians and the Soviets replied with an open challenge of their own.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, said early this week a confrontation between the Russians and Canada's best professionals might take place "in the next two years."

The Russians, winners of five straight world amateur championships and two Olympic titles—1964-68—have never played against a professional club. Such a game could endanger the Soviet players' eligibility for Olympic competition.

The Soviets contend they are the best in the world, while the NHL insists they have not accomplished this by defeating Canada's national team of amateurs.

Thayer Tutt, IIHF president, said in Colorado Springs, Colo., Wednesday, the federation "would not want the Russians constantly playing the pros, but we have nothing against the idea of them playing."

He also said that the professionals have nothing to gain by playing Russian teams.

"If they (the professionals) got licked, they'd lose all their prestige. And the Russians have excellent players."

The main difference in rules is that bodychecking is not allowed by the opposing team inside the defending team's blueline.

Punch Imlach, coach and general manager of the Leafs, contends that any true test of ability would have to be played under NHL rules, with bodychecking on any part of the ice.

"We are pros and not politicians," Imlach said Wednesday.

Imlach couldn't see much difference in a Leafs versus Russian game or a NHL all-star team versus the Soviets.

"Leafs would beat the Russians and so, of course, would an all-star team," he said. "I wouldn't want to miss it.

"I would want to be behind that bench and see how our guys would hit those Russians coming out of their end with their heads down."

The Soviets, in their challenge through Soviet national coach Anatoli Tarasov, said the only obstacle to a NHL-Russian confrontation is that the Canadian pros have not accepted the challenges.

Senator David Molson, president of Montreal Canadiens, foresees the day when there will be a European division of the NHL.

There is at least one fly in the ointment and that is Bunny Ahearne of London, president of the European Hockey Federation.

"Why would we change the rules that govern 29 countries to accommodate one—Canada?" Ahearne said last week.

Gordie Howe's HOCKEY

We have a young fellow on the Detroit Red Wings this season and his name is Garry Unger. Remember the name, because I'm convinced you will hear it often in the years ahead.

Garry was just 21 in December and the other day he was telling a newspaperman that he still can't realize he's in the National Hockey League.

He said "I keep thinking there's another step ahead . . . another league." He also said that when things go badly he gets homesick. Garry, a bachelor, is from Calgary.

I'm sure I know how he feels. I got homesick a few times myself.

But I mention Garry because at this time of the year, as a veteran, I start sizing up the rookies. I suppose the veterans did the same thing to me in my first year in the National League.

I sometimes wonder what the rookies are thinking, but I'm pretty sure I know. They are awed by names. But being awed by names, I suppose is natural when you are a rookie. I remember my first training camp with the Red Wings. It was in Windsor and Syd Howe was there and Jack Stewart and Mud Bruneteau. I believe I had my mouth open the whole time.

But even before the Red Wing camp, I had attended a New York Rangers camp at Winnipeg. At that one I didn't even know how to put on all the fancy equipment. I was also afraid to get in the lineup for food. One fellow I always remember with a happy glow is Alf Pike. He was later coach of the Rangers, but at the time he showed me how to put on some of the equipment. He also saw to it that I got in the meal lineups.

However, at the Rangers camp I got so homesick I finally left. Sometimes I wonder what might have happened if I had stayed. I might have become a Ranger.

But, back to rookies. One thing a rookie must learn fast is to play the puck and the sweater. Don't pay any attention to who is wearing the sweater, just hit it and concentrate on the puck.

I remember Ted Lindsay was playing with the Chicago Black Hawks when Bobby Hull broke in. Ted told me that Bobby was awed by some of the names he played against. But it didn't take him long to learn to play the puck and the sweaters, did it?

Henley Updates Regatta

LONDON (Reuters) — The Henley Royal Rowing Regatta, 129 years old and one of the most tradition-steeped events in the English sporting calendar, will be given a 20th-century facelift.

British rowing stewards decided at a meeting Wednesday night to streamline the regatta by introducing multi-lane racing to bring Henley into line with other top world regattas.

John Garton, chairman of the management committee, said the introduction of four-lane racing on the River Thames might take several years because the course would need widening.

Filion Misses on Try for 400

TORONTO (CP) — For the second night in a row, Herve Filion, world champion harness racing driver, failed to win at Greenwood Raceway and the 28-year-old native of Angers, Que., still is two short of posting his 400th win in 1968.

Filion finished last with Shadow Roll in the fifth and missed by three-quarters of a length in the eighth race with Thunder Royal.

Filion scheduled to enter four races tonight, was beaten by veteran Keith Waples of Durham, Ont., who is making a strong bid to win 200 wins for the second year in a row.

Waples collected three wins Wednesday night and is seven short of his goal with three days left in the 269-day harness racing season. Ed Filion a win in the eighth with Chief Maynard, a seven-year-old pacer from the western New York racing circuit.

The sixth-race exactor payoff also involved Waples. He drove Lotta Bomb, a five-year-old pacer, ahead of Proud Vic to produce a $94.30 exactor.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Hi Lo Wayside combined with Smoky Eagle at Windsor Raceway Wednesday night returning a $308.50 daily double.

In the first race, driver Burl Foster drove Hi Lo Wayside to victory while in the second Don Keeton drove Smoky Ski Eagle across the wire. Smoky Ski Eagle paid $70.40.

The totalhandle was $269,023.

Reay Grants Canadiens First Place

NEW YORK (AP) — Nine points separate the Montreal Hockey League's six Eastern Division teams and a tight race is shaping up for the turn into the new year.

"Five? Who are you leaving out?"

Central League Tops at Gate

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Central Hockey League is having a record year in attendance, the league's Governors report, with 251,000 fans attending the first 90 games of the 224-game schedule.

The eight-team league is split into two divisions, Kansas City Blues lead with an average of 4,348 persons a game in eight home appearances. Only three teams have shown a decrease in attendance as gross receipts neared $600,000.

In a battle between the divisional leaders, Oklahoma City Blazers came out on top Wednesday night with a 6-4 victory over the Blues at Oklahoma City.

The Blazers, who have lost only four games in 27 starts, now lead the Southern Division by 11 points ahead of Houston Apollos while Kansas City has a three-point margin over Tulsa Oilers in the Northern Division.

Bill Lesuk's second goal of the game proved to be the winning one as the Blazers snapped a 4-4 tie in the seventh minute of the third period. Tom Webster, the league's leading goal scorer, notched No. 27 for Oklahoma City and Grant Erickson, Barry Wilkens, and Rick Smith added the other Blazer goals.

In the other league game played, Dallas Black Hawks behind rookie goalie Ken Brown swamped the Apollos 10-5 at Dallas. Jim Stanfield and Ray McKay with two apiece and Brian Bradley, Brian McDonald, Garth Rizzuto, Cliff Kroll, Jim Witte and Paul Shmyr with one each accounted for the three-point margin over Tulsa Dallas goals.

Practice Makes Perfect

The Belleville Kinsmen bantams are seen in an early morning practice session as they prepare to defend their all-Ontario championship. In the picture on the left assistant coach Earl Cousins drops puck for a face-off between Peter Smrke and Danny Lapenetie (7.) On the right coach Fiori Goegan skates along with his squad as they do stops-and-starts.

Bantams Compiling Impressive Record

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Sports Reporter

Belleville's defending Ontario champion Kinsmen bantams are truly a bright spot in the local hockey picture despite the fact they have only six players left from last year's powerful aggregation.

The Kinsmen have won 13 of 15 games this year, losing only to Oshawa and Napanee. The locals later bombed Napanee 9-2 to avenge half the blemish of their league record.

Ten players from last year's team have graduated to midget hockey, but the gap has been filled by six graduates of last year's Smith Fuels' Ontario peewee championship team, and four players who didn't play all - star hockey last year.

Balance is the key to the Kinsmen club, who have three strong lines, a solid defence and good goalkeeping. The club has scored 76 goals in 15 games while yielding only 30 goals to the opposition.

The team's three leading scorers each play on a different line, which is another indication of the depth and balance of coach Fiori Goegan's squad.

Centre Danny Lupenette tops the scorers with 14 goals and nine assists in 15 games and he is followed by two right wingers, Andy Ricketts with 10 goals and six assists and Dave Smith with nine goals and seven assists.

The kinsmen are currently leading their league which is comprised of teams from Trenton, Napanee, Picton, Kingston and Gananoque.

Trenton, whom the locals have beaten three times without a loss this year, will be the Kinsmen's first opponent in the Ontario playdowns which start in late January.

Coach Goegan stresses positional play and tries to have the team control the play as much as possible. Both Goegan and Earl Cousins, who handles the club on weekends when Fiori has to travel out of town, believe in giving all the players near equal ice time.

Picton Edges Quinte To Take Over Lead

Picton seniors edged Quinte 39-37 last night to break their first place tie with the Saints with a perfect record of three wins and no losses.

The Junior Saints defeated winless Picton 47-14 for their third straight win and undisputed possession of first place in the junior division. The bantam game saw Picton win its first of the season by dropping Quinte 48-40.

In other games BCI juniors and seniors started defence of their Bay of Quinte championships in a winning way, the juniors defeating Trenton 96-59 and the seniors 59-30.

Trenton gained some measure of revenge as the bantam squad defeated BCI 56-48 to climb into a first place tie with Moira. Both teams have won two games and lost none.

Picton seniors stymied Quinte with an overload on offence and a 1-2-2 defence which allowed 6 foot 4 inch Wayne Coward to control the defensive backboards.

Picton led 19-14 at the half and in the second half Quinte switched from a man-to-man defence to a pressure zone, but Picton's Max Burleigh mullified the zone with long jump shots.

Quinte Juniors played man-to-man all the way and were never threatened as Stan Brooks and Tom Churchill each scored 10 points, and Kim Hunter added seven.

Joe Burley led the Picton scorers with seven points and Brian Rutter added three.

The senior Collegians used a zone press to advantage as Brian Harder topped the scorers with 22 points, Ted Shaw netted 11 points for the winners, Bill Mindenhall added nine and Ken Richardson eight.

Andy Fesar was high man for Trenton with eight points, Jim Walton added seven and Les Nicholson six.

Western Tire Blanks Gan

Western Tire juveniles celebrated the festive season last night by shutting out Gananoque 5-0, behind the goalkeeping of Dominic Lentini, the three goal performance of Mitchell, and single goals by Hill and Mulvihill.

Brent Imlach Leads College Hockey Scorers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Brent Imlach, son of Toronto Maple Leaf general manager and coach, Punch Imlach, shared first place in the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association western division hockey scoring statistics released Wednesday.

Imlach, 20, a member of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs, had 14 points on six goals and eight assists.

Hospodar, last week's leader picked up only one assist in Western's two weekend games with University of Toronto Blues. He now has four goals and 10 assists for 14 points.

The Toronto goaltending team of Adrian Watson and Tom Little led the division with a 1.00 goals-against average.

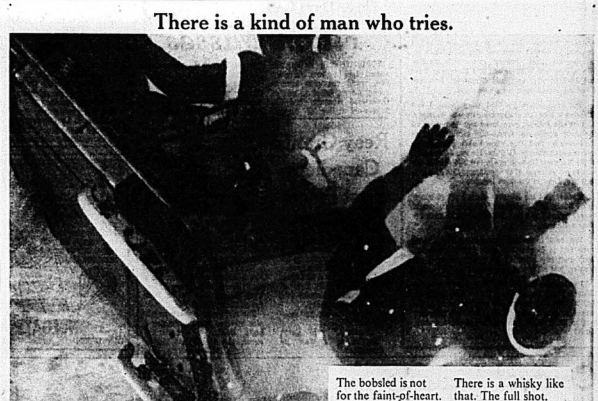
Program Best Tip Sheet

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — It only happens once in a million times, said officials of the Fair Grounds after the eight horses in Wednesday's ninth race finished exactly in the order of their program listing.

In addition, the New Orleans oval had a whopping daily double payoff of $1,742. In the ninth race, the No. 1 horse, Beau Baker, was first across the finish line, paying $6. England Passes, No. 2, was second: Merano, N. 3, third and right down the list to No Countess, No. 8, the eighth horse.



Kelidaneer, $13.20 and Forever Sunglow, $170.50 combined for the daily double, largest payoff this season at the Fair Grounds.

Track officials said 18 ticket holders and one $10 holder shared in the payoff.

Nancy Greene Again Tops

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Nancy Greene, top female skier in the world until her retirement, has been named Canada's woman athlete of the year for 1968.

The 25-year-old native of Rossland, B.C., who abandoned the slopes for the world of advertising, writing and broadcasting, won best-athlete honors for the second year in a row, again beating out swimmer Elaine Tanner of Vancouver and Winnipeg.

Of the 133 sports writers and broadcasters who voted in the 36th annual Canadian Press year-end poll, 111 gave first-place votes to Nancy, 22 to Elaine.

Tanner, however, picked up 100 second-place ballots to 15 for Greene, and the swimmer outclassed the skier 11-3 in third place.

Beverly picked up six votes for second and 23 for third.

On a 3-2-1 points basis for first-, second- and third-place votes, Nancy ended up with 366 points to 277 for Elaine and 65 for Beverly.

Sandra Post, Oakville, Ont., golfer voted rookie of the year on the professional golf circuit, was fourth with 43 points based on 16 for second and 27 for third.

She barely nosed out Karen Magnussen of Vancouver, Canadian champion figure-skater, who was the only candidate other than Nancy and Elaine to draw first - place votes. Karen had two firsts, four seconds and 26 thirds to come fifth, three points behind Post.

Nancy, mainstay of Canada's national ski team, won the World Cup of skiing in 1967, then won a gold medal in the giant slalom and a second place silver in the slalom at the 1968 Winter Olympics at Grenoble, France. She repeated in 1968 her World Cup victory.

Tanner won four gold medals and three silvers at the British Empire Games in Jamaica in 1966, followed by two golds and three silvers the next year in the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg.

This year she won silver medals in the 100- and 200-metre backstroke events and was a member of the relay team that won the bronze medal at the Olympic Games in Mexico City.

Boys, who won a silver medal off the three - metre board and a bronze off the tower at Jamaica, won a silver medal in tower diving at the Pan American Games.

At the Olympics she was well down the list when she flashed into a dive with a 2.9 "degree of difficulty" — one of the toughest in the book — and got top marks for a single dive of any male or female at the Games. The performance pulled her into fourth place.

Since retiring after her World Cup triumph of last spring, Nancy has endorsed products ranging from ski wear to chocolate bars; she has hired a business manager and under his guidance already has two books on the market.

She does public relations work for an automobile manufacturer and worked as a commentator and interviewer at the Olympic Games in Mexico City for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Burnham Wins Clear Majority in His Bid to Rule Guyana

GEORGETOWN (Reuters) — Prime Minister Forbes Burnham today planned a government based on a large parliamentary majority for the first time since the former British colony gained independence in 1966.

But as the election victory of his People's National Congress party officially was confirmed Wednesday night his main opponent, Marxist Cheddi Jagan of the People's Progressive party, pledged to work for his downfall.

Jagan told reporters he will work to bring down the government by legitimate means, adding that he will not use strikes or violence against what he called Burnham's "puppet regime."

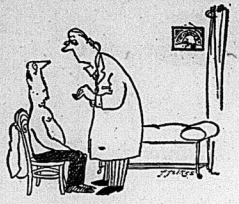
Burnham, who has been in office since Guyana became independent, was estimated to control at least 30 seats in the 53-seat National Assembly after the election Monday. The PPP has about 19 seats and the right-wing United Force has four.

In 1964 election, Jagan's party received more votes than the PNC, forcing Burnham to form a coalition government with the United Force.

The PNC, which received a huge majority in overseas balloting, had 172,371 votes with only one electoral district not counted. The PPP had 113,077 votes, the United Force, 20,459 and the Guyana United Muslim party, 836.

Jagan said the government is "committed to the betrayal of our country and our people." He claimed overseas voter lists were padded, thousands of proxie votes were counted and some ballot boxes were out of order."

Burnham, a Socialist, hopes for a surge of economic investment from abroad to help develop the potentially rich nation of 700,000 people.



Burnham once belonged to Jagan's party. He was a founding PPP member in 1950, chairman during 1953 general election, and education minister when Jagan led the government in the same year.

Jagan and Burnham parted political company in 1953. Burnham said the Jaganites followed a rigid Marxist line whereas he wanted a socialism adapted to local needs.

He formed a group of his own, predominantly Negro, which shortly after a 1957 election took the name of the People's National Congress.

Following the December, 1964 election, held under proportional representation, his party won 22 seats to Jagan's 24. With the support of the United Force party, which won seven seats, he formed a coalition government.

Father Opens Fire At Christmas Party

CARLINVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A father of 10 children opened fire during a Christmas party given by welfare officials for his family Wednesday, police said, killing four persons including his estranged wife and wounding four of his children. He then fled, shot himself and died hours later.

Authorities said Sherman Kline, 38, pulled out two pistols while gifts were being opened in the offices of the Illinois department of child and family services and began firing.

Killed were the wife, Lorraine, 33; two social workers, Frank Wildgrube, 24, and Bonnie Albracht, 23, both of Carlinville; and a receptionist, Ann Keppler, 25, of Benld, Ill.

Two of the children, Michael, 14, and Diane, 8, were in critical condition while the other two wounded youngsters, Gene, 13, and Judy, 10, were in serious condition in hospitals.

After the shooting, Kline drove some 60 miles to the home of a brother near O'Fallon, Mo., where, the brother said, he admitted the shootings, but refused to give himself up.

Vernon Kline said his brother ran into some nearby woods, he heard a shot and called police. Officers found Sherman Kline with a bullet wound in his head. He died later at hospital.

Steal $1,000,000 Monthly

NEW YORK (AP) — The department of social services said Monday night that nearly $1,000,000 in welfare cheques are stolen and illegally cashed each month. About 12,000 cheques, worth $670,000, are stolen from letter carriers and mail boxes. The remaining $300,000 is accounted for by 3,000 welfare recipients suspected of falsely reporting thefts to obtain a second cheque.

Quebec Teachers End Talks

QUEBEC (CP) — Negotiations to settle an 18-month dispute between Quebec teachers and the provincial government and school boards broke off Wednesday after union negotiations decided there was no value in the talks.

The breakdown in negotiations was announced in the legislative assembly by Marcel Masse, minister without portfolio responsible for the civil service.

He said negotiators for the three teachers' unions did not show up for talks Wednesday morning.

The union negotiators, meanwhile, announced they would again seek arbitration of the dispute. An earlier request for arbitration was rejected Dec. 4.

POLICE CARRY OFF Khan-Tineta Horn of Caughnawaga reserve near Montreal as more than 150 Indians blocked the Seaway International Bridge at Cornwall, Ont. The Indians were protesting against the recent imposition of customs duties on goods brought in the United States by members of the St. Regis reserve which straddles the international boundary. (CP Photo)

Constable Shot in Shoulder After Indians Block Bridge

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — A policeman was shot in the shoulder Wednesday night after 150 warring Mohawk Indians blockaded the international bridge here.

Cornwall Const. Arnold O'Malley was struck by one of two rifle shots which smashed into the Canada customs office on Cornwall Island, a link of the seaway bridge spanning the St. Lawrence River.

Police said Const. O'Malley was not seriously hurt. The customs office was put under heavy police guard.

Late Wednesday, Indians of the St. Regis reserve chipped in to post bail for more than 40 of their tribesmen who were arrested during the three-hour seige at the bridge entrance earlier in the day.

Spokesmen Ernest Benedict said he doubted more blockades will be staged in support of a campaign to restore rights to bring goods across the U.S. border duty free.

"I think it's much too risky," he said. "And secondly we would prejudice our case."

Al of the protesters were released after bail was posted early today. They were to appear in court Friday to answer the charges against them.

The largely passive blockade led to the arrest of 49 Indians, including 17 women and six juveniles.

Among them was Kahn-Tineta Horn, the volatile Indian rights campaigner from the Caughnawaga reserve near Montreal, who was charged with obstruction and carrying a concealed weapon.

All the others were charged only with obstruction.

The tribe lives on both sides of the border and claims historic rights, dating to the Jay Treaty in 1794, to bring goods across the border without paying duty.

The Supreme Court of Canada ruled in 1956 that payment of customs duties applies to all persons living in Canada, but customs officials apparently started strict enforcement only recently.

The juveniles were held in an office in the station and released a few hours later on their own recognizance.

Their elders were transferred to the nearby provincial jail as efforts were made to free them on bail.

Nearly an hour later Insp. Earl Landry of Cornwal police told them: "Leave's made your point. Now please move on."

Police then began to move forward with a tow truck to clear away the parked cars and the Indians linked arms to stop them.

As police reached the blockade line, the protesters either slumped to the roadway or struggled to make arrests difficult. A few punches were thrown but the encounter was mainly confined to pushing and scuffling.

Police Chief Alan Clarke said later his men had been reminded to use no more force than necessary and he felt they had acquitted themselves well.

Lodge Holds Annual Meeting

The past preceptor elect is Clarence Copeland.

STEADY SPRINKLE

OLIVER, B.C. (CP) — Calona Wines Ltd. of Kelowna has to apply water 24 hours a day on its 300-acre vineyard here. Water drains fast through the light, sandy soil. The vineyard was nothing but sagebrush and cactus when it was purchased five years ago.

BC Wilds Not Place For Toronto Slickers

VICTORIA (CP) — The British Columbia wilderness is no place for Toronto city slickers to play pioneer, says the province's recreation minister, Ken Kiernan.

Commenting on plans by Toronto advertising man Angus Cherrington to set up a pioneer settlement on the B.C. coast, Mr. Kiernan said "it's a nice dream" that could turn into a nightmare.

Mr. Cherrington said persons joining his non-profit Canada New Pioneer Foundation would build themselves log cabins in the B.C. wilderness. Wives would weave and milk and husbands would cook and play in an orchestra, he said.

Mr. Kiernan said much of B.C. was opened up by people with only "A horse, a plow and a cow."

"But people today would not put up with the standard of living which that kind of activity would produce."

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Willston said his department has not been approached by the Toronto group. He said he did not want to discourage the would-be settlers.

"I wouldn't want to knock the proposal without looking at it, but it sounds like a touch proposition in this modern world," he said.

Christmas Spirit Grips Commons, Speeding Handling of Bills

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons sped through anti-dumping legislation Wednesday, gave first reading to a freshwater fish marketing bill, and returns today to its deadlocked rules debate.

If the Christmas spirit that has been evident in the chamber during the last two days continues, a compromise over the rules is possible before adjournment Friday.

The House is to recess then until Jan. 14.

If the new rules don't have the blessing of MPs by Friday night, the debate will resume next month under the pre-1962 rules.

This would mean, among other things, no time limit on the daily question period, and the return of appeals against rulings by the Speaker.

The current deadlock developed in six days of debate over rule 16-A, which would allow the government to impose in advance time limits on debates on legislation.

Opposition Leader Stanfield says the Conservative caucus still maintains that the government must withdraw or amend 16-A.

There have been no firm indications from either government or opposition of a compromise.

However, both sides have been all smiles and co-operation for t.e last two days.

The rules debate was adjourned by unanimous agreement earlier this week to allow the urgent anti-dumping legislation to be dealt with Tuesday and Wednesday.

This legislation, thoroughly hashed out during long committee sessions this fall, was given third reading Wednesday and sent to the Senate.

Except for a Conservative move, voted down 49 to 25, to have a conflict-of-interest requirement written into the law, it went through smoothly.

The Conservatives wanted a requirement that members of a five-man trade tribunal declare share holdings or other interests in cases that came before it. The government said there was no need for this.

The Commons went on to give first reading to a bill to establish a freshwater fish marketing corporation that would have exclusive powers in this area.

Before the rules debate resumes today, omnibus amendments to the Criminal Code probably will be given first reading.

This bill, embodying changes in the law as it affects homosexuality, abortion, firearms and other areas, has been redrafted since introduced in the last Parliament December, 1967.

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey announced in the Commons Wednesday that the program to help auto workers adversely affected by the Canada-United States auto parts agreements will be extended for another 18 months to June 30, 1970.

The extension in the transitional assistance benefits program was coupled with other changes intended to make it easier too qualify for benefits and improve the benefits formula.

Benefits will be paid for four weeks to those with 16 working weeks in the last 52 weeks plus an extra week for each week of service in the previous 52-week period.

Edward Broadbent (NDP Oshawa-Whitby) praised the changes and urged that Mr. Mackasey act before Easter to implement recommendations to cushion the effects of railway layoffs due to technological change as recommended in a report to the government.

Criminal Code Bill Is Ready

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's controversial bill amending numerous sections of the Criminal Code, including those on homosexuals and abortion, is expected to get through its first two parliamentary steps today in the Commons.

Justice Minister John Turner said in the House Wednesday he was ready to table the bill today if opposition parties still agree to give unanimous consent that there would be no debate on the resolution stage.

"We still agree," said Elson Woolliams (PC—Calgary North), who had asked Mr. Turner whether he intended to bring down the bill this week before MPs leave for their Christmas holiday.

The resolution stage would be followed by routine first reading of the bill.

Prime Minister Trudeau, while justice minister in the Pearson government, introduced a bill making a number of changes in the Criminal Code earlier this year. But the measure, after receiving first reading, died on the Commons order paper when the June general election was called.

Jesus Was Trouble-maker

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS
Thoughts at Large:

It is worth remembering, especially this coming week, that Jesus was sent to Hi s death by the Roman officials not at all for any religious reason, but because He was considered a "trouble-maker," an "anarchist," and, no doubt, an "outside agitator."

The world's store of facts has just about doubled in the last 10 years; and most of us, psychically, are in the mood of the old farmer who said he didn't want to learn any more things "because I already know more than I can understand."

One of the campaign slogans I least understood this fall was about George Wallace "haying courage" since when has it taken "courage" to be mean, ugly, selfish, spiteful, narrow, and appealing to the most irrational instincts in your follow men? (Indeed, precisely the opposite would have indicated "courage" in Wallace — to break with his past and repudiate his background.)

In the long run, and sometimes even in the short run, everybody loses from a strike, and everybody knows it; yet while we can devise the most subtle and sophisticated instruments to send men orbiting through space, we cannot seem to make an instrument of logical policy that will settle disputes with the same cooperative facility.

• • •

It's hard to believe that in the presumably mass-educated U. Acting Workshops Tap Creativity

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

Improvisations. Voice exercises. Awareness exercises. Concentration exercises. Physical discipline exercises. Psychical discipline exercises.

What's with the exercises? They could be termed a part of a journey to self-discovery. They are, as well, an integral part of the Belleville Theatre Guild's acting workshops.

The three classes, creative drama, teen acting and adult acting, take in each age group. The first is for children eight years of age to 12 and the second for teens agers 13 to 17.

To find out just what really happens at these workshops, I talked with both convener Mrs. Louis Yanover and director Mr. Howard.

Health is most important to an actor. "If goes a long way towards body movements and as a sort of a warm up, too," explained Mrs. Yanover.

Improvisations are just that. You are given a word, "wax". Act out what images, emotions, scenes it brings to your mind. You are given an object. It could be as simple as an ashtray. You must "create" your own situation from it, and act it out.

Sound difficult? It is. At the same time, it taps creativity, imagination, ingenuity, talent and almost everything else.

A program such as this has values which, to the individual, are immeasurable. As Mrs. Yanover says "It increases an awareness of yourself."

Almost without exception, people in these workshops have never acted before. Usually, a genuine interest in the theatre, or plain curiosity often prompts them to join.

Mrs. Yanover, who has observed these classes in progress, has watched many people come "out of themselves." This type of workshop, she maintains, "sparks the imagination", and gives the individual a greater knowledge of the theatre.

The young people in particular seem to be drawn to this type o' workshop. Why? First, they are drawn to the theatre, and second, they want to participate in the excitement and stimulation they know is there.

"All acting must be believable," emphasized Mrs. Yanover. "Theatre is a lot of hard work, but you must put yourself in it, immerse, and work at it. Above all, there must be the elements of reality and believability in acting."

Youth Parade

This hard work and suffering are worth it. Every single ounce of energy is worth the achievement of "a beautiful moment of truth" the accomplishment of what you set out to do.

Mrs. Yanover has been a member of the Guild since its beginning in 1951. She has always been interested in theatre.

She explains that participating in these workshops has unlimited benefits, but most important, it taps your creativity, makes you think, and helps you understand a little better why you are the way you are.

Workshop director, Mr. Howard, picked up where convener Mrs. Yanover left off. He termed the aims of the classes was that of self-discovery, to help the individual learn about the people about him.

He mentioned a few of the other specifics, things like stage geography, discussions on the different styles of plays, and approaches to them.

Mr. Howard gauged the workshop as "coming along very well indeed. These young people are aware of each other and themselves. I encourage them to see things as they are."

All those enrolled in present classes have re-registered for the second term of the workshop, which will begin Jan. 6.

Although the workshop is a success, Mr. Howard feels that teen-agers of today are not interested enough in theatre, nor are they aware of its importance.

"Theatre," he said, "is basically an entertainment form. It can be as intellectual, spiritual, or amusing, entertainment.

"It is the most complete art form, and it is an excellent way for young people to experience all these things, because they want to be involved."

He spoke of theatre as a form of communication and experience, because it is live. Moreover, it is a communal experience which is one of its greatest attributes.

"Theatre should be the heart of the community, where ideas are freely expressed."

Make Me Believe It...

Surrounded by a group of attentive workshop listeners, director Richard Howard stresses the most important elements of acting: believability and realism. Mr. Howard is the director of the Belleville Theatre Guild's actor's workshops, held each Saturday.

Moira Entertains

Christmas time is party time for teenagers all over the city.

But for 20 Moira Secondary School home economics students it was time to remember a group of youngsters facing their first Christmas in a strange land.

At noon on Tuesday, the students entertained six Czechoslovakian children and their mothers who fled their homeland after the Russian occupation four months ago.

The suggestion to entertain the Czechoslovakian preschoolers was made by Debbie Hope as the grade 10 home economics students began to plan their annual Christmas party. The suggestion was enthusiastically taken up by her fellow students and teacher Mrs. Robert Porter.

Decorations, menu and entertainment was planned by the girls themselves, and a male student did his part by donning a tree.

Mrs. Stan Kvarda attended as interpreter and led the youngsters in their contribution to the Christmas festivities — an impromptu concert of several Czech carols.

Parties Produce Mixed Reactions

Everyone loves a party — after the first shyness wears off. Monika Hajek, one of six Czech youngsters entertained by Moira home economics students Tuesday, found the festivities a bit strange at first, but the tension melted when the refreshments were brought on. Two Mounties, flanked by two mothers who also attended, wades into the peanut butter and jam sandwiches.

Nicholson Students Present Assembly

By JUDY SCHRIEDER

Grade 13 Nicholson Catholic College students proved Friday that a combination of humor, "culture" and the traditional Christmas spirit can produce a successful assembly.

Master of ceremonies, Terry McGuigan opened the assembly with the presentation of tape recorders to Sharon Lummis and Karen Fraser in recognition of their sales during the NCC magazine campaign, earlier in the school year. Immediately following these presentations, Mary Skerl, a grade 13 student, spoke to the student body about her participation in the inter - provincial visits last summer.

The entertainment presented during the remainder of the program can be attributed entirely to the ingenuity of the grade 13s. Pat Wallis recitation of "I'm fine, how about you?" a poem dealing with a day in the life of an elderly person able to look humorously at the monotony about him, was priceless.

The program swung from poetry to politics as Mike Limith gave a presidential acceptance speech which could have come from the first Negro to attain that office in the American government.

Culture came next with Donna McLaughlin, alias protes sor Thelma Skrempiup donning a white lab coat to deliver a lecture on the habits of frogs. Lynne Anne Muldoon and Hubert Hicks impersonated the frogs.

No Nicholson assembly would be complete without a song from Mike Reed, now well known around the school for his rendition of I Believe. All Grade 13 students got into the act with four choruses of Row, row, row your boat under Mike's expert direction.

The assembly was the first this year to be produced by the students themselves. Judging by the reaction of faculty and students, it won't be the last.

History Comes Alive

By BETH PRICE

For the past month, Central Hastings Secondary School grade 5A12 history class has been participating in an experimental method of teaching history. The purpose of this was to make this subject more interesting to everyone in the class. A brief outline of the entire course for the year was distributed to each student. From this outline each person chose any topic which appealed to him.

After conducting his own study on the general background of his topic, the student could narrow down his field of interest to a specific man or item which pertained to this area.

After deciding upon his specific topic he was free to work for the rest of the month to discover more details concerning his topic. The teacher in charge of this experiment, Mr. Merko, was willing to lend his own reference books if they would be of any help to the students. Discussion groups were set up by students studying the same topic. Special material was sent for, to add to the interest of the experiment.

At the end of the month, the students were requested to hand in a report or essay which summed up their specific topic.

Throughout the month, the students filled out individual evaluation sheets which allowed them to observe what they had accomplished each day during the month.

When the month was over, the class and Mr. Merko discussed the value of the experiment. Everyone agreed that it had been fairly successful for a first try and that with suggested revisions, it would become a much more interesting way to teach history.

Wide-eyed Look Wins

YOUTH PARADE
By Reba and Bonnie Churchill

"PARTY EYES" FOR THE HOLIDAYS

Draw a bead on holiday make-up with lively, glinting party eyes. According to William Tuttle, MGM's Oscar-winning make-up director, the exaggerated "sly eye" is out. It's too artificial for today's softly feminine fashions. A rounded, wide-eyed look, such as that worn by actress Brooke Bundy, is more in style step. Much of this spherical contouring can be done with shadow. Tuttle illustrated by brushing iridescent blue powder behind Brooke's lashes, than adding an arc of subtle brown shadow that curved to the brow.

Other professional tips from the expert include reining super lid — building up color directly above centre of iris. This enhances the circle route. Also, let liner end at the outer corners, instead of slanting it unnaturally up or down.

MONTREAL (CP) — Research by Office Overload Co. into women's job outlets shows that in 1891 the leading occupations for women were: servant, dressmaker, teacher, farmer, seamstress, laborress, laundress and milliner.

Centennial Marks Festive Season

By BARB BRUCE

Only a day to go until the holidays are here and everyone is getting into the spirit of the season.

Centennial started to look very Christmas like last Thursday. At assembly on Dec. 11 it was suggested that each room be decorated by the home form class. This idea received strong support and Santa Claus who made a brief appearance to remind the students that Saint Nick cares on the merits of teenagers too.

On Dec. 19 the students of Centennial are presenting an evening of entertainment and urge anyone who can get a ticket to attend. Some of the features of the presentation will be musical selections by the Senior Band, the Glee Club and organist Jim Morrow. A fine performance of Dickens' famous Christmas Carol will be presented by the Senior Drama Club. The entertainment begins at 8 p.m. and lasts about two and a half hours, so bring the children. This joint production of staff and students should show that there is a closing of the generation gap.

On Wednesday the students of neighboring elementary schools, Sir John A. MacDonald and Sir Mackenzie Bowell laughed hilariously at the antics of the players who presented their first performance for them. They also enjoyed the holiday music played by the band.

Students left the cafeteria today with satisfied smiles on their faces after devouring a meal of turkey, whipped potatoes, vegetables and dressing with all the extras. Many went out the doors wishing for more but unable to fulfill their desire due to the limited capacity of the stomach.

We would like to give parents and students advance notice that Parents' Nights at Centennial will be Jan. 6 and Jan. 13, both Monday nights. Further information on this will be given to parents in a letter which is to be distributed to all the students.

In this space in future weeks we would like to introduce the teachers of Centennial to the readers of the Intelligencer. From interviews with the teachers we hope to be able to tell you about their education and their opinions on various topics such as the school, its students, its reputation, teenagers in general and events to take place at the school in the near future.

At Quinte

Petition Signed

By SUE BOARDMAN

On last Thursday morning, the plans for extension of the school year were announced to the students of Quinte. The reaction of the students was the same as Quinte is at variance in other Ontario schools. On Friday a petition was started and signed by nearly everyone who could get hold of it. For those who got out at the end of May last year, it's going to be hard to get used to school in June.

Christmas is certainly here, as one look at the halls of our school can easily tell us. The Keyettes and Key Club have decorated the halls and classrooms, and if we don't have a White Christmas on the outside, we certainly will on the inside.

The Keyettes were also collecting money in the form of a two day blitz on Thursday and Friday, and donations of clothing which will be used to help the less fortunate have a merrier Christmas. The cafeteria staff will be preparing a special Christmas dinner for this week too. A reminder that the express line will not be open for that day.

The assembly should be interesting this week, too, with the folk club singing. To mark the closing of the old year and the beginning of holidays, the football team is sponsoring a dance featuring the Purple Haze. Dress is shirt and tie for the guys and dresses for the girls: admission is $1 single, $2 a couple. Paint and rag, good time guaranteed for all!

But with every good thing comes a bit of bad, or so they say. For Quinte students it is the thought of the exams that start two weeks after the holidays.

TREE DEADLY

VANCOUVER (CP) — Parents have been warned to keep their children away from laburnum trees by the British Columbia Safety Council. Council spokesman said the seed pods on the laburnum break open this time of year and can lead to convulsion or death if swallowed.

Pros Apply Pressure

Tennis Wars Not Restricted to Courts

ADELAIDE (AP) — Donald Dell, the U.S. Davis Cup captain, warned today the open tennis situation will become chaotic unless pro and amateur authorities end the current "secrecy war."

"When two elephants fight, only the grass gets hurt," the Washington D.C., attorney said.

"I am frankly disturbed to read about threatened boycotts, heavy demands on tournament officials made by pro promoters and constant bickering over purses between the amateur associations and promoters.

"It is a senseless war. If it continues, we will be in danger of losing gains made in tennis during the past year and reverting to the archaic system of 10 years ago."

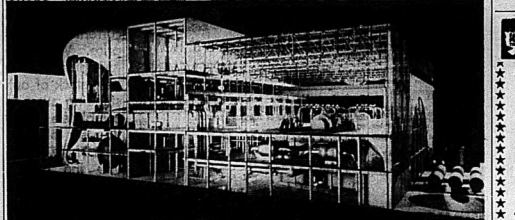
Dell and his Davis Cup team, which challenges Australia for the trophy here Dec. 26-28, have been drawn innocently into a giant struggle which threatens to disrupt Australia's summer grass court circuit.

The American team, originally scheduled to return home after the Cup matches, now has agreed to play in the Victorian Open at Melbourne starting Jan. 6, largely as a gesture of good will toward Harry Hopman, president of the Victorian Association and veteran captain of the Australian Davis Cup team.

The Victorians, with Hopman calling the shots, refused to provide an extra bonus for guarantee of pro participation. Pro tour players boycotted. The entry of the American Davis Cuppers promises to save the event.

Other major Australian events such as the New South Wales in Sydney and the Australian National Championships at Brisbane gave in to the pros, adding $15,000 to the regular prize money of $30,000.

The $12,000 is not added to the purse for the players to shoot at but is split between the two big U.S. promoters—George Mackall of Los Angeles and the Lamar Hunt group with headquarters in Dallas.



Additionally, both bodies are seeking to sign U.S. Davis Cup aces Arthur Ashe Jr. and Clark Graebner to five-year contracts of up to $500,000.

By cornering the player market, the pro promoters are seeking to hold a gun to the heads of amateur associations by threatening to keep players out of open tournaments unless given special financial considerations.

Some amateur associations have been alarmed and the heads of the big four tennis nations—the United States, Australia, England and France—are meeting here Sunday to discuss the problem.

MELBOURNE (AP) — The Lawn Tennis Association of Australia has found sponsors for the 1968 Davis Cup challenge round with only seven days to spare.

Don Shula Top Coach

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Shula of Baltimore Colts has been named Coach of the Year in the National Football League in the overwhelming vote of a man panel for The Associated Press.

A committee composed of three sports writers or sports-casters from each of the league's 16 cities gave Shula 31 votes.

Shula shared Coach-of-the-Year honors with George Allen of Los Angeles last year and won in 1964, the year his Colts were knocked off by Cleveland in the title game.

The 38-year-old Baltimore coach has compiled a 53-18-3 record in his six seasons as head man of the Colts. A hard-nosed defensive back who spent seven years in the NFL, Shula was an assistant coach at Virginia and Kentucky before he went into the pros as a defensive coach at Detroit in 1960.

Baseball Considers Applicants

CHICAGO (AP) — Deciding against a waiting game, baseball's major league owners meet Friday to consider a commissioner to succeed William D. Eckert who resigned just 12 days ago.

Eckert, 60, resigned Dec. 6 in a stunning windup of the baseball owners' winter meeting. The action, reportedly taken at the direction of club owners meeting in executive session, ended a criticized three-year regime.

The need for a baseball man seems to be the rallying cry in the owners' move to install the game's fifth czar as quickly as possible in the face of growing problems, such as a threatened player strike next spring.

A prime candidate, at least in the past, is Mike Burke, who became a director of New York Yankees four years ago when the Columbia Broadcasting System bought the club and then ascended to Yankee presidency.

Other potential candidates, more steeped in baseball than Burke, include Judge Robert Cannon of Milwaukee, knowledgable on both sides of the player-owner fence; Chub Feeney, vice-president of San Francisco Giants; Joe Cronin, president of the American League, and general managers Lee MacPhail of the Yankees and Bing Devine of St. Louis Cardinals.

Earl Morrall Is MVP

NEW YORK (AP) — Earl Morrall, 34, who played quarterback for four clubs before he found a home in Baltimore, was named Wednesday the Most Valuable Player in the National Football League.

Morrall, who took the Colts to the championship and a berth in the Western Conference final with Minnesota Sunday, was the overwhelming choice of a 48-man panel of writers and sportscasters.

Two members of the committee did not vote in this category but Morrall got 33 ballots. Leroy Kelly, Cleveland running back and rushing champion, was second with five and Bill Nelsen, Cleveland quarterback, was next with four.

Morral completed 182 of 317 for 2,909 yards, averaged 9.18 yards per pass, threw 26 touchdown passes and had 17 intercepted.

Celtics Continue Slump

Kevin Loughery scored 10 of his 26 points in the last quarter as the Bullets dumped San Francisco Warriors 109-100 while the 76ers won their 8th straight, a 115-111 decision over Seattle SuperSonics.

The Bullets lead the division by a game over Philadelphia and 3½ games ahead of Boston following the Celtics 104-98 loss to New York Knicks.

In other league games, Detroit Pistons overcame veteran Alvin Hayes 40-point performance for a 123-112 win against San Diego Rockets, Atlanta Hawks downed Milwaukee Bucks 122-116 for their sixth straight victory and Phoenix Suns dumped Cincinnati Royals 123-114.

NHL Leaders

Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks earned an assist Wednesday night to remain the lead in National Hockey League scoring to six points.

IT WORKS BECAUSE IT SWINGS!

That's the principle behind the pendulum clock, invented in 1657. Earlier clock were found only in cathedrals and public squares. Today it is a rare home that doesn't contain at least one handsome timepiece. The days of the sundial and the hourglass are gone and the modern world depends upon accurate time.

If the days of your older clock are gone in your house, chances are that a home somewhere in this area would love to use it.

Most Meat Is Rich in Iron

By Dr. George C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a friend who is anemic, and she is eating raw liver. She grinds it up, keeps it in the refrigerator, and takes a teaspoonful and drinks it in a glass of orange juice. I had always heard that raw meat was dangerous. — Mrs. C., A.

Dear Doctor: What foods are rich in iron? My doctor found me to be anemic (not seriously) and suggested that I change my diet to correct iron deficiency. The only suggestions he made were to eat more red meat and cereals and cut down on sweets. What are red meats? Just beef? And cereals — does this mean a breakfast cereals, or rice and noodles?

Am I correct in assuming that my forever wanting to sleep and a headache are the result of iron deficiency? — Mrs. P. G.

Anemia may be from sheer lack of dietary iron. It may also be caused by defective blood cells which do not hold enough iron. Or it may be a shortage of red blood cells because of continued blood loss.

In short, there are different types of anemia. They can be identified by suitable studies. Then treatment depends on the type. Some are treated with iron only (sometimes in the diet, sometimes with medication); some are treated with liver extract or vitamin B-12 injections; some require blood transfusions.

You simply must not assume that anemia is anemia, that what is good for one type is automatically good for another.

To answer the first question — today, yes, uncooked meats can, at times, contain the eggs of intestinal parasites. To be safe, you should cook meats. That applies to liver as well as other meats. However, cooked liver has the same nutritional values as raw, so I would take no chances. I would cook the liver, not consume it raw.

Now for Mrs. P. G.'s questions. The expression "red meats" is an old one, but it doesn't really mean much since most meat is rich in iron. (Liver is especially rich in it). Perhaps the most important points to keep in mind are that deficiency in protein (rather than merely iron) can contribute to anemia and that all meats, as well as eggs and cheese and seafoods, are high in protein.

As to cereals, that means breads, grain. Noodles are refined, while flour products have lost much of their iron.

But keep in mind. Just trying to correct anemia by diet alone is not going to be the answer if the anemia comes from some slow but steady blood loss — ulcers, hemorrhoids, heavy menstrual periods. Many women have an iron deficiency because of menstrual bleeding, which disappears when menstruation ceases. These various types of bleeding ordinarily can and should be corrected.

While proper diet is wise, don't expect it to make up entirely for excessive bleeding which needs attention.

And yes, fatigue and headaches can be due to anemia but also may result from thyroid deficiency, inadequate diet, or other causes.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband sneezes sometimes 20 to 25 times. Does this have anything to do with your heart? What could be the cause? — Mrs. H.

It's not related to his heart. He could be allergic to something or other that touches off the sneezes. Disorders in the mucous membranes (nose, throat) can cause some people to sneeze.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you discuss the dietary values of butter and margarine as regard calories and protein? — G. C.

They are essentially the same in both respects: There is very little protein in either. The food value is primarily in the fat or oil content.

Traffic Flows on New Artery

New Overpass Now in Use

At the same time harricades were erected at the level crossing on the existing Bay Bridge Road and all "over the bay" traffic is now being directed up Bridge Street and over the new overpass.

Official opening ceremonies for the new west end overpass and roadway project will wait until next spring when final coat paving and other construtional details are completed.

With the contractor still working on completion details and the city works department hastily erecting last minute directional signs, the city's new CPR - Bay Bridge Road artery went into use this morning — without fanfare.

The barricades were removed from the new overpass shortly before 10 a.m. and traffic immediately began moving across the new structure.

TORONTO STOCKS

By mid-morning, the industrial index was down .96 to 186.56 and the western oils index 2.13 to 258.91. Losses outnumbered gains by a clear lead.

The decline reflects the sharp early drop in New York today and the increases in Canadian bank rate and the U.S. Federal Reserve Board discount rate announced Tuesday.

Canadian Imperial Bank fell 1 to 21, CPR ¼ to 79, Industrial Acceptance ¼ to 34, Moore Corp. ¼ to 32 and Bell ¼ to 46¾.

Among the most active stocks, Steleo and Husky Oil lost ¼ each to 25½ and 23⅞.

Dylex Diversified was up ¼ to 23, Canada Packers 3 to 20 and Great West Life 2 to 80. - 7

Massey-Ferguson advanced ¼ to 23¾ after reporting annual earnings of $1.37 a share compared with $1.47 last year. Universal Sections rose ½ to 16½. Six-month profits were up.

Golds lost ground in response to a small decline in the free market price of bullion in Europe. Dome fell 1½ to 83. Dickenson 20 cents to $2.00 and Giant Yellowknife ½ to 14.

Gold shares spurted Wednesday on speculation that President-elect Nixon will raise the official price of monetary gold from $35 U.S. an ounce. But a spokesman later said Mr. Nixon does not anticipate any price change.

On index, golds fell 4.81 to 545.39. Base metals rose .40 to 112.81. Volume by 11 a.m. was 397,000 shares compared with 897,000 at the same time Wednesday.

A general slide on the Toronto exchange Wednesday saw the shares of Canada's largest industrial companies suffer their largest losses in any day since February.

The industrial index plunged 12.11 to 250.77, 10 cents below its record last March during the international monetary crisis. Dome Mines gained 2½ to 84½, Campbell Red Lake 1½ to 26 and Giant Yellowknife 1⅛ to 14¼.

The slump in industrials followed a two-day decline reflecting weakness in New York and tighter credit conditions. Increases in both the Canadian bank rate and the U.S. federal reserve board discount rate were announced Tuesday.

Trading volume was light, indicating a general lack of interest in the market while prices are going down. A total of 3,- 397,000 shares changed hands compared with 3,583,000 Tuesday.

In industrials, Maclaren Power A lost 3 to 18, Dylex diversified Pfd. to 19½, Canadian Tire A 2½ to 66½, Bell 1¾ to 47¼ and Seagrams 1½ to 50.

Trenton Could Be Stop in New Air Service

TRENTON — Trenton could become an official stop in a newly projected air service network which would put the Quinte area only minutes away from Metro centres such as Toronto and Montreal.

In a release today, Royalair Limited, a Montreal-based airline, stated that "a preliminary study of the Trenton-Belleville communities indicate that this area is feasible as an additional point on our projected new network".

"The survey had about 35 per cent of those contacted responding," said Jack Wilson, Trenton Chamber of Commerce manager.

G. W. de MalpasFinlay, sales director of Royalair, said today that a local arrangement could be made with the department of defence to obtain permission to use existing terminal facilities at CFB Trenton.

However, if new terminal facilities are to be built, he suggests the erection of a suitable building on a site on the airfield selected by the department of defence.

These suggestions were made in light of a letter from the minister of transport which was received by George Hees, MP for Prince-Edward-Hastings.

"The department of national defence agrees in principle with the proposal that commercial air service be provided to the Belleville-Trenton area using CFB Trenton," said the minister.

However, the letter goes on to point out that this move would be subject to DOT approval of the service, and along with the establishment of a civilian facility at the base which would not interfere with any military operations.

The proposed schedule would have two flights from the West arriving in Trenton at 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. and two arriving from the east at 11 a.m. and 8 p.m.

Madoc Students Protest Decision

About 150 of the 800 students at Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc walked out at noon today to protest the extension of the school year.

"The students are walking back and forth in front of the school," said vice-principal Robert Graham.

At 1 p.m. none of the students had approached the staff and teachers were unable to determine whether or not the group had an organizer or official spokesman.

"We had planned to have a debate in the auditorium on the extended school year to allow the students to say their piece, but I guess we didn't get it organized in time," he added.

"I believe they intend to send it to the minister of education," the vice - principal said.

Injured Youngster Improves

Robert Rapino, nine, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Rapino, 290 Dufferin avenue, is off the critical list following an operation in Kingston General Hospital yesterday.

Robarts Agrees to Delay Bill Validating Milk Board Rules

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts has reluctantly agreed to delay legislation that would have validated regulations made by the Ontario Milk Marketing Board.

But he warned opposition parties after a stormy two-hour debate in the legislature Wednesday that the delay could destroy the board's ability to do its work.

The premier agreed to send a bill amending the Milk Act of 1965 to the legislature's agriculture committee. The bill had carried through second reading with almost no debate. It needed only third reading—approval in principle—to be speeded into law.

It now will go through the slow process of committee study, a process urged by the opposition, led by Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, who claim the amendment would destroy the case of four diaries who have filed a writ against the board's operations.

Mr. Nixon wants the committee to hear both sides of the court case before the bill becomes law.

The court action came after a ruling last fall by Mr. Justice A. H. Lieff of the Ontario Supreme Court that the milk board had not followed proper procedures in establishing a milk pool in Ontario. The judge said the board should have acted on orders, not on regulations.

As producers and processors, the four diaries objected to the milk pool because it required them to sell milk to the pool and then buy it back again to process it.

On Nov. 28, Agriculture Minister William Stewart introduced the amendment which retroactively validates the board's procedures in setting up the pool. He called the amendment a "house-keeping" procedure.

Mr. Nixon charged that he had misled the house because the amendment was actually an attempt "to set right what apparently was a gross error in administering the Milk Act."

Mr. Stewart said the bill "simply clarifies the manner in which the marketing board may carry out powers already conferred upon it by the milk commission of Ontario." Mr. Robarts said that without the bill the board is operating illegally and would therefore be brought to a standstill.

Mr. Stewart said the amendment would empower the board to "make regulations on orders or directions" and declare all regulations passed since the board's inception as "valid and binding for all intents and purposes."

In other business:

—John Yaremko, minister of the department of social and family services, said the government had no objections if municipal welfare officers force recipients of assistance to report to them periodically.

—Health Minister Matthew Dymond said Ontario supports the federal government's punitive bill for control of toxic substances because it has not been able to find anything better.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon asked Dr. Dymond whether the government is prepared to pass legislation to control the sale and display of glue, nail-polish remover and other toxic substances used by children for their intoxicating effects.

Peublo's Crew May Be Freed

NEW YORK (AP) — A formula which might permit the early release of the 82 crew members of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo appears to have been found in the secret talks between the United States and North Korea at Panmunjom, The New York Times says.

The Seoul newspaper Kyunghyang Shinmoon reported that U.S. and North Korean representatives met at Panmunjom Thursday to discuss procedural matters in connection with the return of the Americans held by North Korea since last Jan. 23.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For Dec. 20

Your birthday today: Your coming year tends to show you the path to greater earnings. Begin with better organization of your time and effort. Don't be chary about accepting advice. Today's natives often have a natural gift for politics.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): It is still premature to leap into larger, unevenly organized ventures or obligations. Stick to the job as it has been laid out. Aggressiveness backfires now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Defer going to new places until after this weekend. Accept a reasonable offer of earning opportunity. Focus on routines, a bit more numerous than normal.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Be sure to keep your receipts. You will need them in the coming half-year. Pay up bills; but just your own, nobody else's.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Your own tendency to worry is your greatest hindrance. There is little to be done with these complex emotional stresses, so stop fretting. Give people room.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Accept extra work with a good grace. (There is not much choice.) Earnest consideration of the needs of older people or in-laws, bring intangible rewards.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Finish, so the coming week is clear. People are rather tense; uncertain of their choices or doubtful of choices already made.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Keeping busy is good therapy for a wide range of psychological and emotional distress. There is more than enough work to do. Inspire loved ones to improve their habits as well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): You seem locked in. The slightest effort at improvement or change brings tremendous resistance: so save your nerves. Put in a full day. Then put it out of your mind until tomorrow.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Young people tend to become expensive. Seek traditional or at least conservative activities. Change for the sake of novelty is not favored.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): You have thought out what it is you most want; persist in your recent despite resistance (stirred by your divergence from custom). Pay the price while it's low.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Details are more important than usual and properly tended will save endless future difficulties. Be conservative. Travel will not fill expectations.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Get after neglected items: another weekend of delay will pile them up into major tangles. Hold onto your money; it is not quite the time.

A federal government decision not to expand Toronto International Airport has sparked eagerness for the Quinte district to bid for fabulous future economic stakes.

A local Liberal party committee will spend Christmas drafting a brief that proposes the Lake Ontario shoreline of Prince Edward County for a super-jet traffic terminal.

Leading local Liberals hailed today's federal announcement and saw it as spurring efforts to impress their plan on Transport Minister Paul Hellyer within a month.

Instead, a joint committee representing federal and provincial governments will study sites for an airport or airports to serve most of southern Ontario, said Mr. Hellyer.

The committee was formed nine day ago at a meeting of Prince Edward-Hastings Liberal Association.

Its chairman, Picton barrister William Lane, said the group would meet this week to draft a formal brief outlining its proposals.

"We're planning to try and make an appointment to see Mr. Hellyer early in January," he said.

Committee members were reluctant to discuss details of the plan until the formal presentation is made to the minister.

However, the scheme envisions:

Launch Delay Is Possibility

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Contaminated liquid oxygen was discovered today in the power-producing fuel cells of the Apollo 8 spaceship, threatening a possible delay of Saturday's planned blastoff of three astronauts on a mission to orbit the moon.

The launch team began draining the 640 pounds of liquid oxygen from the three cells, hoping to replace it by late today.

"The launch team still is aiming for a launching at 7:51 a.m. EST Saturday," the space agency said. "Work in the next few hours will determine if this can be done."

Officials hoped the replacement could be accomplished during a planned six-hour hold in the countdown which is to start at 3:51 p.m. The automatic hold was built into the countdown to handle such contingencies.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the contamination was caused by an excess amount of liquid nitrogen in the oxygen supply. The nitrogen before it is blended with liquid hydrogen in the fuel cells.

There was no report on how the excess nitrogen got into the system.

"This contamination does no damage to the fuel cells," a spokesman said. "But if launched in this condition, the astronauts would have to purge their fuel cells more often in flight—about once every hour instead of every seven hours as planned."

The liquid oxygen, at 297 degrees below zero, and liquid hydrogen, at 423 degrees below, were pumped into the three fuel cells Thursday. They combined during the flight to produce electricity to run the spacecraft systems and a byproduct of water for astronaut drinking.

The history-making six-day mission, set for Saturday morning, is fraught with perils never before faced, but hopes were high that the astronauts would orbit the moon and get back safely to earth.

"The mission is justifiable and it is right, from a technical point of view," said Dr. Kurt Debus, director of the Kennedy space center. "The moon is an old target of man's dreams. Now it is a tangible target."

As their date with destiny drew near, the astronauts—Col. Frank Borman, Capt. James Lovell Jr. and Maj. William Anders—were cool and confident.

"We're ready as can be," one of them reported cheerfully as hundreds of men preparing the Saturn V, the world's mightiest rocket, moved at 8:51 p.m. EST Thursday into the final countdown.

Small problems cropped up and were overcome. A valve regulating the flow of liquid hydrogen, which mingles with liquid oxygen to produce electricity and drinking water for the spaceship, malfunctioned and had to be replaced, along with a leaky line.

Elated by the certainty that they will beat the Russian cosmonauts in a close-up rendezvous with the planet, the astronauts were scheduled to ride the Saturn V rocket away from earth at 7:51 a.m. Saturday.

After two earth orbits to check out the spacecraft systems, they will restart the Saturn V third stage and propel themselves across the 220,000-mile journey to the moon.

After 10 revolutions of the moon at an altitude of 69 miles on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day, a blast of the spacecraft engines hopefully will start them on the return trip to a splashdown in the Pacific Friday morning.

Father Asks Another Chance To Buy Daughter's Freedom

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The millionaire father of kidnapped Barbara Jane Mackle pleaded today for another chance to buy her freedom while police searched for two men and a woman involved in the bungled payoff of $500,000 Thursday.

The FBI said no charges have been filed.

The plea and manhunt came after Robert Mackle dropped the $500,000 ransom money on the shore of Biscayne Bay, where two local officers accidentally discovered and traded shots with two men who retrieved it.

In fleeing during the gunfight, the men dropped the suitcase full of money and abandoned a car, police said.

The auto was traced by its Massachusetts registration to George G. Deacon, 38, University of Miami submarine geologist, and police later said Deacon was being sought.

The woman and the other man were not identified.

As police pressed the search and attempted to plug all exits from the city, Mackle issued a statement through the FBI disowning all connections with the arrest attempt and telling the kidnappers: "I regret you didn't get the money. . . ."

"I pray that you have not harmed my daughter," Mackle's statement said. "I did everything you told me to."

The wealthy land developer's message to the kidnappers concluded: "Please contact me again through any channel. I will do anything you ask so my daughter will be freed."

Viet Cong Moves In For Saigon Assault

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. intelligence officers reported today that the Communist command has launched the first phase of a winter-spring campaign and is moving troops and war materials into position for an assault on Saigon. They expect the attack after New Year's.

The intelligence reports prompted the United States to warn the North Vietnamese in Paris that an attack on Saigon would jeopardize the peace talks.

American intelligence officers, explaining the three-week lull in sustained major ground fighting, said the Communist command is trying to avoid contact and is moving troops in squad-sized units of about 19 men to get them in desired positions.

The major movement was detected from the Cambodian border toward Saigon, they said.

Intelligence reports say that four North Vietnamese divisions previously strung along the Cambodian border north of Saigon have drawn in closer to the capital.

Finance Ministers Meet

Only Solution in Sight: To Bake A Bigger Tax Pie

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's 11 finance ministers and provincial treasurers found no new way Thursday to cut the tax pie.

Dispersing until spring after a day-long conference, they left only one solution in sight: To bake a bigger pie.

The means: To levy additional taxes.

The provincial ministers were glum after Finance Minister Edgar Benson gave no encouragement to their demands for more money from the federal treasury.

Paul Dozois of Quebec wondered aloud whether there is any point in holding such conferences. He said at the outset that Ottawa's policies are "leading directly to the ruin of the federation."

Charles MacNaughton of Ontario called the meeting empty. There was nothing to cause Ontario to inch away from the likelihood of having to levy new provincial taxes.

The conference was primarily billed as the annual federal-provincial review of the economic situation and outlook for the new year's tax and spending commitments. In the past, it has been the main meeting to co-ordinate federal and provincial budget-making.

But this year, there was added importance for the meeting, arising from last month's proposal by Mr. Benson to withdraw from shared-cost welfare programs. He offered the provinces 17 additional percentage points of federal income tax revenues.

Most of the provinces demanded 20 or more. Mr. Dozois said $500,000,000 should be turned over to the provinces, of which Quebec would get about $125,000,000.

The ministers tentatively agreed to meet again next March or April. By that time, Mr. Benson will have unveiled his proposed fundamental reform of federal tax law, and the provincial premiers will have held their second constitutional conference.

There is a fundamental split among the governments on whether the division of jurisdictional responsibilities should be made before or after new tax-sharing arrangements are made.

D. G. Steuart of Saskatchewan said the split between Ottawa and the provinces on taxes is not a good prelude to rearranging constitutional responsibilities.

Christmas Fund Appeal Is Still Short $3,700

The small army of volunteers responsible for the distribution of the great variety of items produced by the community Christmas Fund is already in action in the city and surrounding area.

But before they complete their task an additional $3,700 is needed.

Donations of cash and cheques received in separate pieces of mail at the Fund Headquarters in the Trenton Community Services building at 234 John Street this morning totalled $650.

And contributions of clothing and food and household articles were also arriving at the headquarters with increasing frequency a Fund worker said.

Mrs. Selma Bochnek, the director for the Appeal said the most recent subscriptions had cut the number of families needing help to 185. Family baskets average $20, meaning the Fund is still short $3,700 of its goal. Mrs. Bochnek said it would relieve the rush at the headquarters if people interested in the collection were delivering their subscription to the headquarters in person. They can also phone 962-8531 — she added.

Holidays Start Today

Christmas holidays began today for elementary and high school students.

The school vacation is longer than usual this year, lasting over two weeks. Schools re-open Jan. 6.

In the elementary schools, regulations require the pupils to remain in classes until the routine four 4 p.m. dismissal time. Most classes have parties scheduled for the afternoon.

High school students will be dismissed at 2.30 p.m.

Union Investigation Continues: Official

PICTON — A private investigator's interim report on this town has turned up "a surprising amount of information," according to an official of the union that initiated the study.

Glenn Pattinson, Canadian district vice-president of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, said Wednesday that more investigation is needed before his union decides what to do with the findings.

A top level union conference will decide to study the investigator's full report when it is received from the private firm early in the new year.

Members of local 582 IUE complained during the fall that their strike activities against Procter-Silex in Picton were impeded by town police and that Mayor Harvey J. McFarland, owner of the building which houses the small appliance industry, worked in the interests of the company.

The private detective will be back in Picton after Jan. 2 to finish his inquiry.

Mr. Pattinson asked council in a letter last month for a meeting and got nowhere. He said Wednesday he was undeterred by council's response which asked him to advise the town fathers of the nature of the union's visit before granting an interview.

On the advice of town solicitor Reginald Nourse, council passed a resolution Dec. 2 asking that the union first state its business before an interview was granted.

Mr. Pattinson said what he has to tell councillors is the best he discussed at a closed meeting. He added that it is not his intention to go into the details of his business with councillors in a preliminary letter.

Suit Against Minister Is Dismissed in Toronto

PICTON — One of two slander suits instituted against a town Anglican rector in October will not come to trial in the Ontario Supreme Court.

It was dismissed in Toronto without a hearing in court. Rev. Robert Stewart, rector of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene in Picton was charged with slander early in October after he spoke out against the conduct of some strikers during the trouble on the Procter-Silex picket lines here.

A second writ is still active against the clergyman. Mr. Stewart's lawyer, Reginald Nourse of Picton, said the action for slander against Mr. Stewart by George Hutcheons, Canadian district president of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers and other union officers, was dealt with earlier this month at Osgoode Hall in Toronto.

Mr. Stewart still faces court action on another slander writ instituted by James Donofrio, an international representative for the same union. The suit is for $100,000 and no date for trial has been set.

Obituaries and Funerals

MRS. ARTHUR T. COLE

In failing health for some time, Mrs. Catherine Frances Cole, 242 William Street, died at her home on Thursday evening. She was in her 90th year.

Mrs. Cole was born in London, England, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Yorke and had been a resident of Belleville for 54 years. Her late husband, Arthur T. Cole, who died in 1954 was a CNR. engineer.

She was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and was active in all branches of church work when health permitted.

Surviving are two brothers, Albert and Harry Yorke of Belleville and two sisters, Mrs. Alice Bullen, Wellington, N.Z. and Mrs. Martha Cunningham of Belleville.

Also surviving are several nephews and nieces.

Mrs. Cole is resting at the Thompson Funeral Chapel. Service will be held in the chapel on Saturday, Dec. 21 at 2 o'clock.

Interment will be in Belleville Cemetery with Rev. Laurie Sutherland officiating.

MRS. G. ALFRED PORTER (Trenton)

TRENTON — The funeral for Mrs. Gladys M. Porter, 70 Division Street, who died suddenly in Trenton Memorial Hospital on Tuesday was held from the Weaver Funeral Home, Trenton on Thursday afternoon.

Canon K. F. Blachford conducted the service in the chapel and also "said the graveside prayers at St. George's Cemetery.

The bearers were Paul Tripp, Douglas Kinney, Dick Bailey, Harold Graham, Ross Burke and Reginald Berry.

Mrs. Porter was born in Trenton, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Parks and excepting 17 years in Toronto, spent all of her life in the Trenton district.

She was a member of St. George's Church in Trenton.

Surviving are two nieces, Mrs. Margaret McDougall, Keswick, Mrs. John McMurchy, London and a sister-in-law, Miss Eva A. Porter of Trenton.

MRS. LEO TURCOTTE (Tweed)

TWEED — The funeral of Helen Elizabeth Turcotte was held from the Bush Funeral Home—Tweed to St. Carthagh's Roman Catholic Church, where Requiem Mass was celebrated by Dean C. E. Baker with the following as bearers: Guy Hughes, Tracey Quinn, Anthony Quinn, Keith Cotton, Lionel Morin and Simon Meraw.

Mrs. Turcotte passed away at her residence on Victoria Street, Tweed, following a short illness.

She is survived by her husband, Leo Turcotte; a son, Deane Turcotte, of Picton, and three daughters, Mrs. Everett (Dorothy) Akey, Valleyfield, Quebec; Mrs. Raymond (Charity) Langevin, Sault Ste. Marie, and Hope Turcotte at home.

One brother, Arthur of Sussex, England and one sister, Peggy of London, England also survive.

The former Elizabeth Helen Deane, the deceased was born in England, 68 years ago. She was a member of the St. Carthagh's Church, Tweed and of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Royal Canadian Legion, Tweed Branch.

Interest High For Trenton Stop

TRENTON — If a few "minor obstacles" can be overcome Trenton could become a stop in a new air network from Montreal to Toronto by mid-April.

Royalair Limited, a Montreal based airline, had previously taken a survey of the Trenton-Belleville area to see if interest was high enough to support a terminal. Evidently it was as plans are now underway to make the proposal a reality.

G. W. de Malpas Finlay, sales director of Royalair said today an application will be made to the department of transport for an operating licence in Trenton as soon as the service is approved in Kingston.

Royalair had applied for such a license, in Kingston about year ago but was turned down when the Kingston Flying Club objected and offered to set up the service.

They did not follow through on their proposal.

Mr. Finlay expects approval by February or March, and operations would begin by mid-April.

It is then that an application would be made to set up a stop in Trenton.

If this were obtained the new route would go from Montreal to Kingston to Trenton and on to Toronto.

Mr. Finlay said he had spoken to defence minister Leo Cadieux and said the department of defence agreed in principle to allow the facilities at CFB Trenton to be used.

Mr. Cadieux did not agree, however, that the terminal at the base should facilitate the commercial company.

But he added that the municipality could provide a terminal as was done in Pembroke. The cost for the building was under $5,000.

Mayor James MacDonald said he and council had not been approached about the plan but that he was in favor of an air service to the town.

The tentative schedule would see flights arriving in Trenton from the east at 9 a.m and 6 p.m. while those from the west would arrive at 11 a.m. and 8 p.m.

The first moment of peril comes when the engines of the Saturn V rocket, which has never before carried riders into space, are ignited. At this time, locked to its pad, the rocket is a potential time bomb, with the explosive power of more than 1,000,000 pounds of TNT.

At the first hint of a possible blowup on the pad, electronic sensors will fire an escape rocket that will jerk the spaceship away from the rocket and lift it soaring high and far away from the scene of brewing trouble.

The second time of greatest tension will come when the astronauts—flying behind the dark face of the moon and out of radio contact with earth—fire the spacecraft's rocket that will haul them out of lunar orbit and send them gliding at 24,500 miles an hour down a corridor toward a tiny, 36-mile window they must enter into the earth's atmosphere.

Failure of this engine would leave them stranded in space with about 10 days of oxygen supply left to them. Afterward, the spacecraft would become a lifeless, perpetual satellite of the moon.

The last big hazard is the return to earth along a narrow trail never before blazed by man if the men strayed from the corridor, the midcourse corrections did not get them back, they could ricochet off the earth's atmosphere and back out into space to remain.

Quinte - area small ¿towns must wait indefinitely to discover the future of community railroad service.

The Canadian Transport Commission yesterday adjourned decision on a move to close 10 area railroad stations after the hotly-contested issue took on broad social overtones.

Core of the controversy, a succession of community spokesmen indicated, also concerns a problem of modern society: Urban growth at the expense of rural development.

Marmora Reeve William Shannon who led the two-day fight against the Canadian National Railway application to close 19 small-town stations, called centralization "the most grave social evil of our times."

Robert Barr, Brockville barrister retained by Bastard-Burgess township near Smiths Falls, warned that rural development was being undermined by urban economic concentration.

Tone of the appeals was keyed by Hastings County clerk-treasurer Carl Bateman who earlier warned of uneasiness over withdrawal of big business once rural profits had been exploited.

Mr. Bateman, representing county council, committed the weight of county opinion behind the village of Marmora in its fight to retain its own railroad agent and station.

"Councils can only wonder why the CN would persist in following their policies of centralization and transfer of work from small communities to urban centres," claimed Mr. Shannon in his final summation.

"By so doing, they're contributing to the most grave social evil of our times.

"Larger centres are plagued by a conglomeration of social problems — from crime to overcrowding and pollution," he said.

"Yet, while these centres are busy finding cures for these cancerous maladies, CN is busily setting up counter-policies of centralizing their operations in these larger centres."

The railroad, by withdrawing administration of freight service to a main central terminal at Belleville, was leaving Marmora with second-rate transportation facilities, he claimed.

"They can't understand how any business organization, particularly a crown corporation, could treat its customers in such a fashion," said Reeve Shannon. "They regard these acts on the part of CN over the past few years as totally unnecessary — a show of ingratitude . . . and a perversion of sound business principles."

Marmora is rich in natural resources and the nearby Marmora iron ore mines is a major boost to railroad revenue.

Rail traffic out of the village is valued at an annual $900,000.

Yet, CN now would make Marmora "a flag stop" in the railway guides of North America," he charged. "Will this help us in our continuing search to attract new industry and developers of our resources?"

Mr. Barr, opposing removal of the station at Forfar, also said the scheme encroached on rural development chances.

Provincial and federal governments repeatedly express concern with centralization, and lagging development in small centres.

"Between what these people say and what happens in rural areas is altogether different," he said.

This was the basic complaint of people in rural areas, said the barrister.

"They have been undermined bit by bit and centralization is becoming more and more an obvious fact — and they feel they're belittled by it."

The CN, said Mr. Barr, is "not just another railroad," but a public service to the people of Canada.

Belleville lawyer Robert Temple who sat with Mr. Shannon through much of the hearing, also warned that the railroad had to weigh public convenience against business necessity.

Removal of local rail services complicates community development, he said.

Stirling reeve Don Rodgers also noted the CN as a crown corporation "has an obligation to assist" in local developments.

CN take 4, 5 indent en ma

While Stirling did not oppose removal of its station agent, it wanted the station buildings intact since a local industrial park was planned near the railroad.

However, because of the higher railroad revenue he believed a station agent at Marmora "served a useful purpose."

"Without railroad facilities there is much less chance of these being exploited," he said.

Last words of the final session went to CN legal counsel H. J. G. Pye who said, despite two days of testimony, no "single, valid objection" had been lodged against the centralization program.

The railroad, he submitted, had been "obliged" to stay competitive and thus had to change its business methods.

Biggest fear of the communities involved, said Mr. Pye, was that centralization was "the beginning of the end," of railroad service.

"Nothing could be further from the truth," he stressed.

"There is no withdrawal of service. It's just a change of business operations."

Such fears should be allayed by the success of similar programs in other CN regions, suggested Mr. Pye.

Earlier, CN Rideau - area manager Harry Fast, Chief railroad spokesman at the hearing, said the shutdown would not leave the 10 station agents unemployed.

Of the total, nine could be immediately re-employed in the Rideau area and one elsewhere in the larger St. Lawrence region.

The appointments according to seniority, would set off a chain reaction among junior employee placements, conceded Mr. Fast. However, at present there were job vacancies in excess of the number who might be involved.

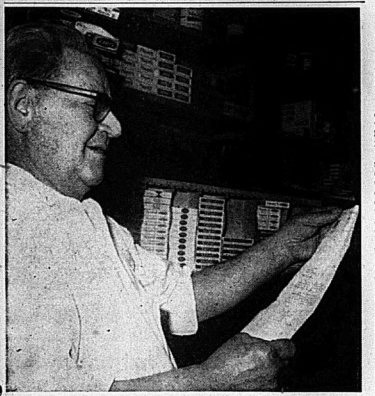
D. H. Jones, chairman of the three-man committee of commissioners who conducted the hearing, noted the final decision was an important one.

He gave no indication when a finding would be announced.

New Addition Goes on Display

The new $629,000 addition to Picton's Queen Elizabeth Public School will be one of 56 new Canadian school and university buildings to be featured at the fifth annual Canadian Education Showplace being held in Toronto January 23-25.

The education show features the latest in school architecture and will include 34 new schools from Ontario.



Plans for the ultra-modern Picton school which was officially opened last week by education minister William G Davis, were drawn by Briggs and Heisenen Architects of Don Mills, Ont. Belleville Contractor, Hugh Murray Ltd. built the two level addition.

The addition provides 32,-900 square feet of floor space, the upper level of which is designed for completely open teaching with special classrooms for science, industrial arts, home economics, music and guidance.

At the Toronto National Exhibition of School Architecture being held in the CNE Automotive Building, the prize winning schools will be shown in large interior and exterior photographs with floor plans and drawings.

Accompanying descriptive material will outline architectural specifications, structural and mechanical details, unusual site problems and construction costs.

A construction feature of the Picton school addition was the fact that caissons were necessary to overcome wet subsoil conditions.

Jimmy Yeotes

Belleville Businessman Gets Letter from Spiro Agnew

While this may be the wait-and-watch period in U.S. politics, at least one Canadian has made friendly, informal overtures to the newly-elected executive.

He is Jimmy Yeotes, long-time Belleville businessman, well - known in the city and long-time operator of Uptown Billiards.

operator of Uptown Billiards.

Jimmy today is the proud possessor of a personal letter from vice-president-elect Spiro Agnew, now waiting to assume office.

Spiro Agnew may have been the man no one heard of until the U.S. presidential election. Not so Jimmy, he knew the Agnew family in their common homeland — Greece. .

But, through Greek-language newspapers Jimmy has been able to follow the Agnew rise to power in U.S. politics— first as governor of Maryland, now on the presidential bandwagon.

"Everybody said I'd never get an answer," says Jimmy.

Among the Christmas cards was a letter of thanks from Agnew.

"The congratulations and encouragement of old friends and associates is very gratifying," wrote the new vice-president. "As we prepare to face the challenge before us your kind thoughts are most encouraging."

Agnew also revealed: "I look forward to working closely with president-elect Nixon. His fresh and dynamic approach will ensure the leadership we need to bring pride and dignity to the individual with enlightened responsibility and respect for the law. All Americans will stand prouder."

And Jimmy's reaction?

Lewis Named President

A. S. Lewis has been re-elected president of the Belleville Chapter of the Ontario Heart Foundation for another year.

Other officers elected at the recent annual meeting included J. E. Uttley and Mrs. E. G. Kennedy as vice presidents, Bruce Curtis, treasurer, Mrs. H. F. Alford, secretary, and Dr. J. S. Loynes and Dr. L. B Cronk as medical advisers.

Mrs. Dorothy Howell has been appointed campaign chairman for the 1969 fund drive to be held in February. T. E. Schwab has been appointed chairman of publicity and public relations.

February 23 has been designated as "Heart Sunday" in Belleville, with a house-to-house canvass to commence later in that week.

The financial statement showed the Belleville Chapter raised $7,000 through the 1968 campaign, $622 of which was collected by Tweed.

Total campaign expenses together with incidental expenses for operating the chapter for the fiscal period to June 30, 1968, amounted to only $179, this sum being paid by the Ontario Division. During the same fiscal period, $3,384 was received in the form of "in memoriam" gifts as compared with $1,332 for the previous year. Included in the latter two amounts were several hundred dollars sent in from Tweed.

Good Enough To Eat

A Belleville woman living on Trent Road went to a lot of trouble to fashion this fairybook castle from cardboard, pastry, icing sugar and candies as a special Christmas undertaking. The maker, Mrs. Peter Jarvis, checked every detail with the original design before putting it on display in her home.

Opening of New Building Could Be Delayed - - Again

Members of the Belleville Parks and Recreation Committee at their final 1968 meeting yesterday were told that while tenders for washroom installation at the fairgrounds' building would be opened Monday there could be some delay by manufacturers in delivery of supplies.

The fairgrounds recreational building was officially taken over by the city just over two weeks ago and tenders were called for plumbing washroom installation and painting.

Financial support for the 1968-69 skating season was also asked by the club.

Both requests were referred to city council for consideration during next year's budget sessions.

Parks Board members went along with a request from Belleville Marine yards to allow an access road onto the now closed section of the former Bay Bridge Road south of the CPR tracks.

The board was told the Morch company wanted assurance of an access road over park property as delivery of heavy boats across their sharply inclined private railway crossing was difficult.

Rights Of Indians

The laws of this land should apply to everyone, including the descendants of the country's first inhabitants — the Indians.

By the same token the treatment of Indians by the authorities leaves much to be desired. Wednesday's confrontation between more than 300 Mohawk Indians and police is eloquent not only of the gulf between the Indian and white societies but of the legal fog that surrounds the often-flouted special rights of Indians in this country.

The Indians, from reserves on both sides of the border, claim that under the Jay Treaty of 1794, their people living along the border are exempt from paying customs duties on goods brought back to Canada. They complain further that a Supreme Court of Canada ruling in 1956, which ordered that customs duties should apply to everyone, further abrogates the treaty. Location of the customs offices and other buildings on Indian land is another source of contention.

The incidents at Cornwall, coming at a time when the rights of Indians under century-old treaties and their status in the midst of the white society are in public view, contain the seeds of more serious trouble ahead.

If there is not to be violence, this controversy over Indians bringing goods into Canada must be settled without delay. The first question that must be answered has to do with the validity of the nearly 200-year-old Jay Treaty? Again, what of the Supreme Court ruling of 1956 — can a treaty of an earlier government be ruled null and void by a court rather than by the government of the land?

Decisions must be made in these matters. The Government of Canada has a lot to answer for in its treatment of the Indians. This is merely the latest — and one of the most serious — episodes thus far.

Moon Orbit Near

As the Apollo moon astronauts come closer to launching day for their flight around the lunar planet they know that if anything goes wrong in the initial stages, on the ground, they will have a number of possible escape routes.

These have been built into the rocket system as a result of the accident in blast-off preparations on a previous flight. In this instance veteran astronaut Virgil Grissom and two colleagues lost their lives when trapped by fire inside their capsule.

For the men on this new mission it will be the most ambitious space flight yet undertaken by the United States. For the rest of us, mere groundlings who could scarcely jump over a three foot bar if we tried, it will be something to observe, on television, with awe.

We wish the astronauts well, their rocket the best guidance and efficiency possible, and their mission success and a safe return to earth.

Christmas Cards

There is irony in the news that Christmas card mailing is down on previous years. Clearly this is a reflection of the recent increase in postal rates.

The post office seeks more revenue, but as the reduced number of cards on the move indicates, the public can stand so much inflation and no more. Christmas cards are nice to send and to receive (though it does tend to become more and more of a chore as the years pass by) but they can also be classed as non-essential and therefore dispensable.

Consider too what happens when fire strikes. A smoke sale is advertised and next thing the establishment is swamped with customers. The store may take a loss on the original value of its stock, but then look at the business it does that would not have accrued otherwise.

Color Counts

Like color? People need color in their lives. Even on grey days without sun, when bare trees and sombre skies seem oppressive the mind can see in them the special appeal of winter. The imagination can impart the necessary stimulus to what otherwise could be a harrowing scene. It is all in the mind, they say. Well perhaps not entirely all. After all, color pervades the modern scene to an exciting degree, from the spray and interiors of the automobile to the fashion world. And even — as a friend who is a color buff noted the other day — in the sphere of proprietary medicines. "Ah, my favorite color," he exclaimed suddenly, while idly fingering a bottle of vitamin pills. They were red . . . red for vitality, red for days that are greyish . . . !

As Austerity Program Takes Hold

Political Uncertainty Persists in France

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Continued unrest among radical students and a general sense of uncertainty throughout the country are keeping the government of France on edge as its new austerity program begins to bite.

Premier Maurice Couve de Murville has tried to reassure France that its economic situation now is "fundamentally sane" and some moderate students are beginning to demonstrate impatience with the way radicals are disrupting academic work.

But the large numbers of police on duty at troubled universities and elsewhere testify to official Gaullist concern.

And student militancy has continued to flare, in defiance of threatened government clampdowns, though not to the extent of last spring's upheaval.

Among middle-class Frenchmen, however, dissatisfaction is qualified by the belief that the sole alternative to Gaullism seems to be communism or a return to the political confusion of the Fourth Republic.

The entire Gaullist cabinet, including reform-minded Education Minister Edgar Faure, is showing signs of swinging to the right in its determination to prevent France from falling into a state of severe economic and political dislocation.

Victory by a Communist in a Sunday by-election was described by observers as possibly reflecting a hostile public reaction to austerity—although the constituency involved is traditionally Communist.

The government of President de Gaulle threw some top campaigners into the contest—part of what appears to be a limiting Gaullist counterattack against any "defeatist" trends at work among Frenchmen.

Such efforts by the government are being closely watched by France's neighbors, fearful that a French breakdown would endanger Western European stability as a whole.

One opinion publicly expressed in London is that changes in the world monetary system, which is blamed by de Gaulle for many of France's current economic woes, would be a big boost to the worried French if carried out in time.

Letter to the Editor

Lord's Day Observance

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Thanks to Alderman Robin Jeffrey and Alderman D. G. Williams for their expressed views in opposition to the operation of the local fair on the Lord's Day. Since Toronto has followed the example of Montreal in holding the exhibition on Sunday, Fair Fever for Sunday is spreading to the smaller cities. The desire for more money is powerful.

One wonders if soon, Sunday will be no longer referred to as the Lord's Day. Sport, commercialized and otherwise, with gambling and without, meetings for politics, business by management, and by unions, are among the great variety of Sunday events which are taking the attention of an increasingly large sector of society.

When the people of Judah wished to call the sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord honorable, and honoring God rather than seeking their own pleasures (Is. 58:13, 14) they soon turned from God and were led into captivity by the King of Babylon for 70 years. There God reminded them through Ezekiel "Thou hast despised mine holy things, and hast profaned my sabbaths (22:8)

The enlightenment, refreshment and strengthening of soul, mind, and body, that should be ours through the focusing of our attention upon God and His Word on the Lord's Day, is being lost to many. And governments are joining in encouraging the trend.

The Council would do well to reconsider their action.

R. BARCLAY WARREN

Civil Servants—Are They Civil?

The Trentonian

Dr. R. T. Potter, Quinte MLA raised some interesting questions in his most recent speech in the Legislature. Not least interesting was his suggestion that the civil servants are somewhat less than civil.

How true that is every citizen who tries to deal with government officials of one kind and another knows. Arrogance, and the good old runaround are the stock in trade of the modern civil servant, with a few rare and happy exceptions. But would a course in public relations, as suggested, improve that?

We venture to think not. There seem to be two problems.

One is simply that far too much authority is surrendered by the elected representatives to non-elected people, who are not then held responsible for their actions to the Legislature

Ontario has a plethora of boards and commissions which are laws in themselves. More control by the Legislature might help.

As for the attitude to the public, that must surely be instilled from the top. Every Civil servant, federal and provincial, needs to remember not only that he is paid out of the public purse, but that the program which he administers is intended for the benefit of the taxpaying public. He, like the government, is the servant of the public. No one wants subservience. But he does want some consideration for him as an individual, and reasonable courtesy, not less than private enterprise has to give him if it is going to survive.

Vanier Institute Study Of Successful Families May Help Those With Problems

Brockville Recorder and Times

News about the problem families is as commonplace as the news about the weather, and this tends to give a distorted view of family life in general. Not all families have problems. Indeed, the vast majority are not in the problem class.

The Vanier Institute of The Family is going to do something about this imbalance of information about families. The Institute, stating that "our attention to problem families has not been balanced by attention to successful families", is now going to carry out a study of successful families to learn the family strengths which balance off family weaknesses.

This project will undertake to examine the lives of these normal or successful families. Focus of the study will be on everyday behavior within families how they arrange their lives within the family and the community, what they think about everyday issues such as work, education and health. They hope to assess how these families get along together as social units and not just as collections of individuals.

It would seem that the answer to the problem families could be found in such a study, for with the knowledge gained in what makes a successful family tick, the Institute should be well stocked with helpful advice of a practical rather than a theoretical nature.

Changing Society

Peterborough Examiner

Revolutionary thinking in education is having a disturbing effect not only on students and teachers but on society itself.

One of the misconceptions about the Hall-Dennis Report on the aims and objectives of education in Ontario seems to be that the guidelines suggested are compulsory and inflexible. On the contrary, their intention is to divert preoccupation from stereotyped book-learning and give full attention to the child's development rather than solely to his ability to learn. The report is saying simply that it is far better for society to have a happy adjusted laborer than have an introverted, incompatible scientist.

Change has always been a factor in human experience and there can be no doubt that we are now confronted with a rate of change that is unprecedented. Change will bring its pressures and place heavy demands on all of us to adapt to it.

Technological advances are sweeping us toward new horizons of thought, attitude and motivation. One greatest fear, admittedly, must be that the onrush of change, spurred by science and technical discovery will create a society in which individuality will diminish. Perhaps it is this fear of losing personal and social identity that precipitates suspicious reaction to change.

Students Misunderstand The Meaning Of Freedom

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

An unusual Canadian has been in the news, in a way unusual for him, during the past week. Student riots at San Francisco State College have made the newspaper readers aware of Samuel Ichiye Hayakawa as the new president of that college.

He had scarcely become president when riots erupted and radical students tried to take over the institution. President Hayakawa waded into the middle of the mob, climbed on top of a car and told the rioters they were being stupid.

It was a new role for him. He had his own kind of fame previously as a scholarly expert on semantics.

Every professor of English in every university on this continent has been aware for years of Hayakawa's original ideas on the study of the meanings of words. He was professor of English at San Francisco until he was named president a few weeks ago.

He is a Canadian of Japanese ancestry, born in Vancouver in 1906.

We can understand his instant indignation when the radicals bowled for "freedom." His deep knowledge is of the meanings of words and he knew they were tacking the wrong meaning on that word.

Mob rule by a student minority is the opposite of freedom; it denies the freedom of the majority to learn or to teach.

Culture Comes to Windsor

(Pat Wheelen in The Windsor Star)

The development of cultural pursuits in Windsor has been slow, even compared to other North American cities, because of peculiar factors of geography history, and economics which have tended to discourage interest in culture.

But Windsor has gained ground, since World War 2 and particularly in the past 10 or 15 years.

Windsor has changed, mentally if not physically, more than any other Canadian city in the past several decades. We used to have the reputation of being a raffish city, a good-time town where anything goes. We're still in the process of changing that reputation.

Negative factors are the Canadian snapping attitude, the inevitable snobbism and fakery which build such suspicion, and again, the competition of Detroit.

Shopping Outside The City

Brockville Recorder and Times

The nip in the air and the snow on the ground this week seemed to have put the residents of our area into the Christmas spirit. Business along the main street and in the shopping centre locally and in the business districts of the area towns and villages reported a brisk upturn in business as a result. But the merchants aren't as happy as they could be.

The problem appears to be the desire of great numbers of area residents to shop outside our own district. Perhaps it's a question of price, or a matter of selection or quality or just a desire to get to different surroundings . . . but it is a fact that many, many people do their Christmas shopping in Toronto, Montreal, Kingston, Ottawa and Watertown or Ogdensburg. This drain of money has an effect on the entire economy of the area served by this newspaper. We are not happy about it, neither are the merchants, the men and women who must operate a business and pay taxes in Leeds and Grenville.

School Revolt Grows

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Resistance to Ontario's lengthened high school year gathered momentum Thursday with more student walkouts, petitions and an announcement by Toronto students that they will organize a province-wide protest.

Jailing the students in protesting the 10-day extension to June 13, announced Dec. 11 by Education Minister William Davis, were principals, teachers and at least one school board.

Mr. Davis said his decision was based on declining emphasis on final examinations. The students say it will increase the head-start, already about a month, enjoyed by university students in the race for summer jobs. The teachers are worried about being rushed with yearend paperwork and promotion meetings.

Student walkouts Thursday by 750 students at Niagara Falls, St. Catharines and Sturgeon Falls followed similar protests the day before by about 2,000 students in Toronto, Fenelon Falls, North Bay, Bracebridge, Belleville and Oshawa.

At a meeting Wednesday following the Toronto demonstration, 100 student-leaders said if a "favorable response" is not received from Mr. Davis by Jan. 18, they will organize a massive one-day walkout and march on Queen's Park between Jan. 20 and 24.

Frank McInerney, 18, a meeting organizer, said the group will formulate a province-wide protest. Some Toronto students will visit other major municipalities in the province during the Christmas recess to drum up support.

School trustees in the Metropolitan Toronto borough of Etobicoke voted overwhelmingly Wednesday night to ask Mr. Davis to change his mind.

Petitions against the extension are circulating in high schools in several communities, including Port Hope, Bracebridge and the combined counties of Leeds-Grenville in the Brockville area.

H. J. Mumby, Port Hope composite school principal, said Thursday he had given his permission for the petition, and was worried how his staff will carry out administrative work such as promotion meetings between June 13 and 27.

Ted Dawinski, principal of Sarnia's Central collegiate, said he would be surprised if there is any reaction from students.

"But I disagree with the decision," he said.

P E Jet Airport Chance Improved

superjet traffic now being readied for international airways.

A site without the air or ground congestion of built-up urban centres.

Fast rail and water links not only to major Ontario centres like Toronto or Hamilton, but also to the big urban complexes on the U.S. lakeshore.

Economically, it starts on a sure footing.

Site proposed for the airport is on land already owned by the federal government — about 4,000 acres in Athol and South Marysburgh townships, part of a defence department holding from the days when the area was an artillery-rocket range.

Despite its imaginative dimensions, the plan is "reasonable one, says Mr. Lane.

"When it was first talked about, it looked fantastic", he admitted. "But the more we talked the more sense it seemed to make".

"We feel we have a good logical location for the project", confirmed Reeve George Cunningham of Amelasburg, Liberal candidate in the last general election.

The location alone is a big factor, he added.

However, Mr. Cunningham felt further details on the group's scheme should not be revealed until it had completed its brief. Other areas would be competing for the government's attention in any airport relocating scheme, he said.

Hastings - Prince Edward Liberal Association president Donald Joss said the brief was now in preparation and a rough draft was expected this weekend.

He confirmed that committee plans called for its presentation in early January.

Rewards Enormous

UN Approves Multi-Nation Seabed Study

By STEPHEN SCOTT

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — With a handful of Soviet-bloc countries standing as lonely voices of dissent, a committee of the General Assembly Thursday approved creation of a multi-nation group to study the peaceful exploration and exploitation of the seabed.

The committee, representing rich and poor, inland and seaside countries, Communist and capitalist, will begin a years-long task of studying how to control the exploitation of the uncounted billions worth of natural resources on the seabed.

It must find ways of making these resources available to all mankind.

And it must seek ways of reserving the ocean floor for peaceful purpose, not missile sites.

The problems and the rewards are enormous, especially for a country such as Canada with large coastlines and huge continental shelves stretching miles under comparatively shallow water from her coasts.

The UN started work on this question last year with the creation of a 35-country committee to make recommendations on preliminary steps.

Now the General Assembly's main political committee has approved a resolution creating a permanent 42 member committee with instructions to study ways and means of promoting resources of the seabed in the benefit of mankind as a whole.

Reserving the ocean bed for peaceful purposes was the main point of contention. The Soviets said this should include the continental shelves, over which such countries as Canada claim some jurisdiction.

Canada and others said that "peaceful purposes" is not defined and that they had the right to put on continental shelves defensive devices which could, for instance, detect the approach of hostile vessels. Some small countries said the Soviet Union was seeking the right to spy on them from continental shelves.

After negotiation the portion of the resolution dealing with peaceful uses was left vague, so that the defining of the extent of the seabed reserved for peaceful purposes was put in abeyance.

At the last minute the Soviets expressed more reservations and said they would abstain in the voting.

That left Czechoslovakia, Poland and Bulgaria, co-sponsors of the resolution, in the unhappy position of voting for something that the Soviet Union said it did not like.

The final vote was 96 for, none against and six Communist allies abstaining.

Simonett, Minister of Energy and Resources Management and M.P.P. for Frontenac-Addington, announced that tenders have been called this week for clearing of the right-of-way on Highway No. 41 from 32 miles north of the hamlet of Cloyne, northerly for a distance of 4.62 miles.

Tenders are scheduled to be opened for this contract on Jan. 8, 1969.

Donation Boosts Benevolent Fund

Thanks to the generosity of a Belleville resident, the benevolent fund for the families of two Peterborough Provincial Police officers slain last week near Minden, has been boosted by $100.

Mrs. George Wardle today turned over the $100, cheque to former Provincial Police Inspector A. McDougall, for forwarding, on to Peterborough.

Child-carrying Man Hi-jacks Jet Plane

HAVANA (CP) — The 143 passengers on an Eastern Airlines jetliner hijacked and flown to Cuba Thursday afternoon by an armed Negro cradling a small girl in his arms were expected to return to the United States today.

The eight members of the crew flew the DC-8 back to Miami Thursday night. The hijacker, who said he had nitroglycerin, forced the airliner to divert from its non-stop flight from Philadelphia to Miami. He apologized as he left the plane.

SOCIAL And PERSONAL

AT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris of Wallbridge will be "At Home" to relatives, friends and neighbors on the occasion of their 60th wedding anniversary on Sunday, December 29th from 2 to 8 p.m. No gifts please.

• • •

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Till, 210 Church St., Belleville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Wanda Marie Shangraw to Gordon Freeman May, son of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman May, North Sydney, Nova Scotia.

AT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Vivian, R.R. 6, Belleville, will be "At Home" to their friends and relatives on the occasion of their 60th wedding anniversary, December 29, 1968, at the Neighbors' Aid Hall, 2nd. Thurlow, from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. No gifts please.

Club Activities

(Neighbors Aid)

Later a program was enjoyed with Archie Greatrix as chairman. Everyone joined in the singing of Christmas carols, with Mrs. Don Leeming Jr. at the piano Several selections of accordion music were rendered by Clyde Dawson, and readings were given by Gail Dent, Darlene Chumbley and David Stratton. Cameron Pratt gave an interesting account of the Boy Scout and Leader summer rally he attended.

"Dialogue, entitled, "A slight mistake", with Mrs. A. Mitchell and her two daughters, Mrs. J. Brownell and Mrs. Card were most entertaining. Mr. Carver, the new minister, and Mrs. Douglas Atkins were also a part of the cast, and all put on a fine performance.

Santa, in the person of Mr. J. Chumbley, arrived to distribute gifts, concluding an enjoyable evening.

Memorial Service for UN Worker

TORONTO (CP) — A memorial service will be held today for Muriel W. Jackson, who died Tuesday at Toronto General Hospital.

Miss Jacobson was the representative in Canada for the United Nations high commissioner for refugees, and worked with the federal government and voluntary organizations aiding refugees in Canada.

She also worked with the Canadian Association for Adult Education and was national director of the Canadian committee for world refugee year.

The Experts Say

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

If your Christmas plans include a first pair of skates for your youngster, a skating expert says that regardless of the sex of the child, figure skates are usualy more suitable for a beginner than hockey skates.

The boots should be built with good ankle support, and figure skate blades are lower and a fraction wider, which makes balance easier to achieve. Once the child has gained some skill, the change-over to hockey skates presents little problem, says Denes Pataky.

Mr. Pataky teaches skating for the Metro Toronto recreation department. He was an Olympic and national figure skating champion in his native Hungary.

He says children can start to learn to skate when they are three years old.

"That is the ideal age They have started to think, and can follow what you tell them. And they learn easily because they are not afraid.

"You should start right away with proper skates, the best you can afford. I recommend they be bought a maximum of one size bigger than regular shoes They should last a year then.

"You should have no more than one xtra sock to fill them up, and you really should wear just one stocking."

Mr. Pataky says each lesson for small children should be only 15 minutes long because they can't concentrate any longer than that. They shouldn't be expected to practice any longer than an hour. Even that long will probably wear them out.

"You should start the session at about half an hour and work up."

He says you should not try to teach a child to skate by getting behind him and holding him up by the waist or hands.

Have the child stand straight on his skates with his feet together, his arms down at his sides and slightly out from his body for balance. You face him, holding his hands, and encourage him to walk while you skate backwards.

"When he starts to walk, try to let go of him. You can feel it. A child will struggle to hang on until he's ready, but in two minutes the little ones will try to go. They may fall, but they will have established the confidence to go."

At first, just keep him walking, bending the knees slightly with each step. Then teach him how to stop. Then you begin to teach him how to push to glide and get speed.

"Start with feet together, knees bent, then slide one foot. At first try short little pushes with each foot, then longer as he gets confidence. When my children know how to do that, then I teach them right away to skate backward."

Mr. Pataky says he uses music to help teach backward skating, much to the delight of his littlest clients.

"That's exactly how you go. You stand on two feet with lightly bent knees, you way your bottom, and away you go. The first move is sometimes hard but once they start they're OK. Then they learn how to stop backward, and they have the basics."

Mr. Pataky says children obviously need to be dressed warmly enough to be comfortable, but do not need 15 sweaters for skating, especially not in a rink.

"For the little ones slacks and ginger suit will protect them are a good idea—because they fall a lot."

Church Groups

(Victoria Willing Workers)

Mrs. Alta Brown was hostess for the Christmas meeting of the Victoria Willing Work group at her home with a good attendance.

President Mrs. Roy Wetherall called the meeting to order and minutes were approved as read. Mrs. Wood presented the report of the nominating committee which was accepted. While Gifts were handed in to help make some needy children's Christmas happier.

Christmas readings were given by Mrs. Wetherall, and an interesting Christmas contest was enjoyed. Mrs. Brown and committee served lunch which included a lovely Christmas cake.

Thanks were extended to Brown for her hospitality. The January meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. H. Townsend.

ACW MEETINGS
(St. Thomas A.C.W.)

The Christmas meeting of the St. Thomas A.C.W. was held at the home of Mrs. Roy Finch, of Allan's Mills with 12 members present.

The president opened the meeting after which Mrs. Lindsay Tanner read the Scripture lesson. Mrs. Colden read the minutes of the last meeting, which were approved. Mrs. Preston welcomed all and expressed thanks and appreciation to the hostess. Mrs. Saunders extended an invitation to hold the annual meeting at the rectory in January.

A program followed in which each member contributing a Christmas reading. The meeting closed after which Mrs. Finch served delicious refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. Earle MacDonald are pictured following their recent marriage in St. Matthias Church, Vancouver, British Columbia. The bride is the former Shirley Hykaway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hykaway of Vancouver, while the bridegroom is the son of Dr. Earle M. MacDonald and Mrs. MacDonald of Belleville.

ST. ANDREW'S W.A.

The usual devotional period was followed by a Japanese play, "Drum, Hammer and Crook." Mrs. Borden Bell presided over the meeting.

ST. ANDREW'S SUNDAY SCHOOL

On Sunday, Dec. 15, St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, held a white gift Sunday and following a Christmas service, a pageant "the story of Christmas" was put on by the Sunday School.

Mrs. Eldon Killian was organist for the pageant, and Mrs. J. Beattie rendered a solo. Reverend D. Miller and Mrs. Miller assisted greatly in the arrangements.

Mary Moore Suggests 1968 Christmas Dinner Menu

By MARY MOORE

POTATOES BERNEY
(18 Almond-Coated rolls; must be made in advance)

4 very large potatoes (or enough to measure 3 cups when cooked and mashed before additions
1-3 cup milk
1 egg
2 tbsps. butter
½ tsp. salt
Flour
1 egg (second)
2 tbsps. water
2 cups shredded and finely chopped almonds or sesame seeds or 1 cup each almonds and breadcrumbs
3 tbsps. butter (second amount)

Boil potatoes in salted water until soft. Drain and mash until very smooth. Add milk, 1 egg, 2 tbsps. butter and salt and beat until smooth. (NOTE At this stage you have super mashed potatoes.)

Spread on shallow pan or plate and chill. With buttered palms shape into rolls or balls or ellipses. Have ready in 3 shallow bowls, flour, second egg beaten with water, almonds (or sesame seeds or almonds and crumbs). Roll potato shapes in flour then in egg then in almonds. Chill on plate to set and dry. One-half hour before mealtime melt the 3 tbsps. butter in shallow pan, carefully add chilled potato rolls and roll each over in the butter to coat. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 25 to 30 min. or until crusty. These are sensationally good.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

CARROTS AND GREEN ONIONS WITH HERB SAUCE
(Serves 6)

6 long 1¼" diameter carrots
12 young green onions
4 tbsps. butter
4 tbsps. flour
½ tsp. MSG (Accent)
¼ tsp. curry powder
½ tsp. celery salt
½ tsp. chopped parsley (or bottled flakes)
1 cup carrot water
1 cup milk or half and half milk and cream
Scrub and cut carrots into 5 x ¼" strips — very narrow and fine and cook in 1½ cups boiling, salted water, until barely tender. Wash and trim onions and cut off tops leaving onions 5" long. Add to carrots four minutes before carrots are done. Melt butter and blend in flour, MSG curry powder, celery salt and parsley. Stir in carrot water and milk until thick. Very carefully lift onions from top of carrots and set aside. Arrange carrots parallel and crosswise in heated serving dish. Carefully arrange onions on top, parallel to carrots; pour hot sauce over. Sprinkle with a little chopped parsley. Pretty and good.

See Monday, December 23 for stuffing and roasting turkey and making giblet gravy.

Ann Landers

Substitute Leader Takes Advantage

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell me if I am being mad for nothing. I am a Girl Scout and I love it, or maybe I should be honest and say I loved it before we got this weird substitute for a Scout leader. Our regular leader had to have an operation so her assistant is taking over.

The assistant has decided that too many girls got married these days without knowing the first thing about housekeeping. For the last three meetings she has had the whole troop to her house, cleaning it from top to bottom.

I didn't join Scouts to scrub floors and wash walls. I can do that at home. Today Mrs. D. announced that next week we are going to learn how to line cupboards and shelves with oilcloth and make old pots and pans look like new by using elbow grease. I already know how, and it's hard work.

Four girls plus myself are so mad we may quit Scouts until our old leader comes back. What do you think about this? — WEARY BONES.

DEAR BONES: I think Mrs. D. is going to have a very clean house and some very shiny pots. Have you and the other girls told her you believe she is taking advantage of the situation? If not, you should.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 15-year-old girl who has grown up reading your column. I have written to you at least five times and you've always given me good advice.

Yesterday, my mother found a letter addressed to you. (The letter was in my purse which should give you an idea of what goes on around our house.) Mom put a fake, hurt look on her face and asked, "Why do you have to write to Ann Landers, dear? Why can't you talk to me about things that bother you?"

I lied and told her I was better at writing than talking. But here are the real reasons I can't talk to her. I hope she and other mothers whose teen-ager daughters don't talk to them see this in the paper. Several of my friends have the same complaint.

1) My mother can't keep her tongue still. I've heard her tell her bridge club things that should have been kept in the family.

2) The times I tried to talk to Mom she put me down and made me feel as if my problems were childish and unimportant.

3) My mother keeps comparing me to herself when she was my age. She doesn't realize that these are not the olden days. I am living in a different era than when she grew up.

Thanks for your help, Ann. — I'M GLAD THERE'S YOU.

DEAR GLAD: That makes two of us. Thanks for writing.

Successful Living

Habit of Rocking in Bed Is Overcome

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I fell I just had to share my experience with "Embarrassed". From childhood until I was 18 years old, I lay on my side and couldn't sleep without rocking a while first. No one knew it but my mother and she wisely never interfered.

When I was about 18, she did mention that it was going to be hard to explain the habit when I did get married, and how was a husband going to get a good night's sleep with me rolling every night?

I thought this over and I talked myself and forced myself to lie still and fall asleep. Gradually I only rolled about every other night. Finally not at all. It took two years to stop. At 22 I married and have been for eight years. It was worth the trouble and I have never had the urge to roll again. — Rid of Roll.

Dear Rid: It seems the important thing is to find a healthy way to shake tensions frustrations, surplus energy. Some people walk their way out of trouble; some people marry their way out of it.

Embarrassed will be glad to hear of your experience.

* * *

Dear Doris: I wonder if you can tell me why, oh why, I can't have friends? If I have one or so, they don't last long. I am not high and mighty. I do not drink and run around to parties, or run around with other men. I like to stay home. I like to cook and I give like cooking to my friend (who I thought was my friend). Now she doesn't come over or phone. It is not only one friend; that's the way they all are.

I grow a big garden and I give them vegetables all summer. Oh, yes, they come and get them o.k.! What do you think is wrong? — Nobody Loves Me.

Dear Nobody: My crystal ball won't tell me what's wrong, from this distance. To see yourself as others see you is nearly impossible, but would you like to have a try at it?

Consider:

(1) Whether you hold people too long in pointless conversation.

(2) Whether you criticize others or pass on gossip.

(3) How about appearance, cleanliness, breath? One does not smell oneself, even when at the point of asphyxiating the other fellow.

(4) Are you too anxious about the impression you are making to show warm interest in another's concerns?

Doubtless your acquaintances enjoy your vegetables but do you "know your onions" when it comes to the best gift

* * *

Dear Doris: Please send me the names of books for my boy-shy daughter to read. She has girl friends but won't join mixed groups or go to the school dances.

She seems embarrassed when I talk to her. I don't want to give her information she isn't ready for. — Teen's Mother.

Dear Mother: I have marked two books on the list I am sending which many parents — and their young people — swear by. Doubtless she would read with much less embarrassment than she would talk about those troublesome, exciting dilemma — producing creatures: boys!

Read the books yourself and tell her about some of your own youthful blunders. This might break the ice.

* * *

(Doris can help you with that puzzling decision. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

THE PICK OF Punch

Health Minister Steps up War on Cigarettes

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister John Munro stepped up the war on cigarette smoking Thursday with a forceful plea that a Commons committee recommend strong legislative action, ranging up to an outright ban on cigarette advertising.

Mr. Munro, still struggling himself to kick the cigarette habit, gave backing to forcing manufacturers to limit tar and nicotine content of cigarettes and to counter advertising with warnings on packages and in communications media that cigarette smokers risk heart, artery, lung cancer and other respiratory diseases.

While tobacco industry observers looked on, Mr. Munro told the Commons health committee the government could have legislation into Parliament in 1969 if the committee produces the "strong" recommendations needed.

The need was sketched in a bluntly worded, 20-page brief from the health department which said it is time to move beyond its $200,000-a-year anti-smoking education campaign.

It called cigarette smoking a leading, if not the leading, cause of preventable disease in countries like Canada.

If toothpaste or breakfast cereal made the same contribution to fatal illness, said Mr. Munro, the public "would force its complete removal from the marketplace."

But prohibition as an alternative was ruled out by the department, partly because of the poor experience with prohibition of alcohol and partly for law enforcement reasons.

The department produced a host of statistics on the health hazard. So did Mr. Munro.

Every cigarette smoked means eight minutes off your life, he said. For a 22-year-old smoker of half a package a day that cuts life expectancy by 5 years.

In summary, the indictment of cigarette smoking by Mr. Munro and the department:

—It is the leading cause of lung cancer, the nation's biggest cancer killer, and cigarette smokers are more prone to other forms of cancer as well.

—It is an important factor in heart disease, the nation's greatest killer. Men cigarette smokers run a 70-per-cent greater risk of fatal heart attack than non-smokers.

Mr. Munro acknowledged that the tobacco industry provides jobs, spurs the economy through consumer spending and provides substantial tax revenue to the government.

But he balanced against this the lost productivity through illness, hospital and medical expenses, and loss of talent through early deaths.

"We can never lose sight of the fact that the issue is the that cuts life expectancy by five the lives, of countless Canadians."

The industry Goliath spending millions of dollars annually on advertising was a powerful opponent to the department's David with a $200,000 anti-smoking campaign. David was winning a few rounds but "we feel we should shorten the odds."

In labelling, he said, he would like to see a warning on every package that is "strong and crystal clear."

As the committee got under way, Dr. Gaston Isabelle (L—Hull), committee chairman, said sponsors of several private members bills to control cigarette ads would testify. So would representatives of the publicly-owned CBC and other communications media, cancer research experts and the tobacco industry.

He agreed to have the steering committee consider televising hearings.

Norman A. Dann, a representative of Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada Ltd., who sat through the hearing said the company wants to study the presentation before commenting.

Missing Nurses Hunted

STE. ADELE, Que. (CP) — Police were investigating the possibility today that two nursing students missing from a Laurentian retreat since Saturday might have fallen through ice in a nearby lake or might have met with foul play.

Police were investigating the possibility that the girls might have fallen through thin ice on Lac Bellevue near the religious retreat they were attending near this resort community 50 miles north of Montreal.

Catherine O'Keefe, 21, of Montreal, and Catherine Murphy, 20, of Ottawa, left the hermitage for a walk Saturday afternoon and have not been seen since.

Police said the possibility of foul play arose after a farmer who lives across the lake from the retreat reported seeing the girls beside a small black car at about the time they were reported missing.

The farmer told police the car was strange to the area. Its sole occupant, he said, was a man.

The grand exodus from the Ontario School for the Deaf took place yesterday as the institute's 390 pupils left for Christmas holidays at home. They will return Jan. 6 for the beginning of a new term. Staff members saw the pupils off and in many cases accompanied them as they pulled away in buses for the yuletide vacation.

OSD Students Travel Home for Christmas Vacation

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Roy Wesley is 11 years old. And today, he's embarked on his first real Christmas holiday.

The young Cree Indian yesterday was among 390 students who departed the Ontario School for the Deaf yesterday for the annual three-week yuletide vacation.

Most of his schoolmates already are home.

Roy today was still enroute — heading by railroad for the wintry isolation of Moose Factory in Northern Ontario.

It's not quite home, but the Oblate mission that's readying to welcome him is as close as he can come this time of year to spending Christmas with his family, say school officials.

Contact with outside communities is maintained by aircraft which must land a mile downriver from the settlement. The villagers must then canoe to the plane.

It was in this wilderness setting that the boy apparently first came to the attention of the Oblates. Realizing he was deaf, they placed his case before federal Indian affairs officials.

The net result was that Roy was enrolled for training at the OSD and arrived in September.

It was his first break with the traditional village life of his people and enroute he was introduced to the complex sophistication of modern urban living.

Nonetheless he adjusted quickly, say OSD authorities, and easily settled into school life.

Roy is scheduled to return Jan. 6 when the school year enters a new term.

He was among the last to leave yesterday — aboard a bus carrying close to 45 fellow students of various ages bound for Northern Ontario hometowns.

Petitions to Be Filed

Quinte Students Hope for Support from Parents in Protest

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

A group of Belleville students hopes to enlist parental support in its objection to a lengthened school year for secondary school students.

Quinte Secondary School students Henry Kafka and Stephen Glover are circulating a petition in the school protesting the late school closing this year. They have several hundred signatures already.

They are encouraging students to ask their parents to join in signing the petition to add strength to the students' cause.

"These students, both Student Parliament representatives, are sound student leaders who are approaching the matter through proper channels," said Quinte principal John Hayman this morning.

He added that the petition would be sent to education minister William Davis.

Students object to the school year extension on the grounds it will handicap them in the job market. They fear university students, available in the spring, will skim off the cream of the already scarce employment opportunities.

On the other hand, principals and teachers have an objection of their own to the longer school year.

"The extension is experimental, and we will find out how well it works next June," said Centennial's principal J. W. Musgrove.

"However, it will tend to hurry evaluation of students at the end of the year, and curtail the time available for promotion meetings. Hasty evaluation of students is invalid and doesn't give them much consideration."

Mr. Musgrove is a vice-chairman of the Ontario Secondary School Headmasters' Council, which saw the education minister in Toronto Wednesday.

"I agree with the Quinte people that parents should be involved," said Centre Hastings Secondary School principal C. M. Griffith.

About 150 of the Madoc school's students staged a noon-hour walkout yesterday to protest the extension.

This morning Mr. Griffith met with the student council executive to discuss student conduct in regard to objections to the government move.

"The students decided to hold an open assembly Jan 10 with free discussion of proposals for the form their protest should take," Mr. Griffith reported.

"I suggested the students talk it over with their parents. They might find their parents support the minister's directive on a lengthened school year," Mr. Griffith added.

"The parents are the people who press school boards for a longer year and greater use of the schools. The boards in turn press the minister, who has no choice but to act. Let the issue go back to the people who indirectly raised it," the principal concluded.

Principals of BCI, Moira and Centennial schools had no direct knowledge of petitions circulating among their students.

First Press Run

Much hustle and bustle was exerted by the pupils of Parkdale public school publishing their own newspaper, the Mini-Intel, for the first time yesterday. They were in a happy mood as they watched the results of much planning and effort become a reality.

Students Produce Paper

The first half of the name of the Parkdale public school's newspaper, the Mini-Intel in no way refers to the amount of enthusiasm the project has generated among the 300 pupils involved.

School principal Bernard Wright said the idea was selected from a number put forth when the staff was deciding upon an extra-curricular activity for the whole enrolment.

As a co-operative effort it has no equal to anything tried in other years he said.

The name for the school's monthly publication, Mini-Intel, was suggested by grade six pupil Gary Riddell who lives at 11 Maple Drive.

Two of his teachers employ The Intelligencer as aids with instructions in social studies, spelling and composition.

The first press run of the Mini-Intel went off smoothly yesterday. The end result was a 20-page paper, including a two color front cover designed by pupil Mark Porter.

The principal said while there were other school papers being published in the city he believed Parkdale school's was the first drawing on the abilities and combined effort of all six grades.

The project is financed by the school's Home and School Association.

The Name Finder

The pupil responsible for naming the Parkdale public school's monthly publication, Mini-Intel, joined in to help with the first press run yesterday. His classmate, Debbie Tryon, offered her assistance as the copies were assembled for distribution. In the contest open to all pupils attending classes at the school, Gary Riddell's suggestion was judged the winner.

Jackson Claims Retirement 'Definite' After '69 Season

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders will have to go to the quarterback market before 1970.

Russ Jackson, Riders 11-year veteran quarterback, said Thursday he'll play out the 1969 season but it will be his last.

"And that's it, definitely," said the McMaster University graduate who has become one of this country's outstanding athletes.

There had been speculation Jackson would not play another season after he led Riders to a Grey Cup victory over Calgary Nov. 30.

A vice-principal at one of the city's largest high schools, Jackson said in an interview he will play again in 1969 "basically because I want to play."

He shared the quarterback slot with Ron Lancaster when Ottawa won the Grey Cup in 1968.

Lancaster later went to Saskatchewan and Jackson has handled almost all the quarterbacking chores for the Eastern Football Conference Riders since.

Jackson said he told team officials he will play out his two-year contract next year and "then it will be just a complete retirement."

Terms of his contract have never been released but his pay is believed to exceed $30,000 a season.

A club official said the contract is phrased in such a way that Jackson "did not have to play again next year."

The 190-pound quarterback completed 171 out of 305 passes this season for 3,187 yards and 25 touchdowns. He had 16 passes intercepted.

In addition to passing, Jackson is a good running quarterback, favoring the roll-out option. He gained 534 yards on 54 running attempts this year for a 9.9-yard average.

He won both the top player and top Canadian awards in 1963 and 1966. He was chosen as the eastern conference all-star quarterback in 1962, 1963, 1966 and 1968.

Bruins Win To Narrow Habs' Edge

The Intelligencer Sports
BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 20, 1968

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins are on a winning streak that could carry them into first place in the Eastern Division of the National Hockey League.

The Bruins won their third consecutive game and extended their unbeaten streak to four Thursday night by downing Los Angeles Kings 6-4.

The victory, watched by 13,615 Boston fans, moved the Bruins to within one point of the first-place Canadiens. Top spot in the division may change hands Saturday night when the Canadiens welcome the Bruins to Montreal.

In other games Thursday night, Chicago Black Hawks blanked Detroit Red Wings 2-0 and Philadelphia Flyers and Minnesota North Stars tied 5-5.

Ed Westfall's goal at 14:06 of the final period gave the Bruins their victory. The goal, his eighth of the season, came when Westfall tipped Wayne Cashman's shot past Los Angeles goaltender Gerry Desjardins to give Boston a 5-4 lead.

Los Angeles goals came from Howie Hughes, Howie Menard, Ed Joyal and Bill White.

Boston announced before the game that right winger Tom Webster of Oklahoma City, the leading scorer in the Central Hockey League, has been recalled. He will replace the injured Eddie Shack and Tom Williams.

A graduate of Niagara Falls Flyers on the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, Webster, 20, had 22 goals in 27 games in the CHL.

The Black Hawks stretched their winning streak to three games and Denis DeJordy gained his first shutout of the season at the expense of Detroit.

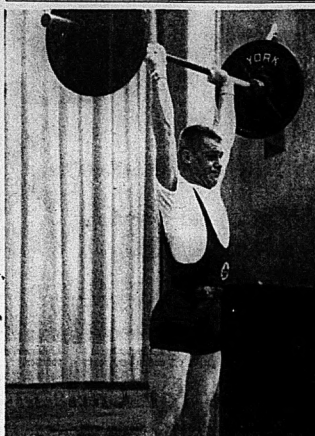
Recalled from Dallas of the CHL Monday, DeJordy allowed only one goal Wednesday night when the Black Hawks defeated New York Rangers. Until that win, the Black Hawks had allowed at least three goals a game for nine consecutive games.

The 30-year-old DeJordy, Chicago's regular goaltender last season, kicked out 33 saves, but most of them were routine.

Mohns scored his 11th goal of the season at 0:28 of the final period, and Schmautz picked up his fifth at 10:51.



Bobby Hull of Chicago, the NHL's leading scorer with 21 goals and 26 assists, was held without a point. He and Detroit defenceman Ron Harris, however, created some excitment with a second-period fight. Both received majors for the brawl, won by Hull.

A goal by Andre Lacroix with 33 seconds to play gave Philadelphia its tie before 8,394 Flyer fans.

Lacroix scored on a pass from Gendron after the Flyers had removed goaltender Bernie Parent in favor of an extra attacker.

Elsewhere, Montreal Canadiens announced that injured goaltender Rogatien Vachon returned to practice Thursday and may be able to play within a week.

NHL Stars Like Offer

TORONTO (CP) — There will be no games between Russia and the National Hockey League without the approval of the NHL Players' Association, the executive director of the association said Thursday.

Lawyer Alan Eagleson of Toronto said, however, that members of the association have endorsed unanimously his idea that an NHL all-star team play in a tournament in Sweden late next summer.

"A promoter in Stockholm made the overture to us," Eagleson said in an interview. "His idea was a four-team tournament with Sweden, Czechoslovakia, Russia and the NHL. I'll be conferring with him again at the world tournament in Stockholm in March."

He said proceeds from the tournament will go into the players' pension fund and television rights might be worth about $500,000.

The Swedish promoter wanted the NHL team to include such stars as Gordie Howe, Bobby Orr, Stan Mikita and Bobby Hull, Eagleson said.

There have been speculation that the NHL will meet the Russians soon, but Eagleson said the players have been overlooked in most discussions.

Nancy Confesses

Olympic Winner Gets Wrong Medal

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Nancy Greene of Rossland, B.C., stood on the podium before 12,000 cheering fans at the Stade de Glace in Grenoble, France, last February and bowed her head to receive a gold medal for winning the gruelling giant slalom against the best skiers in the world.

Thursday, when she was named Canada's Outstanding Woman Athlete of 1968, partly on the basis of that victory, she confessed:

"I got the wrong medal."

Nancy, who went on to win the World Cup of skiing before giving up the slopes for the world of advertising, writing and broadcasting, explained: "I knew at the time it was the wrong medal.

"It said 'slalom' on it and I pointed it out to the French Olympic officials. They said: 'No, both the slalom and giant slalom medals are engraved that way.'

"I was disappointed, because the slalom is not the giant slalom, but I didn't argue.

"Then I got a letter saying they had made a mistake and if I would send back the medal, they'd make sure I got the right one. I wrote back that I would send back the medal when they sent me the one I was supposed to have."

Nancy and the French Olympic Committee couldn't reach agreement on that basis, so they compromised.

"They said they would send my medal to the summer Olympics in Mexico and we could make the exchange there."

"Each time I met the man from France either he didn't have the medal with him or I didn't. He wasn't going to leave it at my hotel and I wasn't going to leave it at his hotel."

Filion Still Shy Pair

TORONTO (CP) — Herve Filion, world champion harness racing driver, failed again Thursday to drive a winner at Greenwood Raceway. After three nights and 10 races at Greenwood, Filion is still looking for two victories to reach a 1968 milestone of 400 wins.

Filion, of Angers, Que., finished last with Atahol in the second and Tryout N. in the eighth. He came fifth with Young Byrd in the ninth. He will try again tonight with favored Dark Flash in the $4,000 Invitational Trot.

Meanwhile, 31-year-old (Cowboy) Ross Curran of Smiths Falls, Ont., who operates a public stable, won two of three races Thursday to raise his season's earnings past $100,000 for the third consecutive year.

Victories with Chasmar Patrick in the seventh race and Galen's Boy in the eighth, Curran collected his 12th win of the current Greenwood meet for the leading winning percentage of .460.

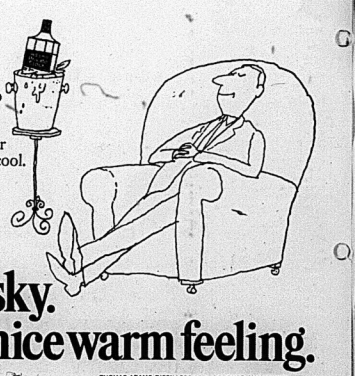
Sports On All Fronts



NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Three top assistant coaches of New Orleans Saints of the National Football League resigned Thursday. Jack Faulkner, chief defensive coach, announced the action, saying he was speaking for himself, chief offensive coach George Dickson and Bob Shaw, who coached pass receivers. It was learned from reliable sources that their decision to quit stemmed, primarily from owner John W. Mecom Jr.'s failure to give a vote of confidence to the entire coaching staff.

HAMILTON (CP) — General manager Ralph Sazio of Hamilton Tiger-Cats denied Thursday that the Eastern Football Conference team has discussed trading defensive tackle Angelo Mosca. Sazio admitted he has heard rumors that Mosca would be traded to Calgary Stampeders of the Western Conference. "I can see why a rumor like that could start," said Sazio, "First, I think Don Luzzi was talking about retirement and Calgary would naturally like to get someone big and experienced. And last year there was some talk of a Luzzi-Mosca trade.

TORONTO (CP) — Manager-coach Punch Imlach of Toronto Maple Leafs said Thursday he is not concerned that several former Maple Leafs are enjoying fine seasons with other National Hockey League teams. Jim Pappin of Chicago Black Hawks has been the most successful former Toronto player, with 19 goals this season. Bob Nevin of New York Rangers has 18 and Frank Mahovlich of Detroit Red Wings 14. Imlach praised Pappin, who went to Chicago in an off-season trade for defencemen Pierre Pilote. "I hope he scores 150 goals just as long as I make the playoffs."

Columnist Exposes Great Myth -- Lacrosse Not National Game After All

TORONTO (CP) — Political columnist Douglas Fisher claims that lacrosse became known as Canada's national game through the efforts of a Montreal dentist.

Fisher voiced his belief in a letter to sports columnist Dick Beddoes of The Globe and Mail, who wrote recently that lacrosse was adopted as the national game during a Confederation conference of 1867.

Beddoes publishes portions of Fisher's letter, in which the Ottawa-based Toronto Telegram columnist said his research into the subject has shown "no political gathering with legislative or declatory powers ever said anything about lacrosse in this period."

"My explanation of the origin of the myth about lacrosse being our national game by act of Parliament leads to Dr. George Beers. He was a Montreal dentist who spent his youth in Kingston and rationalized the form of lacrosse played at Caughnawaga into a formal game with rules and constitution.

"Beers was a good propagandist. His book and articles were well done; and he had a great mission for lacrosse. In addition; he was the first sports columnist (Gazette, 1866-67) that I have found in Canada.

"Beers never missed a chance to push the game. He knew Sir John A. Macdonald well, and I'm sure he spoke to him about lacrosse. The first national lacrosse association was formed at Kingston in the fall of 1867 under Beer's leadership. The spread of the game was phenomenal.

"I can't think anyone will prove that anyone other than George Beers proclaimed lacrosse as Canada's national game in the 1860s."

Junior Trojans Tie for Top

Moira juniors proved their Trojan spirit last night when they rallied in the fourth quarter to defeat defending Central Ontario champion BCI 79-59, and move into a first place tie with Quinte Juniors, the only other team with a record of three victories and no losses.

BCI's defending Bay of Quinte champion senior squad remained undefeated, winning their second game of the season, by a score of 56-47. Moira had the edge on the night though as the Trojan bantams defeated BCI 48-33.

BCI juniors, who have won one game and lost one, led all the way until early in the fourth quarter when they suffered from foul trouble and the Trojans took advantage of it to outscore the Collegians 24-11 and salt away the victory.

Martin Warmold with 18 points led Moira's well-balanced attack. Dave Thompson added 16, Paul Hayes 15 and Jim Wiggins 13.

Forward Dave Wright was the big gun for the Collegians as he hit for 24 points. Forward Brent Gallupe added 12 points and guard Mike Scarlett eight.

BCI juniors are now tied for third place with Centennial, while Picton, Trenton and Napanee have yet to win a game.

BCI and Moira seniors each made 38 points from the floor, but BCI's foul-shooting accuracy made the difference in their nine point victory.

Brian Harder hooped 18 points to lead the senior Collegians, while Bill Mindenhall netted 12, and Ken Richardson and Bob Wright added ten points each.

Moira's Bob Rolston was the game's high scorer with 20 points. Harry Smith netted 11 for Moira, while Ed Cox and Dave Grant each added seven points.

The victory over Moira boosted BCI seniors into second place in the seven team league, behind Picton seniors, who have won three games and lost none.

Quinte is in third place with two wins and a loss, while Moira is fourth with one win and two losses. Napanee, Trenton and Centennial have yet to win.

Late Surge Fatal

CHICAGO (AP) — Clem Haskins sank a 30-foot jump shot and added two free throws in the final eight seconds Thursday night to lead Chicago Bulls to a 113-111 National Basketball Association victory over Milwaukee Bucks. The triumph was the third for the Bulls over the expansion Bucks.

Milwaukee's Len Chappell, who led all scorers with 23 points, kept Milwaukee in front until the six-minute mark of the final period when the Bulls took the lead for the first time.

Petes' Forward Keeps Production Pace

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The scoring prowess of Rick MacLeish may not have changed much from last season in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, but something has happened to Peterborough Petes.

MacLeish, Peterborough's leading scorer last year when the club finished eighth in the 10-team league, collected his 22nd goal Thursday night and added four assists to lead the Petes to a 5-1 win over Niagara Falls Flyers.

In the only other game Thursday, Hamilton Red Wings got three goals from Ron Climie for the third time this season to dump Toronto Marlboros 5-2.

MacLeish, a 19y-ear-old left winger, seems a sure bet to top his point output of last season, 24 goals and 25 assists.

Thursday night, he set up Jim Jones, Tony Featherstone, Dale Power and Ron Plumb as Peterborough scored four third-period goals to increase their lead over the third-place Flyers to six points.

Phil Roberto had given Niagara Falls a 1-0 lead in the second period.

Gilmour had one goal and two assists while Harvey added a pair of assists. Tom Trevelyan scored the other Hamilton goal.

Gord Davies and Doug Acomb scored for Toronto, in a fifth-place tie with Montreal Junior Canadiens. Each club has 24 points, three less than Hamilton.

It was Acomb's 20th goal of the season and the Toronto captain has been averaging a goal-a-game.

Shooting for Playoffs

Mo-Hawks Face Top Guns

The Belleville Mo-Hawks are shooting for the playoffs a nd this weekend they get a chance to knock off the two top guns in the eight team OHA Senior "A" hockey league.

Tonight at the Belleville Arena the Mo-Hawks play host to the second place Galt Hornets, while Sunday the locals travel to Barrie to take on the league-leading Flyers.

Belleville is currently in seventh place with 12 points, but they only trail Kingston by four points in the race for the sixth and last playoff spot.

The Mo-Hawks 5-4 ro a d victory over cellar-dwelling Woodstock last Sunday snapped a six game losing streak for the locals and coach Davey Jones said "Galt is always trouble, but we can beat them if we have the same attitude that we did Sunday in Woodstock."

Jones said that he would likely play Jack Wilton, Andy Teeple and Al Ferguson together on one line while George Godson would centre for Ron Riley and Wayne McConnell on a second line.

Jones is undecided about his third line, but he s a id that Wayne "Weiner" Brown and centre Bob Taylor would both dress tonight after missing last Sunday's game in Woodstock.

The trio responded with two of Belleville's five goals in that game and Jones will p l a y them together again tonight.

Jones was optimistic about the game in Barrie Sunday and said "If we win Friday night, then we'll have a real good chance against Barrie on Sunday."

Stinsons on Move

Stars Retain Winning Ways

Stinson's Construction defeated Belvedere Hotel 4-3 last night to climb into sole possession of second place in the four team Quinte Hockey League while league leading Aluminum Stars bombed Central Taxi 9-3 to maintain their four point lead over the Quinte pack in the last league action until after the holiday season.

Rick Denard paced the Stinson attack with a pair of goals with Larry Soule and Dennis Ray each addinr a single goal.

Aluminum Stars had a point feast last night as Ron Pointer picked up two goals and three assists, Bill Rushlow and Ron Post a pair of goals each, Paul Zakos and Ron Urch a goal and two assists each, and Jim Muir a single goal.

Ron Morgan fired two goals for Central Taxi and Albert Lentini added another as the Taximen fell into a third place tie with Belvedere Hotel.

Central jumped into an early 2-0 lead but faltered in the game's second half before a fast-skating Star onslaught.

Sunday School

From Carol to Hallelujah

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

This week in churches and concert halls all over the world, people will sit in rapt attention as they listen once again to the inspired music of Handel's "Messiah." This is beyond question the greatest oratorio ever written. Only the highest kind of inspiration could have enabled Handel to write it at all — much less in 24 days. No wonder that, when he had finished composing it, Handel remarked to his physician, "I think God has visited me."

When Handel's "Messiah" was first presented in London March 23, 1743, King George II was so moved by its majestic "Hallelujah Chorus," he rose to his feet during its singing. Seeing their monarch stand, the people stood, too, and thereby started a custom that is usually followed to this day.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for December 22: "A Hallelujah Chorus." I John 1:1-4; Revelation 15: 3b, 4; 11:15b.

It may seem like a far cry from the Child of Bethlehem to the "King of kings" of the Hallelujah Chorus, but that is the leap of faith the New Testament asks its readers to take. After all, we do not extol Abraham Lincoln just because he was born in a log cabin, but because he lived in the White House. The log cabin becomes important because of Lincoln's later life. And Jesus' birth is important because of the life He lived, and because of what He means to millions of followers today.

What Handel did in his oratorio, John, the author of the 4th Gospel did in his prologues. (John 1:1-18; I John 1:1-4) Matthew and Luke told of Jesus' birth. John set out to interpret the spiritual meaning of Jesus' coming into the world.

The story of Jesus is really told in two parts. In the first three Gospels, Jesus is pictured as the Man of Galilee. He was a man among men. He worked. He taught. He healed. He hungered. He challenged men to a radical obedience to God's will, and He died on a cross. But His death issued in a resurrection. And so the rest of the New Testament presents Him as the risen and glorified Christ. Even though John writes of Jesus' ministry, it is quite evident he is extolling Him as the Lord of all of life.

The picture of Jesus as the exalted One is brought to its highest expression in the book of Revelation, the last book of the Bible. Here Jesus is no longer the humble Man of Galilee but is the "King of kings" and "Lord of Lords." He is no longer a prisoner standing before Pilate. He is now the Judge of all the earth. He speaks with the "voice of a trumpet." His eyes are "like a flame of fire." (Revelation 1:10, 14) His face is "like the sun shining in full strength." (Revelation 1:16 RSV) His martyred followers sing before Him a mighty Hallelujah Chorus. (Revelation 15:3) The kingdoms of this world must one day become His kingdom where men can truly live in peace and good will. (Revelation 11:15)

The story of Jesus as the New Testament presents it is not the story of a man who became God, but of a God who became man. What was in God's heart from the beginning became visible and audible in the life and ministry of Jesus. (I John 1:1) Men saw God's nature revealed in Jesus' grace and truth." (John 1:14) In touching Jesus, His followers believed they were touching the very garments of God. (John 1:1)

All this sounds strange to modern ears. Men today are too busy trying to exalt themselves to think much about a God who humbled Himself. They are more familiar with a world where men act as if they were God than with God who once acted as a man.

So much in life today comes in to veil our eyes from the judgments and mercy of God. We are like tourists who have come to see a mountain only to have the mountain blanketed from our view by a fog. We cannot see the mountain. We can only take the word of the guide that it is there because he has seen it.

So the New Testament says to the modern world, "God is real." You may not be able to see Him. But we know He is there, because people once saw Him. They saw Him in One who was obedient to God's will "unto death." (Philippians 2:8) Therefore the name of that One is exalted above every name in the hearts of millions at this Christmas time.

Toronto Project Planned

TORONTO (CP) — A massive redevelopment project to create a glittering city within a city for Toronto's waterfront has been unveiled by Canada's two major railways.

The "billion-dollar" scheme may include a 1,575-foot television and radio transmission tower, taller than New York's Empire State Building. The New York landmark, the world's tallest building, is 1,472 feet high, including a 222-foot transmission tower.

The 15-year project, announced Thursday by Canadian Pacific and Canadian National railways, will include integrated rail, bus and subway facilities, a convention centre, office buildings and high-rise apartments and row housing.

N. J. MacMillan, CNR president, said part of the first phase —a new station and railway offices—should be completed by the summer of 1971.

"The new terminal building will probably cost about $50,000,000 and a $1,000,000,000 figure for the entire project is a bare minimum," he said.

Mr. MacMillan said the railways hope to get their joint company, Metro Centre Developments Ltd., in operation within the next two months. The new company will build and manage the project.

The station will be the core of the development which will convert about 190 acres of railway-owned land into what Mr. MacMillan called a "lively and livable" environment.

The development company will raise its own capital, probably through bond issues.

Mr. MacMillan said the development company probably will build the transmission tower and is hopeful the CBC will decide to place its English-language headquarters building within the development.

The land contained in the plan stretches 1¼ miles from Yonge Street on the east to Bathurst Street on the west and from Front Street, south to the Gardiner Expressway.

Soft Touch

Chinchilla are adorable and soft to the touch as far as Julie Gardner is concerned, but many professional breeders say they have to work long hours to make what they claim is a modest income from the pelts. Some professional breeders challenge the claim by mail-order chinchilla ranch promoters that a private breeder can make big money. (CP Photo)

Criminal Code Changes Before Commons Again

OTTAWA (CP) — The bill that would take the state out of the bedrooms of the nation, as Pierre Elliott Trudeau put it a year ago, returned to the Commons Thursday.

Even bulkier than it was when Mr. Trudeau as justice minister introduced it Dec. 21, 1967, the controversial package of Criminal Code amendments was deposited Thursday by Justice Minister Turner.

It contains unchanged the sections on therapeutic abortion and homosexual behavior that have drawn both praise and criticism in the last year.

The major section on abortion would allow such a measure where a medical board certified that continued pregnancy would endanger the life or health of the mother.

The homosexual provision would allow homosexual behavior between consenting adults in private and would remove the threat of indefinite detention now prescribed in the Criminal Code for such acts.

Opposition MPs have said the bill should be divided to allow them to vote according to their conscience on each measure.

However, Mr. Turner told a news conference that the bill would be presented as a single package and as a government measure. This means that MPs as a rule will have to vote along party lines.

The bill passed the resolution stage and was given first reading without debate, mainly to allow MPs to spend Christmas digesting it before the major debate on second reading some time after the House resumes sitting Jan. 14.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Bow River) expressed fear that the government may put a time limit on debate and also objected to the package presentation.

The bill contains some changes from the Trudeau bill which died on the order paper last spring.

The Trudeau bill made it an offence to drive with a blood alcohol level of one-tenth of one per cent, the equivalent of six drinks an hour.

The Turner bill reduces the impairment level to eight one-hundredths of one per cent, or three or four drinks in an hour.

Carried over is a section that would make breath tests compulsory for those suspected of impairment by police.

New firearms provisions are aimed at safeguarding the public from the mentally unsound and the careless.

One would allow the Crown with a court order to seize firearms and ammunition to safeguard the public.

Another would make it an offence to sell or lend firearms to persons known to be unstable.

At the same time, sporting rifles and shotguns are specifically excluded from the category of registrable firearms. And the bill is modified to make it possible for those under 14 to hunt or take instruction in firearms use.

New among the 91 Criminal Code amendments are provisions stipulating the time a material witness may be held and repealing the six-month minimum sentence for theft.

Another new provision would allow the judge alone to decide on continuation of a trial if a juryman became ill or died. At present, Crown and defence counsel must agree to continuation.

A section limiting the prize in lotteries to $10,000 has been removed and the provinces will decide on their own limits.

Carried over are sections dealing with passports, pari-mutuel betting, automobile master keys, harassing telephone calls, cruelty to animals, publication of evidence from a preliminary hearing, fitness to stand trial, suspended sentences and probation, and appeals on summary conviction.

Prices Policy Ready

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is scheduled to table its long-heralded policy statement on price and wage restraints in the Commons today.

Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford, outlining some of its proposals Thursday, said the government plans to set up a commission to examine price and income increases, and give publicity to unwarranted cases.

The commission will be established only after a round of consultation with the provinces and with labor, management, and other organizations. These will consume most of January, Mr. Basford told reporters after Thursday's finance ministers' conference.

It is expected that legislation will be required to give the commission independence and a staff of research workers and publicists. The commission, therefore, may not be able to start operating until the spring.

Mr. Basford told the provincial ministers the federal government will not exercise control over prices and wages. It cannot do so under the constitution unless wartime powers are invoked.

It will be concerned primarily with activities falling within the federal field of jurisdiction. But Mr. Basford suggested establishment of a federal-provincial advisory group, and said the provinces could refer problems to the commission for examination.

Self-governing Powers of Engineers Are to Be Tightened

TORONTO (CP) — Self-governing powers of Ontario's professional engineers will be tightened as a result of legislation in line with recommendations made in the McRuer report on civil rights.

A professional engineers' bill, introduced Thursday in the legislature, will bring into law most of 31 recommendations of the report dealing with self-governing professional bodies. The report was released last March by J. C. McRuer, former chief justice of the Ontario Supreme Court.

The legislature is to begin its Christmas recess today.

Engineering will be the first profession in the province subject to the new legislation. Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said the bill will be re-introduced when the house reconvenes probably in mid-February.

The report recommends that:

—The power of self-government should not be extended beyond existing limits unless the public interest demands it.

—Each disciplinary body should have a lawyer of 10 years' standing as a member, appointed by the cabinet.

—Each professional group should prepare a code of ethics and make it public, stating principles of conduct designed mainly for the protection of the public.

—No self-governing body should have statutory control over others who are not its members.

The report also includes proposals for membership in self-governing bodies and suggests that lists stating unethical professional activities be prepared.

Simonett Says Ducks Are Not His Business

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition members of the legislature cried foul Thursday when John Simonett, energy and resources management minister, said there was nothing he could do about the suspected cause of the death of about 250 ducks on the shoreline of Lake Ontario in Prince Edward County.

Mr. Simonett said a preliminary investigation by the Ontario Water Resources Commission indicates the ducks died as a result of oil discharged from ships on the Great Lakes.

"While I am concerned about this kind of situation I can only refer it to the federal government who have jurisdiction in the field of navigation," he said.

BEGAN IN GERMANY

Duelling was established by Germanic tribes 1,500 years ago to determine guilt or innocence.

Colleges Short of Teachers

TORONTO (CP) — The major problem facing community colleges in Canada is finding and training enough teachers, says Robert B. Gwilliam, director of the Canadian commission for the community college.

He has been visiting colleges for two months asking students, teachers, presidents and trustees the problems they would like the commission to tackle.

The commission was set up last April for three years to explore with colleges the possibility of a national agency for community colleges. A project of the Canadian Association for Adult Education, the commission is financed by a $208,000 grant from the W. K. Kellog Foundation.

About 80 colleges come under the study, he said. They include 20 colleges of applied arts and technology created by the Ontario legislature.

"Universities try to measure community colleges with their own yardsticks. To try to assert that your courses are as good as theirs is to say you're like them in many ways. Surely the trick is to be as unlike them as possible."

The biggest development will occur in a few years when community colleges begin to respond to needs of adults which are not met by high schools and trade schools, he said.

"This will happen first in Quebec, B.C. and Ontario."

Traditions Vary

Christmas Celebrated as Holiday Throughout the World

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

St. Nick, the Christmas tree and roast stuffed turkey are steadily replacing the traditional Christmas manger scenes — in Italy. Other countries which once had annual gift-giving rites on New Year's Day, like Japan and The Congo, are adopting Dec. 25.

In the cold northern lands, Christmas is usually a family affair. In Austria and Germany families gather on Christmas Eve to sing carols, feast on roast goose and home-baked delicacies and wait for the Christkindl—Christ child—to deposit presents in a locked room. The tinkle of a little bell signals anxious children that the goodies have arrived.

Scandinavia has a long, elaborate Christmas with all the traditional trimmings, trees, lights, decorations and groaning tables. Sweden's celebration does not end until the day after Twelfth Night, well into January.

A new wrinkle in Norway this year is a campaign of the Association of christian Students denouncing the "near gluttony" of their countrymen at Christmas.

While France celebrates an Anglo-Saxonized Christmas, Roman Catholic Belgium contents itself with the traditional midnight mass. In rural areas the celebrating stops there, except for some onion soup and blood sausage after devotions. But plastic Christmas trees and heavy German-style meals have invaded Belgian cities.

Thousands will make religious pilgrimages to the Holy Land. In Italy to see the Pope, to shrines and religious symbols around the world.

Israel does not celebrate Christmas, but the government has decreed that all holy places —Bethlehem, Nazareth, Jerusalem— will be open to Christian Arabs and foreign pilgrims.

Pope Paul will leave the Vatican to preside at midnight Mass in the steel mills of Taranto, southern Italy.

In the climes of the Southern Hemisphere, where Christmas means midsummer vacations. Australians and South Africans form long caravans to their idyllic beaches.

The South African Broadcasting Corp., fed up with Christmas carols about snow, sleigh bells and reindeer, ran a contest this year to select a carol more suitable for temperatures of 80-100.

In Australia and New Zealand, thousands will imbibe enormous frosty drinks and speculate about the outcome of the Davis Cup tennis match with the United States Dec. 26-28.

Christmas in India is a national holiday, celebrated religiously by Christians and commercially by Hindus. Popular legend associates Christ with Lord Krishna, a favorite Hindu god, and confusion surrounding the two religious personalities results in a nationwide Christmas spirit.

Christmas in Japan coincides with the traditional custom of O-Seibo, the giving of presents at the end of the year to persons to whom one is indebted. The new fad is Christmas cards printed in Japanese, with comical rather than religious themes.

In Latin America, Christmas brings music, exotic food and dancing to Venezuela; nine nights of drinking parties to Mexico, illegal firecrackers to Puerto Rico; dancing and drinking in Colombia, and a potent drink called Monkey's Tail—brandy and a coffee-flavored liquid—to Chile.

Nigeria, torn by civil war and suffering import restrictions, will have a subdued Christmas. Popular all-night drumming sessions and excessive merry-making have been banned, but traditional parades of stiltwalkers and masked dancers will be allowed.

THEY'RE PARTNERS

"I wouldn't have had a third of the success I now have if it weren't for Art Carney," says Jackie Gleason. "He's got the greatest comedy sensitivity of anyone I've ever worked with."

Tweed

TWEED — Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Stark and children of Peterborough, spent a few days recently with Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Leslie, in Queensboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Young and three children of Kingston, have recently moved into Basil Van Dusen's house in Marlbank.

Mrs. John Clark of Actinolite is spending a week with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Raycroft Sr. of Napanee.

Mrs. Simpson McCrea, of Bridge St. Tweed, is at her daughter's home in Frankford, and attended the funeral of her half-sister, Mrs. Tummon, who was buried in Frankford on Wednesday, December 18th, 19 68.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Amo and Michael of Kingston, spent last weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lessard in Flinton.

The Department of Highways has started to rebuild and improve the Intersection of the South Road and Highway No. 506 near Fernleigh.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurie Perry and family of Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bryden of Demorestville were recent visitors for a few days with Mrs. Vevy Bryden, of Flinton.

A two-year wood products technician course will be offered this fall at Conestoga College of Kitchener. The course is designed to train people in wood product manufacturing to be eventual foremen, superintendents and managers in industry.

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — The ladies and husbands of the Bible Study Group enjoyed a social evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Cotten recently. Mr. and Mrs. Borden Wager were guests from Demorestville which depicted a scripture story. Mrs. Wager narrated the Psalm as the pictures were shown.

Mrs. S. C. Reid and Margo spent the weekend with Mrs. Reid's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Oreer of Consecon.

IT WORKS BECAUSE IT SWINGS!

That's the principle behind the pendulum clock, invented in 1670. Further clock wars found only in cathedrals and public squares today; it is a rare home that doesn't contain at least one time-keeping device. The days of the sundial and the hourglass are gone and the modern world depends upon accurate clocks.

If the days of your older clock are gone in your house, chances are that a home somewhere in this area would love to use it.

To Your Good Health

Ear Noises Are Not Danger Sign

By Dr. George C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have noticed that you could get booklets on various subjects by writing to Dr. Molner and wondered if some of the topics would still be available by mail.

I think there was one on what to do about ringing or buzzing sounds in your ears, but I did not have any need for it then. Is this a dangerous sign? Can I still get a copy of that booklet? — W. E. P.

Yes, you can. All of the booklets will continue to be available and a new one in fact, has just gone to the printer. As you probably know by now, I was a close collaborator with Dr. Molner from the time this column started, and I worked on all of the current booklets with the exception of one.

Ear noises are not ordinarily a danger sign. They are very common indeed as folks get older, and they come in all varieties: ringing, buzzing, crackling sounds, hisses.

It is true that in some cases these noises accompany a real health problem, but that is only occasionally true. More often they don't mean anything except that you are getting older and, if you'll pardon the expression, creakier.

The noises do not necessarily mean that hearing is impaired; while ear noises may at times accompany ear faults the opposite may also be true and the hearing remain as acute as ever. Or a person's hearing could decline without the ear noises changing.

After five days my sight returned but left me near-sighted. I am 35 and now wear glasses. What could have been the trouble? Will this trouble return? — Mrs. R. P.

P.S.: My doctor said, "Some people may not believe it."

If 20 other physicians after examining you can't tell what ailed you, how can I? All I can tell you is: there are no known cases of individuals under emotional strain experiencing stress from hysteria. It doesn't happen often, but when it does, sight may return as abruptly as it was lost.

In such cases there is no detectable physical cause — and about the only way you can prove it was emotional, or hysterical, is to eliminate everything else that might have caused it.

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What do you think of taking a 5-month-old baby on a jet plane to Europe? Would this affect the child's hearing, maybe permanently? — C. H.

I can't see any chance that it would affect a healthy baby's hearing at all — let alone permanently. With pressurized plane cabins, there is slight change of air pressure, and that is the only thing that would have any bearing on this question.

• • •

Note to D.D.R.: I'm a bit surprised that, as a resident of Minnesota, you forget that there are splendid medical centers there, both familiar with your intricate problem — at Rochester and at the University of Minnesota medical centre. Why hunt for some more distant one?

TORONTO STOCKS

By mid-morning, the industrial index was up .87 to 188.42 and the western oil index 4.57 to 242.86. Gains outnumbered losses by a wide margin.

Brokers expect the market to finish the week on a strong note after several days of confusion over higher interest rates and speculation about future U.S. government policies.

Peel Elder gained 2 to 49, Atco 1 to 24, Moore Corp. ⅝ to 32¾, Royal Bank ½ to 26¼ and Alcan ¼ to 34.

Among the heaviest traders, Home A advanced 1¼ to 44 and Cygnus A 1¼ to 19. Pyrotech Corp. owns 38 per cent of Home Oil voting stock.

Bank of Nova Scotia was up ¼ to 36. The quarterly dividend has raised by $ cent to $7 cents a share.

Among advancing western oils, Asamera rose 1⅜ to 26, Canada Superior 1 to 51, Bonnie 1 to 51 and Canadian Export Gas ⅛ to 11¼.

On index, base metals gained .31 to 113.06. Golds fell .35 to 241.91. Volume by 11 a.m. was 1,021,000 shares compared with 907,000 at the same time Thursday.

The industrial index closed with a gain of .03 at 187.35 after declining more than a point during the morning.

The early decline was seen as a continuation of yesterday's slump which was caused by the increase in both the Canadian and U.S. bank rate.

Later in the day, however, the major indexes in New York staged an unexpected recovery which was partially matched in Toronto.

Firm Wins Seat

MONTREAL (CP)—A leading Canadian investment company became the first foreign firm in 41 years to win a seat on the New York Stock Exchange to help finance the lucrative American market—and the venture is proving to be successful.

Economist Ivor Murray, vice-president in charge of research for Nesbitt, Thomson and Co. Ltd., said membership capital is becoming increasingly fluid on an international scale.

The company must look to ward the United States market as well as toward other countries of the western world if it is to avoid standing still, he said.

By gaining membership in the New York exchange in December in February, 1968, the company opened the door to the American market, "where all the action is" as well as assuring itself of a portion of the commissions that Canadian investors pay to United States brokers.

Mr. Murray said the Montreal-based company feels the decision to join the New York exchange—the seat alone cost about $450,000—was a wise one, and it follows that more or recently by becoming an associate member of the American Stock Exchange.

Nesbitt, Thomson began giving serious attention to the portent U.S. seat in 1966, although it first began operations in New York in 1954, specializing in Canadian securities.

The company was running a successful operation in London, competing with British firms on their home ground, and decided —why not the United States?

Meanwhile, there was growing interest on the part of Canadians in the American market, especially between 1963 and 1967 when the Canadian market performed "rather sluggishly" compared with the "rather spectacular" performance in the U.S.

Being a foreign company in the U.S., Nesbitt, Thomson found its operations were somewhat curtailed in New York. It found an escape from this situation.

The only solution, the company felt, was the purchase of a seat on the New York exchange. But only American firms were allowed such seats under exchange regulations.

After much consideration, the New York exchange agreed to change regulations to allow membership.

Mr. Murray said the company has enjoyed an over-all increase in volume since it obtained the seat in 1967 prior to a change in regulations forbidding foreign membership.

Mr. Murray said the company has also found an over-all increase in volume since it obtained the seat in 1967 prior to a change in regulations forbidding foreign membership.

Mr. Murray said the company has enjoyed an over-all increase in volume since it obtained the seat in 1967 prior to a change in regulations forbidding foreign membership.

But a major hurdle had to be cleared to close the deal.

Nesbitt, Thomson was given three months in which to train its executive and sales staff sufficiently to enable the Canadian to pass the New York exchange examinations.

Cornwall's Police Criticized By St. Regis Reserve Indians

CORNWALL (CP) — The city's police commission held an emergency meeting Thursday after criticism from the St. Regis Indian band over police handling of the Mohawks' three-hour demonstration Wednesday at the Seaway International Bridge.

In a statement the commission defended police action, saying:

"We have received instructions from the Ontario government that as Cornwall Island is within the geographical boundaries of the city of Cornwall, we are responsible for the maintenance of law and order on the island and it is our duty to do so."

More than 40 band members and model Kahn-Tineta Horn of Caughnawaga reserve near Montreal were arrested after blockading the bridge.

The blockade was set up in support of a campaign to restore rights to bring goods across the U.S. border duty-free, as pledged in the Jay Treaty of 1794. The tribe lives on both sides of the border.

The Supreme Court of Canada ruled in 1956 that payment of customs duties applies to all persons living in Canada but customs officials apparently started strict enforcement only recently.

The band members chipped in to pay bail for each band member charged with obstructing traffic. Miss Horn was also charged with carrying a concealed weapon. They will appear in court today.

Wednesday night, a few hours after the demonstration, a police officer was nicked on the shoulder by one of two rifle shots which smashed into the Canada customs office on Cornwall Island, a link of the seaway bridge spanning the St. Lawrence River.

Meanwhile, British Columbia Indians have protested the arrests. Ray Bobb, spokesman for the Native Alliance for Red Power, said in Vancouver:

"We are citizens firstly of North America. Now they say we can't bring things from one part of North America to another."

He said Indians needed to take militant action to press their demands and added: "We feel the sort of action that happened is necessary and good. We would support their action 100 per cent."

Benjamin Paul, an official of the North American Indian Brotherhood and executive director of the Confederation of Native Indians, commented "as far as Indians are concerned, there is no demarcation line at the 49th parallel (the Canada-United States border)."

Strictly Personal

Respect Must Be Earned

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of those beguiling half-truths that unthinking people are so fond of was enunciated recently by Billy Graham, when he said, "A child who is allowed to be disrespectful to his parents will not have true respect for anyone."

No doubt of it. That is exactly the trouble with people who have no respect for anyone — they grew up disrespectful of their parents, in most cases.

But Billy Graham fails to state the other and equally important, half of the truth: Parents who want their children to be respectful must do things that are worthy of the child's respect, and must respect the child.

Children respect what they see, not what they hear, or what is told them. If they see their parents are greedy, they will not respect generosity. If they see their parents are hypocritical, they will not respect candor. If they see their parents are bigoted, they will not respect tolerance.

It is easy enough to make a child "respectful" through fear; it is much harder to make them genuinely respectful through the example we set.

Children are astonishingly clear-sighted. They can see right through our pretenses and affectations down to the rock-bottom of our motivations. They know when they are being told the truth, or fobbed off; when they are given preachments that are not practised by the parents; when a double standard is being invoked for adult and for juvenile behavior.

Respect is not an automatic response. It must be earned and it must be kept, for the child gets more questioning and critical as he gets older and observes the discrepancies between the way we talk and the way the world is run, with our complicity or our connivance.

I do not want my children to respect me simply because they happened to be born of my seed, or because I support them. Nor do I expect them to be "grateful" because I give them the same sustenance that any living creature gives its offspring.

If they respect me, I want it to be because I deserve it for human, not filial, reasons. Because I respect their individuality, honor their privacy, and nourish their intellectual curiosity. Because I refuse to pretend to be better than I am but want them to be better than I have been able to be. Most of all, I don't want them to be like me, but like what God intended them to be themselves. And if they respect these impulses on my part, they cannot help but respect me.

For Dec. 21st.

Your birthday today: The coming year brings opportunity to show latent talent for management. Earnings can improve and a sideline. Any problems are mainly matters of convenience rather than fundamental issues. Today's natives tend to seek situations in which they control activities, such as self-employment or working arts.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): A possible early-morning tempest is over quickly, leaving the air clear for fun, and trust. A great deal can be accomplished this weekend.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): After you get past annoyances of last night and early morning, all goes much better. Pressure should be surmounted.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Put your effort into work that can be finished quickly. Belated shopping is no bargain. Later part of the day favors sociability, new introductions.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Quarrel-breeding weather phases out in morning hours: be patient. The impact of new materials and methods bring an interesting venture.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): For the next 10 days a spirit of independence can lead you to speak out of turn or make impatient demands. Control of emotional expression is essential.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Get past the morning crisis by doing nothing while plans are settled; then pitch in without comment. Put into effect your own health-care program.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct 22): The upcoming 10 days favor fuller enjoyments of home and family. Brief tension triggers panic; once worked through, you are ready for an enjoyable holiday season. Be serene, pursue creativity and romance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Proceed slowly (and gently) on all matters. Home improvements are greatly favored. Let your feeling come out a little at a time. Look over the changes in your situation during tonight's discussions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Impatience forms an early threshold which you must surmount before you can prosper today. Business and personal plans are encouraging.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): The morning is not good for activity, but the latter part of the day increases the chances for your self-improvement. Consult informally this afternoon with competent judges, critics.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Skip the early impulse toward haste and let a pleasant busy day unfold. Apply your creativity and natural sympathy. Take the positive, optimistic view.

Tories' Party Swings

OTTAWA (CP) — The timing was perfect. Here were the Conservatives with a planeload of lobsters, a Christmas party in mind and a great place to hold it. Then the government beats a retreat on the Great Rules Debate and away they go.

It was a swinging supper-hour affair for the Tories Thursday night. And although it is often difficult to tell, even Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield appeared to be having a ball at the bash.

"Holy Smoke," he said at one stage.

Mr. Stanfield, who led the Commons fight against the controversial rule change, was presented with an electric hedge clipper by the happy-go-lucky caucus.

Committee Review Offered Of Rule to Allocate Time

OTTAWA (CP)—The government gave in Friday to opposition demands to shelve a proposed rule change that would allow the government to allocate Commons debating time in advance.

Both Conservative and New Democratic Party spokesmen withheld final judgment on the Liberal offer. But they said enough to indicate that the impasse over the change may be over.

The cabinet backtrack channelled to the Commons through Manpower Minister Allan MacEachen came during the sixth day of hostile debate on a rule-change package proposed by the government.

Opposition parties, united against the time-allocation portion, were stalling a decision on the whole package by prolonging debate.

The government's change of heart may end the debate today and permit MPs to go home for Christmas on schedule.

The House was scheduled to recess today until Jan. 14. The opposition had threatened to keep the debate going through Christmas, if necessary, to win its point.

Simply put, the government has offered to refer the offending rule to a House committee for study if the opposition accepts the rest of the package today.

Objections by the NDP appear to have been met by the government offer. The NDP had indicated approval of the package except for the time-allocation provision.

The Conservatives had also registered strong objections to the proposal to take all spending estimates from the Commons chamber to committees for study.

Whether the Conservatives would bend on this point was not clear. Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said the time-allocation rule and rules based on it would have to go, "and it was as simple as that."

Stanley Knowles, the NDP whip, said the offer appears to provide a basis for adjourning on time for the holiday recess.

Meanwhile, the Senate gave quick approval to a bill to reduce duties on foreign goods in Canada at prices below those in the country of origin. Royal assent followed and the bill now is law.

The Senate then adjourned until Jan. 21.

Grim Warning

Two Killed, Three Seriously Injured In Area Accidents

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A rapid succession of traffic mishaps yesterday marked a grim beginning to the pre-Christmas weekend in the Quinte area.

Near Picton two men died in accidents only 30 minutes apart.

Near Point Anne two others were seriously injured when an automobile was wrecked as it careered off Highway 2. And at Cobourg John Rutter of Howard, Ont., died in a two - car crash.

The first serious incident occurred about 2 p.m. when a car believed driven by William McKee, 20, R. R. 1, Milford, crashed off the Black Creek Road southwest of Picton.

Clayton Edward Mills, 24, 180 Main Street Picton, was instantly killed when the automobile slid sideways and struck a tree.

McKee's wife Susan, and the couple's two children Bonnie, 22 months and five - month - old Martin were taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital but are not in serious condition.

Little more than an hour later a car driven by Harold Murray, 26, of Read, skidded off Highway 2 east of the Point Anne Lane.

The vehicle careened about 400 feet, long a ditch, ripping through a hydro pole. The gas tank was torn out as the vehicle struck a culvert before ending up in a field.

Murray suffered serious skull injuries and today was reported under intensive care in Belleville General Hospital.

The mishap downed an 8,000-volt hydro line, but service was automatically switched to alternate lines and power in the area was not interrupted.

Space Frontier Challenge Leaves World in Awe

Moon Trio's Goal Dec. 24

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 8 astronauts soared into earth orbit today and attained the vital first milestone of a momentous space odyssey intended to sweep them into orbit of the moon on Christmas Eve.

Air Force Col. Frank Borman, navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. and air force Maj. William A. Anders started their trail-blazing journey on the awesome power of a Saturn V super-rocket that thundered away from Cape Kennedy at 7:51 a.m. EST.

Tens of thousands of persons watched the launch from vantage points in the Cape Kennedy area. Many had camped out on the nearby beaches in order to be near when the mammoth rocket lifted into the clear blue sky.

Among the observers were Lovell's wife, Marilyn, and the four Lovell children, ranging in age from two to 15, and his mother, Mrs. Blanche Lovell.

The Borman and Anders families watched the launch on television at their homes near the Manned Spacecraft Centre at Houston.

Borman, Lovell and Anders wanted everything perfect before they committed themselves to a 250,000-mile trip across a trackless void where no man has ventured.

In earth orbit, astronauts can return to their planet almost at will by firing retro-rockets. But on a moon flight, if something goes wrong, they could be as far as three days from home with no quick way back.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the three astronauts felt confident enough in the hardware to term the risks of Apollo 8 acceptable. They said they were ready for a lunar orbit flight now as the next logical step toward America's goal of landing astronauts on the moon next year.

Apollo Sails Across Void

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) —The United States' Apollo 8 astronauts today soared higher and faster than man has ever flown and set sail across the uncharted ocean of space, aiming for a Christmas Eve orbit of the moon.

Air Force Col. Frank Borman, Navy Capt. James Lovell Jr. and Air Force Maj. William Anders became the first humans to escape the grasp of earth's gravity as a jolting rocket blast hurled them out of earth orbit and sent them toward man's first voyage in the vicinity of the moon.

As they broke away from earth's hold, the Apollo 8 crew set an altitude record for manned flight, shattering the 851-mile mark set in 1966 by the Gemini II pilots.

The power was provided by the third stage of the Saturn V super-rocket that had pushed Apollo 8 into earth orbit with an

Peace Talks Cracking

PARIS (AP) — Top United States and South Vietnamese negotiators at the Paris peace talks will report to their respective presidents this weekend amid fears of a growing split in the combined forces camp.

The U.S. deputy chief negotiator, Cyrus R. Vance, flies home today to confer with President Johnson and perhaps with President-elect Nixon.

Secret talks between the United States and North Vietnam to make conference arrangements are blocked by the refusal of the Saigon government to negotiate with an independent Viet Cong delegation and the refusal of Hanoi to negotiate unless such a delegation is seated.

South Vietnamese Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky, who has shown growing irritation with the United States, is due to leave for Saigon Sunday to report to President Nguyen Van Thieu. Ky is supervising his country's negotiating team.

Both Vance and the chief U.S. negotiator, W. Averell Harriman, were reported to have told Ky at their 90-minute meeting Friday that Hanoi has moved some way toward the combined forces position in their secret talks, notably in offering to meet at a round table instead of a square table. The implication was that the Saigon government was not the only one making concessions.

Ky has demanded that the conference table be divided in two to stress the two-sided nature of the talks and to show Liberation Front is an offshoot of Hanoi's regime and not an independent movement.

Making the situation more delicate was the U.S. decision today to meet with the NLF on South Vietnamese soil to discuss the release of three prisoners. Some viewed it as a significant propaganda coup for the NLF.

To allay possible South Vietnamese qualms, a U.S. official said the meeting did not constitute official recognition of the NLF.

At a news conference in Vung Tau, Thieu was asked if South Vietnam might quit the peace talks if the Viet Cong attack Saigon.

"If the Communists force me to, I will do it," he replied.

MacNaughton Irked

Benson 'No Exemplary Expert'

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton Friday rejected Finance Minister Edgar Benson's suggestion that the province's deficit financing is not in the best interests of Ontario.

Mr. MacNaughton said in a statement, Ontario's deficits in recent years had been planned so as not to impair the long-term economic development of the province nor the prosperity of Canada.

Mr. Benson told a federal-provincial financial meeting Tuesday that all provinces should be concerned about the pitfalls of deficit financing. The finance minister reserved his strongest criticism for Ontario which he said has a tendency to repeatedly overspend revenue.

Mr. MacNaughton said he did not regard Mr. Benson, or the federal government, as an authority on exemplary financial management.

"His (Mr. Benson's) claim to fiscal fame is based entirely on promise rather than a record of achievement," Mr. MacNaughton said.

Ontario's deficits are not a measure of overspending, Mr. MacNaughton said, but a measure of the inadequate base from which the province must finance essential economic and social services.

Ontario's per-capita expenditure for 1966-67 was $329.75, he said, compared with $410.75 which the federal government spent during the same period.

He said Ontario could retire its total net capital debt with only eight months' revenue, but the federal government would require almost two years' revenue to pay off its debt.

OTTAWA (CP) — The tax appeal board has ruled that a Toronto executive, dismissed from his $40,000-a-year job in 1963, should not have to pay income tax on the $25,000 he received in settlement. In a ruling made public Friday, the board said the $25,000 was not a retiring allowance as interpreted by the Income Tax Act.

Nurses' Bodies Found

STE. ADELE, Que. (CP) — The body of the second of two student nurses who disappeared a week ago in this Laurentian resort area was found early today only 400 feet from the spot where her companion was found dead Friday.

The body of Catherine O'Keeffe, 21, of Montreal, was found close to a Hydro-Quebec dam on the nearby North River by Louis Rolland Valiquette, a bulldozer operator who was among a number of volunteers for search operations begun last Tuesday.

The body of Catherine Murphy, 20, of Ottawa, was discovered Friday encrusted in ice at the edge of the river and about 400 feet from the dam site.

The two girls, class-mates in the third year of the nursing course at St. Mary's Hospital in Montreal, had vanished last Saturday while out for a walk.

They had been among 24 nurses from the Hospital who had travelled 50 miles north to a hermitage at Ste. Adele for a religious retreat, organized for the long-weekend by Rev. Emmett Johns of Montreal.

Police speculate the girls fell into the river, pulled themselves to the bank and died there of exposure.

CN's Rural Services

The concern of the village of Marmora and other rural communities at the prospect of Canadian National closing local rail stations is understandable.

Yet, according to Harry Fast, CN Rideau area manager, the closing of ten Rideau-area stations — including Marmora, Stirling, Frankford, Madoc, Colborne, Campbellford and Wellington — would mean no withdrawal of freight or express services.

Service would be centralized from a master agency in Belleville and there would be no adverse effects to private customers. He claims technological progress and the need for greater productivity necessitates such a move and, furthermore, it will mean a saving to the railway of $250,000.

Economically this seems like an attractive proposition for Canadian National which has done as much as any railroad on the continent to inject new life into this traditional mode of transportation — to the point where it is even competitive with air travel — on the Toronto-Montreal route.

From the point of view of providing maximum service to rural communities, though, and from the standpoint of job security for the men who serve the railroad there, it is another matter. Canadian National is a publicly-owned service and the interests of the smaller communities it serves should receive at least as much attention as say the executive-style, jet-set, clientele it hopes to attract with its turbotrain between Toronto and Montreal.

None of the communities is served by passenger trains. The automobile long since has killed any possibility of making such a service pay. One wonders though what would have resulted had the same principles and the same psychology that have gone into making the turbotrain an attractive proposition been applied say to fast railcar-style service linking the smaller areas.

Promotion of these smaller communities, not only for themselves but for their vacation-area potentiality could work wonders. It is a dismal thought that instead of seeing the rural scene and the county at large being afforded a real chance to develop, we are in effect being asked to be party to their demise.

Hastings clerk-treasurer Carl Bateman views it as an erosion of rural and small town life by economic concentration in large urban areas. And Lee Grills MP had a point too when he told the Transport Commission hearing into the issue that while economics must have their place, he hoped the CNR "will think a little beyond that."

Ulster's Progress

Discussing the "political and industrial situation in Northern Ireland, an Ontario provincial newspaper recently described this area of the United Kingdom as one that has been "chronically depressed" for some years.

While it is true that unemployment there has been a continuing problem, the diversification of industry in the postwar years and the modernization of the traditional linen and shipbuilding industries, allied to a rich agricultural economy, scarcely fit the mold of a depressed area. There may not be jobs for all — a malady not unknown even in this affluent country — but much progress has been made.

Recent issues of the government publication, Ulster Commentary, attest to this. For instance Northern Ireland (Ulster) is now the biggest producer of artificial fibres in Britain. The industry employs 6,000, and with expansion plans proceeding in five plants will eventually employ 8,000.

In addition there are reports of a new cement plant at Cookstown, construction of a new launch hotel in Belfast, a radio transmitter for the United States navy, opening of the new University of Ulster at Coleraine, and many other enterprises.

In urban development the triangular area involving Coleraine, Potrush and Portstewart, important shopping and vacation centres, will involve expenditure of some 80 million pounds in the next 15 years.

In the sphere of medicine the Royal Victoria Hospital in Belfast was the first in the world to introduce a mobile intensive care unit for cardiac sufferers. This involves intensive care in the ambulance en route to hospital.

These are only a few of the initiatives in an area with a population of only 1,500,000 which since 1947 increased its total trade from £310 million to a billion pounds sterling in 1966.

Immigrants Told A Canadian's Home Is His Castle

By GREG CONNOLLEY

A handsome, glossy booklet with color pictures portrays a variety of housing including a luxury-type apartment in Ottawa.

Prices of houses "vary greatly" the Immigration Department publication advises. It notes that in 1967 the average cost of a new home was $19,000. The average down payment required to purchase this house was about $4,300.

The average cost of an older house was approximately $12,000 and "perhaps a little higher in the larger cities." The average down payment for an older house was some $2,000.

These statistics will startle and amaze many Canadians in urban areas who would just love to get a nice new home for $19,000 or an old one for $12,000.

Prices of that kind would set off a stampede in Metropolitan Toronto where, incidentally, many immigrants end up.

The Immigration Department advises these prospective new citizens about housing mortgages and very fairly points out that interest rates may be "from 6½ percent upwards."

The department also acknowledges that public housing for low income groups is "not plentiful" in Canada although Canadians recognize that more must be done in this field.

It is pointed out that most Canadians prefer to live in houses and to own their own homes. Only one of three families lives in an apartment or flat; two out of three families own their own homes.

People overseas who read the immigration booklet get a pleasing portrayal of how Canadians live.

"You'll like the roominess of Canadian homes," the pamphlet declares. "Perhaps it is because Canada is such a big country that Canadian homes are larger than in most countries, with more rooms per family."

As the would-be immigrant reads on, he finds that a typical Canadian single family home has three bedrooms, a living room, a kitchen, bathroom, (sometimes two), a garage and basement, part of which is often converted into a playroom.

He is told the average lot has a frontage of about 60 feet, a depth of from 100 to 150 feet and has water and sewer service.

The Immigration Department advises with pride that the high standard of living enjoyed by the average Canadian family is indicated by many modern conveniences in households.

Thus — 96 per cent have radio, 95 percent have refrigerators, 91 percent have television sets, 87 percent have washing machines, 72 percent have vacuum cleaners, 52 percent have electric floor polishers, 24 percent have clothes dryers and 20 percent have food freezers.

Electricity is very cheap in Canada, the department tells its customers. So much so that Canadians even have electric toothbrushes.

Turning to perhaps its most difficult topic, Immigration observes that people who have not lived in Canada "often think of it as a cold country." (Many who have lived in it have reached the same conclusion.)

But the federal department insists that the "cold" label is only partially true. "Canadian winters are generally cold with temperatures in many areas dropping from time to time to zero degrees Fahrenheit and below. But the summers are warm with temperatures ranging as high as the 80s and 90s and spring and autumn are very pleasant."

Then it adds as a footnote to the climate that "cost of heating an average home would probably be from $125 to $225 depending on size and location" — (probably is right).

Nonetheless the Immigration booklet version of Canada and its housing is a very attractive picture of apartments, green lawns, flowers, a little snow and in that nice Canadian kitchen, a very attractive Canadian wife.

Feather Beds Were Safe and Warm

Ottawa Journal

A hard day's work makes a soft bed and we wish that everyone had a feather bed for the daily period of unconsciousness. Warm homes and electric blankets represent progress, but nothing yet devised equals a feather bed for comfortable sleeping.

There was a time when feather beds were important and good housewives were proud of them. The best beds came from live geese and most prized were feathers from breast, neck and back. A mature goose yielded about 40 pounds. In Europe geese were commonly plucked about five times a year.

The taut rope lacing insured a sturdy foundation over this was the tick stuffed with corn husks. Then came the feather bed with cotton blankets and patchwork quilts. When it grew late in the evening and after father had peeled, quartered and cored juley Northern Spies for the family, mother and sisters distributed the soapstones and bricks warmed in the oven.

A lad took his hand lamp and climbed the steep stairs to his room under the roof. The room was very cold; he pulled off his clothes quickly; put on a long flannel nightgown over the long union suit. He hopped in between the cotton blankets and sank deeply into the feather bed. The three soapstones meant warm spots for shoulder, hip and feet. That's the way one should go to bed. The temperature might be below zero and the north wind howling, but in a good feather bed one was safe and warm.

Newfoundland Rail Service Becomes Political Football

By CARMAN CUMMING

OTTAWA (CP)—It may be weeks before the tangled affair of the Newfie Caribou is sorted out on Parliament Hill.

The whole business is becoming an increasing embarrassment for the government. And it doesn't help Liberal tempers much that it all could have been avoided if one more Liberal had been in the transport committee Nov. 28.

That was the day the Conservatives, in John Diefenbaker's phrase, caught the government "with their pants down" and passed 6 to 5 a resolution designed to delay the death of the Caribou, Newfoundland's crossisland rail service.

Since then, the affair has gone from snarl to snarl and the end is nowhere in sight.

A government attempt to upset the resolution flopped and a row developed in the House over the fact that the adopted resolution wasn't included in the committee's report.

The Conservatives leaped aboard the issue with charges of hanky-panky and trampling on the rights of the House.

And earlier this week James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) won a hearing on the incident from the Commons committee on privileges.

The government would dearly love to see the whole mess tidied up and put away, but apparently this won't be easy.

One complicating factor is that Liberal Gustave Blouin (Manicouagan), who as transport committee chairman presented the questioned report Dec. 3, was removed from the committee two days later before leaving for surgery.

His office said Thursday he still has not had the two operations and that it may be some time before he is back at work.

And until he does come back, the privileges committee won't be able to finish its examination of the case.

Its chairman, Ovide Laflamme (Y—Montmorency) says Mr. Blouin has asked to appear before the committee and that he feels the request should be granted.

He said he would like to complete the hearing without delay, and may get it under way next week, but that Mr. Blouin may not be back until the end of January.

In the meantime, he said, he has asked Mr. Blouin not to make any comment on the case.

In a sub-let, Liberal Whip Bernard Pilon said Thursday that five Liberals unceremoniously taken off the committee last week all will be returned.

Government spokesmen have said the five were removed solely because it wasn't certain if they would be around for a Monday morning meeting.

Mr. McGrath, who started the whole sequence when he moved the Nov. 28 motion, meanwhile is worried about how the delay will affect the train's fate.

His resolution called for the abandonment to be delayed until the committee can visit Newfoundland to study rail problems. On Thursday he said he plans to ask Transport Minister Paul Hellyer to take the Ottawa delay into account.

His resolution called for the abandonment to be delayed until the committee can visit Newfoundland to study rail problems. On Thursday he said he plans to ask Transport Minister Paul Hellyer to take the Ottawa delay into account.

The death of the Caribou isn't imminent, however. A spokesman for the Canadian transport commission said Thursday the CNR is required to run the service until April 15 and has agreed to go beyond that date if there are any hitches in the bus service that is replacing it.

The Caribou — sometimes referred to as the Bulle — runs over 547 miles of tortuous grades and sharp curves on narrow gauge — three feet six inches—between rails compared with four feet 8½ inches accepted standard gauge lines.

Come, let us adore Him!

Bishop J. Pike Affirms Faith In After Life

NEW YORK (AP) — Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike, often criticized for discounting some aspects of Christian doctrine, has become a firm and outspoken advocate of its primary belief—life beyond death.

"It's indicated by the empirical data," he remarked in an interview. "It's the most plausible conclusion."

For more than two years, the Anglican bishop has been probing psychic phenomena, along with numerous sessions in which he reports apparent communication with various deceased persons, including his son, James Jr., who killed himself Feb. 4, 1966, at the age of 20.

After examining critically other possible alternatives, he says the most reasonable explanation is "the affirmation of life after death."

Now a staff member of the Centre for the Study of Democratic Institutions, of Santa Barbara, Calif., Bishop Pike details his case in a new book, published by Doubleday, called The Other Side.

Asked what that other realm is like on the basis of what the bishop said was spirit messages from it, he replied, "It seems hard to describe in our terms, just as it's hard for us to tell what vichyssoise tastes like. You say it's salty. But what's salt?

"It's a whole different plan of existence. It seems to be a kind of a growth from 'strength to strength,' much as the prayerbook puts it. But it's not heaven or hell, but a growing, or else a shrivelling."

His investigations were triggered by a series of strange occurrences—objects moving, clocks stopping at the time his son died—which took place in an apartment in Cambridge, England, shortly after his son's death in New York.

Two assistants witnessed the phenomena. Baffled, finally assured that his son was trying to communicate with him, the bishop consulted a British clergyman, who suggested he see a London spiritual medium, Emma Twigg.

Along with that first meeting with her, on March 2, 1965, the bishop describes a dozen sessions with various mediums, in the U.S., Canada and England, continuing up to June of this year.

In most cases, he had other witnesses with him.

At first, the bishop's son seems in a disturbed state, and purportedly says that "nothing I've seen over here makes me any more inclined to believe in God."

Later, in June, 1968, the son supposedly reports that his companions "talk about" Jesus. "Oh, but dad, they don't talk about him as a saviour. As an, example, you see? . . . I don't understand it yet. I may, sometime. I may . . . it's exciting. . . . exciting! . . . we are not the dead ones, you are the dead ones."

In the succeeding messages, the son seems gradually to progress from a rather uncertain condition to increasing awareness and activity.

At first, he reports, "I failed the test . . . I am not in purgatory, but something like hell, here."

Eventually, he reports he is "beginning to feel somewhat more at home—more at peace." His need for communication with this dimension seems to have lessened, suggesting the son has "moved on," the bishop says.

Rules Debate Compromise Allows Wrangle in House to End

OTTAWA (CP) — With visions of Christmas recess dancing before them, MPs Friday ended their heated rules wrangle and gave first reading to seven bills.

The end to the procedural debate came after a four-hour Commons recess while party representatives reached a compromise on handling the proposed time-allocation rule for future debates.

To send MPs home till Tuesday, Jan. 14, and end the deadlock over new Commons rules, the majority Liberal government agreed to send the time-limiting proposal to a new rules committee. The original proposal would have empowered the government to set a limit on all debates.

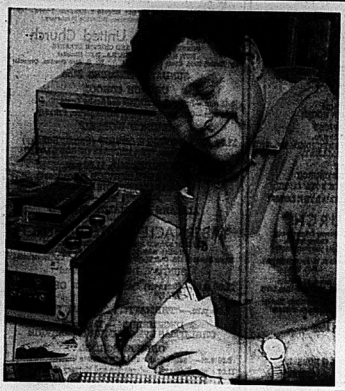
With that block disposed of, the Commons quickly approved the other sweeping rules changes designed to make Parliament a more effective institution.

Bills given first reading—they will come up for debate later—were: Three dealing with pest controls; one eliminating the five-per-cent interest ceiling on loans under the Fisheries Improvement Loans Act and allowing insurance, trust and loan companies to become lenders; another removing an identical interest loan ceiling under the Veterans Land Act; and minor amendments to the Historic Sites and Monuments Act and the Animal Contagious Diseases Act.

On the rules changes, the Commons agreed—in every case unanimously—to have a new committee on procedures keep an eye on the new system of studying estimates in standing committees.

Other changes adopted:

—The committee of ways and means, a committee of the whole House, vanishes. This stage of debate on budget resolutions is replaced by a six-day budget debate and a later debate on bills arising from budget tax proposals.



—The present 38 days devoted to money votes is cut to 25 plus time left over from the eight-day throne speech and budget debates.

—Non-confidence votes are limited to six occasions in a session.

—The daily question period is set at 40 minutes; it now ranges from 30 minutes to 60.

—Sitting hours will be 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday; 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Wednesday; and 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday. This adds half an hour on Wednesday and cuts off 30 minutes on Friday.

All parties applauded the new rules.

Economic Missionaries

Three-man Board to Preach Restraint

OTTAWA (CP) — The government published plans Friday to appoint three economic missionaries who will preach the virtues of pay and price restraint to the Canadian people.

Three "prominent and highly-qualified Canadians" will form the new prices and incomes commission, which will investigate inflationary developments, draw conclusions and persuade government and public to mend their ways when necessary.

"The commission is not designed to impose measures of restraint," says a white paper on policies for price stability, presented to Parliament by Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford.

Except in exceptional circumstances, it would not investigate specific wage or price decisions by individual firms.

Mr. Basford said he hopes appointment of the three commissioners can be made in early February so the agency could have its staff assembled and start work by March.

He would first consult and seek advice from "various economic interest groups" and the provincial governments.

The 34-page policy document says the government hopes well-qualified Canadians will invoke themselves available for appointment.

The commission would be appointed under the Inquiries Act and no further legislation would be needed.

A proposed new joint Commons-Senate committee on price stability, incomes and employment would receive commission reports for public review and make recommendations for parliamentary action.

The three-man commission would "concentrate on short-term developments and its primary focus will be on costs, prices, productivity and income."

Opposition Leader Stanfield said in the Commons the proposals of Mr. Basford don't live up to promises made at the height of last winter's financial crisis to take substantial action against inflation and unemployment.

Current inflation was unacceptable and so was the unemployment level. Yet Prime Minister Trudeau maintained that the government's programs were working well.

In fact, there was an alarming inflationary cycle and serious unemployment, which must affect Finance Minister Benson's and provincial governments' efforts to manage their public debts.

Mr. Basford's proposal was the equivalent of arming the Canadian forces with a pop gun.

Mr. Basford, evidently piqued by the critical reaction, said that if Mr. Stanfield held such boards and committees in such low repute that he could refer to them as poppies, "I can see why he is leader of the Opposition."

Table of Precedence Altered

OTTAWA (CP) — Gov.-Gen. Michener has approved promotions for the Speakers of the Senate and Commons, and the leader of the Opposition in Canada's official table of precedence. Prime Minister Trudeau announced in the Commons Friday.

At official functions, the Speakers of the two houses of Parliament now will rank fourth and fifth, after the Governor-General, the prime minister and the chief justice of Canada, and ahead of foreign ambassadors high commissioners and ministers.

Previously the two Speakers and the leader of the Opposition ranked ninth, 10th and 11th, after the lieutenant-governors, privy councillors retired from the cabinet, and just ahead of church leaders.

CARD PARTY

The card party sponsored by Tanner LOL was held Friday night with twelve table in play. The winners were: women's high, Mrs., Cecil Carter; women's second, Anne Courtney; men's high, Clare Tanner; men's second, James Auger; door prize, Marie Preston.

Hansard Chief Retires

OTTAWA (CP) — A 46-year-old career of reporting and editing the speeches of Canadian members of Parliament ended Friday.

W. W. Buskard, chief of the English section of Hansard—which provides the verbatim record of all Commons debates —retired, taking with him a written and mental record of almost a half century of MPs.

His retirement completes a cycle that began with police-court reporting in 1921 at Brantford when he followed his father and sister into a reporting career, and will finish with more court work, which he plans to do free-lance in retirement.

He came to the capital in 1923 to report on Commons committees. Two years later he joined the Commons Hansard staff and rose to head the English section in 1957.

He spent the years 1925 to 1951 on the floor of the Commons reporting debates. Who does he remember best from these days?

The late Tommy Church, a Toronto MP and one-time mayor, presented one of the greatest problems, Mr. Buskard said in an interview.

Mr. Church had become a bit deaf and his eyesight was failing, which prompted him to speak into his notes, which he held only inches from his mouth.

"If we heard a couple of words we were lucky," Mr. Buskard recalled.

"But we knew there were two main topics he always spoke on —Ontario Hydro and Sir Adam Beck, and the CNR and Sir Henry Thornton.

"So we would look up a couple of his old speeches and reword him. He used to commend us on how well we reported him."

He remembers the late C. D. Howe, the former Liberal trade minister, as "a businessman quite unhappy with parliamentary shackles and restraints."

Mr. Buskard reported the now-famous Howe comments: "What's a million?" and "Who is going to stop us?"

The remarks were later used by the opposition to support their charges of Liberal government arrogance.

"CABLE CHRISTMAS CHEER THROUGHOUT THE YEAR"

Fly, Holy Family, from our immediate rage,
That our future may be freed from our past; retrace
The footsteps of law giving Moses back through the Sterile waste.

Let me get ready from head to foot for it
Most handily with eyes to pick the year,
For small feed to reward a feathered wit.
Some men would see in an epiphany
At ease, at food and drink, others at chase : ∕
Yet I, stung lassitude, with ecstacy
Unspent argue the season's difficult case
What would we look at in the coiling sky?
While Christmas bells of paper white and red,
Figured with boys and girls split from a sled,
Ring out the silence of that night I am nourished by.

Integrity of Leaders Defended

Former Brigadier Refutes Views in McNaughton Book

WINNIPEG (CP) — R. S. Malone, a Canadian Army brigadier during the Second World War, says a recent biography of the late Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton gives a "twisted and biased interpretation of many wartime incidents."

He says John Swettenham's book McNaughton attacks "the integrity, character and honor of many of our finest leaders, some of whom are now dead."

Its publication before complete records can be made public is ill-advised and "in particular it is unfortunate for Gen. McNaughton's own prestige."

Mr. Malone comments in a three-part series on the editorial page of the Winnipeg Free Press, of which he is publisher and editor-in-chief.

Mr. Swettenham is a historian with the Canadian War Museum in Ottawa. His two-volume book was published this year by Ryerson Press and a condensed version in three instalments appeared recently in the Canadian Magazine.

Gen. McNaughton, who died two years ago, organized the 1st Canadian Division and took it overseas at the start of the war.

He was relieved of command in 1943. A year later he became defence minister in the Mackenzie King cabinet, succeeding Col. J. L. Ralston who was dismissed for opposition to King's policy of no conscription for overseas service.

Swettenham's book contends McNaughton's military career was cut off by "political daggers" in the hands of men jealous of his popularity and prestige.

It cites, among others, Col. Ralston himself; his "henchman" Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart, chief of the Canadian general staff; and Sir Alan Brooke (later Field Marshal Alanbrooke), chief of the Imperial general staff.

Writes Mr. Malone:

"The truth of the matter was that most of these men tried desperately to support Gen. McNaughton, even beyond the point when it became obvious to most higher authorities and commanders that Gen. McNaughton was not capable or qualified as a field commander.

"When the full records come to light it will be established that Gen. McNaughton himself was playing both sides of the political street, negotiating with both Conservative and Liberal party leaders in Canada to seize political office in his consuming desire to destroy Col. Ralston. Gen. Stuart and others for reasons of revenge and pride at being removed from command for reasons which were fully justified.

"The truth of the matter is that although Gen. McNaughton did make an enormous contribution towards organizing the Canadian Army he did not have the capacity or temperament to command in battle and the very men he attacked did everything possible to let him down easily and cafer to his vanity. . .

"It would have been better had many of these painful events been allowed to die a natural death over the years, but the current publication of Gen. McNaughton's views which unfairly smear the integrity of men of Col. Ralston's character cannot remain unanswered.

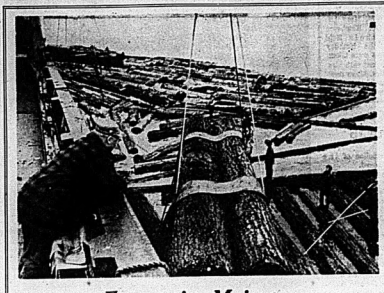
"Among the many false charges in the new book," he writes, "it is recorded that the British, supported by the Canadian chief of general staff (Stuart) and Col. Ralston, were determined to break up the Canadian Army and place our formations under British command, against Gen. McNaughton's advice."

"The truth is just the reverse. It was the wartime Canadian cabinet which insisted that Canadian formations be uprooted from southeast England and given battle experience in Sicily and Italy before the Normandy invasion."

Mr. Malone writes that Gen. McNaughton, in his early days of command, tried to take powers far exceeding his authority. There is "little doubt" he developed a hatred of Ralston when the minister made clear certain decisions could be taken only by the Canadian government, not by the general.

(The book, referring to this, says Ralston's actions tied McNaughton's hands "in any military situation that demanded urgent action.")

As to charges of personal jealousy by Ralston, "few political figures in Canada's history have ever been so retiring from the public eye, so self-effacing and so devoid of vanity." It was Ralston himself who urged the publicity buildup of McNaughton to help Canadian morale and recruiting.



McNaughton's "highly emotional and unstable nature" was illustrated in his message to Prime Minister King Nov. 10, 1943, offering his resignation. The message stated he had lost confidence in Ralston and could "no longer remain in command of the 1st Canadian Army responsible to any government of which he is a member."

The government did not accept the resignation at that time "to save Gen. McNaughton the embarrassment of publicly disclosing the true situation." Some months later, when the general was ill in hospital, the government accepted a subsequent resignation on grounds of health.

Before his return to Canada, a "very frank meeting" was received with Gen. Sir Bernard Paget, McNaughton's immediate superior as general officer commanding 21st Army Group. At this meeting, attended by Gen. Stuart, McNaughton had to be told bluntly why he could not continue in command.

At the meeting, Mr. Malone writes, McNaughton accepted the verdict. He agreed Paget and Alanbrooke were right, that Ralston had been "entirely straight in the whole affair" and his own emotional messages to King were "based on a false premise and misunderstanding of the facts."

As the book clearly shows, the general's pride and vanity on his return to Canada again completely reversed his judgment and he at once began political negotiations toward revenging himself on all his imagained enemies, the very men who had tried to support him.

Pope's Christmas Talk Sombre Warning

VATICAN CITY (AP) — In the most sombre of his Christmas messages to the world, Pope Paul declared Friday night that mankind stands in peril of nuclear destruction and that the society of abundance fails to bear the groans of the poor.

"The use which modern man can make of the murderous forces which he has mastered raises on the horizon, not hope, but heavy clouds of terror and folly," the 71-year-old Roman Catholic pontiff said in a speech broadcast by Vatican radio.

Speaking in Italian, the speech clearly was the most pessimistic of the six Christmas messages he has delivered since becoming leader of the Roman Catholic Church.

In effect, he declared unheeded his message of last year asking countries and men not to arm themselves to "the point of fatal risk."

Throughout the 2,100 words of his pre-recorded message transmitted around the world, Pope Paul hammered on the themes of disquiet which have dominated his recent speeches.

He did not go into the details of international affairs, but took a broad view of the evils of man, of the wealthy industrial society amid spreading poverty and of the abuses of political power.

The Pope assailed student rebellion, saying that "contestation had become a fashion, with a temptation of degenerating into rebellion, violence and anarchy."

Speaking of political leaders, the pontiff expressed his "amazement" at the "heavy-handed repression" allowed by responsible men in a world of strife and anxiety.

"We live in an area of hope," the Pope said, but declared it is an erroneous hope in men's self-sufficiency without God.

1969 Officers Installed

There was an excellent attendance at the December meeting of the Auxiliary Hastings Manor held in the library of the Manor.

The president Mrs. F. Davidson opened the business portion with a few words about the meaning of Christmas Cards.

Committee reports were given which included a report by the flower convener, Mrs. Kingston. She had sent three rose bowls to residents who were ill in Belleville Hospital during the past month. A new record player had been purchased for special care at the Manor and records were played during the afternoon.

Mrs. Ray and Mrs. Loney were presented with gifts in appreciation of their work in the tuck-shop.

Mrs. H. Ketcheson reported for the nominating committee and the following officers for 1969 were installed, by Mrs. Holmes: past. pres., Mrs. H. Ketcheson; pres., Mrs. F. Davidson; 1st. vice-pres., Mrs. D. McLean; 2nd. vice-pres., Mrs. F. Reed; rec. sec., Mrs. N. Wessels; treas., Mrs. O Bertrand; publicity, Mrs. A. Daniels; visiting convener, Mrs. J. Kilburn; social convener, Mrs. Doug. Atkins; handicraft convener, Mrs. A. Boogard, flower convener Mrs. A. Kingston; tuck-shop conveners, Mrs. E. Ray, Mrs. R. Loney, phoning, Mrs. Geo. Elliott, liaison officer, Mrs. K. Yorke.

At the close of the meeting the usual birthday party was held in the dining-room for the residents having birthdays in December. Mrs. Blanch Ross, Mrs. Mary Laroue and Mr. Geo. Ketcheson all celebrating their 89th. birthday cut the birthday cake and pictures were taken.

Lunch was served with Mrs. B. Wells and Mrs. Mayo pouring tea and a social time spent with the honored guests.

AGED TOO LONG

BASTIA, Corsica (AP) — A Corsican frogman searching the depths found two jars of wine identified as of Roman origin and about 2,000 years old. He broke one open, sipped it and pronounced it awful. The other was sent to the Centre of Submarine Archeology for analysis.

Club Reviews Year's Projects

MARMORA — A carol singing service at the Christmas Tree, Marmora, is being sponsored by the New Century Club at 8 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 22. The carols will be led by the young adult groups of all the churches, and afterwards refreshments will be served in the United Church hall.

It was decided at the New Century Club meeting that this practice will be continued annually with one church leading the social hour following carols, and other church groups supplying lunch.

Mrs. G. J. Meiklejohn, chairman, announced at the meeting that the Anglican Church is arranging to decorate the empty store window uptown for the Christmas season. Other themes will be used by other churches on special occasions throughout the year.

The New Century Club will sponsor the St. John Ambulance Course if 15 people enrol, and the fee for the five-week course is $5. Safety posters which have been displayed here will be forwarded to other areas for use by safety committees.

The Chairman announced that the firemen are purchasing extension tables for the town hall to fit the tables bought by the New Century Club early in the year.

Historical survey for the museum has been completed and all organizations were asked to submit their histories for the archives in Marmora Public Library. The bulletin board is ready for erection and will be installed before the end of the year.

Approximately 60 people attended the cake decorating classes on Nov. 14-15 which was termed very successful, and dates of other craft classes will be announced early in the year.

A review of the work of the organization for 1968 was outlined as follows:

In April a tea and art show was held. Windows in the old IGA store were dressed for the summer months with a craft display. This was followed by a safety display in September and October.

Extended visits were purchased for the town hall. A cupboard was built to be kept in Marmora Public Library of house archives and centennial records.

A horticultural Society was introduced and organized by the New Century Club. Fair pamphlets for prizes were printed and distributed to various organizations, resulting in an increased interest in crafts.

The New Century Club promoted and assisted financially with the erection of the town bulletin board.

Cupboards were built in the town hall for use of Guides, Scouts, Cubs and Brownies in storing their equipment.

The UNICEF collection sponsored by the New Century Club realized $112.

The Club also looked after an historical survey on architecture for the Ontario Building Inventory Project, and pictures of buildings were taken for the Belleville Museum and for the University of Toronto.

The free craft classes in November with two afternoons of a cake decorating exhibition was a project of the club.

Following the business meeting, slides of centennial year were shown by Mrs. Douglas Vilneff. At the January meeting a vote will be taken as to whether or nor the New Century Club will continue.

Ann Landers
Mistrust of Children Cause for Unhappiness

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell me what is wrong with my husband. We used to be a happy family, but no more.

We have two boys and two girls. The youngest is six, the oldest 14. They are good children and have never caused us any trouble.

ANN LANDERS

My husband now refuses to go anywhere in the evening because he does not trust the boys at home with girls. He has ordered the boys to stay out of their sisters' rooms and to keep their hands off them. He will not let our 14-year-old son help his 12-year-old sister with her homework.

The kids are beginning to think he is crazy. Frankly, so do I. My husband says I am naive and that parents can't be too careful today. Please give me your opinion of this. — NEED HELP.

* * *

DEAR NEED: Your husband has a bat in his belfry and I hope he gets rid of it before his kids write him off as a total loss.

In some families, very young brothers and sisters do some exploring and this is not abnormal. As they grow older, the curiosity is dissipated and privacy becomes the order of the day.

The situation as you describe it will result in both the boys and the girls viewing their dad as a nut. Tell him to talk to a doctor if he doesn't believe you or me.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a woman, 51, who is married to a man 22 years my senior. This was no love affair and he knew it. I married for love once and that was enough.

My husband is a refined, cultured gentleman who wanted companionship and I was certain I could provide it. We have been married six years and they have been the happiest years of my life. He says they have been his happiest years, too. We have traveled extensively and I have taken good care of him.

A few months ago my husband suffered a serious heart attack. He is no longer bedridden but his health is failing. His two married children have never liked me and now that their father is unwell they have become downright insulting. I was told yesterday that I should be very pleased with myself because soon I will get my hands on the money. I've had my eye on from the beginning.

I am heartsick, Ann. I want my stepchildren to like me but I have failed completely. Please tell me what to do. — GOLDEN GATE V.

DEAR V: Your stepchildren will never like you, so stop trying to achieve the impossible.

Ignore their insults and concentrate on making your husband's remaining days happy ones. He is worth your time and effort. They are not.

Christmas Theme Highlights W.I. Meetings

QUINTE W.I.

The December meeting of the Quinte W.I. was held in the W.I. Hall, with president, Mrs. C. Reid in charge.

Secretary, Mrs. Charles Wood read the minutes and correspondence. Mrs. Cecil Keene, Mrs. Harry Thomson were named for the 4-H project girls for the winter of appreciation was read from Mrs. Helen McClaren, the past district president, expressing her thanks for the kindness shown her during her term of office.

Mrs. Harry Grills was in charge of the Christmas program and opened it with Christmas carols, with Mrs. J Parrott at the piano. The motto, how to make a happier Christmas for others was given by Mrs. W. J. Tufts.

Mrs. Insley gave a Christmas message with singing of several carols and reading of Scripture in keeping with the Christmas season. Mrs. J. Garbott was in charge of distributing the gifts during the exchange.

At the conclusion of the program, a surprise presentation was made by Mrs. Russell Boldrick and Mrs. Edgar Goodfellow, when they presented their mother, Mrs. Douglas Atkins with a "life membership badge."

A delicious lunch in keeping with the Christmas season was served by Mrs. Robert Atkin, Mrs. W. J. Tufts, Mrs. Don Leeming, Mrs. C. Reid and Mrs. A. Robertson. As a special treat, Mrs. Harry Grills served homemade Christmas cake.

MOUNTAIN VIEW WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

MOUNTAIN VIEW — Mrs. Wilfred Molley and Mrs. Fred Mosey opened their home for the December Christmas meeting of Mountain View Women's Institute. This was couples' night and there were 49 present.

A short business session was held and the remainder of the evening was spent in entertainment. A duet was rendered by Mr. and Mrs. David Farmer with Mrs. Bob Barber accompanying them on the piano. Christmas carols were also sung.

A sale of home made articles was auctioned by Mrs. K. Motley and Mrs. H. Motley and the proceeds for this was $25.

The evening concluded with the playing of progressive euchre.

Lunch was served by the hostesses. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Thelma Blackwell, on January 8th, 1969.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONCERT

EMMANUEL BAPTIST

On Sunday evening the Sunday School of Emmanuel Baptist Church presenten its Christmas program under the direction of the Sunday School Superintendent, Mrs. A. Quirk, assisted by Mrs. Kerr at the piano. Mrs. B. Hamilton gave an organ prelude and an offertory selection.

Mrs. J. Low and Miss Campbell, leaders of the primary department had the children sing two selections, The Junior Choir from Mrs. Jensen's and Mrs. Kerr's classes, carried the theme in their songs as Juniors and Intermediates, assisted "The Annunciation", "The Manger Scene", "The Shepherds" and "Herod and the Wise Men." The Male Quartet, comprised of Sunday School teachers Mr. R. Bolhuis, Mr. C. Dondale, Mr. D. Rowe and Mr. P. Wiegand gave another fine rendition.

The lighting arrangement was by Paul Wiegand.

The offering was given to the church to help in the payment of the mortgage.

To Battle Crime Rate - Islands May Be Answer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. CP — John Hogan, who recently retired as an RCMP staff sergeant following 27 years of police service, says being an island is still Newfoundland's biggest advantage in fighting crime.

"Make sure your exit is planned properly," was his advice to would-be criminals.

He said that with today's rapid systems of communications, the only way a criminal could successfully flee the island would be by private aircraft.

S. Sgt. Hogan joined the Newfoundland Rangers in 1941 and served with them until 1949, when the Rangers were absorbed by the RCMP following Confederation.

He said in an interview that people have changed over the years and now have an attitude of indifference towards police. He blamed this partly on police forces and partly on the modern age.

"In days gone by, everyone was on foot and the policeman knew everyone in his patrol area by name. He was always in touch with them. This has gone now."

TO SUPPLY PIGS

DUBLIN (AP) — Ireland's Freedom from Hunger Council has flown 130 pigs to India to start a pork production program in Andha Pradesh province under supervision of James Treby, an agriculture specialist from Tipperary.

UCW MEETINGS

FLINTON U.C.W.

Mrs. W. Killingbeck, Mrs. M. Dean, Mrs. E. Grubl, and Alice and Mary Ellen Wiley were guests for the evening's meeting. They opened the meeting with the United Church Women's hymn and prayer.

Mrs. Freeburn, the president, read from the Bible on the birth of Jesus Christ. Mrs. B. Wiley gave the devotion. The women exchanged Christmas gifts and sang Christmas carols.

Lunch was served by the hostess. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Thelma Blackwell, on January 8th, 1969.

Club Activities

BELLEVILLE AND DISTRICT AQUARIUM CLUB

The highlight of the recent meeting of the Belleville and District Aquarium Club was a tape and slide program of African Killifishes.

Slides showing their natural habitat, which is the Congo region, illustrated their natural environment in an aquarium, spawning habits and general aquarium care.

Door prizes were won by Barry Spring, Richard Seeley; John Yank and Merl Allen.

Successful Living

THEN — I'LL BELIEVE

When I awake and find no sun
To bring the morn and warmth of day,
No moon at night to light the darkened sky,
Then — I'll believe that God is dead,

When birds refuse to wing their way
O'er pathless sky — to guide their young
To warmer climes, and rest a while,
Then — I'll believe that God is dead.

When people in my city feel
They cannot share their gifts
With others not so blest.
Then — I'll believe that God is dead.

When Christians over all the world
Do not believe that God
Revealed Himself in Christ His Son,
Then — I'll believe that God is dead.

— A Believer)

A reader sent us this poem, commenting only: "I thought perhaps you might like to print my Christmas poem as I feel all Christians should speak out against those who do not believe that there is a great Architect of the universe." (Thank you for sharing your thoughtful verses with us, dear Believer.)

Doris Differentiates Between Guests, Visitors and Boarders

Dear Doris: Who would you call a guest in your home?

Suppose I am your mother, and I do try to help you, doing some ironing, washing dishes, baby-sitting for your daughter in the p.m. Would I be a guest? On top of this I pay some money for the room I am using, per week. — Your answer would help more than one person. — A Puzzled Mother.

Dear Puzzled: It's a poser. We think of a guest as a visitor, a welcome one, to whom we give hospitality, and whose presence we intend to enjoy. Such a visitor may help in some way, like drying the dishes or washing after a dinner she has shared. But she would not pay out cash for what she ate. Nor would she be expected to take charge of anything, nor offer criticisms.

A boarder is sometimes called a paying guest. He also gets certain services and may return a handyman's courtesies. And he stays out of family arguments.

I'd say when a mother and a married daughter share a home and share the work in it the older woman had better be aware she is treading on eggs. Even helping with any and every type task does not give her leave to behave like anything but a guest.

Have I hit the sore spot?

Confidential to Campaigner: The more informal your coffee party, the better. This is a chance for a few friends to get to know your candidate as a likeable and interesting person.

For "elevenses" you could serve hot English muffins and jam, or Danish pastries, or Canadian coffee cake. No need for fancy service with hired help. Two or three friends will help cart things from kitchen, serve them, pass them. Good luck!

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Jenny, don't act so rude. Say 'Good morning' to Mrs. Smith."

Mrs. Smith: "I'll bet the cat has got her tongue."

Don't demand too much of the timid 4-year-old. Be gracious and friendly and eventually she will imitate you. Until she gains more poise, extend her greetings for her.

Mother: "Good morning, Mrs. Smith. We're both so glad to see you. Isn't it a nice day? Jenny and I are taking a long walk."

A Lavishly Bold Dessert

By MARY MOORE

This is a high-spirited dessert as it was served to us at Glenhyrst Antique and Art Sale in Brantford last May. Shirley liked it so much she said, "Wouldn't it be a wonderful Christmas dessert for folks who do not want a rich Christmas pudding?"

I have given some substitutions that tame it down a little but our bold and lusty cooks can ignore them if they choose.

GRASSHOPPER BAVARIAN
(serves 8 to 10)

1 envelope plain gelatine
½ cup cold water
¼ cup granulated sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
3 eggs, yolks and whites separated
¼ cup creme de menthe (liqueur) (see note below)
½ cup best quality sherry
½ cup granulated sugar (second amount)
½ pint 32 per cent (whipping) cream
1 square unsweetened chocolate, shredded or grated

(NOTE: If you do not want to use creme de menthe Liqueur substitute ½ cup sherry making ½ cup in all plus 7 or 8 drops green food coloring and ½ teaspoon peppermint extract.)

In a saucepan soak the gelatine in the cold water 5 minutes. Stir in ¼ cup sugar (first amount), salt and egg yolks and stir over medium-low heat until slightly thickened—about 5 to 7 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in creme de menthe and sherry (or ½ cup sherry). Chill in pan of ice water, stirring occasionally until mixture begins to congeal.

Meanwhile beat egg whites until foamy then gradually add ¼ cup sugar (second amount) beating until stiff. Beat gelatine mixture until foamy and fold into stiffly beaten whites. Whip cream until stiff and fold in until all is smoothly blended. Spoon into 8 or 10 stemmed glasses.

Onto a sheet of wax paper shred the square of bitter chocolate on your ¼" shredder. It results in a big pile of little ¼" curls. Spoon sprinkle this all over tops of Bavarians. Chill.

These may be made 24 hours in advance and refrigerated. Sensationally different and sophisticated.

YOUR ANTIQUES

First Christmas Cards Created Public Commotion

One of the first Christmas cards to be sent created a public commotion in England involving the Royal Family, in 1843, Sir Henry Cole, a personal friend of the husband of Queen Victoria, Prince Albert, sent out a Christmas greeting card.

He commissioned John C. Horsley, RA to design a card and 1,000 were printed. The design consisted of three panels, enclosed by a grape entwined trellis. One side panel depicted "feeding the hungry" and the other, "clothing the naked", all suitable Victorian sentiments. However, the central panel showed grandparents, parents and children all celebrating Christmas by drinking a glass of wine together.

The lithographer, Jobbins of Warwick Court, Holborn, offered the cards for sale to the public at a shilling each. There were immediate protests from temperance adherents who stated the cards promoted drunkenness. This public uproar served to stimulate interest and other artists were called upon to design "suitable" Christmas cards. The Royal Family asked noted painters to submit paintings and a number were accepted as designs for cards.

By 1850 Christmas cards were firmly established as a custom and later in that decade children's cards appeared with Little Red Riding Hood and a figure barely recognizable as a Santa Claus.

By 1884 there was sufficient interest in Christmas cards for an investigation to be published by the London Times as to who was the innovator of the first card. The Reverend Edward Bradley of Newcastle, one contender, sent cards in 1844 and William Egley, a 16-year-old artist sent a card, possibly as early as 1842. Egley's card carries the still timely message "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year." After much investigation the Times decided upon Sir Henry Cole as the man who sent the first card, being unable to decide whether Egley's card was dated 1842 or 1849.

Cards were not produced in any quantity on this side of the Atlantic until the 1870s. By 1881 Louis Prang was producing 5,000,000 a year in the United States.

Esther Howland, a lady famous for her Valentines, also made Christmas cards in the United States. Valentines antedate Christmas cards by many years. Christmas cards must have appeared in Canada at the same time they did in the United States, but no name emerges as a famous designer.

Late in the century Kate Greenaway worked as an artist for the English card firm of Marcus Ward. Her cards are collectors' items. Her influence persists in children's party clothing styles. The illustration shows one of her cards republished in 1965.

Egley's card is in the British Museum. Sir Henry Cole's card may still turn up although most were accounted for in 1884. Howland, Ward, Prang and the English firm of Tuck all produced cards sought by collectors. Prices are dependent upon date, rarity, sender, receiver and condition. Prices for each card are negotiated individually.

Run-of-the-mill late Victorian cards are currently worth 10 cents to $1 and the price is rising.

Church Groups

MISSION CIRCLE

The Vota Vita Mission Circle held its Christmas meeting at Victrica Avenue Baptist Church. A business meeting was held, chaired by retiring president Nora Hales, who spoke briefly and expressed her appreciation for past co-operation.

Officers for 1969 will be installed early in the new year. A number of letters were read and matters of importance considered. Donations to the Christmas project were received.

Mrs. Carol Soble and her group took charge of the meeting. A devotional period with group members participating told "The Story of Bethlehem" with Scripture from Luke's Gospel, poems, Christmas hymns and a Christmas selection sung by Mrs. R. Gazley.

Mrs. M. Gallupe presented a meditation "And He Sent Them to Bethlehem". A candle was lit to represent the Life and Birth of Jesus. Other candles were lit and prayers offered for missions in India, Africa, Bolivia and Home Missions.

Miss M. Hales led a singsong of Christmas selections. Mrs. N. Wynne was winner of a memory-test game after which lunch was served and Christmas gifts exchanged.

Investiture In April

Foulkes Named To Order

OTTAWA (CP) — Gen. Charles Foulkes, 65, commander of Canadian troops in Italy and Holland during the Second World War, was named a Companion of the Order of Canada along with 12 other distinguished Canadians Friday.

Government House also announced the award of the Medal of Service of the order to 23 men and women, half the quota for the year allowed by the order.

The next list of award winner is expected to be announced about July 1 1969.

A Government House spokesman said an investiture for the new award winners probably will take place in April.

Other newly-named companions are:

Robert Choquette, 63, novelist, poet and diplomat, first associate commissioner of the Centennial Commission and now Canadian ambassador to Argentina.

Roger Gaudry, 55, scientist and rector of the University of Montreal.

Diamond Jenness, 82, anthropologist and a director of intelligence for the RCAF and defence department in the Second World War.

A. R. M. Lower, award-winning historian and author of Colony to Nation, among other books. Prof. Lower lives in Kingston and is a retired Queen's University professor.

Gordon B. McGregor, 67, retired president of Air Canada.

J. Alphonse Ouimet, 60, pioneer television engineer and former president of the CBC.

Clennell H. (Punch) Dickins, 69, pioneer bush pilot; Eugene Forsey, 63, economist and political scientist; Pierre Grondin, chest and cardio-vascular surgeon; Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada; Helen Hogg, 63, astronomer;

George Klein, 64, principal research officer of the National Research Council; Elizabeth Homer Morton, 65, former executive director of the Canadian Library Association; F. A. W. Peacock, 61, Anglican clergyman and missionary; Harold Town, 44, painter, sculptor and printmaker.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

Grapes of Wrath Author Dies At 66

NEW YORK (AP) — John Steinbeck, winner of the 1962 Nobel Prize for literature, is dead at age 66. The Grapes of Wrath, his compassionate portrayal of migrant workers during the Depression, won the 1940 Pulitzer Prize.

Steinbeck died in his sleep at his home Friday of heart and respiratory failure. He had been in failing health for some time.

His literary output included 24 works of fiction but it was The Grapes of Wrath that secured his reputation.

The book was made into a movie starring Henry Fonda and Jane Darwell and was soon on the required reading lists at scores of colleges and universities.

Although the book brought him lasting fame, Steinbeck did his best to avoid the literary limelight. He appeared most at ease with the sort of people that he wrote best about--the Okies, paisanos, ranch hands and others of little pretension who he first met while growing up in Salinas, Calif.

He was born Feb. 27, 1902, the only son of a miller, John Steinbeck Sr. His mother, Olive Hamilton Steinbeck, taught in the Salinas schools. He attended Stanford University where he wrote poems and comic satires but did not graduate.

Restless, he came east on a freighter via the Panama Canal and in New York he worked briefly as a reporter for the old New York Journal. He also worked as a hodcarrier during construction of the old Madison Square Garden.

Returning to California he took a carstakers job at Lake Tahoe in the Sierras and there wrote Cup of Gold--his fourth novel but the first to be published.

Two more novels followed before he wrote Tortilla Flat which was his first critical and popular success. In 1937, he published Of Mice and Men, a tragic fable of the strong and weak, which was adapted for the Broadway stage.

The Grapes of Wrath, published in 1939, was banned and burned in East St. Louis, Ill., and some critics called Steinbeck a Communist because of the book. He was not, however, and later he tangled with Communist ideology.

In addition to novels, Steinbeck's exceptional ear for speech and his story-telling ability brought him a number of movie scripts to write. Many movies also were based on his work including East of Eden, The Red Pony, Tortilla Flat and the Moon is Down.

Steinbeck is survived by his third wife, the former Elaine Scott, once married to actor Zachary Scott; and two sons by a previous marriage, Thom, 24, on leave from service in Vietnam, and John, 22, currently a civilian writer in Vietnam.

A funeral service will be held Monday at St. James Episcopal Church here. The remains will be cremated and taken to Salinas for burial.

2nd Thurlow

2ND THURLOW — Mr. and Mrs. Archie Greatrix have returned home after spending some time with the latter's niece and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hoadley at New London, Conn. While there, they attended the wedding of John Hoadley to Miss Jessica Brown R.N.

Miss Peggy Thomson of McMaster University, Hamilton, spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thomson.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mitchell accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Woods to Campbellford where they called on friends. Later, they visited Chas. Morton who is a patient in the Campbellford Hospital.

Mrs. Douglas Atkins spent a couple of days with her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Atkins, Brighton.

Mr. A. Clarkson, from England, has spent the summer with his daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. William Leeming. His daughter, Kathleen, also from England, joined him sometime ago and is staying at the Leeming home. They have visited friends and relatives in various places while here. They plan to return home after the holiday season.

My Sincere Thanks and Appreciation To My Many Friends In Sidney Township, Hastings County and Quinte Area

I extend to each and everyone a Very Merry Christmas and every Good Wish for the coming year.

Mo-Hawk Grasp Can't Hold Galt

By MAURICE SWITZER
(Sports Editor)

For Belleville's Mo-Hawks, the only thing that could be worse than the third-period hex that has plagued them this season would be a fourth-period jinx, and they managed to fall prey to that last night.

To the surprise of the small-est local senior hockey turnout of the season — some 458 paid admissions — the Mo-Hawks found themselves leading the powerful Galt Hornets 4-3 before the bubble burst to set the stage for a 5-4 Hornet win in a ten minute, sudden-death over-time period.

Galt's win boosted them into top spot in the eight-team OHA Senior grouping past the idle Barrie Flyers, who had been the leaders throughout the 10-week schedule.

But the Hornets probably haven't had to scramble harder for any other of their previous 14 wins than they did last night.

Slick centre George Godson could have been nominated for the office of his choice at the 18.58 mark of the final period, when he broke up a 3-3 stalemate of end-to-end hockey to give the Mo-Hawks their chance for an upset of the mighty Hornets.

But Pete Brennan lit the Belleville goal lamp and dimmed Mo-Hawk hopes for victory when he banged in a scrambly goal with only nine seconds remaining in regulation time and with Galt goalie Ron Boomer on the bench in favor of a sixth Hornet attacker.

It took Bill Hway 4.06 of the sudden-death overtime period to send the Hornets jubilantly on their way home, the game-winner coming on another goal-edge flurry as a result of Mo-Hawk puck-clearing problems.

Wayne McConnell continued his current production binge, sending the Mo-Hawks into a 1-0 lead at 3.47 of the opening period on an unassisted 50-foot slap over Boomer's shoulder, and deflecting Eddie Marineau's point shot home at 4.24 of the middle frame.

Dietrich's second goal of the game at 7.18 of the third put the Hornets in front 3-2 until burly Al Ferguson finessed his way past a Galt defender on Andy Teeple's neat pass to beat Boomer with a high riser at 12.10.

Jack Wilton, moved up to left wing on the Teeple - Ferguson line, moved back on defence after captain Lionel Bolty was shaken up in a first - period collision with a Galt attacker.

Teeple played his best game in a Mo-Hawk uniform, back - checking, fore-checking and neatly performing the set - up honors on Ferguson's third Belleville goal.

Larry Holmes had another of his hectic nights, with no less than 49 potential Hornet goals coming his way.

He stopped better scoring opportunities by Ron Ertel and Vance Millar than those on which the Hornets got their goals.

Holmes also drew a rare penalty for delaying the game when he pulled in a loose puck with no Galt players threatening at 12.24 in the second period.

The Mo-Hawks would have been glad for a point-split with the Hornets, heading into the toughest weekend double - header available in senior hockey. Tomorrow, the locals journey to Barrie for an afternoon game with the formidable Flyers.

Plante Keeps Blues Happy

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goaltender Jacques Plante of St. Louis Blues appears determined to make one of the most startling comebacks in recent memory in the National Hockey League.

After three seasons of retirement, the 39-year-old Plante was drafted by the Blues from New York Rangers last spring. The move surprised almost everybody, including Plante.

But Plante and his 37-year-old colleague, Glenn Hall, have given the Blues the best goal-tending in the NHL.

Friday night Plante and his St. Louis team-mates blanked Oakland Seals 1-0 in the only NHL game.

The shutout for Plante was his fourth of the season and the 65th of his long NHL career. St. Louis goaltenders have allowed only 66 goals in 30 games, the best record in the league.

Tim Ecclestone's fourth goal of the season, coming late in the first period on a power play, gave St. Louis the victory. Red Berenson, leading scorer in the Western Division, set up the tally with a perfect pass in front of the net to Ecclestone.

Report Under Fire

Council Balks at Footing Horse Bill

By STERLING TAYLOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Brig. Dennis Whitaker of Toronto, chairman of the Canadian equestrian team, says the Canadian fitness council's $1,000 grant to that sport in 1967 was "pretty ridiculous" when contrasted with the $16,634 handed out to the Canadian Women's Field Hockey Association.

"The council has steadfastly refused to pay anything toward the cost of the horses and transporting the horses to places like Mexico City (for the 1968 Olympics) is the big cost," Whitaker said Friday.

He was commenting on the annual financial statement by the National Advisory Council on Fitness and Amateur Sport for the 1967-68 fiscal year, which ended March 31.

Whitaker said the equestrian team was granted $11,800 during the 1968 Olympic year, but the council still refused to pay the cost of shipping the team's horses.

"There has been a negative attitude towards horses and horsemen for some time," he said. "It seems ridiculous to transport yachts and refuse to transport horses, although I have no beef against the yachting people.

"They (the council) feel that people who keep horses can afford to ship them. But if you're going to pay expenses for the riders and they've got to ride something, there's not much point in not sending the horses."

The Canadian equestrian team won a gold medal in the 1967 Pan Am Games and another—Canada's only gold—at the 1968 Olympics in October.

The financial statement by the fitness council, especially the $1,250,978 allotment to sports governing bodies, forms one of the more interesting aspects of the report. It shows that a total of $1,004,637 was granted to organizations not directly connected with competitive sport, such as the Canadian Camping Association and the Boy Scouts of Canada.

Sports On All Fronts

MONTREAL (CP) — Czechoslovakia's national hockey team moves to Ottawa for, a second game Sunday against Canada's eastern national squad after winning the first one 3-1 Friday night in Montreal. The Czechs, silver medals winners in this year's winter Olympics at Grenoble, France, opened their six-game Canadian tour against a squad reinforced by six players from the western national team based at Winnipeg. Steve Rex defended the Canadian goal in the third period. The crowd of 3,100 was almost lost in the 18,969-seat Montreal Forum.

TORONTO (CP) — Former Toronto Maple Leaf defenceman Carl Brewer has been used as a guinea pig by the Russians to learn the intricacies of National Hockey League play. Russian coach Anatoly Tarasov talked Brewer into working out with the Russians last September and wrote about the experience in a Soviet weekly sports publication. Tarasov said in the article he talked with Brewer in a Helsinki motel room after the Russians had defeated Finland 12-1 in a game and persuaded him to practice with the Soviet team the next day.

CHICAGO (AP) — The 24 major league baseball club heads failed to elect a new commissioner today after a tug-of-war that lasted almost 15 hours and went through 19 unsuccessful ballots. The meeting broke up after John McHale, former executive assistant in the commissioner's office, removed his name from consideration while apparently on the verge of being elected. McHale said he preferred to devote himself to his new job as president of the expansion Montreal Expos.

Ice Shortage Sends Juniors Down to Bay for Scrimmages

STAFF — The festive season is upon us and Sunday at the Belleville Arena the Belleville Morrisons will be out to celebrate it with a win over league - leading Peterborough Don Byes.

At the same time, a game spectator will have the lucky ticket stub which will win him a Christmas turkey in the Junior "B" club's annual Christmas draw.

Team manager Jim Matthews said the Morrisons will likely dress two or three members of Belleville's juvenile all - stars in an attempt to bolster the club for the Peterborough encounter.

The Morrisons have missed the services of defenceman Greg Burkitt, who left Belleville to work in Toronto, but coach Floyd Crawford hopes that Burkitt will be back in Belleville for the holidays and available for a regular shift on the blueline Sunday.

Belleville had only thirteen players on hand in Cobourg Monday night when they dropped a 7-4 decision to the Cougars, and coach Crawford is hoping for a full squad for Sunday's game against the Don Byes, who defeated Belleville in their only previous meeting this season.

The Morrisons practiced down on the harbor, using the Wharf Street Debating Club as a dressing room, Wednesday and Thursday nights because of a shortage of ice time at the local Arena.

Belleville is currently in the basement of the six team Junior "B" league, but they trail fifth place Kingston by only four points and will be looking to narrow the gap as they aim for a playoff spot.

Hull's 72-hour Retirement Draws 'Comeback-of-Year' Gibe

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Bill Surette, a hockey stick company executive from Boston, flew to Montreal on Sept. 17, 1968, where he changed planes with the intention of visiting Boston Bruins' training camp at London, Ont.

After a short snooze, Surette awoke to find himself en route to London, England.

It was only one of dozens of oddities which cropped up in Canadian sport in 1968.

The 134 sports writers and broadcasters who voted in the 34th annual Canadian Press year-end poll covered the whole sports calendar as they voted for the disappointment, thrill, surprise, oddity and comeback of the year.

One Winnipeg writer chose the two-year contract of Blue Bombers' coach Joe Zaleski as his surprise of the year. The Bombers had finished last.

Several voters cast their oddity ballots for coach Punch Imlach's edict against sideburns for the Toronto Maple Leaf players. The Leafs themselves drew a lot of votes as disappointment of the year for missing the 1967-68 National Hockey League playoffs.

Generally, the voters attacked the Canadian Olympic teams—summer and winter—as the disappointment of 1968. The national hockey team, which won a bronze medal, was singled out for special mention.

The thrill of 1968, by a wide margin, was the performance of Nancy Greene of Rossland, B.C., who won a gold and a silver at the Winter Olympics at Grenoble, France, then followed up by taking the World Cup of skiing for a second year.

In the comeback category, however, there was wide divergence. Some voted for goalie Jacques Plante's return to hockey after an absence of three years; others chose Bobby Hull's return after an absence of one game.

St. Kitts' Hawks Stretch Junior A Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Black Hawks scalped second-year entry Ottawa 67s 11-2 Friday to increase their Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series lead to three points and fatten their goal-collection. The leaders have scored 151 goals in 27 games, 29 more than Niagara Falls Flyers.

Flyers, holders of third place in the 10-team group, helped the Hawks by edging second-place Peterborough Petes 3-2. In one other Friday game, at Kitchener, the last-place Rangers revealed signs of life with their second straight victory, 4-3 over Oshawa Generals.

Bob Sheehan, who was brought to St. Catharines from Halifax Junior Canadiens this season, and captain Skeeter Teal paced the Hawks with two goals each. The rest of the league leaders' one-sided win was shared by Allan Young, Rick Dudley, Doug Rombough, Dick Redmond, Al McDonough, Wayne Ego and Marcel Dionne, all with single goals.

Scoring for Ottawa were Pierre Jarry and Bob Clarke.

Before a crowd of 2,400 at Niagara Falls, the defending Memorial Cup champion Flyers gained revenge on the Petes for a 5-1 setback Thursday in Peterborough.

Team captain Don Tannahill, with his 25th goal of the season, rookie Don Thompson and Doug Brindley, with his 20th of the year, all scored once for the Flyers.

The Petes grabbed leads in the first period on goals by defenceman Jim Jones and Tony Featherstone. The Petes, four points ahead of the Flyers in second place, held a 2-1 lead after the first period. All three goals were scored with the opposition playing two men short.

Kitchener Rangers edged to eight points away from the eighth and final playoff position, shared by Oshawa and Ottawa, with their fifth win of the season.

Dave Cressman paced the winners with two goals. The other Ranger scores were Cam Crosby and Rob Hurlburt. Tom Forcelli, Jerry Meihe and Steve Cardvell replied for the Generals.

TORONTO (CP) — American golf professionals are becoming so conscious of television cameras that makeup artists might be used soon in locker rooms, Hall of Fame golfer Gene Sarazen said Friday. The American pros are getting so camera conscious that they check over their wardrobe pretty carefully before they tee off if they know it will be on television," said Sarazen. "I can see in the future where there will be a dozen pros lined up in the locker room with makeup artists patting their cheeks."

Boozer Leads Bull Parade

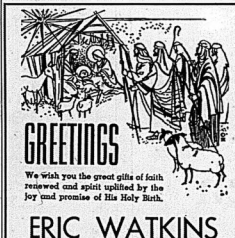
TORONTO (CP) — The International Skating Union should abolish or modify compulsory figures, two figure skating coaches suggested in interviews Friday.

Sheldon Galbraith of Toronto, coach of Barbara Ann Scott when she won the world championship in 1948, said there should be a modification of the rules.

Ellen Burka, mother and coach of former world champion Petra Burka of Toronto, said the figures are outmoded.



"Nobody likes them. . . ."

Mrs. Burka said the thinks skating officials are changing their minds about compulsory figures.

"This year for the first time since 1951, figures will count for 50 per cent of a skater's performance," she said.

They used to count 60 per cent.

Freed From Buried Box

I'm Fine, I'm Fine Says Kidnapped Girl

By FRANK MURRAY

MIAMI (AP) — Kidnap victim Barbara Jane Mackle returned to her parents today after she was freed from a box in which she was buried for more than three nights in the freezing North Georgia woodlands. Her parents paid a $500,000 ransom.

"I'm fine, I'm fine, Uncle Frank," Barbara told Frank Mackle by telephone after the rescue.

And the 20-year-old co-ed told her mother that during the more than 80 hours she was in the box she worried most that her family was worrying about her.

Barbara's ordeal ended about 5 p.m. EST Friday. The girl still wore the red-and-white checkered nightgown she had on when she was kidnapped. The kidnappers gave the word where Barbara could be found some 15 hours after retrieving the suitcase full of $20 bills from a shopping centre in Miami.

When the noon deadline for the girl's release had passed with no word of her safety, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover announced that kidnap warrants had been issued for Gary Steve Krist, 23, an escaped convict from California, and Ruth Eisemann Schier, 28, a green-eyed bleached blonde. Both were researchers at the University of Miami Institute of Marine Science.

Hoover said the box in which the debutante was imprisoned near Atlanta was equipped with an air pump, food, water, a fan and a battery-powered lamp that failed hours before she was located.

The lid of the box was screwed down and flexible vent pipes protruded through the soil.

Barbara told her brother the kidnappers "were very considerate" and she told her mother she was "very well taken care of by a woman," Frank Mackle said.

Once rescued, Barbara was bundled into a suit and warm blue coat and rushed aboard her father's private plane in Atlanta. The father, Robert F. Mackle, a multi-millionaire land developer, looked worn but managed a thin smile.

The plane flew to Miami but when it landed at Opa-Locka Airport only the pilot was aboard. Several members of the Mackle family live on islands cut off from the press and it was obvious the family was taking the girl into seclusion.

Hoover said Krist escaped from a California reformatory through a hail of gunfire that killed his cellmate, then set about building another identity as George D. Deacon.

In December, 1967, one month after the escape, Krist brought his wife and two children to Boston. There, the high school graduate — described by the warden of the reformatory as "a young man of very superior intelligence"—convinced officials of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology that he had an education in electrical engineering. He worked 18 months at MIT as an electronics technician.

Last June Krist—under the name Deacon—came to the University of Miami Institute of Marine Science as a technician in submarine geology.

A 1345-foot speedboat stolen from the institute was used Thursday in recovery of the suitcase packed with $500,000 in $20 bills. But two policemen stumbled onto the ransom effort, chasing the kidnappers who left the money behind.

Also left behind was a duffle bag filled with frogman diving gear, the stolen boat and a car traced to the bogus tag to Deacon, the FBI said.

Deacon's wife and two children went to California two weeks before the kidnapping, his neighbors said.

The woman in the case, a five-foot-three 110-pounder with a chemistry degree from the National University of Mexico, claimed to be a native of El Hatillo, Honduras, Hoover said.

Ignatieff Hopes For UN Success

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canadian Ambassador George Ignatieff Friday expressed hope for progress in the United Nations role in peacekeeping and some fear for the future in southern Africa.

The points were raised in a discussion at the 23rd annual meeting of the General Assembly which ended today.

The veteran diplomat said the assembly was faced with an unusual combination of frustrations and added that because of them it was not to be expected that great decisions would be made.

These frustrations included the continuing Middle East crisis, the failure to get substantive talks going on Vietnam, the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia, the transition of government in the United States and the Nigerian-Biafran conflict and the disinclination of the Africans to bring that matter before the UN.

On top of that was certain dislocation among Afro-Asians with important changes among the leadership.

Some of his thoughts:

PEACEKEEPING

There was hope that by the next assembly the major powers would have agreed on principles governing UN observer groups, such as those now in operation in the Middle East.

These groups can be sent to areas of conflict to observe and report to the UN—"to keep the cool," in Ignatieff's words—and are not the large armed groups used to separate hostile factions.

France and the Soviet Union have been the major opponents over the years to UN peacekeeping operations, on the grounds of legality. Now, Ignatieff said, there is hope that all major powers can agree at least on observer groups and how to finance them. After agreement is reached on this there is hope that discussion can go on to the broader aspects of peacekeeping.

SOUTHERN AFRICA

Afro-Asian states had expressed the same frustration this year as in the past over the continuation of apartheid—racial separation—in South Africa and South Africa's continued refusal to give up South-West Africa.

There was a danger of a freedom-fighter movement springing up in southern Africa with serious implications to the peace of the world.

Ignatieff said he thinks diplomacy is still the best weapon to deal with the situation but added that Africans will not accept frustration indefinitely.

CANADIAN AGREEMENT

Canada took two major steps in African matters this session, supporting a resolution calling for majority rule in Rhodesia before independence and demanding self-determination for Portuguese colonies in Africa. In the former case it parted company with most of its traditional friends, in particular Britain. In the latter case moderation in the wording allowed Canada to support it.

ENVIRONMENT-SEABED

One of the most constructive pieces of work of the assembly was a decision, strongly backed by Canada, to study the human environment — pollution of the air, water and land. Much preparation would be needed before a proposed 1972 conference on the subject.

Another achievement was creation, after much work, of a committee to study the peaceful exploration and exploitation of the seabed.

MIDDLE EAST

Despite what many think, both the United States and the Soviet Union want peace in he Middle East.

Despite some disillusionment at his lack of success, Gunnar Jarring, Swedish diplomat who was appointed UN envoy to the Middle East, had been persuaded to carry on with his task of attempting to help the Middle East groups to reach a peaceful settlement. Through him there had been some continuing dialogue between Arabs and Israelis.

DISARMAMENT

There was general support for the feeling, expressed by Canada and many other countries, that the next step in disarmament was bilateral talks between the Soviet Union and the U.S. on strategic missile limitation.

Gowon Orders Truce

LAGOS (Reuters) — Nigerian federal leader, Maj.Gen. Yakubu Gowon, has ordered a two-day Christmas truce in the 18-month civil war over the secessionist state of Biafra.

The order followed talks here Friday between Gowon and two Labor party-members of the British Parliament, Lord Brockway and James Griffiths, who are taking an independent peace initiative in the Nigerian political crisis.

Nigerians Dream Of Happier Days

A quick end to the 18-month-old civil war, promised by federal authorities in the spring, has not materialized. Instead thousands have died from starvation or have been killed in the fighting.

Smugglers and bootleggers abound. In wealthy districts of Lagos, wine, spirits and cigarettes are offered to household-ers by travelling "salesmen."

Often their goods have marks on them to show they were dropped into the sea by a passing ship and collected later by smaller boats.

Housewives daydream about the time when they could buy butter and vinegar. Gravy cubes are worth their weight in whisky.

IT WORKS BECAUSE IT SWINGS!

That's the principle behind the pendulum clock, invented in 1637. Earlier clock were found only in cathedrals and noble squares; today it is a rare home that doesn't contain at least one time-keeping device. The days of the sundial and the hourglass are gone and the modern world depends upon accurate clocks.

If the days of your older clock are gone by, chances are that a home somewhere in this area would love to use it.

Blood Count Determines Need of Iron

By Dr. George C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been inclined to anemia and was told 11 years ago after the birth of my daugher to take one iron tablet plus a vitamin pill for the rest of my life.

Recently I had a physical and a blood test and the doctor advised me to stop taking iron as it could overload. Another doctor said this could happen, but not from one tablet a day. I am totally confused. I still feel very tired at times and think the iron helped. — S. L.

This is a good example of what I mean when I say that medicine is not an exact science, and it is not something that can be decided on the basis of generalities.

Iron frequently is needed after a pregnancy, but it is a pretty broad statement to predict that you will need it "for the rest of your life."

Whether you need iron now depends on your blood count now — not on what it was 11 years ago. If your blood count is normal, there is no point in taking more iron. You don't need it. If you have a mild deficiency, then a small dose may help.

There are factors other than anemia that could cause your tiredness. These can be detected in your physical examination and medical history. Such fatigue, indeed, may not always be physical in the sense of illness. In some cases it is nutritional, in others psychological.

The word "probably" is an important one. It is true that too much iron can cause trouble. It is probable, — but not necessarily positive — that one tablet a day would not overload your system.

Thus, it is not wise to say to yourself, "I was agonic once, so I have to take more iron forever."

It is doubtful, I think, that one tablet a day would be doing you any harm, but there's a difference between being doubtful and being sure.

In your case, my answer has to be this: if your blood count does not show any need for continuing the iron tablets, then stop them. In a word, take my medication only because you need it, not because it "probably" won't do any harm.

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I wrote once before to ask if there is such a thing as Caligan's disease, but you never did put it in your column. What is it? — V.S.

You probably refer to collagen diseases, which are a group of diseases that involve the connective tissues of the body.

Arthritis is one form of collagen disease. Others are such less familiar ones as scleroderma, lupus erythematosus, periarteritis nodosa and some others.

In general, we don't know what causes them, and such treatment as is available has come about by experience in trying things until something helps. The steroid hormones (cortisone, etc.) are the principal resource.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am age 58. Sores persist in corners of mouth, often bleeding and crusted in a.m. Have taken several hundred riboflavin tablets at suggestion of physician without results. Can't something correct this situation. Can it be due to poor fitting dentures? — E. T.

Can be corrected if you find out what's causing it. Vitamin deficiency is one known cause hence you tried riboflavin (one of the vitamin B group).

Allergy is another frequent cause — cosmetics in women, possibly some shaving lotion or the like in your case, or sensitivity to something you put in your mouth, which could include mouth washes, some material in the dentures like-paste you use to hold the dentures, etc.

• • •

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Vikings Want Upset

Minnesota Tackles Baltimore for Western Title

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Minnesota Vikings figure to play it close to the vest when they tackle high-powered Baltimore Colts Sunday for the National Football League's Western Conference title.

The Vikings, coached and quarterbacked by veterans of Canadian football campaigns, hope superior ball control can carry them to an upset over the Colts.

But coach Bud Grant, whose savvy earned him five Western Conference championships in 10 years at Winnipeg in the Canadian Football League, admits his Vikings will "have to play our best game" to beat Baltimore at home.

The last time Minnesota played the Colts' the Vikings could manage only three field goals and were whipped 21-9. This time, the Colts are 11-point favorites.

Grant's main problem will be the stiff Baltimore defence, which tied an NFL record for giving up only 144 points in 14 games this year.

The Vikings-Colts survivor will meet the winner of today's Eastern Conference showdown between Dallas Cowboys and Cleveland Browns Dec. 29 for the NFL title.

In the third pro football showdown this weekend, Kansas City Chiefs meet Oakland Raiders for the Western Conference championship of the American Football League, a title winner takes on New York Jets for the AFL title Dec. 29.

The Vikings' best-laid ballcontrol plans went awry in their regular season game with the Colts. As well as limiting Minnesota to three field goals, Baltimore outgained the visiting Vikings 413-229 and held a 70-31 edge in offensive plays run.

Quarterback Joe Kapp, who joined the Vikings last year after eight years with Calgary Stampeders and British Columbia Lions in the CFL, has had limited success in his passing attack this year. He has thrown for only 16 touchdowns this year and had one of the highest interception rates in the league.

But rolling up signals throughout the season for the Vikings, Kapp had a better record than statistics might indicate. Minnesota finished with a surprising 8-6 won-lost record, and won the Central Division title over the world champion Green Bay Packers as well as the tough Chicago Bears and Detroit Lions.

General manager Jim Finks signed Kapp from the University of California in 1959 for Calgary Stampeders. John Michels, the offensive line coach, was with Grant at Winnipeg and Jim Marshall, who played for Saskatchewan Roughriders in 1959, holds down one of the defensive end spots on the tough front line.

A sellout crowd of more than 60,000 is expected at Cleveland with temperatures in the low to mid 30s and a 30-per-cent chance of snow flurries.

Both teams know they must win today to move on to the NFL title game and maybe the Super Bowl.

Cleveland won eight of its last nine games and finished with a 10-4 record for the Century Division title.

Dallas, Capital Division champions, finished with 12-2 including a 28-7 victory over Cleveland in the Cotton Bowl Sept. 22. The Cowboys have won four straight from Cleveland and defeated the Browns in the same Eastern Conference playoff last year 52-14.

Kansas City, which finished the regular AFL season in a 12-2 first place tie with Oakland for the Western Division lead, found ball control a potent ally in the first of two meetings with the Raiders. Len Dawson threw just three passes, but the Chiefs' running backs led the way to a 24-10 victory. Oakland's explosive offence rebounded to smash the Chiefs 38-21 in the rematch.

But the Raiders, who have scored more points, 453, and averaged more yards per game, 406.9, than any other AFL club, wound up their regular schedule with three close-shave victories while Kansas City breezed past its last five opponents.

The Chiefs mauled San Diego 40-3 and whipped Denver 30-7 in their last two starts. Oakland got past the same two teams by counts of 32-27 and 34-27 to nail down a share of first place.

Quarterback Daryle Lamonica will be directing the Raiders' attack against a formidable Kansas City defensive unit that yielded an AFL low of 170 points and led the league with 37 pass interceptions.

Dawson also led the AFL passing standings although Lamonica had 75 more core completions and hit for approximately 1,100 more aerial yards than the Chiefs' signal-caller.

We're sending you a package of good wishes, brimming with cheery greetings for a warm and wonderful Yuletide, plus our many thanks for your loyalty and patronage throughout the year.

U.S. and Viet Cong Negotiate For Release of Prisoners

SAIGON (AP) — The United States agreed today to an unprecedented Christmas Day meeting with the Viet Cong to negotiate the release of three American prisoners-of-war.

The meeting at Thanh Dien, 50 miles northwest of Saigon near the Cambodian border, was proposed by the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front in a radio broadcast Thursday. The American reply was broadcast over Armed Forces radio several times today.

The NLF has said it will fly the Viet Cong flag at the meeting, and U.S. military sources in Tay Ninh City said there would be no objection to this.

"They're flying their flag out there anyway," said one source. "We want our boys released from the hell-hole prisons they are kept in.

The prisoners whose release will be negotiated were identified by the NLF as Thomas Vernon Jones, Donald L. Smith and James Brigham. Their ranks and home towns were not announced.

They are among 1,515 U.S. servicemen classified as missing in action or as prisoners-of-war. The NLF last released prisoners in November, 1967, when three army sergeants were freed in Phnom Penh, Cambodia.

The U.S. announcement was issued by Lt.-Gen. Walter Kerwin, commander of the U.S. 2nd Field Force. It said:

"Not more than five unarmed representatives of the United States 2nd Field Force Command will meet with representatives of the opposing forces at the date, time and place specified in the enemy broadcast of Dec. 19."

Kerwin's broadcast said that the announcement was made with the approval of South Vietnam's 3rd Corps area commander.

There was speculation the U.S.-Viet Cong meeting might lead to a discussion of extending unilateral ceasefires during the holiday season.

The NLF has declared three-day ceasefires for Christmas, New Year's and the Tet Lunar New Year Feb. 17. The South Vietnamese government, the United States and the other combined forces have declared only a 24-hour ceasefire for Christmas.

V and G Profit Shows Increase

LINDSAY (CP) — Victoria Mortgage and Grey Trust Co. had net profit of $1,829,012 or $1.12 a share for the year ended Oct. 31 compared with $1,676,910 or $1.01 a share the preceding year.

The figures exclude an appropriation for mortgage reserves, which amounted to $572,144 in 1968 compared with $493,033 a year earlier.

In a letter to shareholders the company said it has had satisfactory results from sales of land and securities acquired from British Mortgage and Trust Co. in 1965.

This has reduced the "excess of costs" item in Victoria and Grey's assets to $770,624 at Oct. 31 compared with $2,256,318 a year earlier. Total company assets, excluding guaranteed funds, at Oct. 31 were $25,556,302 with $21,567,632 a year before.

Victoria and Grey took over British Mortgage, based in Stratford, Ont., after the latter got into difficulties through its investments in Atlantic Acceptance Corp. Ltd., which collapsed in June, 1965.

Victoria and Grey says that because of pending lawsuits three or four years may elapse before a distribution can be made on British Mortgage's investment Atlantic and an associated company, Aurora Leasing Ltd.

The trust company said it has had a steady demand for mortgage loans, and increased its portfolio by about $30,000,000, to $248,000,000 in 1968, mainly in residential mortgages.

It says it will continue to give priority to residential mortgages, but will not entirely exclude others.

Halifax Container Port Choice

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

OTTAWA (CP) — Halifax won an important round Friday in the battle for container traffic between Europe and North America, with the announcement that a three-company steamship consortium has chosen the Nova Scotia capital as its Canadian terminal.

The consortium, represented in Canada by Clarke Traffic Services Ltd. of Montreal, had also been considering Saint John, N.B.

The stakes are high. A fast, smooth operation on the Atlantic could worst cargo traffic away from the St. Lawrence route.

The ultimate question is whether shippers will find it better to transfer cargo between ships and fast trains at Halifax, thus saving time, or to use ships closer to the interior of the continent, taking more time but spending less money. The answer is by no means clear.

The three-company consortium, made up of Clarke Traffic Services, Compagnie Maritime Belge of Antwerp and the British City Line of Bristol, England, plans to inaugurate a regular weekly service connecting European ports, Halifax and a U.S. port in 1970. It has ordered three 50,000-ton container ships.

An interim service, using smaller ships and a conventional Halifax pier, will begin in mid-1969.

The consortium's choice of Halifax was announced here by the National Harbors Board, which administers Halifax and Saint John along with several other major ports.

The board declared itself neutral in the contest between Halifax and Saint John, stating that the decision rested with the consortium.

The board already has a container terminal under construction in Halifax, but has said it is ready to provide one in Saint John wherever shipping companies want it.

Container traffic is the movement of goods in the same box or container from origin to destination. It is expected to become an important kind of general cargo movement across continents and oceans in the next 10 years.

The harbors board said it plans to install two cranes at the Halifax container terminal, located just south of the port's main ocean terminals.

In Halifax, port manager J. R. Mitchell said he is "very pleased" by the consortium's decision. It would "build up the port tremendously in the future."

P. W. Oland, chairman of the Saint John port and industrial development commission, said his city has a more favorable economic situation but Halifax was chosen because of its nearness to Europe.

Container traffic through Montreal began last month under an agreement between the CNR and Manchester Liners, a British steamship company. The CNR will also be involved in container traffic at Halifax, where it provides the only mainline rail link.

Canadian Pacific has decided to use Quebec City for container traffic, and hopes to have the terminal there in operation by mid-1969.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For Dec. 22nd,

Your birthday today: The urge to get resettled is paramount now. Your search is for some perfect system by which to live. Consistent efforts to find this will pay off to a surprising extent this year. Further formal studies are advocated. Today's natives often have almost a saintly, selflessness or if the individual horoscope is afflicted, the reverse.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): This Sunday is rather pleasant with everybody busy (and on his best behavior). You have the chance to improve your health. Enjoy hospitality this evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Take your showing at church. Relief from weekday tensions comes out on top. Take your loved ones to an amusement area, or set up a situation which intrigues them. Enjoy the simplest course of action.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): The expression of your faith is of top importance. Search out ways and means of self-improvement. Mediate late afternoon, then begin social rounds.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Share your holiday preparations. Patch up any dissensions. Make it a busy, socially active day.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Strive to be reasonable — for once there is more activity demanded of you than you feel ready to attempt. Try to free your own energies to go more fluently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Once you complete your share of communal activity, you have the option of getting in some solid, meaningful work on your own affairs. Meditate for deep guidance tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): This happy Sunday your habits may unconsciously retain it for the better. Let yourself go: your inner nature will erring forth a truer expression of your potentials.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Rest and recover from the tensions that have been at large for so long. Stay active, make the rounds, find new people without demanding anything of them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Intellectual activity on your own can be very rewarding. Survey your financial setup. Romance beckons.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Get your letters organized. Push ahead seasonal plans. You may think it late, but this is the time when things become feasible.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Do something about your own needs. Visiting kin and old friends advances their happiness (and your freedom of action). Pursue romantic interests this evening!

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Religious and charitable matters involve and are very rewarding. Pursue personal projects diligently. Gather close associates tonight.

For Dec. 23rd,

Your birthday today: Conditions not your making interfere with your plans this coming year. The revisions you make bring better results because you have worked them out more thoroughly. The obstacles present unprecedented opportunity. Make the most of this challenge to your organizing skills. Today's natives are usually philosophers, many famous.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your public image improves and your public activity increases for the coming week. Early confidential negotiations are strongly favored, building up later in the day.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Friends arrange new connections for you. Business opportunities improve. Check out all openings thoroughly: some may be based on factual misunderstandings.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Confusion and delay develop at odd moments. Take it all in stride, attach no serious importance to casual remarks. Personal projects are strongly favored.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Thrift is essential to your success this season! A new connection may form for you. Work more on living conditions. Material relations deepen.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Put yourself into a consistent program to achieve more cooperation with all around you. Teamwork is important.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Clearly state your figures and facts. Consult with authorities, supervisory personal. Steady, well-paced effort pays off!

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): All goes well on the surface; but an undercurrent of wishful thinking is mistaken for fact. Use intuition to explore how deep the potential problem is. Be optimistic.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Make sure your ideas relate to the present reality as well as to others' wishes. Not all original approaches being strongly promoted are practical now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Put routine first. . . then confer with higher authority late in the day. This evening gather family and confer on seasonal holiday plans.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): It is difficult to know just what course to follow in today's helter-skelter. Take an example there may be some danger of needless d uplication in shopping.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Search for facts takes most of your effort. Set up time appointments for contacts with institutions, holiday travels and the like. Review your health protection, your habits. Prepare some tentative resolutions for the coming new year.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Watch out for self-delusions. Aside from this pitfall, everything thrives. Avoid being the frustrman for the whole group if you can.

Stocks Firm After Slump

By GERALD CLARKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Although the spectre of tighter credit and speculation about the future of gold threw Canadian stock markets into confusion this week, prices were firming up quickly before the exchanges closed Friday.

The week's over-all losses were due to the sharp slump Wednesday which followed the announcement o increases in both Canadian bank rate and the U.S. Federal Reserve Board discount rate.

Blue chips reacted leading their worst plunge of any day since February, and the slide seemed to be gathering momentum Thursday in response to an early decline in New York where heavy selling was reported.

However, an unexpected recovery developed in New York after noon trading and the upward trend was matched in Canada.

The revival in share prices was attributed to a statement from Maurice H. Stans, the incoming U.S. secretary of commerce, who said President-elect Nixon hopes to allow the income tax surcharge imposed this year to expire in June, 1969.

On Friday, Canadian markets continued to advance, led by a record surge in western oils.

The Toronto western oil index rose 12 points to an all-time high of 251.37 The spurt reflected a further wave of speculation, much of it from U.S. and European sources, in companies which hold exploration permits in the Canadian Arctic-Alaska area.

Among the big gains over the week, Asamera was up 7¾ to 24½; Canadian Superior Oil 5¾ to 58, Home Oil A 5¼ to 44¼, Home Oil B 4¾ to 44 and Canadian Homestead Oils 3¾ to 12¼.

Analysts point out that the western oil companies have many other significant exploration interests — ranging from West Virginia to Sumatra — besides their property in the Arctic.

Their Arctic prospects, however, are their most popular attraction because of the huge potential. The oil discovery at Prudhoe Bay, Alaska, reported by two U.S. companies this summer was assessed as one of the world's largest oil pools.

A spate in gold shares, which reached nearly record levels, was caused by a sharp mid-week rise in the price of gold on the London and continental free markets.

The Toronto gold stock index responded by jumping 12 points in a single day, its biggest gain since March when golds shot up during "the international monetary" crisis.

The sudden heating up of the gold fever was caused by the refusal of David Kennedy, incoming secretary of the U.S. Treasury, to make any firm commitment about the future of the official price of monetary gold when questioned at a news conference in Washington Tuesday.

Speculators round the world interpreted his reticence as meaning that the U.S. government may raise the price rum its old pre-war figure of $35 U.S. an ounce.

This move would effectively devalue the dollar because U.S. currency is valued in terms of gold.

However, both gold shares and gold bullion lost ground later in the week after Ronald Ziegley-press assistant to President-elect Nixon, said Mr. Nixon does not anticipate any change in gold's existing price per ounce.

In the industrial list, the weakest groups were real estate issues, banks, communications and retailers. Chemicals were higher.

Equipment Built by Trenton Firm Aboard Moon-bound Apollo

By ELMER BONTER
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Devices developed and assembled at the Erie Technological plant here have brought distinction to industry in the whole Quinte region.

Aboard Apollo racing to rendezvous with the moon are pieces of communications equipment manufactured in Trenton by local workers. A company spokesman said last night Erie products have been used in both of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Gemini and Apollo series. He described the company's parts of the Apollo communication's set-up as noise suppression devices.

Erie official William Deacon said details of the devices were classified but he was allowed to mention them and make reference to their purpose.

Sub-contractors for NASA chose Erie products because the company had pioneered the noise suppressors and had more test data available than their competition, Mr. Deacon revealed. Erie workers are told their craftsmanship will be landing on the moon in 1969, since pieces of equipment they turn out at the plant here have been acquired for installation in the Lunar Excursion Model, which is expected to permit man to set foot on the moon in June next year, Mr. Deacon said.

Moon's Gravity Grapples For Speeding Spacecraft

Apollo's Crew Gets Over Flu

HOUSTON (AP) — The daring explorers of Apollo 8, recovered from a touch of the flu, hurtled deeper into space today, racing toward the moon's gravity field.

That moment, when man for the first time will be in the gravity grasp of another heavenly body, comes at 3:29 p.m. EST today when Apollo 8 is 202,700 miles from earth and about 34,500 miles from the moon.

The tug of the moon will increase Apollo 8's speed, and a burst from their spaceship engine at 5:01 a.m. Tuesday will swing them into orbit just 60 miles above its surface.

There will be no physical change to alert Col. Frank Borman, Capt. James Lovell Jr., and Maj. William Anders that they have passed through a gravity "barrier" in space.

Borman, in fact, plans to be asleep, and Lovell and Anders are to be stowing their camera after completing a second television show for Apollo 8.

The area is called the "equigravisphere" where the pull of earth's gravity and that of the moon are equal.

Apollo 8, which started the trip toward the moon at earth escape speed of 24,196 miles an hour, has slowed gradually like an automobile coasting uphill to slightly more than 2,200 m.p.h.

The moon's gravity increases this during a period of several hours to almost 5,800 m.p.h. if allowed to continue at this speed, Borman, Lovell and Anders would look once around the backside with sufficient velocity to swing back toward earth.

But the braking effect of the engine firing will prevent the flyby and inject Apollo 8 into an orbit which the astronauts are to fly for 20 hours on Christmas

CENTRE OF ATTRACTION for the family of Willimer Grieves is their dog, King. Without his frantic barking, they believe, all 13 of them might have perished in the fire that destroyed their home northwest of Marmora Saturday. Now members of the family, bereft of personal possessions, are with Belleville relatives. Here ten of the 11 youngsters cluster with mother around symbol of seasonal well being - - - a Christmas tree.

Russians Indicate Flight Risky One

MOSCOW (CP) — The Soviet Union's top space research scientist said today there is "some basis for fear" that Apollo 8 astronauts will encounter radiation hazards during their moon flight.

But he praised the three U.S. astronauts for their courage and wished them "above all, a successful return to earth."

Dr. Georgy I. Petrov, director of the Soviet Institute for Cosmic Research, made it clear that he considers the Americans to be taking unnecessary risks.

He noted that the Soviet plan for manned flight calls for spacecraft with complete duplication of manual and automatic controls so that any pilot failure can be overcome by ground personnel or automatic devices.

"It seems to me," Petrov wrote in Pravda today, "that such a system ensures greater safety."

The Pravda article was clearly designed to show the Apollo mission was risky and premature.

Regarding radiation hazards, the scientist noted that the Apollo mission is being "undertaken at a time of great activity on the sun" which increases the intensity of radiation in outer space.

Mercy Flights Halted

GENEVA (Reuters) — The government of Equatorial Guinea has suspended all Red Cross mercy flights from the island of Fernando Poo to Biafra, the Red Cross International Committee announced today.

Equatorial Guinea, of which Fernando Poo is a part, gave no reason for the suspension, an ICRC statement said.

The all-Swiss committee said the last mercy flights from Fernando Poo to Biafra by Red Cross planes were Friday night and early Saturday morning.

Dr. August Lindt, the Red Cross aid co-ordinator for Nigeria and Biafra, arrived in the Equatorial Guinea capital of Santa Isabel today to discuss the situation with the government, it added.

The Red Cross estimated that every night their aircraft were prevented from flying into Biafra about 850,000 people were deprived of their daily subsistence rations.

Equatorial Guinea, which became independent from Spain in October, is one of the two main centres for the aerial bridge into Biafra. The other is the Portuguese island of Sao Tome.

Arson Suspected

Dog Awakes Blairton Family

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A few days ago the Grieves family were just about set for another cheery Christmas.

The family of 13 were sheltering in Belleville after their home near Marmora had been destroyed Saturday by what Willimer Grieves claims was arson.

Provincial police and an inspector from the Ontario Fire Marshal's Office are still investigating the blaze that destroyed the Grieves home — a former hotel at Blairton, a one-time mining community five miles west of Marmora.

But that's an official problem. The dilemma confronting Mr. and Mrs. Grieves right now is how to put the happiness in Christmas for their 11 children.

Ranging in age from 14 years to 18 months, the youngsters escaped with their lives — and little else save a pet kitten.

Clothes, shoes, household effects, all went up in the blaze — along with the family's Christmas presents carefully collected in recent weeks.

Originally they had planned to arrive Christmas Eve in Belleville to share the yuletide with Mr. and Mrs. John Lake and their two children on Byron Street. Mrs. Lake is Mr. Grieves' niece.

Instead, leaving investigators to probe around the ruins

Policeman at Hamilton Killed With Own Gun

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — Five men were charged with capital murder Sunday in the death of a police officer, killed with his own revolver during a fight earlier in the day in which a second man lost his life.

Police said Sgt. Cameron McMurrich, 34, was severely beaten by a group of men, then killed with shots in the chest and side with his gun which had been taken away from him during the fight.

Sgt. Joseph Rallo, 40, received broken ribs, a broken jaw and nose and other head injuries. He is in fair condition in hospital.

James Brechin, 24, of Hamilton, was killed when hit in the stomach by a bullet fired from Sgt. Rallo's revolver. Police said the gun went off as Sgt. Rallo and Brechin struggled for it.

Charged with murder were James Major, 27, John McClure, 48, and Douglas Maracle, 26, all of Hamilton; John McEwan, 31, of nearby Stoney Creek, and Murray Feist, 26, of no fixed address.

Police said the two officers, both in plainclothes, were watching an area in a residential district when a group of men charged out of the house shortly after 4 a.m. No reason was given by police for the officers' stake-out of the area.

Detectives said that as the officers approached the house, owned by McClure, the men came out, cursing. The policemen backed slowly down the street to a service station lot a block away.

Sgt. Rallo said he and Sgt. McMurrich drew their revolvers and fired warning shots before the group attacked them.

He said Brechin tried to take his gun away and it went off. Brechin fell to the pavement and Sgt. Rallo ran from the scene as several shots were fired after him. The sergeant later was picked up by a police cruiser sent to the scene.

Sgt. Rallo told detectives he saw a man lean over Sgt. McMurrich and fire at him. He said before he ran away he was fairly certain Sgt. McMurrich was dead. Sgt.

The biggest moving job in the city's history at Christmas taxed the resources of volunteers during the weekend. And the worst has yet to come as time runs on the deadline for the last of 450 separate deliveries in the commitments. Mary Tsilenias and Margaret Lewington lend a welcome hand to Centennial High School students distributing the result of school's city-wide canvass. Sorting bedding contributed to the needy yesterday is Mrs. R. H. Godden. Volunteers wishing to donate their time and services to help with deliveries call 962-9531.

Christmas Fund Overwhelming Success

By Christmas Day everyone known to have needed help in the city and adjacent area will have received it, a spokesman for the appeal said this morning.

Some were handing out bedding to those families requiring more than food to make their Christmas happier. Yesterday an urgent appeal for sheets, pillow slips and blankets produced amazing results, reported Robert Porter, director of United Community Services of Belleville.

Mr Porter also reported cash and cheques received at the fund headquarters Saturday, Sunday and this morning totalled more than $700. Only incidentals are needed to fulfill the objective of providing for 450 families last Monday. The goal to be reached required food, clothing and toys valued at approximately $9,000.

This year the Christmas Fund expanded its responsibility and collected articles for teenage members of needy families. The Simpson Sear's branch in the city donated numerous items for the older boys and girls.

The fund officials expected generous citizens would supply a toaster, a mantel radio and necessities for two expectant mothers registered for assistance.

Volunteers Needed

Christmas Fund officials have called for one more response from local citizens interested in helping with the appeal from the community's needy families.

At the present time Fund officials are concerned with moving the last remaining parcels of food, clothing and toys.

To volunteer for delivery service call 962-9531.

Dog Wakes Family As House Burned

of their home, they arrived seeking shelter at the Lakes Saturday along with the kitten and the family dog King.

It was King who is credited by the family with averting what might have been the ultimate disaster.

The dog's barking and frantic scratching on the front door awoke one of the children early Saturday morning as fire raced through their home.

By that time, the blaze apparently had reached such proportions. Mrs. Grieves marvelled that all her family escaped.

"I don't know how some of them didn't suffocate," she recalled. "It was so black with smoke."

"We lost everything — we didn't even have shoes," added her husband. "I didn't even get the car keys off the refrigerator."

The family moved to Blairton just six weeks ago from Warkworth and they're still conjecturing origins of the blaze.

But Willimer Grieves, an army veteran injured in Korea and now on a service disability pension, is positive on one point: "It was a case of arson. Definitely!"

Fire Marshal inspector Del Hope of Belleville, yesterday confirmed he had been called in by provincial police to probe causes of the blaze. However, he said he was still investigating the incident.

Meanwhile, community organizations were rallying this morning to guarantee a cheerier Christmas for the family.

Mrs. Effie McCabe, chairman of the local Red Cross disaster committee, said new clothing and bedding were being supplied for the family.

City firemen, who operate a toy distribution agency for needy families, said gifts would be guaranteed the youngsters.

The city's Royal Canadian Legion poppy committee will furnish a food hamper, said Roy Madden, local Legion liaison official for Disabled Veterans Act cases.

Mr. Madden said, after the circumstances are investigated, an allowance might be available from a federal emergency fund for disabled veterans.

"Everybody has just been wonderful to them," said Mrs. Lake this morning.

Belleville Child Fatally Injured

PORT HOPE — The infant daughter of a Belleville school teacher was fatally injured when a car with five persons crashed out of control and rolled over on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway five miles west of here Saturday.

Killed was Robin Coleen Ewashkiw, 19 - month old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Ewashkiw, 25 Hastings Drive.

Mr. Ewashkiw is an English teacher at Belleville Collegiate.

He was later released after treatment for injuries in hospital here.

His wife, Elizabeth, and parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Ewashkiw, of Islington are still in hospital.

Provincial police the car was driven by the senior Mrs. Ewashkiw when it veered across the median into the eastbound traffic lanes and rolled over.

Moon's Gravity Grapples for Apollo

Eve and early Christmas Day.

There were a few anxious moments Sunday, second day of the mission, that the astronauts might have to be called back — or, at best, make only a quick flyaround of the moon and come home.

The problem was illness reported by all three astronauts. Borman was in the worst condition, suffering from what he diagnosed as a "24 hour flu, intestinal flu."

The spacecraft commander said he vomited, had diarrhea, chills and headaches during the early morning hours Sunday. But after resting he reported he was much better.

Lovell and Anders both said they weren't feeling up to par. Doctors were worried they would contract Borman's malady, and the mission control centre considered shortening the mission.

Flight controllers shuffled the flight plan to give the astronauts extra sleeping time, and by today Borman reported:

"We're all in fine shape up here."

They appeared chipper Sunday afternoon when they beamed their first television show from Apollo 8.

"This program is coming to you from aloft halfway to the moon," Borman advised in narrating the 15-minute telecast.

There was disappointment when Anders pointed the camera out the window to give earthlings a view of their planet. The telephoto lens failed to work.

Anders replaced it with the regular lens, but TV viewers saw only a white, shining, round blob on the screen.

Shots inside the cabin were excellent and showed the spacemen at work and play. Lovell mixed a chocolate pudding and Anders chased a floating toothbrush to demonstrate weightlessness.

Lovell at one point turned the camera and said: "Happy birthday, mother," thrilling Mrs. Blanche Lovell of Edgewater, Fla., who became 73 Sunday.

Engineers on the ground hoped to work out the problem with the television camera in time to radio a solution to the astronauts so they can beam to earth pictures of the moon's rugged terrain.

The astronauts will be behind the moon, out of radio communication with the ground, when they execute the critical engine firing that will propel them into moon orbit. The world will hold its breath for several minutes until Apollo 8 appears again around the lunar edge.

For two orbits, Apollo 8 is to circle in an elliptical orbit ranging from 69 to 196 miles high. Later, will circularize the path at the 69-mile altitude.

After 10 orbits, the engine is to be fired again to boost Apollo 8 out of orbit and send it streaking back to earth and a splash-down in the Pacific Friday.

Unless weather improves in the planned landing zone south of Hawaii, the astronauts might have to shift their splashdown point. Heavy showers and rain were forecast.

Police Report Thefts

City police are investigating the theft of money from 21 parking meters in the lot at the rear of Kresge's store on Sunday.

Police discovered the broken meters about 8.30 last night during a routine check.

No estimate of the amount stolen is available.

Four coin boxes at the north Front St. car wash were also broken into some time Sunday night, causing $450 damage. Only a small amount of money was lost because an attendant had cleared the boxes in the afternoon. A coin box at the Westgate Plaza car wash was also broken into yesterday.

Union Report Ready For Jan. 6 Release

PICTON — The report of a union's investigation of Picton will be made public Jan. 6, the Canadian district vice-president of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers said Friday.

Glenn Pattinson made the announcement through an international representative of the union in Picton, James Donofrio.

The union, on strike against Procter-Silex of Picton since July 17, began the investigation of the community when it became frustrated by the action of Mayor Harvey J. McFarland and town police.

An interim report of a private detective hired by the union was filed with union headquarters earlier. The man will return to Picton to complete his investigation early in the new year.

MERRY Christmas TO ALL!

Carolers sing the joys of Christmas . . . and may those joys be yours. Your generous support and trust is really appreciated. Many, many thanks!

Injured Men Still Critical
Two men, seriously injured during a spate of traffic mishaps Friday, today continue in critical condition.
Both are in Kingston General Hospital with severe head injuries.
Charles Sedore, R.R. 1 Picton, was injured when a car crashed off the Black Creek Road southwest of Picton, killing a 24-year-old companion.
Harold Murray, 26, of Read, was the driver of an automobile which skidded off Highway 2 near the Point Anne lane.
A passenger, Bernard Sagriff, 22, of R.R. 7 Belleville, is in Belleville General Hospital with spine injuries.
Elsewhere during the weekend, provincial police say Carl Bartlett, of Picton was charged with failing to report an accident after his car crashed on Talbot Street, Picton, Saturday.

Quinte District's Dreams of White Christmas Turn to Slush

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Dreams of a white Christmas turned to slush today.

And the weatherman holds out little hope for more than scattered snow flurries until Boxing Day.

More than three inches of snow fell in the Quinte district as a storm belt whipped southern Ontario for nearly three hours.

But rain, wind and warming temperatures followed in quick succession to mar the traditional yuletide appearance of the local landscape.

The mercury went no lower than 30 and then started climbing again. Winds were gusting up to 40 miles an hour by early morning.

Meantime the weatherman at Canadian Forces Base Trenton says there will be scattered snow flurries tonight and tomorrow, but "nothing in real amounts."

There's a possibility of continuous snow — but only by Boxing Day. Temperatures will be chilly, however — down to 20 degrees tonight and 10-15 degrees Christmas night.

Esthetics aside, however, the storm caused a plethora of problems as it swept along the Lake Ontario shoreline.

Drivers were warned off the Macdonald - Cartier Freeway as provincial police reported driving conditions "extremely hazardous." Motorists were advised to seek alternate routes.

Thousands of skiers caused major tieups on Highway 400 and traffic was backed up for a mile south of Barrie. Heavy traffic was also reported in the areas of Midland, Collingwood, Penetanguishene and Orillia.

In the Quinte district there were few mishaps. Traffic came virtually to a standstill as drivers apparently waited out the storm.

White Christmas?

Last night's snow, boding well for a white Christmas, slowly turned soggy as temperatures stayed mild. The result was a slush problem for Belleville pedestrians.

Huff's Island

Lifetime resident of Prince Edward county, Willet Sherman Black of Huff's Island, second concession of Ameliasburg township, died this morning at Belleville General Hospital following a brief illness. He was in his 88th year.

Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Black, he was born in Prince Edward and until he retired had farmed in the Huff's Island district. For the past few months he had been a resident at the Bellevile Nursing Home. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church.

Pre-deceased by his wife, the former Mary Edith Latimer, he is survived by two sons, John L. Black of Belleville and Douglas C. Black, RR 7 Belleville. There are three daughters, Mrs. Stanley (Margaret) Barber of Ameliasburg; Mrs. Ralph (Belle) Redner of Carrying Place and Mrs. Donald (Mary Ellen) Parliament of Bloomfield; a sister, Mrs. Walker (Mary Belle) Cunningham of Toronto, 13 grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

Two brothers, Walter and John Black pre-deceased him.

The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon from the John R. Bush Funeral Home with service in the chapel at 2 p.m. conducted by Rev. Walter O. Boettcher. Interment will be in Belleville Cemetery.

Friends are invited to visit at the funeral home from Tuesday noon until five o'clock and from seven until 9:30 p.m. and on Christmas Day from seven until 9:30 p.m.

JOHN YOUNG

The funeral of John Young was held Saturday morning at St. Michael's Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. Peter Carty. Graveside prayers at St. James' Cemetery were said by Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan.

Friday evening a memorial service conducted at the Thompson Funeral Chapel by Chaplain Bram Humphreys was held by the Royal Canadian Legion, while the Knights of Columbus, No. 1008 also held a memorial service conducted by Father Carty and Grand Knight D. Bland.

The bearers were Thomas Purdy, Jack Pitman, Blaine Young, Rodger Young, Jack White and Oswalk Lewis.

GORDON WRIGHT

The funeral of Gordon Wright was held Saturday afternoon from the Thompson Funeral Chapel where service in the chapel was conducted by Rev. James McKnight, assisted by Rev. Leslie Mann. Interment was in Belleville Cemetery.

The bearers were Robert Swain, Albert and Arthur Wright, Ray Defusio, Mac Sharpe and Jack Underhill.

MRS. JAMES WILLIAM McQUIGGE

Enroute by train to Thompson, Manitoba, where she was to visit her son for Christmas, Mrs. Helen Grace McQuigge of R.R. 2, Madoc, took suddenly ill on Friday and died later the same day in Thompson General Hospital. She was in her 49th year.

Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alan Bronson she was born at Bannockburn and had lived all her life in the Madoc area.

She was a member of St. Bartholomew's Anglican Church at Bannockburn and belonged to the LOBA Lodge at Queensboro.

She is survived by her husband, James William McQuigge, a daughter, Mrs. J. (Sharon) Ruckstuhl of Sharbot Lake and four sons, Ross and Elwood of Bannockburn, Wayne of Thompson, Manitoba and Robert of Cooper.

There are four sisters, Mrs. L. (Thelma) Judges of Madoc; Mrs. A. (Leah) Aitree of Scarborough; Mrs. K. (Lorna) Dosly of Stirling, and Miss Marilyn Bronson of Queensboro, and two brothers, Edmund Bronson of Thessalon, Ont., and Gordon of Stirling. There are 11 grandchildren.

Mrs. McQuigge will rest at her late residence R.R. 2, Madoc from 7 p.m. Tuesday. The funeral under the direction of the MacKenzie Funeral Home at Madoc will be held Thursday afternoon from St. Bartholomew's Church with service at 1:30 p.m. conducted by Rev. J. H. Thompson. Interment will be in Eldorado Cemetery.

SISTER M. EVARISTA

Funeral service for Sister M. Evarista were held in the chapel of Hotel Dieu Hospital in Kingston this morning at 9 a.m.

She died at the Providence Motherhouse, Heath field, Kingston followed a lengthy illness.

She was the eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Boyle of Belleville.

She taught school in various places for many years and was living retired some years now.

Sister Evarista is survived by five sisters, Sister Carmella, SP of Arnprior, Mrs. D. D. Turcotte, Montreal, Mrs. W. T. George, Toronto, Mrs. H. J. Sheridan and Mrs. Frank McKay both of Belleville.

Two brothers J. V. Boyle and John A. Boyle of Belleville also survive. Three brothers Lawrence, Terrence and Harry are predeceased.

JOHN WESLEY STEWART

RYLSTONE — Following a short illness, John Wesley Stewart, lifetime resident of the Rylstone community, died in Campbellford Memorial Hospital last Tuesday. He was in his 87th year.

The funeral was held Thursday from the Bennett-Weaver Funeral Home in Campbellford where service was conducted by Rev. Gordon Whitehorne. Interment was in Rylstone Cemetery.

The bearers were James Gray, Robert Spencer, Louis Fennell, Lawrence Meikle, John Fred Pedderick and Donald Stewart.

Only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart, he was born at Rylstone on the family farm where he spent his entire life. He was the oldest man in the Rylstone community.

He was a member of the Rylstone United Church until it was recently closed. Of a quiet and unassuming nature he was well liked and respected by all who knew him. He was a keen sports enthusiast although he had never taken an active part in any sporting activities.

Pre-deceased by his wife, the former May McKeown, he is survived by one son Raymond on the Stewart homestead, and two daughters Mrs. William (Jean) Donaldson of Peterborough, and Mrs. Albert (Vera) Holland of Havelock. A sister, Miss Grace Stewart lives in Toronto. There are four grandchildren.

Three sisters, Mrs. (Dr.) Archie (Effie) MacDerid, Mrs. John (Margaret) McKeown and Mrs. Purvis (Jessie) Allan, pre-deceased him.

MR. GORDON STARK
(Los Angeles - Belleville)

A former resident of Belleville living in California for the past 30 years, Gordon Stark died in Los Angeles on Saturday. He was 65.

Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Stark of this city, Mr. Stark moved to California in the 1920's. He was a tool and die maker by trade but had been retired for some years.

He was a member of the Masonic Order.

He is survived by his wife, three daughters and two sons, all of California.

A sister, Mrs. Harry Green lives in the Belleville area. He is only surviving member of his family. Three brothers and three sisters predeceased him.

Dinner at County Jail

This could be the Yuletide atmosphere and fare at any number of eating out spots in the city over the Christmas holiday.

But instead it's the menu at the Hastings county jail where an estimated 20 inmates are expected to spend the Christmas holidays.

As is customary Bram Humphreys, Salvation Army Correctional Services officer, will be on hand to distribute the Sunshine bags filled with fruit and candy and will also shoot a special film on Christmas Day.

County Jailor W. J. Thernicault says jail inmates will start Christmas day off with bacon and eggs for breakfast. At noon they will be served roast turkey with all the trimmings, mashed potatoes, ice cream and Christmas cake. And for the evening meal there will be cream turkey soup, cold ham, potato salad and Christmas pudding.

And then as a bonus inmates will also receive oranges, nuts, candies and apples — courtesy of the province of Ontario.

Indian Territory

The position of the Indians in the land they have peopled since long before the coming of the white man is very much in the nature of a paradox.

On the one hand, treaties long since concluded with the white race supposedly give the Indians dual nationality and freedom to move back and forth across the Canadian-U.S. border without for example paying customs duty.

Revoking of this understanding by the authorities is what led to last week's Mohawk demonstration on the international bridge at Cornwall.

The paradox is that while the Indians have special privileges (not always honored by the whites), among them this all-embracing continental citizenship, they still live on reserves, shut off from the amenities of the world as we know it and from more than cursory contact with white people.

One thing is certain, the Indians are re-asserting themselves, not in the militant fashion of pioneer days, but in the manner of other minority peoples and groups everywhere.

Furthermore, they are showing increasing signs of greater organization and unity, the more effectively to make their case. The Cornwall Indian Mohawks, for instance, have received support from their counterparts in British Columbia.

In Vancouver, Ray Bobb, a spokesman for the Native Alliance for Red Power said, "We are citizens firstly of North America. . ." And Benjamin Paul, an official of the North American Indian Brotherhood observed: "As far as Indians are concerned, there is no demarcation line at the 49th parallel."

Where the Indians find themselves in difficulty, however, and what prevents them from being in every sense of the word mature North Americans lies in their position not only from the life they once knew but from the white society.

The Montreal Star has put it well, observing that the Indians are still "caught unhappily between the isolation of their reserve life and the need to master the techniques of modern life. . ." Nevertheless, in the re-assertion of their "Indianness," The Star suggests the native people must now be given charge of their own affairs.

No one can doubt this. That this acceptance of responsibility must come slowly and in an orderly fashion is also apparent. We trust it will, and that the Indians will be able to take his rightful place in North American society.

Quiet Christmas

Compared with previous years Christmas seems quieter than usual. Because of the increase in postal rates fewer cards are circulating — and perhaps mercifully, Christmas music is being kept at a tasteful level.

However beautiful the Christmas music and carol singing there was a danger some years ago of repetition spoiling the entire effect. Wherever one went there was nothing else. Not so this year, yet the same degree of expectancy is present.

For some it can be a lonely time. Away from home or with no family to share this joyful period, some find it a time of stress. A widow of 93 wrote a newspaper recently asking if Belleville has any club activities where she could make friends.

Well yes indeed, and they frequently advertise in this newspaper in the Coming Events column. The Senior Citizen's group is one that might afford people like herself the most in fellowship and interesting activities. And if she would call the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street she could obtain further information there.

The Flu Bug

With Hong Kong flu now laying many low in the United States — the malady has hit at least 20 states — it is to be wondered how Canada has managed to escape the bug thus far.

Apparently a vaccine to combat this strain of the ailment is not yet available on a widespread basis. Consequently we still have to make do with those that are available, or else try to keep fit in the ordinary way. Proper diet, fresh air and exercise go a long way toward warding off these unwelcome visitations, and assisting recovery if they do crash the body's defences.

Possibly what we need at this crucial time, with the disease rampant in the U.S., is a period of good old-fashioned winter, below zero temperatures and all that. Flu bugs usually do not flourish in that kind of cold.

Shriver For Key Post?

President-Elect Focuses Foreign Policy Attention On UN

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — President-elect Richard Nixon's new approach to United States foreign policy extends to the United Nations.

But as in Vietnam, East-West relations, Europe, the Middle East or elsewhere, the new approach faces some long-established problems.

Nixon's interest in the UN is implicit in his visit earlier this week to Secretary-General U Thant and in his decision to name a Democrat to the post of permanent ambassador to the UN.

The evident choice of Sargent Shriver gains weight from the background—former head of the Peace Corps, former head of the American poverty program, ambassador to France where he has been warming up relations with President de Gaulle and his membership by marriage in the Kennedy clan.

These are plus factors in the relatively-easy, short-term job of making relations better between the UN and its richest, most generous member. These relations have been badly curdled.

As early as September, 1964, Thant was sharply questioning the U.S. role in Vietnam. After regular bombing of North Vietnam began in early 1965, Thant insisted the bombing must halt if useful negotiations were to be held.

His argument was not welcomed by President Johnson or State Secretary Dean Rusk, although Johnson finally got talks going in Paris with a two-stage halt of the bombing this year.

The late Adlai Stevenson when UN ambassador did not find his lot a happy one. He was burdened with the abortive 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba, with the wider U.S. war effort in Vietnam and with American intervention in the Dominican Republic in the spring of 1965.

In none of these crises was the UN able to play a role of substance.

After Stevenson's death in 1965, Arthur Goldberg left the U.S. Supreme Court to replace him and he too was frustrated in his endeavors to find a way through the Vietnam impasse. Goldberg resigned earlier this year, out of step and out of influence with the president and Rusk.

The basic question for the UN today is how it can be effective in such trouble spots as the Middle East, East-West relations and the nationalistic disorders that shake Africa, Latin America and China.

The UN's peacekeeping role has dwindled to Cyprus.

The strains injected by the addition of many small and poor new nations were underlined by former prime minister Pearson in his recent Reith lecture series in London. He proposed consideration of a UN broken into regional blocs and with weighted voting to replace the one-nation, one-vote concept that gives Mali the same muscle as the Soviet Union.

However, the UN ambassadorship still is regarded as the most important of all by American diplomats. The UN still is a valuable listening post and sounding board.

Thant has no legions and he has his internal problems but he still speaks with a certain authority.

The use Nixon can make of the UN depends on the importance he places on it and the degree of responsibility conferred on his ambassador there.

"Don't you somehow get the feeling that we've lost the first round?"

Intensive Care Plan On Wheels

Ulster Commentary

Belfast's Royal Victoria Hospital was the first in the world to introduce a mobile intensive care (treatment as you travel) unit for cardiac sufferers.

The system has now been adopted by New York's 900-bed St. Vincent's Hospital. And Professor William Grace, 53-year-old Professor of Medicine at the University of New York and Chairman of the Department of Medicine at St. Vincent's, says that "in one year in New York once we are working properly, we can save more lives with the ambulance than with ten years of transplants." Professor Grace's comment was made during a visit to Belfast to see the Royal Victoria Hospital's unit in operation.

He expects other American hospitals to follow the example of St. Vincent's as soon as they see how effectively it works.

The "treatment as you travel" unit is specially equipped and staffed to care for cardiac patients on their way to hospital. It has been in operation in Belfast for some time. Another unit is also in operation in the Ballymena area.

Germans With Negro Blood

Windsor Star

Illegitimate children always have been a consequence of warfare. Armies habitually leave offspring in the areas they overrun. The hordes of Genghis Khan left their imprint on the faces of future generations in southeastern Europe and the warriors of Alexander the Great left many descendants in Asia Minor.

Rapine and looting historically were accepted as perquisites by conquering troops. They became less prevalent as warfare became more "civilized." But certainly they were not unknown among German troops invading Poland and Russia in World War II and among the Russians invading Germany in the latter stages of that conflict.

The illegitimacy isn't all the result of violent conduct. Troops often seem to have no great difficulty in finding complaisant or acquiescent women. There is visible evidence of this in West Germany. It is estimated that 5,000 offspring of colored troops were born there in the 10 years following World War II — and the number is being added to at the rate of 100 a year. Most were attributed to colored men in the U.S. forces of occupation but some were the responsibility of colored troops from Africa in the French army.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 23, 1968 . .

Duke Henry of Guise and his brother, Cardinal Louis, were murdered 380 years today—in 1588—by Henry III of Valois, King of France. This turned the scale in the "war of the three Henries," a three-cornered free-for-all among the legitimate king, the Catholic backed Henry of Guise and the Protestant Henry of Navarre. It was the eighth religious war in France in 36 years. Henry III was murdered in 1589 by a Catholic agent and Henry of Navarre took the throne.

1783 — George Washington gave up his commission as general and commander-in-chief of the American Continental Army.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1963—Canadian troops fought on the streets of Ortona, Italy; Russian troops captured several populated centres on their drive south from Nevel; United States Marauder bombers attacked the Riviera coast railway line at three places.

The Good and the Bad

Thamesville Herald

"Why don't the newspapers write about nice things," said a sweet little voice on the telephone, "and not about those bad things all the time."

What nice things? we asked.

"Well," she said, "I think it was nice that everyone around here had such a nice time at the fall fair."

"And, of course, those twin sisters celebrated their 95th birthday together, that was nice too."

So it was, we said.

"And ex-President Eisenhower is getting better."

Yes, that was good, too.

"Ann Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Stanfield were very cordial to each other when they met at a luncheon the other day."

Yes, they were. But, we asked this optimistic lady, wherp did she ever learn of all these pleasant things?

"Why, in the papers, of course," Pause. "Oh, dear, what have I done?"

She had amused us, that's what she had done.

Letter to the Editor

Rural Phone Service

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would hope that the Bell Telephone Co. is preparing to offer more and wider services in rural areas, if it is proposing to boost its rates.

We are getting the same service now that we were getting 15 years ago, the difference being that we have a cable instead of the old wire. We still have a party line, which only a few days ago had another party added to it. The same old apparatus is on the wall as was there 18 years ago. At that time a fire had happened within the phone. Is it still fire prone? During electric storms sparks may fly. The company expects us to pay for having this remoyed. I feel we are paying for the service, then why pay for something the company is responsible for, or if not them, who is?

If the Bell Telephone Company wants to boost its rates, then how about updating services?

I wonder if anyone else feels this way about the situation.

A PARTY LINER

Editor's Note: Rural phone service was discussed at a recent meeting of Hastings County council. A representative of Bell Telephone was present, and members of council called for improved service before increased rates were put into effect.

Never A Dull Moment

Milwaukee Journal

It was a lady speaking. She said that she approved of what's been going on in the universities — "never a dull moment, and this is as it should be."

"It is," she said, "better perhaps to suffer from an overdose of excitement than to die of stagnation."

Universities, she continued, are more representative of society as a whole than they used to be and "members are naturally more responsive to social issues and this is certainly a development we would all applaud." She hoped that all "students become more closely involved in the immense social problems."

The lady is the chancellor of London University. She is also the widow of the Queen Mother of Britain. Where's the generation gap there?

Tallulah Bankhead

Peterborough Examiner

"A day away from Tallulah is like a month in the country." That comment by one of Tallulah Bankhead's social contemporaries expresses the impact that this impetuous, ebullient unabashed creature of the laryngitis voice had on the people whom she magnetized.

She is dead at 65. She leaves behind a collection of stage, film and television credits, gossip, controversies, catches, epithets and raw humor.

Married once, divorced and childless, bitter, cynical, ravishingly funny, alcoholic, flamboyantly theatrical, and desperate for the limelight that was the source of her energy, she toured herself into great parts and had parts with a constant determination to electrify the people on her wireband and shatter the inhibitions of those who were not.

Tennessee Williams said she was "the strongest of all the hurt people I've ever known in my life." He regarded her as the "fantastic cross-breeding of a moth and a tiger" and noted that she extended instinctive kindness to a person in whom she sensed a vulnerability akin to her own.

Community Pays for Students

Winnipeg Free Press

The idea of a university presupposes that young people desirous of learning come to be taught by men of knowledge and intellect. Knowledge, or history, is not like a suit, fashioned from a cloth selected by the buyer and made on a pattern corresponding to the customer's particular tastes. Moreover, at the university, the "buyer" is the community that pays the shot. The student may be dissatisfied with the fare, bored with history, and he may decide that, after all, he might do better as a stock-clerk in a department store. The choice is his and it is free. What he cannot be allowed to do is to wreck the country's educational system to suit his own, immature tastes.

A Summer Remembered

Ulster Commentary

The finest weather in living memory — this is how the summer of 1968 will be recalled. While the continental holidaymaker shivered and sheltered from wind and rain, the sun shone gloriously from blue skies over Ulster. Two months of scorching heat with hardly a break — even the most ancient inhabitants admitted it was without precedent.

The weather men, too, were thrown "all by the phenomenon." Their forecasts were liberally sprinkled with foreboding about cloud and rain — but still the sun shone. Flood and storm made headlines elsewhere — the British Isles — but the cloudless skies over Ulster persisted. Perfect, during part of the Test series between England and Australia, was "washed out" here and there — to the astonishment of Ulster folk still basking in the warmth of bright sunshine.

Record crowds added gaiety to the golden strands that dot the coastline. Raincoat and umbrella disappeared and minidwear proliferated.

Escaped Convict Charged With Kidnap --Most of $500,000 Ransom Recovered

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (CP-AP) Escaped convict Gary Steven Krist was under heavy guard in jail today on a kidnaping charge and most of the $500,000 ransom money paid to free Barbara Jane Mackle has been recovered.

Robert Mackle and his daughter met reporters Sunday for the first time since her release Friday. The meeting was on the patio of Miami Heart Institute where Barbara is recuperating from the 80-hour burial in a coffin-like box.

Faith in God sustained the family throughout the ordeal, said Mackle, a wealthy Florida land developer.

Barbara was freed from the box when the kidnappers, ransom money in hand, telephoned the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Atlanta with directions to the site of her North Georgia burial.

Weakened, dehydrated and 10 pounds lighter, Barbara smiled radiantly Sunday.

"I feel just wonderful and I just want to thank everybody for their prayers and their concern for both myself and my family," she said.

A few hours later Krist, 23, convict, was booked in the Dade County jail in Miami on the kidnapping charge.

Krist was held in a safety cell in lieu of $500,000 bond, the amount of the ransom.

A posse captured Krist early Sunday on wild, swampy Hog Island on Florida's lowest Gulf Coast. The FBI said he carried a suitcase containing about $18,000 in $20 bills. Another $480,000 in 20s was found nearby in the rotting hull of an abandoned boat.

The ransom was paid in used, wrinkled $20s.

Krist, suffering from exhaustion, was taken to a Fort Myers hospital where he was later arraigned on the kidnap charge.

The FBI refused comment Sunday on its search for Ruth Eisemann-Schier, 26, for whom it also has issued a kidnap warrant. She worked alongside Krist at the University of Miami Institute of Marine Science.

The FBI also refused to say whether other persons were sought in connection with the kidnapping.

Krist was identified by the FBI through a tracer on licence plates found on a car abandoned by two men during an aborted attempt to collect the ransom Thursday. The $500,000 was again dropped for the kidnappers in a Miami shopping centre parking lot Friday morning.

The FBI said a car rented in Miami Springs under the name of George Deacon—a Krist alias —was found Friday at West Palm Beach.

A boat dealer at West Palm Beach said he sold a $2,300 boat to an "Arthur Horowitz," who paid for it with $20 bills from a money-stuffed suitcase.

The boat travelled the St Lucie and Caloosahatchee canals to Florida's West Coast Friday night and Saturday, the FBI said. The Horowitz name was signed to forms at four navigation locks.

The FBI closed in on its quarry Saturday when agents in helicopters spotted Krist's boat in the mouth of Charlotte Harbor. He beached the boat on Hog Island and was found in the mangrove swamps about 12 hours later.

The kidnapping occurred early Tuesday morning at a motel in Atlanta where Barbara attends Emory University. She was in a room with her mother when the kidnappers forced entry by pretending to be police.

Mrs. Mackle said the kidnap pair included a young white man and a boy of about 12.

Barbara's kidnappers later placed her in the wooden box and buried the box under 18 inches of dirt in an isolated woodland 20 miles northeast of Atlanta.

Father Aids Kidnap Victim

Robert Mackle, left, smiles as he helps his daughter, Barbara Jane, from an automobile at the Atlanta Municipal Airport Friday night. The 20-year-old coed was kidnapped at gunpoint Tuesday from a motel just outside Atlanta. It was reported that the father paid $500,000 ransom for her return. She was found buried alive in a dark coffin-like box 18 inches underground in a heavily wooded, isolated area northeast of Atlanta. (AP Photo)

Release of Prisoners

Channel Developed at UN

MONTREAL (CP) — The Stars says the channel of communication used by the United States and North Korea to negotiate the release of the surviving crewmen of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo was developed at the United Nations in a series of private discussions in which Canada played a leading role.

In a dispatch from its correspondent at UN headquarters in New York, the newspaper says that while North Korea is not a member of the world body, it was possible to establish diplomatic contact with Pyong Yang since Hungary represents its interests at the UN.

While the two protagonists in the Pueblo incident "were hurling insults at each other," the president of the UN security council, Ambassador Shahi of Pakistan, had asked George Ignatieff, the Canadian ambassador, to represent Western nations in private discussions with his Hungarian counterpart aimed at finding a channel of negotiation for the U.S. and North Korea.

The story says:

"A potential channel already existed. The United States and North Korea were meeting periodically at Panmunjom to discuss violations of the armistice.

"All that was needed was to set up a separate and parallel series of meetings there dealing with the Pueblo. Ignatieff and the Hungarian ambassador arranged that."

The 82 surviving crewmen of the intelligence ship, seized by North Korean gunboats last Jan. 23 after it allegedly intruded into North Korea's territorial waters, were released Sunday at Panmunjom, Korea, after final details for the move were agreed upon at the neutral site Saturday.

The crewmen were set free after the United States signed a statement of guilt and apology for violating North Korean territory—a statement which the U.S. repudiated as false in advance of the signing.

Proposal Accepted

U.S. Offers to Move or Share Japanese Bases

TOKYO (AP) — In an attempt to dampen opposition in Japan, the United States offered today to give up, move or share one-third of its bases in Japan.

The offer was accepted, and the two governments said they would begin discussions on the change in status of about 30 of the 148 bases and installations the United States maintains under the U.S.-Japan Security Treaty. The bases were not named.

The agreement was reached at a three-hour session of the security treaty joint consultative committee attended by Foreign Minister Kiichi Aichi Kuichi Arita, director-general of the Japanese defence agency; U.S. Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson and Admiral John S. McCain Jr., commander of U.S. naval forces in the Pacific.

Johnson told a news conference the proposal covers almost half of the total land occupied by U.S. bases and installations in Japan.

He added that the United States has maintained only the minimum number of bases necessary to carry out its commitment to the defence of Japan and had no desire to hold the bases for their own sake.

Aichi said Japan welcomes the U.S. proposal as a constructive step.

After a series of accidents involving U.S. military aircraft and visits to Japanese ports by U.S. nuclear-powered submarines, Japan urged the United States in September to review its needs.

The government action was prompted by left-wing opposition which manifested itself most violently this year in student rioting in January over the visit of the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise to the U.S. naval base at Sasebo, in southern Japan. The students said the ship threatened Japan with radioactive contamination.

The January riots—part of a drive to scrap the U.S.-Japan Security Treaty which comes up for review in 1970—injured scores of demonstrators and police.

Vietnam Action

Reds Launch Heavy Attacks

SAIGON (AP) The Communist command launched a series of heavy attacks across South Vietnam during the weekend preceding the start tonight of its three-day Christmas ceasefire.

The heaviest fighting raged only six miles from the truce site where U.S. and Viet Cong representatives are to meet Christmas Day to discuss the release of three American prisoners.

A force of 1,500 North Vietnamese soldiers stormed out of Cambodia Sunday morning and lost at least 103 dead and a huge pile of weapons and ammunition of a six-hour attack on an American patrol base 44 miles northwest of Saigon.

U.S. infantry reported 17 of them were killed. Bazooka-firing North Vietnamese torpedoed their way through the barbed wire and fought in the trenches connecting bunkers. At least 30 bodies were strung along the barbed wire.

Closer to Saigon, 400 North Vietnamese troops slashed into a South Vietnamese infantry company 16 miles southeast of the capital and set off a seven-hour battle that raged until early today.

The North Vietnamese killed 12 government soldiers before two U.S. Navy troopers' gunships helped break up the three-prong attack. A government spokesman said a sweep of the battlefield at daybreak turned up 64 bodies.

During the night Viet Cong and North Vietnamese gunners also fired 100 rounds of 100 pound rockets and mortars at three air bases and the headquarters of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division.

Four rockets fell short and crashed into a village on the outskirts of the Da Nang air base, killing 12 civilians.

Rockets and mortars also fell on the Pleiku and Kontum airfields, about 25 miles apart in the central highlands. Three transport planes and two houses were damaged at Pleiku.

A broadcast by the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong, indicated the Viet Cong is ready to release American prisoners throughout South Vietnam.

U.S. officials were skeptical but left the door open for a possible extension of the 24-hour allied Christmas ceasefire that begins at 6 p.m. Tuesday—6 a.m. EST.

The NLF broadcast quoted the political affairs director of the Viet Cong as saying: "U.S. forces commanding in South Vietnam should send representatives to meet the Viet Cong representatives at various areas and discuss time, localities and other necessary regulations governing the release of U.S. prisoners-of-war."

Only Two Windows Clear On Apollo Vehicle

HOUSTON (AP) — With one of the most breathtaking views of all time out their windows, the Apollo 8 astronauts face much the same problem as couples at a drive-in theatre on a cold night—foggy windows.

Only two of five windows around the cone-shaped craft are clear, the pilots reported. Both side windows, each about 13 inches square, "have moderate haze on them," they told ground controllers, and a round window in the centre "is almost opaque."

Foggy windows have plagued every manned space flight. The source of the problem never has been pinpointed. It could, however, affect the quality of photography and spacecraft-to-earth television.

Mafia Men Sentenced To Long Jail Terms

CATANZARO, Italy (CP) — Fifty-six Sicilian men accused of Mafia crimes were sentenced to prison terms ranging up to 22 years Sunday night. Fifty-seven others were acquitted.

The trial of the 113 men from Palermo began Oct. 23, 1967.

The sentences, for crimes ranging from murder to kidnaping and armed raids, draws a line under one of the most violent chapters in Sicilian Mafia history.

The bomb attacks, machine-gunnings and killings began in 1959 and intensified in 1962 when the death of Mafia boss Lucky Luciano set off a struggle for domination of the Mafia.

The end came, when seven policemen and two civilians were killed in a booby-trapped car near Palermo in June, 1963.

This provoked the biggest police raid on the Mafia since the war—hundreds of suspects were rounded up and a parliamentary commission was set up to conduct an inquiry.

The trial began in October, 1967, in a school gymnasium here because there was no courtroom big enough to hold all the accused, police guards, lawyers and witnesses.

Residents of Manor Participate In Making Handicraft Items

By LINDA GELDART

In a way, it is almost a personification of 222 people that live there, not young, but aging with grace and dignity.

What are some of the things these people do to occupy their time? You would undoubtedly be surprised.

The room is open five days a week, in both the morning and afternoon.

Mrs. Bongard, a soft-spoken woman, exemplifies patience and tact. She has been working at the Manor in her present capacity for nine years. Laughing in retrospect, she admitted, "it doesn't seem that long, because it doesn't seem like work, and I enjoy it so much."

Before she started working as a craft instructor, Mrs. Bongard was a constant visitor at the Manor. With a sound background in community and church work, and with an active interest in crafts, she was just right for the job.

Supplementing her own interest in crafts, "the mistress" of the craft room has taken various courses throughout the years. Millinery, leather work, rug hooking, ceramics — and maybe after Christmas — oil painting. It's always something.

The classes are run on a voluntary basis, and any interested residents are free to participate. Attendance usually runs about 25 to 30 each day.

With no set program to follow, Mrs. Bongard encourages her "class" to use their imagination in whatever they attempt to make. She stresses "anything well done is worth showing."

Some of the residents work in their rooms, but the majority come to the craft room, with its large picture windows and comfortable work counters.

"In anything we attempt, we often use lots of things people throw out." — baby food jars, clothes pins, spools, tops of spray cans — almost everything, explained Mrs. Bongard.

The finished items range from overgrown paper flowers to wall plates made out of colored Bell Telephone wire. Not only are these articles unique, they are no problem to sell.

[illegible] exception, nearly [illegible] around the craft room was sold or on [illegible] sale of these diligent workers is attested by the many ribbons won at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, and at the local Hobby Show.

Mrs. Bongard terms her craft "class," as extremely co-operative and easy to deal with. She spoke highly of them, terming her work rewarding.

"I like them to be happy in what they are doing. Here, they are free to do what they wish, and at the same time they are able to learn new things."

One realizes that Mrs. Bongard is a woman who likes what she does. Each day goes quickly for her, and, as she says, "you just never seem to get enough done."

Naturally, she emphasizes, "there is never a dull moment".

Eighty-five-year-old Mrs. E. Moynes channels all her powers of concentration towards finishing her unique example of craftwork — precisely correct, right down to the last minute detail.

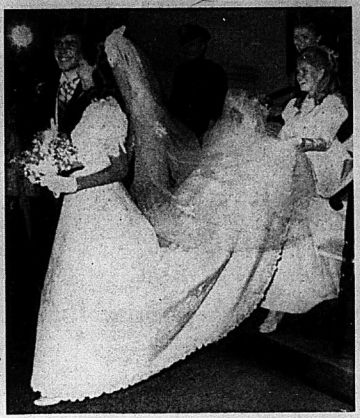
College Guild Elects Officers



Amid beautiful Christmas decorations and with a fire brightly burning in the fireplace, Albert College Women's Guild was transported to time long past, at the December meeting.

Mrs. Ralph Plumpton, of the Hastings County Museum, presented interesting slides showing places of interest in the county and the city of Belleville. In some cases the pictures showed "then and now" of various places. It seemed impossible to recognize places as they are now from the pictures of many years ago.

Mrs. Plumpton was introduced and thanked by Mrs. F. Davidson who was in charge of the program.

During the business period conducted by the president, Mrs. H. G. Seeley, the slate of officers for 1969 was presented by Mrs. C. W. Smith: honorary president, Mrs. Ralph B. Simpson; past president, Mrs. C. W. Smith; president, Mrs. H. G. McKay; 1st vice-president, Mrs. E. A. Fleming; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. E. McCabe; recording secretary, Mrs. H. C. Barlow; corresponding secretary, Miss D. Young; treasurer, Mrs. F. Wilson; press reporter, Mrs. A. Guest.

Various conveners are: social convener, Mrs. G. Diment and Mrs. E. Kelcheson; maintenance committee, Mrs. W. H. Finkle, Mrs. T. McMullen, and Mrs. M. Sprague; telephone convener, Mrs. L. G. Hudgins; pianist, Mrs. T. K. Franklin; program convener, Miss Helen Sulman; assistants, Mrs. E. McCabe, Miss D. Young, Mrs. C. Scott, Mrs. E. Hickey and Mrs. N. Brown; nominating committee, Mrs. C. W. Smith, Mrs. N. Brown, Mrs. N. C. McFie.

Julie Nixon Marries On Sunday

NEW YORK (AP) — Julie Nixon and Dwight David Eisenhower II were married here Sunday in a simple, single-ring church ceremony that united two Republican presidential families.

Julie was escorted down the aisle by her father, President-elect Richard Nixon. David's grandfather, former president Dwight Eisenhower, watched on closed-circuit television in a hospital room.

Julie and her father had arrived less than 30 minutes before the afternoon ceremony to the cheers of about 700 persons gathered outside under chill, threatening skies.

Nixon escorted his daughter down the Dutch Reformed Church's 65-foot aisle, which was covered with a white linen carpet.

David's grandparents, the Dwight Eisenhowers, watched the ceremony in Walter Reed Hospital via closed circuit television. Eisenhower is recuperating from a series of heart attacks and his wife has the flu.

The bride, her hair pulled back from her face and falling in gentle waves to her shoulders, wore a long, full-skirted gown of silk peau d'ange in white lace ivory-mist English net, designed by Priscilla of Boston. Julie wore short white gloves and a long, full veil, topped with a crown of seed pearls.

Reporters were not allowed inside the church or at the party. Press spokesman said the ban was imposed at Julie's request.

Legion L.A. Lists Officers

LADIES' AUXILIARY BRANCH 99

The last meeting of 1968 was well attended by members of the Ladies' Auxiliary Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 99. After the usual opening ceremony Mrs. Betty Ingram was initiated and welcomed into the Auxiliary. Applications were received from Mrs. Frances Canning and Mrs. Hilda Brooks and they will be initiated in January.

Nominations and election of officers were held. Zone Commander Earl Brant of Deseronto assisted by Past Zone Commander Jack Rashotie, president Ed Smith, and Comrades C. Marriott and D. Kirby conducted the election in a formal efficient manner.

Officers elected were as follows: president, Com ade Edna Semark; 1st vice-president, Comrade Gwen Hughes; 2nd vice-president, Comrade Dorothy Purdy; secretary, Comrade Mamie Spencer; treasurer, Comrade Daisy Jeffs by acclamation; Sgt.-at-Arms, Comrade Marg Lewis; executive, Comrades Rashotie, Taylor, Bradford, Haley, Davis and Little Sports officer, Comrade Hunter.

Beautifully framed certificates will be presented to the three winners of the Legion Command Scholarships.

The first sports tournament of the New Year will be held at Tweed January 18th with bowling and euchre. It was agreed that members wishing to take part in sports must attend at least three meetings during the year.

Mrs. Betty Ingram won the evening's draw. The members retired to enjoy a special lunch and to exchange Christmas gifts.

Next meeting will feature the installation of officers and a belated Christmas party for all members. The children of the members of Branch 99 had a wonderful time at their annual Christmas Tree party recently.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

TWEED KINSMEN CLUB

TWEED — The Tweed Kinsmen Club held their annual Children's Night recently at the Stoco Lake Hotel.

After a good meal, which was enjoyed by adults and children alike, the children were entertained by three movies, followed by refreshments and the distribution of gifts.

On behalf of all the children, Ross Lough, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Lough, Colborne St., Tweed, thanked the Kinsmen Club for the fine evening that they enjoyed.

A special vote of thanks was extended herewith to Alex French for providing and operating the film projector, and also to the companies involved for providing the free drinks for the children.

Tickets were distributed at this time on the draw for a 1969 Ski-Doo. This project is jointly sponsored by the Tweed Kinsmen Club and the Tweed Chamber of Commerce.

U.C.W. Meeting

UNIT TWO

The general meeting of the Queensboro United Church Women was held in Cooper with the Cooper Unit as hostess and Unit Two of Queensboro providing the program.

UNIT ONE

Mrs. Harry Love was hostess for the December meeting of unit one of the U.C.W. Mrs. Harold Tokley, unit leader was in charge. The devotional period was led by Mrs William Cassidy.

Mrs. Harry Declair was in charge of the program. Each member was asked to tell something about the first Christmas they could remember, and also tell about their favorite Christmas, and end each story with a favorite Christmas song. There was a quiz on gifts, and a reading, "the given life," was given by Mrs. Declair.

The meeting was closed and lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants

Successful Living

Songs Give A False Impression

By DORIS CLARK

Thanks to movies and sentimental songs, there is a popular notion that if two people find themselves emotionally excited by each other, they are romantically in love and need only to promise themselves to each other in front of a minister in order to live happily ever afterward.

They need more, much more, for a happy marriage. For one thing, a young man and woman need to be friends. They need some of the same interests; and levels of education that about come essential once to each other. Belonging to the same general nationality or sub-group helps. And a matching religious denomination is highly to be desired.

"For better, for worse; for richer, for poorer." Being committed to living with a chosen mate for a half-century more or less, carries a terrifying lot of hazards.

You can only make it if you have something really great going for you. Not just a sentimental song.

Dear Doris: Thank you for your helpful suggestions for the elderly.

I found that knitting and crocheting were already very popular and one lady sews at the machine practically all day. They have croquet, croquinole as well as cards and T.V. Some have garden patches, some help with lawn mowing, doing dishes and of course at holiday seasons, they all help make decorations or candy or whatever is needed.

I wasn't able to make many new suggestions but, as you can see, they have quite a bit to keep them busy. They enjoy visits more than anything else and music is always appreciated. Our church choir, and most of the other churches too, go for a sing-song once a month.

I hope this will help others that may be interested. — Visitor.

Dear Visitor: Glad to have your report. We can't stress often enough that the visit, the giving of oneself and one's time, is the best gift of all.

Dear Doris: I'd like to contribute an idea to your file of Ice-Breaker Games.

You give everyone a card as they enter the room, with a song title on it. They are told to walk around the room humming their tune and looking for the other person who has the same card. We did it at Christmas and used Christmas songs.

Then when they found their partners they were paired off for the next item on the program, which was a paper-and-pencil quiz. But they could be paired off t. dance, or to play any kind of a team game. — Party Fun.

Dear Fun: Sounds promising. Readers will be using your idea and writing out song names on cards this very week.

Mother: "Stop jerking like that. Do you think I enjoy this fussing about your hair every morning! Sit still and let me fix it right."

It's hard on both mother and child if every day starts with pain and irritation. Better a bulabaloo each morning.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Recipes For Stuffing and Gravy

By MARY MOORE

On Friday December 20th I promised to give you turkey stuffing, roasting and gravy information.

Regardless of the number of turkeys you roast during a year you want your Christmas bird to be the perfect one.

STUFFING — Similar to 1967 by popular demand.

Amounts fill 10-lb bird: (double them for 20-lb. bird—see below)

½ cup butter
2-3 cup chopped mild onion or chives
8 cups soft fresh bread-crumbs — about 12 slices)
1 1-3 tsps. salt
4 tbsps. chopped parsley (or bottled flakes)
½ tsp. rosemary
1 1-3 cups either canned, drained bamboo shoots or water chestnuts or washed chopped raw mushrooms or celery

In large frying pan melt butter and gently saute onions until limp. Add all remaining ingredients and stir over low heat until butter is mixed through all. Cool and turn into plastic bag. If desired chill.

10-LB Oven - Ready Bird: Pipy skin of bird. Push open end of stuffing-filled plastic bag into opening and gradually withdraw bag. If you work neatly not one crumb of stuffing need be spilled. Skewer opening shut; tie wings and legs to body. Spread soft butter all over exposed skin. Place on rack in roasting pan and roast 4½ to 5 hrs. at 325 deg. Fahr. Cover with loose tent of foil until last half hour. Bird is tender when drumstick moves easily at hip joint.

20-Pound Bird:

Measure 6 tbsps. pan drippings (fat and brown sediment) into saucepan. Add 6 tbsps. flour and stir over medium heat until smooth and blended. Add 3 cups liquid, stirring. This should be broth in which giblets were simmered, plus enough boiling water to make 3 cups. Stir until thick. Add salt and pepper to taste. Chopped giblets may be added if desired. If gravy is not a rich brown add 1 or 2 chicken bouillon cubes and a little "gravy browner."

NOTE: My Christmas Eve message tomorrow is directed to that master of ceremonies the Carver of the Bird so if he needs help and assurance I will come to his rescue.

Ann Landers

Bluff Is Called; Embarrassment Results

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My sister-in-law has been bragging for years that she still weighs 113 pounds, the same as she was married 16 years ago. Molly has a good figure but she's no 113 pounds.

ANN LANDERS

Last night we had a party at our home for 70 couples. Everyone was feeling pretty good. Molly was, you might say, stinko. She made the weight brag again — in front of everybody — and it was just once too often for me. I decided to call her bluff and said, "O.K., prove it." I brought the bathroom scale right into the living room and told her to get on it. Molly bellowed, "You bet I will." With that she kicked off her shoes, whipped off her dress and unhitched her bra from the girdle before anyone could stop her. Her husband dragged her out of the room just as she was unhooking her bra.

Molly's disgraceful behavior is the talk of the town. People have been calling me all morning to ask if it really happened. I'm so mad at her for acting cheap in our home I'd like to kick her in the teeth.

My husband says it's my fault because I bailed her. Please give me your opinion of this. — STILLBURNING.

DEAR STILL: Of course Molly should not have started to peel in your living room, but you invited it, dearie. My opinion is that you should both stick to ginger ale.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This morning I received an invitation to the Tenth Anniversary of my high school graduation. My mother says if I don't go I will never forgive myself.

I'd love to see the kids again, Ann, but I'm ashamed to have them see me. I used to be attractive and happy-go-lucky, but I've had a lot of tough luck these past 10 years — two lousy marriages —and I look 48 instead of 28. Last year after a bad operation I put on 25 pounds which I can't get rid of.

I'm presently working as a cocktail waitress because I can make more money at this than teaching school. (I support an invalid mother.) I am not ashamed of my job but I'm afraid my teachers would be disappointed. I was an excellent student and they all predicted great things for me.

If the girls pass around pictures of their children (as they are sure to do) I would probably go to pieces. I lost two babies at birth and I cry just thinking about them.

Please tell me what to do, Ann. I can't make up my mind. Should I go or not? — LOST MY RABBIT'S FOOT.

DEAR FRIEND: Don't go. Feeling as you do, you'd have a miserable time. Some situations which cause unhappiness are unavoidable, but why go looking for agony? Set your sights on the 20-year reunion, honey. I hope and pray your next 10 years are better than the last.

Women's Institutes

ELDOREADO W.I.

ELDORADO — The Christmas meeting of the Eldorado and Bannockburn Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Stanley Franks on Wednesday afternoon with 20 women and several children present.

Mrs. Vera Hill of Madoc was the guest speaker telling how the Institute got its name, and she also explained the work of the Institute. Several Christmas carols were sung. Mrs. Cecil Blackburn gave readings on free rights, and later an exchange of gifts took place.

The meeting closed with the serving of a delicious lunch by the ladies.

Winnipeg Ballet Members Return Home

WINNIPEG (CP) — The tired but jubilant members of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet returned home Sunday with the sounds of cheering European audiences still ringing in their ears.

An enthusiastic crowd of about 250 persons, including civic and government officials, applauded the group as it was led to the airport reception area by a pipe band.

"We're happy to be home," said Christine Hennesy, the prima ballerina who won a gold medal at an international festival in Paris.

The company's five-week tour included France, Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union and James Richardson, minister without portfolio, said they brought honor to themselves and to Winnipeg."

Mr. Richardson applauded the company for not only winning awards but for spreading goodwill wherever they went.

Miss Hennesy said the troupe was taken care of wherever it went but referred to their first performance in Leningrad as "a big, cool opening."

"It was a little disappointing after our reception in Paris," she said.

But Sergie Sawchyn, general manager of the RWB, said Moscow was perhaps the greatest triumph when, following the final performance, the audience brought the dancers back for a half hour of curtain calls.

He said he was "elated with the success of the tour. Every city was sold out. . . .

The company now takes a three-day rest before they begin Christmas and New Year's performances in Winnipeg.

Then it's back on the road for an 11-week tour of about 50 cities in the United States.

Theologian Exhorts Pope To Admit He Made Mistake

NEW YORK (Reuters) — A leading American Roman Catholic theologian has called on Pope Paul to "acknowledge that he followed the wrong advisers and made a mistake" in outlawing all artificial methods of birth control.

"Since the decision is bound to be reversed by his successor, it would be far more honorable, proper and just for the Pope to rescind it himself," says Rev. John A. O'Brien, research professor of theology at the University of Notre Dame, in an article in the January Reader's Digest.

At the same time, Father O'Brien urges Roman Catholics who may be disturbed or worried over the papal encyclical to "follow your own enlightened conscience with serenity of mind and joy of heart."

The encyclical, Father O'Brien writes, "produced a crisis in the church more serious than any since the mighty religious upheaval of the 16th century, which split Christendom into fragments."

Nursing Homes Ask Rate Boost

TORONTO (CP) — The Associated Nursing Homes Inc. of Ontario has recommended a per-diem rate of $12.50 instead of the present $8.50 for patients in privately-owned nursing homes.

Earlier this year, an attempt by some nursing homes to raise the $8.50 rate by $4 stalled when the Metropolitan Toronto welfare department started moving 625 of its patients to other nursing homes outside the municipality.

In a brief released during the weekend, the association said the increase in rates to $12.50 is justified because of higher operating costs and salaries.

Bruins Best Habs In Home-and-Home

By SCOTT BUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Bobby Orr and Derek Sanderson of Boston Bruins accepted two of the National Hockey League's most coveted awards Sunday night, then quickly showed that they deserved them.

NHL president Clarence Campbell presented Orr with the James Norris Memorial Trophy as the league's top defenceman last season and gave Sanderson the Calder Memorial Trophy as the rookie of the year.

The two young stars then took the ice against Montreal Canadiens and played important roles in a third-period rally that gave Boston a 7-5 victory.

The win, watched by 14,653, moved Boston one point ahead of second-place Montreal in the Eastern Division.

Sanderson scored two goals in the final period, including the winner, and Orr added another goal on a spectacular rush.

The 22-y ear-o ld Sanderson scored his 10th goal of the season after just nine seconds of the final period to give the Bruins a 4-4 tie. He added his 11th, the decisive one, at 9:51.

Orr, 20, collected his 10th of the season at 7:51 when he rushed up the ice, circled the Montreal net, and poked the puck past Canadiens' goalie Tony Esposito.

In other games Sunday, Detroit Red Wings edged Toronto 4-3, Philadelphia edged Los Angeles Kings 2-1 and Minnesota defeated Pittsburgh 3-1.

PHIL ESPOSITO

Orr and Sanderson received plenty of assistance from Phil Esposito, the Bruins' top scorer. Esposito scored a pair of goals, his 21st and 22nd of the season, against his brother Tony in the Montreal goal. Johnny Bucyk and Wayne Cashman collected the other Bruin goals.

Claude Provost scored two goals for the Canadiens, with single tallies going to Dick Duff, Bobby Rousseau and Henri Richard.

Peter Stemkowski, a former Maple Leaf, scored the winning goal for Detroit Sunday at 14:13 of the final period. Frank Mahovlich and his brother, Peter, picked up the other Red Wing goals.

Stemkowski, who went to Detroit last March with Mahovlich and Garry Unger in a trade for Ullman, Henderson and Floyd Smith, made the score 3-1 with his goal. Henderson scored 40 seconds later.

A crowd of 13,884 at Detroit saw Toronto's usually mild-mannered Dave Keon receive his first misconduct since coming to the NHL eight years ago. The little centre drew the penalty for protesting that Peter Mahovlich's second-period goal was offside.

Third-period goals by Bobby and Dennis Hull carried Chicago to its triumph. Stan Mikita scored the other Chicago goal and Gene Ubriaco replied for Pittsburgh.

Bobby Hull scored his 22nd goal of the season at 8:42 to put Chicago ahead 2-1 and Dennis collected his 16th at 13:07.

A gathering of 16,666 at Chicago watched the Black Hawks outshoot the Penguins 38-23 and move into a tie for fourth place in the Eastern Division with New York.

The Rangers defeated the North Stars on final-period tallies by Reg Fleming and Phil Goyette that broke a 2-2 tie.

Fleming scored on a power play at 2:51 and Goyette fired into an empty net at 19:05.

Jim Neilson and Don Marshall scored the other New York goals. Picking up goals for Minnesota were Wayne Connelly and Claude Larose before 17,250 New York fans.

The victory, with substitute Gilles Villemure in goal, broke an eight-game winless streak for the Rangers.

Bill Hicke scored at 12:29 of the third period to carry Oakland to its win. Gary Jarrett was the other Oakland scorer while Bril Selby was credited with the Philadelphia goal.

Flyers Regain Senior Perch

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The red light winked 65 times in five Ontario Hockey Association Senior series games during the weekend, almost enough times to make any goalie blush.

After the rubber barrage, Barrie Flyers moved back into first place in the league standings.

The Flyers beat the former league leaders, Galt Terriers 7-4 Saturday to take a one-point lead and then nipped Belleville Mo-Hawks 5-4 Sunday to go three points up.

An example of high scoring was shown by Kingston Aces. They scored 17 goals in two games but only managed one win, defending Orillia Terriers 11-2 Saturday and losing to the Oakville Oaks 9-6 Sunday.

In the other game Sunday, Collingwood Kings stung the last-place Woodstock A's 13-4.

The Flyers stole the league lead before 2,017 fans in Galt. Dave Nicholishen and Wayne Weller scored twice for the Flyers and Bard Houston, John McMillan and Corby Adams added one each.

Ron Hergott and Pete Brennan scored two goals each for Galt who have played 29 games, four less than the Flyers.

Ottawa Nationals Dump Czech Visitors

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's Ottawa-based national hockey team, led by the two-goal scoring of winger Richie Bayes, whipped Czechoslovakia 7-3 in an exhibition hockey game here Sunday.

The Czechs, who whipped the Canadian team 3-1 Friday in Montreal came out of the first period with a 1-0 lead. But the Canadians fired three unanswered goals in the middle period and outscored the visitors 4-2 in the final.

Terry Caffery, Tom Martin, Fran Huck, Jean Cusson and Gary Begg got the other Canadian goals.

Scoring for Czechoslovakia, silver medalists in the Olympic Games last year, were Jiri Holik, Jan Naval and D. Mrskiad.

The Eastern team, bolstered by five members from the Western club, held a wide territorial edge in play in the last 40 minutes. They also got some excellent goaltending from Steve Rexe.

FRAN HUCK

The Canadians outshot the Czechs 22-27. Their edge in play was particularly noticeable in the third period when they got 15 shots on net to the visitors' eight.

Holik got the Czechs off to a good start in the first period when his shot bounced off the stick of Ottawa defenceman Jack Bownass and skidded into the Canadian net.

But the Canadians came back in the second with three goals within seven minutes. Caffery started the parade at 12:06 and was followed by Cusson at 17:32 and Martin at 18:46.

After Haval closed the gap to 3-2 early in the third, the Canadians again bunched together four quick goals to sink the Czech cause.

Bayes, Huck, Begg and then Bayes again found the target as a crowd of more than 5,000 cheered them on.

Mrskiad's goal in the dying minutes closed out the scoring.

TO THE QUINTE AREA . . .

A SPECIAL THANK YOU TO THE GOOD PEOPLE OF BELLEVILLE AND DISTRICT . . .

We would like to express our gratitude and appreciation for the pleasure of serving you for the past twenty years. Whether it be a 1c stamp from our Postal Department, a 'pick' for your guitar, a 45 rpm; an LP record; a beautiful set of drums; sheet music — perhaps of the Wedding March; a planned Honeymoon by our Travel Dept; or the purchase of a film from our Photography Dept; or the development of that film and free roll you received — maybe you are one of our 'round the world' travel clients — we would love to list everything and express our thanks.

When you read this, you will know in what capacity we are saying thank you to cover every department in our store.

Belleville has growing pains — we have had ours, when you are 20 years old — it's a good age. The next 20 or 40 years should be fantastic. This is the way we feel about our future business in Belleville.

In future — when we say 'Thank You' to you personally, it is not from force of habit but truly meant. We plan to serve you even better in the coming years.

Third-Period Barrie Breakaway Dampens Mo-Hawk Hopes for Victory

BARRIE (Staff) — Twice this weekend, the Belleville Mo-Hawks had a Senior "A" powerhouse on the ropes in the third period only to see badly-needed wins turned into losses.

Yesterday, it was Mike Dubeau's breakaway goal at 9.42 of the final frame that wiped out Mo-Hawk chances for victory against Barrie's league-leading Flyers, while Friday in Belleville a Galt goal with nine seconds left in regulation time erased a 4-3 Mo-Hawk lead and paved the way for a 5-4 Hornet overtime victory.

The Mo-Hawks had only 14 men in uniform for the Barrie game, with Wayne Brown and Ed Marineau working. Lionel Mo-Hawk chances for victory Molnar injured and Stu Mushkat and Moe Hunter unable to make the trip.

Coach Davey Jones did welcome two faces to the Mo-Hawk lineup though — leftwinger Ralph Plane, just recovered from a broken ankle, and Lorne O'Donnell, a 26-year-old new addition from Peterborough.

It was Plane, who had a goal and two assists for the night, who opened the scoring when he deflected Belleville's first shot of the game past Barrie netminder Bob Saunders at the 1.20 mark of the first period.

The locals skated and forechecked relentlessly in the first period, at one time preventing Barrie from getting a shot on goal during a Flyer powerplay.

Larry Holmes in the Belleville nets was sharp as he robbed Corby Adams, Pete Panagakho and John McMillan while blocking 12 shots and protecting Belleville's 1-0 lead.

Al Ferguson and John "Shaker" Baker scored early in the final stanza to give the Mo-Hawks a 4-3 lead and the momentum. Bob Taylor, who picked up assists on three Belleville goals, and Ralph Plane assisted on both the tying and go-ahead goals.

Corby Adams, the Flyers' leading scorer, upset the Belleville apple cart at 7.07 of the final period when he scored to tie the game up, and set the stage for Dubeau's game-winning goal.

Bob Taylor twice came within inches of knotting the count, but Barrie netminder Bob Saunders held the fort even after the Mo-Hawks pulled goalie Larry Holmes in favor of a sixth attacker.

The Mo-Hawks get a Christmas break until Friday when they journey to Collingwood for an 8:30 game with the Kings.

'Can't See A Thing'

Barrie Flyer defenceman Dave Luciuk had a special problem in yesterday's 5-4 Barrie win over the visiting Belleville Mo-Hawks. During a third-period scramble around the Barrie goal, Luciuk lost both of his contact lenses. The game was delayed while he and some spectators tried to locate the tiny specs, but only one was found.

If ever the National Hockey League powers-that-be are looking around for an advertisement for their glacial goings-on, all they need do is distribute tapes of Saturday night's tubed Boston-Montreal encounter.

Even Danny Gallivan's swirling superlatives were entirely justified.

It was hockey at its best.

The goal-less struggle was the skating, fast, speedfest spine-tingler that has treated the television-watcher's palate for many a moon.

All the elements were there — a slate-mated duel between fraternal rivals Pilil and Tony Esposito: an illegal Richard-John McKenzie sparring bout that was reminiscent of another Richard era; end-to-end, wide-open hockey, despite the fact the scoreless game was being played for first-place stakes; goaltending thievery by Messrs. Cheevers and Esposito that had the crowd, broadcasters, and players scratching disbelieving skulls; not to mention Bobby Orr, who, like one Gordon Howe, is fast approaching the stage where he could be awarded a game's first star for sitting on the bench.

It was fitting that neither team won the game — it would have been a particularly bitter pill for either goalie — after three periods of hard-earned deadlock.

And it was fitting that an encounter of such calibre should happen along on "Hockey Night in Canada."

How often do we find ourselves getting all'settled in, mug in one hand, and a Hockey News in the other to watch the Saturday night skate, only to be rewarded with a lopsided Montreal slaughter of, say, Oakland, or an Oakland upset of, say, Toronto.

The law of averages should catch up with us more often as it did Saturday night.

• • •

Toronto's Dave Keon finally showed his temper.

The former two-time Lady Byng winner protested a little too vehemently that Pete Mahovlich's second-period goal was offside in the Leafs' 3-2 loss last night to the Red Wings in Detroit.

Keon was assessed a 10-minute misconduct for his efforts, his first in nine seasons in the NHL.

To make matters worse, the little centre's penalty total for the past three seasons has been exactly 10 minutes!

Purse Is Lost

LEXINGTON, y. (AP) — The Kentucky Racing Commission today upheld the stewards at Churchill Downs in disqualifying Dancer's Image from the winner's purse in the 1968 Kentucky Derby.

The commission, after hearing 14 days of testimony, agreed with the stewards that the colt, owned by Boston sportsman Peter Fuller, had phenylbutazone or a derivative of the drug in his system during the running of the May 4 Derby.

Phenylbutazone, which a Churchill Downs chemist said was found in the colt's urine after the race, is an illegal medication under Kentucky racing rules.

Arthur Grafton, lawyer for Fuller, indicated an appeal might be made to the courts, but said no final decision would be made until he talked to Fuller.

Juniors Sunk Deeper By Petes' 12-Goal Splurge

The Peterborough Don Byes celebrated Christmas early yesterday as they feasted on the Belleville Morrisons by a score of 12-2 and climbed into first place in the six team Eastern Ontario Junior "B" league.

Peterborough, with 25 points in 18 games, are a single point ahead of the second-place Oshawa Crushmen, who have two games in hand over the Peterborough squad. The loss left Belleville mired in the league cellar, four points behind fifth place Kingston.

The Don Byes scored three goals in the first, six in the second and three more in the last period as they dominated the game, outshooting Belleville 27-7 in the second period, and 56-41 on the game.

The Morrisons started strongly, outshooting Peterborough 19-14 in the first period, but they were completely outclassed in the second period by the Don Byes, who have a player affiliation with the Peterborough Petes of the OHA Junior "A" league.

Peterborough grabbed a 3-1 lead in the first period as Peter Sullivan fired the first two of his four goals, and Bob Fleming added a single marker. Defenceman Wayne Brown scored Belleville's goal on a rush effort at 16.04 of the first period.

Peterborough counted two goals in the second period before Wayne McConnell took a pass from Reed Mallory and beat Steve Johnston to the Peterborough nets to make the score 5-2.

Mallory, a juvenile all-star in Belleville, was dressed to bolster the Morrisons ranks for the encounter against Peterborough.

Peterborough never looked back, tallying four more goals in the second period and three in the final stanza, while blanking the Morrisons the rest of the way.

Peter Sullivan was the big gun for Peterborough with four goals and three assists, while Jim Bennett chipped in with a goal and three assists for the winners.

The Morrisons have a Christmas break until they play host to the Kingston Frontenacs Friday night at the Belleville Arena, a chance to move closer to fifth place.

Locals Celebrate Festive Season

Belleville minor hockey teams celebrated the holiday season with four victories in five weekend games, highlighted by the Kinsmen bantams' 11-0 drubbing of Picton on Sunday.

In other games Smith Pee's peewees defeated Brighton 6-2 Sunday in an exhibition game, while Towers Food City novices split a pair of exhibition games, shutting out Port Hope 9-0, but dropping a 3-1 decision to Bowmanville, and the Canadian Legion novice "B" team downed Campbellford 4-3 Sunday.

Kinsmen bantams continued their winning ways as Benny Lupenette and Brian Cousins each fired three goals, while single goals went to Mark Coates, Mike Burley, John Mulvihill, Robbie Foster and Grant Goegan. Bob Moore and Bruce Clark shared the shutout for the Kinsmen.

Smith Fuels peewees were led by the Crawford brothers, Peter and Mike, in their 6-2 win over Brighton. Peter Crawford tallied two goals and an assist, while Mike chipped in with a goal and three assists. Bruce Sutherland, Steve Kirby and Tim Whelan scored the other Belleville goals.

Coates with three goals, Whalen with two, and Meagher, Suddard, Lupenette and Hutchinson with a goal each combined to defeat Port Hope.

Bruce Hamilton and Paul Coates shared the shutout for the Food City crew.

Mike Bennett's two goals led the novice "B" team to victory over Campbellford with a pair of goals, while Ron Doornbos and Danny Duffy scored single goals.

Mutual Admiration Club Adjourns Next Sunday in Cleveland, New York

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The praise-makers will spend the rest of the week figuring ways to tear down the Colts and Raiders in next Sunday's Super Bowl semi-finals.

It won't be easy.

Collier's Cleveland Browns bushwacked Dallas Cowboys 21-20 Saturday for the National Football League's Eastern Conference title, then watched the Colts wreck Minnesota Vikings 24-14 Sunday for the Western crown.

"They were tremendous," Collier said of the Colts who play the Browns in Cleveland Sunday for the NFL championship.

Ewbank's New York Jets, Eastern Division kings in the American Football League, were interested observers as the Raiders demolished Kansas City Chiefs 41-6 Sunday in a playoff for the Western title.

The Raiders, defending AFL champs, meet the Jets at New York Sunday for the league pennant, with the winner taking on the NFL titlist in the Jan. 12 Super Bowl at Miami.

"Oakland's a great football team . . . and this victory will make them all the more confident," Ewbank said following the one-sided Western showdown in which Raider quarterback Daryle Lamonica riddled the favored Chiefs with five touchdown passes.

Sunday's winners also left painful impressions on coach Bud Grant and quarterback Joe Kapp of the Vikings.

"A great football team," Grant said of the Colts, who shut out Minnesota until the last quarter and pulled to their ninth consecutive victory, ruining the Vikings' first post-season fling.

"I don't think we could have played better against them."

Kapp, who passed for 287 yards and ran for 52 more despite constant harassment from the bruising Baltimore defensive unit, called the Colts "definitely the finest football team I've ever seen."

Lamonica broke the Oakland-Kansas City game open early, firing scoring passes of 24 yards to Fred Biletnikoff, 23 to Warren Wells and 44 to Biletnikoff for a 21-0 first period bulge. He hit Biletnikoff again with a 54-yard payoff pitch before halftime and connected with Wells in the fourth quarter on a 45-yard scoring play.

Oakland defenders picked off four Len Dawson passes, held Mike Garrett to a net of five rushing yards and limited the Chiefs to a pair of field goals by Jan Stenerud.

"If it wasn't our best defensive effort, it certainly was one of them," said Oakland coach John Rauch, whose team also has won nine in a row.

Earl Morrall tossed two touchdown passes and linebacker Mike Curtis scored on a 60-yard jaunt with a fumble recovery as the Colts stampeded to a 21-0 lead, then eased to their 15th victory in 16 games.

The Browns converted four pass interceptions with 24 points on the way to their upset victory over Dallas. Linebacker Dale Lindsay picked off a Don Meredith pass and rambled 27 yards for the key touchdown. Leroy Kelly scored twice for Cleveland on a 43-yard pass from Bill Nelson and a 35-yard run.

Canadian Vikings Hoofed Out by Colts

BALTIMORE (CP) — To hear from coach Bud Grant tell it, the fact his National Football League Minnesota Vikings were defeated 24-14 by Baltimore Colts Sunday was not the fault of quarterback Joe Kapp.

"I don't know of anybody who played a better game today than Kapp," said Grant, who took over the Vikings last year after a 10-year record guiding Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Canadian Football League.

As for Kapp, who also joined Vikings last year after eight years in the CFL with Calgary and then Vancouver, he was making no excuses for the loss which cost them the Western Conference title.

When it was suggested in the dressing room after the game that the pelting rain and resulting mud worked a greater hardship on the Vikings' ground play than it did on the Colts, he would have none of it.

"It was more than the field," he said. "I would credit the Colts for hurting our running game.

"They are tile finest team I have ever played. The Colts beat us—not the ground."

Both Grant and Kapp agreed the Vikings did their best, and Kapp said "I can't think of a thing we would do differently if we had it to do over again."

In the pre-game speculation that heavily-favored the Colts to win, the assessment was that the Vikings would field a sturdy defense and a deft running game—with possible weaknesses in the offence.

But between the wet grounds and the Colts, the Vikings running game was frustrated at every turn.

Grant said the big break came when linebacker Mike Curtis of the Colts caught a Kapp fumble before it reached the ground and ran 60 yards for a touchdown in the third quarter.

"That made the score 21-0 and we were out of the game—almost," said Grant. "If we had gotten a similar play and scored it would have been 14-7 and a different ball game."

Kapp related that the Colts had a rush on by their safety that time, but the Vikings "had a special play for it, with me rolling out." But Ordell Braase, Colt defensive end, contained the threat and Kapp was hit by several Colts' including giant Bubba Smith, and the ball popped loose.

He threw the ball 44 times, twice as many as quarterback Earl Morrall of the Colts.

Kapp, who was hit repeatedly by the Colt defenders, was helped by an assistant coach up the steps to the dressing room after the game and was secluded for quite some time before answering questions from newspaper men.

"I'm just exhausted," he insisted, although he winced with every move.

Coach Grant, speaking of the physical beating taken by Kapp, who still threw a touchdown pass in the last seconds, said "that is what you call leadership by example.

"There may have been somebody hit harder sometime, but I can't imagine it."

Filion Posts Big One

TORONTO (CP) — Herve Filion of Angers, Que., who never doubted he would do it, Saturday became the first harness racing driver in the world to score 400 wins in a season.

"I knew I'd get it," said the jovial 28-year-old driver after posting three wins at Greenwood Raceway on the final night of the track's fall meeting.

The three wins pushed his season's total to 401. He reached the 400 mark with Narcles, a 6-1 longshot, in the sixth and made it 401 in the eighth.

He had entered the meeting Saturday night with 398 wins, having passed the 394-win pinnacle two weeks ago to tie the world mark set by Eddie Freundt of Dusseldorf, West Germany in 1964. He passed Freundt's mark Dec. 15, getting his 399th win at the Blue Bonnets Raceway in Montreal.

He went winless in four nights at Greenwood, finally achieving success Saturday.

"I knew I'd get it—even if I had to chase around for it," Filion said after he was presented with a silver stop-watch and a harness by track officials in honor of his achievements.

He said he will rest most of this week, but will be back in the sulky at Western Fair Raceway in London, Ont., next Saturday.

"I won't take any horse, but I'll catch a few."

He is scheduled for three drives in Windsor, Ont., New Year's Day, one with So Long's Prince, a 14-year-old owned by his mother, Mrs. Edmond Filion.

"He's a family favorite," Filion said. "I want to be there for his last race," he said.

So Long's Prince has earned $113,000 for the Filion family since he was purchased in Ohio as a four-year-old for $950. The gelding, however, must be retired under Canadian Trotting Association rules which prohibit horses 15 years and older from racing at extended meetings.

Bettors Up

TORONTO (CP)—The Jockey Club announced Sunday that 1968 attendance on its circuit was 1,570,621. In 208 racing programs, $88,731,946 was wagered. This compared with 1967 totals of 1,420,808 fans who wagered $79,464,170 in 275 days.

Verdict Expected

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Racing Commission was expected to announce today a decision on its inquiry into the Dancer's Image dispute.

At stake is the distribution of the $129,600 winner's share of the 1968 Kentucky Derby purse—and the findings of state chemist Kenneth W. Smith.

Smith's testimony disclosed the presence of phenylbutazone, an illegal medication, in the system of Dancer's Image after the colt finished third in the Derby.

Courage Hurts

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (Reuters) — Six persons were injured Sunday when they were hit by a racing car during an international Formula Two race won by Piers Courage of Britain. The accident came at the start of the second part of the two-stage race when Italian Andrea de Adamich tangled with another car and struck a group of spectators. Five were taken to hospital with broken bones, cuts and bruises.

Played With Babe

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bernard (Bennie) Bengough, a catcher with the New York Yankees' championship teams of the 1920s who later gained more baseball prominence as a coach, died Sunday of a heart attack. He was 70.

Bengough, stricken while leaving a church after services, was taken to Nazareth Hospital but was dead on arrival.

He was catching for the Yankees on the day when his buddy, Babe Ruth, hit his 60th home run during the 1927 season.

Habs Lose Grips

MONTREAL (CP) — The luggage of 14 players and officials of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League was stolen from a chartered bus in Boston Sunday night, a team spokesman said early today.

In an interview, Marc Cloutier, publicity director of the Canadiens, said the theft was discovered when the team returned to the bus after losing an NHL game Sunday night to Boston Bruins in the Garden.

"The door had been forced open and the luggage stolen. We told the Boston police about it but had to leave to take our chartered jet back to Montreal.

In Right Corner

SYLVANIA, Ohio (AP) — Nicoline Loche of Argentina and Nino Benvenuti of Italy were named Boxers of the Month today by the World Boxing Association.

Loche was cited for winning the junior welterweight championship with a technical knockout over Paul Fuji in Tokyo, Dec. 12. Benvenuti gained recognition for turning back the challenge of Don Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, in San Remo, Italy, Dec. 14 in their middleweight title bout.

Lakers Hold Off Late Philly Surge

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Los Angeles Lakers held off a late Philadelphia rally Sunday night for a 102-99 victory over the 76ers in one of two National Basketball Association games played.

In the other, Fred Hetzel had a season high 31 points while pacing Milwaukee Bucks past Phoenix Suns 127-116.

In Saturday games, New York Knicks downed Seattle Supersonics 131-105, Baltimore Bullets continued their dominance in the Eastern Division with a 131-117 victory over Phoenix, Boston Celtics dumped Chicago Bulls 102-94, Atlanta Hawks defeated Detroit Pistons 120-110, San Diego Rockets overpowered Cincinnati Royals 132-124 and San Francisco Warriors won 109-94 over Philadelphia.

With the double loss during the weekend, the 76ers fell 2½ games behind division leading Baltimore.

Hardware Hurdles Remain

Moon Landing in April A Possibility

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The successful Apollo 8 launching Saturday proved that America's biggest rocket, the Saturn V, can do what it was built to do—propel men to the moon.

Before a lunar landing can be achieved, however, hardware hurdles remain to be solved with other Apollo equipment—principally of the spacecraft that will taxi future astronauts from a three-man Apollo craft in lunar orbit to the moon's surface itself.

The landing craft, called a lunar module, will make its maiden manned trip into space in late February on the next Apollo flight, an earth-orbital trip by three Apollo astronauts. A lunar module has flown in space only during one unmanned flight.

Problems developed with spacecraft engines during that flight, but the U.S. space agency said the problems were understood and that the unmanned test was a success.

If the lunar module performs perfectly on Apollo 9, astronauts conceivably could land on the moon on the following flight, Apollo 10, in April or May.

The bug-shaped craft has passed four punishing systems tests during a one-week period in a vacuum chamber.

Problems with the lunar module's radar system combined with other technical troubles to prevent the craft from flying on Apollo 8 as originally scheduled.

The flight of Apollo 8's huge Saturn V booster rocket Saturday "was flawless in all the manoeuvres it was expected to make," Lt.-Gen. Samuel C. Phillips, Apollo program director said. "The Saturn V drove it right down the wire in terms of lunar trajectory," he observed.

The exact flight plan for Apollo 10 will not be decided until after officials see how well the lunar module landing craft performs on Apollo 9 in February, Phillips said.

Present plans for Apollo 10, he emphasized, do not call for a lunar landing. To be piloted by a three-man crew headed by a veteran astronaut, Col. Thomas P. Stafford; Apollo 10 now is scheduled for a moon-orbit mission in which the lunar module separates from a three-man Apollo craft and approaches within 30,000 feet of the moon's surface.

Suited Up and Ready

Apollo 8 astronauts suited up and ready to go, enter van at Cape Kennedy, Fla., heading for their huge Saturn 5 rocket which blasted them into a moon orbit. Leading the way is Commander Frank Borman, followed by James A. Lovell and William A. Anders.

Canada Supports Russian Proposal

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada and France broke with their Western partners Saturday to support a bid by the Soviet Union to make Russian one of the working languages of the General Assembly.

A working language is one into which documentation is translated. The present working languages of the assembly are English, French and Spanish.

A resolution passed by the assembly also calls for consideration of the use of Spanish and Russian as working languages of the 15-country Security Council. The working languages of that group are French and English.

The vote on the resolution was 81 yes, 17 no and 24 abstentions. Most of the Western countries, with the exception of Canada and France, voted against.

The United States, speaking in opposition to the resolution, noted that added expense of printing certain documentation in Russian as a convenience for only four countries. It referred to the fact that some of East bloc countries use French as their language of diplomacy.

Canada, which was a co-sponsor of another resolution calling for promotion of a second language in the UN secretariat, did not explain its vote.

It is reported, however, that Canada believes a world body such as the UN should recognize the need for the use of the major languages of the world. Despite the U.S. disclaimer, Canada believes Russian is the common language of the East bloc countries.

Canadian Ambassador George Ignatieff caused rustles of surprise in the assembly when he broke with the West on a vote that would have made the Russian resolution an "important question" requiring a two-thirds majority for passage.

Level of Contributions Concerns Ambassador

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada warned the United Nations Saturday that it will be forced to take a "long look" at the level on contributions if the present rate of increases in its budget continues.

Canadian Ambassador George Ignatieff spoke as the General Assembly approved a budget of $155,000,000 for 1969. The figure compares with $144,000,000 the previous year.

Canada's contribution to the UN budget is slightly more than three per cent.

Ignatieff said: "I think it fair to state that if some of the present tendencies continue, and if the present rate of increase continues, the Canadian government will be forced to take a long look at the total level of its contributions of the organization, and to give serious thought as to how the over-all financial burden can be kept within bounds."

Ignatieff also joined with other countries in opposing a small-country move to study the terms under which $170,000,000 worth of UN bonds are to be repaid. He said a study of the terms of a repayment would reflect on the credibility of the UN.

On the budget, Ignatieff said that Canada is not opposed in increasing its size, provided the increase can be kept within reasonable bounds.

Biafra Orders Truce But Nigeria Silent

LAGOS (Reuters) — Biafra has issued an eight-day Christmas truce, Biafra radio said today.

The radio broadcast an address by Biafran leader Lt.-Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu in which he said: "I have today issued an order to the Biafran armed forces to observe as of midnight 23 December an eight-day truce lasting to midnight of 1 January, 1969."

He said all men of goodwill including the Pope, Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie, President Johnson and others had appealed for a truce of at least one week.

The federal government has not yet responded to the Biafran initiative. There has been no mention of the eight-day truce order on the federal radio and government officials will not comment.

Last week the federal leader, Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon, announced two days of truce for the Moslem festival of Id-El-Fitr Saturday and the Christian Christmas.

A government spokesman said the first truce day Saturday was observed by federal troops, but Biafran reports claimed the Nigerian Air Force carried out an air raid on Umuahia, killing 45 persons.

Asked about Biafran reports that Saturday and Sunday saw the heaviest and longest air attacks of the civil war, he said federal planes made no attacks anywhere Saturday but he was not sure about Sunday.

Pueblo Crew Fred; Skipper Tells of Beatings by Captors

SEOUL (CP) — The 82 crew members of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo were freed by North Korea early today after more than 11 months as prisoners during which time, said the Pueblo's skipper, he and his crew were beaten by their captors.

The crew members were given medical checkups at a hospital near Seoul before flying to rejoin their families on the West Coast.

In win the release of the Pubio's crew, a U.S. representative at Panmunjom signed a statement apologizing for "the grave acts of espionage committed by the U.S. ship . . . after having intruded into the territorial waters of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea."

But first he repudiated the statement and said he was signing it only to free the crew.

The Pueblo's skipper, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, 41, also told a news conference immediately after his release that at no time did the Pueblo sail within 13 miles of North Korea, let alone inside the 12-mile limit set by the North Korean government.

"The day we were captured we were some 15 to 16 miles from shore when the North Korean ships showed up and began their harassment tactics," he said.

"I surrendered the ship because it was nothing but a slaughter out there and I couldn't see allowing any more people be slaughtered or killing the entire crew for no reason."

Four men were wounded when the Pueblo was captured, and one later died.

The Pueblo, a former army cargo ship equipped with advanced electronic detection equipment, remained in North Korea. The Communists said it had been confiscated and would not be returned.

He said the men were subjected to beatings and terror in captivity, and many still had black eyes and bruised ribs from beatings as recent as last week. Bucher himself walked with a slight limp. He said he had been kicked occasionally and the Koreans are "quite good at soccer."

Bucher said he was kept in solitary confinement "the entire 11 months" but he was not beaten as much as the other men.

"I was mostly terrified of possible beatings," he said. "We went through a harassment period that was never ending. Continued repetition of charges against us, which, eventually, of course, were admitted by myself in order to save some people from some fairly serious misfortunes.

"But I never doubted in my mind that the United States government ever considered that I had disobeyed willfully or intentionally the instructions that I had received.

"Any doctoring of the record that has been done since that time (the capture) in the phony press conferences we held up north . . . would never stand up to the court of law."

Bucher said he and his crew were terrorized for a week before they were released. Bucher called it "the most concentrated week of terror that I have ever seen."

"They were totally brutal," Bucher said. He said about half the crew was beaten last week and that one man was hit with a four-by-four.

But he said that over-all, "our life there was not made nearly so miserable that it was unbearable."

Army helicopters took the men to the U.S. hospital outside Seoul from a U.S. base just south of the demilitarized zone where Bucher gave his interview.

As the helicopters landed, an Army band played California Here I Come, and medics hustled the men into the hospital building.

The government was flying the families of many of the men to San Diego for a Christmas reunion, but questioning of the crew may continue for weeks after that.

A light snow was falling as Bucher and his men walked across a concrete bridge—"the bridge of no return"—into the southern half of the demilitarized zone at 11:30 a.m.

They carried with them a coffin containing the remains of Fireman Duane H. Hodges, 22, of Creswell, Ore., the crew member who died in North Korea after being wounded during the ship's capture off Wonsan by four Communist gunboats Jan. 23.

Bucher came first over the bridge, accompanied as far as the boundary line at the UN command side by about eight North Korean observers.

The slow procession of men over the bridge took slightly more than a half hour and was accompanied by propaganda broadcasts over North Korean loudspeakers.

Two tape recordings, which sounded like Bucher's voice, were replayed continuously confessing "crimes" against North Korea, apologizing for them and telling the North Koreans "thank you very much from the bottom of our hearts" for lenient treatment.

Your Car

There Are Many Honest Mechanics

By RAY STAPLEY

In a recent report from the United States it was claimed that the odds of attaining honest and efficient car repairs are one in a hundred.

On many occasions in this column I have pointed out the difficulties of locating a reliable garage but I am quite convinced that, at least in Canada, these alarming odds are nothing short of ridiculous. Apparently all the data contained in this startling report stems from research conducted in the city of Denver only, and we cannot condemn every garage operator in the whole of the U.S.A. on what is claimed to be taking place in one city.

I have never lived in the United States nor have I required mechanical repairs down there, so therefore I am in no position to express an opinion. But my daughter Diane and her husband recently returned from a 10,000 mile honeymoon tour through the U.S. and they have nothing but praise for the mechanics they dealt with. On one occasion after buying gas the engine wouldn't start. A mechanic checked under the hood and said, "Sounds like the starter is stuck, put it in high gear". He then rocked the car unlocked the jammed starter and sent them on their way "no charge". On two other occasions the engine failed and in both instances the repairs were handled efficiently, the service was excellent and the charges were reasonable.

Surely if 99 per cent of garages south of the border are questionable, they wouldn't have been lucky enough to run into honest garagemen on three consecutive occasions.

I'm not denying that conditions in the auto repair trade in Canada leave much to be desired and each year things will become more critical and for this reason, there are not half enough truly skilled mechanics in this country and little is being done to attract apprentices into the trade. Mechanics are totally disorganized — no association, no hourly or weekly wage guarantee, no time and a half for over time, no strists in other mechanical trades, such as plumbers, electricians welders, air conditioners, and others. I know mechanics who have sold their tools and taken a job on an automobile assembly line where little training is required, but frequently the pay scale is better. I can assure you that there are still many honest, well-trained mechanics throughout Canada, but you must work to find them.

Don't just drop your car off for repairs at the first convenient spot. Ask your friends, neighbors and various acquaintances to recommend a garage they have personally dealt with long enough to have faith in his skill and integrity.

It may take time but stick with it and I'll guarantee you will strike a winner. After finding the right man, ask for a bumper to bumper thorough check-over including a road test and approximate repair costs. Then decide whether repairing or trading would be the best bet. Never do piecemeal repairs, a brake job one week, a steering job the next, and a transmission overhaul the following month. You may find you are flogging a dead horse by spending more on repairs than the car is worth.

NOTE: Letters from readers with car problems are most welcome, but please include: Year and model, number of cylinders, mileage, standard or automatic transmission, power equipment, brief outline of previous repairs, and a self-addressed envelope.

A mishap on the Bridge St., bridge in Tweed at 3.30 p.m. caused $130 damage to a car driven by David James Ray, RR 2, Tweed and $100 damage to a car driven by John Gerald, Tweed.

Eating Is A Real Problem

Eating ice cream can become a real problem - - - especially when more exciting things are happening at a party. These two youngsters, Julie Canning and Todd Burroughs, manage to get the odd bite while they keep a sharp eye on other proceedings at the party.

Plays Diverse Roles

British Actor Nurses Hong Kong Flu

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — British actor Alan Bates spent a large part of his first Hollywood visit in his hotel room, nursing the Hong Kong flu.

"I did get to take a ride along Sunset Boulevard," he commented. Because of his indisposition, he saw little else, nor did Hollywood see much of him.

Bates is one of the most admired of the young English actors. He also is one of the least known despite a string of top notch parts in successful films.

"The reason may be because I've played such diverse roles," he remarked. "That's really what I'm interested in, not the money. Oh, I suppose you hear a lot of actors say that, but it is true in my case. I enjoy money —don't get me wrong. But to play a good part I am willing to take a cut in salary against a percentage of the profits.

"I think that makes sense: to share some of the risk on a worthwhile project that might not be assured of commercial success. I did that on my last picture Women in Love, a D. H. Lawrence story that wouldn't have been made if we hadn't all worked for less."

The diverse roles of Bates have ranged from the wide-eyed square of Zorba the Greek to the libertine of Georgy Girl, from the sullen shepherd of Far from the Maddening Crowd to the persecuted prisoner of The Fixer. The latter was the reason for his visit here. His performance may win an Academy Award nomination.

He arrived in full beard, which may be another reason he went largely unrecognized. The beard was required for his last three roles—Richard III at Shakespearean Festival at Stratford, Ont., The Fixer and Women in Love—and he intends to divest himself of it as soon as he is assigned of no retakes on the last one.

Though quiet-spoken, Bates appears to be strong-minded where his career is concerned. He has had a few offers to make films in Hollywood, but so far has found nothing to attract him. At any rate, he has kept almost continuously at work on American-financed pictures in Europe.

How did he learn his trade?

"From RADA, repertory and one year in television," he replied. RADA stands for Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts, a fertile training ground for English actors. Among his fellow students, were Peter O'Toole, Albert Finney, Tom Courtney.

NHL Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks, who collected his 22nd goal of the season Sunday, continues to hold a comfortable margin in the National Hockey League scoring race.

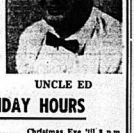
Howe gained an assist Saturday night and another Sunday to increase his point total to 43 on 15 goals and 28 assists.

In third place is Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins who scored two goals Sunday and now has 41 points on 22 goals and 19 assists.



Stan Mikita of Chicago, adding a goal and assist Sunday, is fourth with 39 points on 13 goals and 26 assists.

IT WORKS
BECAUSE IT
SWINGS!

That's the principle behind the pendulum clock, invented in 1657. Earlier clock were found only in cathedrals and public squares; today's a rare home that doesn't contain at least one timekeeping device. The days of the sundial and the hourglass are gone and the modern world depends upon accurate clocks.
If the days of your older clock are gone in your house, chances are that a home somewhere in this area would love to use it.

'Send Up Two Beers' Is Message on Hot Line

CANBERRA (AP) — "Send up a couple of beers," said the wool buyer from Boonabaraban. But he was talking on J.BJ's "hot line" to the White House and soon the place was swarming with police.

A Canberra hotel keeper told today about the incident during President Johnson's visit last December for the funeral of Prime Minister Harold Holt.

"I was behind the desk going over some documents when these grin-faced Yanks walked in and said they wanted to make a security check of the premises," said the hotel manager, who asked that his name not be used.

"They said President Johnson was checking into the place. They looked under beds, banged on walls and even went over the boiler room with a fine-tooth comb.

"Some people came in from the PMG (postmaster general department) and installed a private phone to the White House. It was like any other phone except it had a picture of the White House on the dial.

"The President never really checked in. It seems it is the custom for security reasons to book him in several hotels. He stayed at another hotel.

"Later this wool buyer comes up to the desk and wants a room for the night. The girls booked him into the room which had been set aside for Mr. Johnson.

"This bloke goes up to the room and before he unpacks his bags he picks up the phone.

"There is a blip and the other end says, 'White House?'

"'Room service—I want room service,'" the guy says.

"'This is the White House' comes from the other end.

"'Send up a couple of cold beers,' the traveller said.

"We had forgotten that the phone was still in the room. Soon the place was swarming with G-men and police who are yelling, 'Who is using the White House phone?' The embassy was in a sweat.

"The poor bloke in the room didn't know what to do. He checked out and didn't wait for his beers."

Waiting for Food

Hungry women and children line up for food supplied through the Red Cross at a feeding centre near Umuahia, Biafra. In Biafra the Red Cross has been feeding 850,000 children. Another 500,000 to 600,000 are being assisted in federal Nigeria. Dr. Auguste Lindt, chief of West African relief operations for the international committee of the Red Cross, said there is a great deal of suspicion of his organization by both the federal Nigerians and secessionist Biafrans. Quinidine Smooths Heart's Rhythm

By Dr. George C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How does the drug quinidine work? Could it cause shortness of breath or do any harm to the heart of a person who has allergies to drugs and is allergic to it? — Mrs. M. H.

Quinidine, a derivative of quinine, is a very effective drug in stabilizing disorders of heart rhythm — as, for one common situation, auricular fibrillation, which is a tendency of the heart to quiver or twitch, instead of producing a regular beat.

Use of it does not cause shortness of breath. In fact, it may prevent it by making the heart beat steadier and stronger. The precise way it does this is by reducing irritability of the heart muscle.

Patients who are sensitive to quinine cannot take quinidine, but sensitivity to other drugs does not imply a sensitivity to quinidine.

If you used quinidine and did, in fact prove to be sensitive to it, that does not mean that your heart was damaged. It merely means that it became necessary to switch to other drugs, which fortunately are available.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the difference between pinworms and trichina worms? What are the symptoms of trichinosis and of pinworms? Can a person pass the trichina worm, or does it stay lodged in the body? How about pinworms? — V. V.

The two are quite different, except that both are small and both cause problems. With pinworms, the almost invisibly small eggs, if swallowed, hatch out into tiny worms about the size of short scraps of thread. The principle symptoms are rectal itching and restlessness. Not especially dangerous, but a frightful nuisance, it can undermine health by interfering with restful sleep.

The trichina (or pork worm) is a much more dangerous creature. It also is extremely tiny as it lies, curled up and encysted, in muscle fibres, particularly of pork, but also in the tissues of other meat-eating animals.

If one is swallowed, the outer covering of the cyst dissolves, the worm lays countless eggs, and they creep into the body tissues and in time curl up and become encysted in muscle fibres.

Symptoms include nausea, diarrhea, intestinal cramps and pain, fever, muscle pains throughout the body, cough, swelling. There is little chance of passing the worm. If a live one is swallowed, it quickly lays its eggs, and trouble is on the way.

Thorough cooking is the one reliable way of killing the trichina and avoiding a myriad of troubles.

For information on detecting and treating pinworms, get my booklet, "Pinworm — The Commonest Pest." Send 30 cents in coin and a long stamped, self-addressed, envelope to Dr. Thosteson, care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill. As to trichina, there is no booklet and no advice of any use to you except the basic rule: cook pork until it is done (gray) all the way through.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Our physician has found that I have an inactive gall bladder but a year's trial of a fat-free diet and pills has not been too effective.

When nothing else can be found wrong with an individual, why isn't surgery a good remedy, as with gall stones? We haven't discussed this with our physician but wondered about your advice. — M. K.

Over three-quarters of nonfunctioning (inactive) gall bladders that are removed are found to be diseased by infection or stones.

Thus when the patient is in good condition otherwise and conservative treatment does not relieve symptoms, removal of the gall bladder makes sense. Your physician would have to make the ultimate decision in your case, but it is worth mentioning.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials slipped in relatively light mid-morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. The rest of the market was steady.

The industrial index lost .3 to 187.78. Revelstoke fell 1 to 22, Scottish and York ¾ to 19¾, Leigh Instruments ½ to 44½, Calgary Power ½ to 26½ and MacMillan Bloedel ½ to 27½.

Among the most active stocks, Western Broadcasting declined ¼ to 19¾ and St. Maurice Gas 10 cents to $2.75. Guaranty Trust was up ¼ to 11½.

Brinco picked up 12 cents to $5.62. A consortium of seven chartered banks will provide $150,000,000 to help finance the Churchill Falls hydro-electric project in Labrador, which is controlled by Brinco.

Among oils, Imperial Oil advanced 1¼ to 83 and Numac 15 cents to 39.05. The companies have jointly acquired exploration permits on about 700,000 acres in the Wollaston Lake uranium area in northern Saskatchewan.

Ranger Oil gained ¼ to 12. The company also announced the acquisition of permits in the same area.

In the mining list, McIntyre Porcupine and Hudson Bay Mining rose 1 each to 94 and 72½ and Leitch 20 cents to $2.70. Northgate lost ¼ to 15¾ and Bethlehem Copper ¾ to 8¼.

U.S. Grain Exports Slowed

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybeans and grain futures prices declined through most of 1968 on the Chicago Board of Trade, largely under the influence of a slowdown in exports and expanded domestic grain production to near record levels.

The volume of trade, estimated at the end of November, probably would total about $50,000,000,000, just about the figure attained in 1967, but far below the record volume of $85,000,000,000 set in 1966.

Trade early in the year moved at an almost leisurely pace, but in mid-March foreign speculators began buying gold at major money markets in the world while selling U.S. dollars and the British pound.

Historically, when foreign speculators buy gold and sell foreign currencies commodity futures fall under selling pressure. Major commodity futures at Chicago begin a gradual descent at that time.

Six months later, when the decline appeared to be levelling off, wheat futures prices had touched a low of $1.14¼ in the September option, lowest for a wheat future since 1962.

Late in September, there were reports that the estimate yields might have to be readjusted downward and this influence, some buying that snowballed into a strong advance in major commodity futures. Wheat futures advanced some 15 cents, corn about 17 cents and soybeans about 13 cents. The low in corn was $1.04¼ and $2.47¼ in soybeans, both also in the nearby options.

Prices started a decline again in November, largely because exports of the major commodities were falling behind last year and a high surplus of grains was predicted at year's end.

Viet Cong Rejects Talks With Saigon

PARIS (AP) — The Viet Cong today rejected the idea of direct talks with the South Vietnamese government as advanced by Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky.

Tran Buu Kiem, president of the foreign affairs commission of the National Liberation Front, told Agence France-Presse that direct talks between the NLF and "the present rulers in Saigon . . . are impossible because they do not represent the South Vietnamese population and cannot be accepted by the NLF as valid negotiating partners."

The NLF is the political arm of the Viet Cong.

Ky flew back to Saigon to talk with President Nguyen Van Thieu.

He told a news conference in Saigon that after peace returned to South Vietnam, the Saigon government would deal with all opposition groups including the National Liberation Front.

Employment News

By J. R. STAVELEY, Manpower Counsellor

The local labor demand declined sharply during the past week as represented by employment opportunities listed with the Canada Manpower Centre. This trend is normal at this time of the year and is in line with previous years' experience.

However, as we approach the New Year it can be seen that our community, which in recent years has been described as one having a static economy, will be an area of increased and expanding economic activity.

This forecast is based on the known planned and scheduled projects for the Quinte area which will affect all of our lives in the immediate years ahead.

In Canada there have been new discoveries of mineral deposits, new scientific processes applied to mining and refining, improved techniques in forestry operations, in agriculture, and in power developments and new technologies in transportation, industry and communication.

In our community there is an increasing young adult population who are entering the labor force. In the past, far too many of these young people have entered their life's work on a hit and miss method. The result of this situation often leads to decreased productivity accompanied by detrimental social side effects.

In recent years, emphasis has been placed on employment and career counselling of students by Canada Manpower Centre counsellors school guidance teachers and other responsible officials qualified and skilled in personnel work.

In our community, a number of these persons have formed a Career Expo Committee under the auspices of the United Community Services of Belleville and District. This committee, in recognition of the fact that career selection is a complex matter for most modern students, is planning to have a "super Career Expo" involving a large number of students, in April 1969.

The Expo will also be open to parents, teachers and the community. Broadly speaking, although interpretation of career opportunities will be a focus the theme of this Student Expo could be summed up as "finding a philosophy of life."

This committee's plans will, therefore, supplement existing facilities in an endeavor to further reduce the costly results of entering an unsuitable labor force area.

Indians Told To Be Aggresive

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's 50,000 Indians were told Sunday to be more aggressive in asserting their rights or their treaties with the white man would become worthless scraps of paper.

The warning came from Vancouver-area and Vancouver Island Indian band leaders and from Indian rights advocate Tom Berger, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Vancouver-Burrard.

They were among 60 persons who turned out in a snowstorm to attend a demonstration at Vancouver courthouse in support of Indians of Cornwall, Ont. The latter group is seeking recognition of rights under the Jay Treaty of 1794 which includes exemption from customs duty on United States goods.

Several Indians were jailed in Cornwall following a highway sit-in protesting customs levies on U.S. goods brought into Canada.

Speakers at the demonstration said they were concerned not only about the Cornwall incident but a general abuse of Indian rights by federal and provincial governments.

Early Summit Meeting Urged To Ease East-West Tensions

LONDON (CP) — Lester B. Pearson Sunday night proposed an early summit meeting between the United States and the Soviet Union to bring about an easing of East-West tension.

The 1957 Nobel Peace Prize winner and former Canadian prime minister said the most important job of the incoming Republican administration in Washington should be to take the initiative for disarmament.

Pearson spoke out strongly on a wide range of ideas for global peace as he concluded a series of six speeches over BBC Radio called the Reith Lectures, named after a former BBC director-general. His general theme has been "peace in the family of man."

Besides the Washington-Moscow summit meeting, presumably involving President-elect Nixon, he proposed:

1. A three-sided plan for easing the Israel-Arab belligerence.

2. Abandonment of any policy of "containment" for Red China.

3. A stage-by-stage, but eventually complete, withdrawal by the United States from Vietnam, followed by international guarantees of neutrality and security for the area.

Speaking of the over-all prospects of peace, he said it will not be found by staggering from one international crisis to another.

"Notwithstanding the aggression against Czechoslovakia last January, there must be a new and greater effort than ever before, and particularly through early discussions at the top summit between Washington and Moscow, to bring about an East-West detente, especially between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R.," he said.

"Failure here ... could mean a return to Stalinism in Russia, McCarthyism in the U.S., and the worst days of the Cold War.

"One major objective should be the limitation of armaments by progressive stages, beginning with a freeze on existing levels and categories of weapons: a prohibition on the testing of new weapons, with international control and inspection, and a ban on the deployment of anti-ballistic missile systems.

"A next stage should be the reduction of all armaments and, ultimately, the abolition of nuclear, chemical and bacteriological weapons.

"Pending this, steps should be taken to prevent the proliferation of nuclear arms. Otherwise, within a few years many states will possess them and an entirely new situation, a new balance —or lack of it—will arise in relations between states."

Of the nuclear non-proliferation treaty, Pearson said its negotiation has been encouraging but he doubts that it will achieved the goal desired. However it "may well be as far as we can go in present circumstances."

"There must be a far greater effort made to limit and control armaments," he said.

"We are losing our sense of priorities. Detente and disarmament must be put first and we are forgetting this. Disarmament must be given a new impetus, a new urgency.

"What more important initiative could the new administration in Washington now take?

"If it is not taken, or if it fails, it means a new arms race, the dangerous consequences of which cannot be exaggerated."

Moving to other world problems, Pearson said some progress has been made in "internationalizing" the problem of Israel's relations with her Arab neighbors, but there would be no real security in that area until:

1. Israel's right to exist as a nation is acknowledged by her neighbors.

2. The removal of the Arabs' conviction that they have been victimized by Israeli aggression and their fears that this will continue.

3. The ending of support from the U.S. for Israel and from Russia for the Arabs, when this is shown to be unnecessary.

Of relations with China, Pearson said:

"The right response to Peking's aggressive and bellicose attitude will not be easy to determine. It will require strength and patience and a long view of events.

"It should not, as I see it, mean the application to China of that rigid and doctrinaire policy of 'containment' which has been abandoned in Europe for a wiser and more flexible reaction to Communist provocations."

But Pearson said the more immediate concern in Asia is Vietnam and he could see no hope for peace and stability in Southeast Asia as long as the war there was not ended.

"Not by expulsion of the United States force—no one has the power to do that in any event —not by 'tactile and run,' he added. "The Americans don't act that way and their friends should be glad that they don't.",

"But the United States may have to go more than half way to meet the other side—as I believe they now are doing—in order to bring about a ceasefire, an armistice, a stage-by-stage withdrawal and a peace settlement.

"For Vietnam must then be left to the Vietnamese, to work out their own destiny. This could best be ensured by an international guarantee of neutrality and security for the whole area and a mass program of external aid for reconstruction and development."

Pearson now heads a commission set up by the World Bank to explore ways of bringing aid to developing countries, which is to report next year.

Alberta's New Premier No Monetary Radical

EDMONTON (CP) — The new hand at the helm of the Social Credit government of Alberta can be expected to steer a course diverging sharply from that of its founder.

The transfer of power from Ernest C. Manning to Harry Strom promises no spectacular changes from the policies evolved by Manning in his 25 years as premier. But it indicates the burial of the radical fiscal concepts preached by William Aberhart when he led the pioneer party in 1935.

The new premier belongs to the second generation of Social Creditors, men who received their political apprenticeship under Mr. Manning rather than his flamboyant predecessor.

He talks the language of Mr. Manning's social conservatism, not Mr. Aberhart's monetary reform.

His first cabinet is composed of members of the outgoing administration, with the significant exception of Mr. Manning himself and 63-year-old A. J. Hooke, the only remaining Social Creditors who were in the legislature before Mr. Aberhart's death.

The day Mr. Strom opened his campaign for the leadership he said he had been associated "with official Social Credit since 1935." But that was the first year he was old enough to vote and 20 years before he took his seat in the legislature.

Unlike Mr. Manning, he shares none of the reflected glory of Mr. Aberhart's achievements nor the responsibility of explaining his depression-oriented economics in present-day terms.

At a superficial level, Mr. Strom's future is in the hands of the cartoonists, who are still poising speculative pens over a caricature portrait of the tall, silver-haired ex-rancher.

When it appears, it is unlikely to include the censorious expression and undertaker's costume with which they tagged Mr. Aberhart.

But Mr. Strom has made clear that Manning policies to include the censorious expression and undertaker's costume with which they tagged Mr. Aberhart.

Mr. Clark, who directed the Strom leadership campaign, was not left when Mr. Aberhart called on Albertans to throw off the shackles of the money barons.

He withdrew as a candidate on the eve of the balloting after drawing nostalgic applause for his 1930s-style oratory but little response when he called for a return to "real Social Credit principles."

Quiz on Origin of Words

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Since my previous word quizzes have intrigued (and infuriated) so many readers, I've decided to offer another one today — only this one will deal exclusively with the origins of words and names, and should be a little easier to look up than others.

1. Where did the word "quiz" come from?

2. To what character in history is first attributed the phrase, "It's all Greek to me?"

3. What is the origin of the famous Yale "Whiffenpoof" song?

4. Why is a London policeman called a "bobby"?

5. What source do these phrases have in common: "the bitter end," "by and large," "cut and run," "hard and fast, and "touch and go?

6. Why is a horse's easy gallop called a "canter?"

7. For two modern derivations, where did the war-words "radar" and "flak" come from? (As a hint, they are both acronyms.)

8. What is the origin of the children's chant, "Here we go gathering nuts in May," when there are no nuts in May?

9. Why is a dispenser of false nonsense called a "quack"?

10. How did "vaudeville" come to mean a variety show?

11. If you know the origin of the word "cheater," why would it tell you a lot about the way government officials used to fleece the people?

12. What does the "rink" in a "nickname" stand for?

13. We hear a lot about "nihilists these days; who was the first nihilist, when and where did he live, and who first coined the term?

14. Although wrongly believed to be cognate words, "pen" and "pencil" come from quite different sources and have no connection; what did each originally mean in English?

15. Why is a person who runs for public office called a "candidate"; and why is our method of voting called by "ballot"?

16. How did we get such a word as "hodge-podge"?

17. In Hamlet's famous phrase, "twist with his own petard," what is a "petard"?

18. How did a married woman separated from her husband come to be called a "grass widow"?

19. Why isn't a "greyhound" grey?

20. When you ask for a "nip" of whiskey, how much should you get?

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 26

Your birthday today: Your new year involves break with tradition. Make sure your enterprises do not inadvertently stray over the line of legality. Today's natives subconsciously seek to become big brother to all.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): It is almost as though yesterday's events have opened a Pandora's box. Be calm. Haste to involve or to disengage yourself increases the problem.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Begin the day with a wish to do whatever is necessary to protect your own welfare and health; dispense with any other serious activity.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Everybody is looking for something to find fault with. Save yourself the difficult chores of redeeming by staying out-of-sight. Find time to pray.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Expect illogical decisions; perhaps changes to implement them. Bear with all in stoic patience. As spirits rise, you will be glad you stayed calm.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Let somebody else cope with exchanging duplicate or poorly chosen gifts. The lines are apt to be overlong, and you do not have the patience for sustaining tensions of this sort.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Be wary of all personal relations, or of your previous concepts of them. Make sure that money is not used as basis for arguments. Re-appraise group resources, but do not shout your findings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): This is one day to just muddle through, so relax and let it simmer. Do your minimum during unsettled conditions; be ready for improvised adjustments.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Attend to your health. Yesterday's may have strained your resources. Postpone any fault-finding. The impact of the holiday is not yet over. Wait.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Be conservative with financial resources or in your guaranty of others' financial promises. Tactful disengagement from discussions of money remains your best course.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Travel, however much off the rush hour it may be, is especially hazardous! Job conditions are unstable. Expect surprises.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): If you can devise a good excuse, disappear today; you seem to be in the path of everybody's effort to clobber everybody else. Whatever you do last and modesty bear great value.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Financially you become involved it's difficult to obtain mutual understanding on any deal. Stay out of all search negotiations, particularly with strikers.

Mercy Flights Resume

GENEVA (AP) — International Red Cross Committee mercy flights to Biafra were resumed during the night, the Red Cross announced today.

The government of Equatorial Guinea, formerly the Spanish island of Fernando Poo, told the federal commissioner of the Red Cross, August Lindt, that the flights could restart after inexplicably placing a two-day ban on them, the Red Cross said.

The speedy resumption of the operation, totalling eight to 10 flights a night, means virtually no interruption to the supplies which keep some 650,000 people, mostly children, on a three - ounce-a-day subsistence level.

The Red Cross airlift thus far has carried in more than 6,000 tons of food and supplies to Biafrans.

A Red Cross spokesman said five flights carrying a total of 50 tons of food and supplies got through to Biafra during the night.

Meanwhile, an eight-day ceasefire period proposed by Biafra began today with no formal acceptance from the federal Nigerian government.

Lagos radio continued its broadcast a commentary on the Biafran proposal saying "observers" feared the secessionists would try to fly in more arms and mercenaries.

The radio said the Nigerian air force would patrol to prevent arms flights.

Bright Spot Not Apollo But Venus

HOUSTON (AP) — That bright light you may have seen hovering around the moon isn't Apollo 8. It's probably Venus.

Inundated with queries the last two days on possible visual sightings of the spacecraft, space agency officials said the moon ship simply cannot be seen with the naked eye.

And there have been no reports of visual sightings via telescope, a spokesman said Monday night. He added that it would be only a "remote chance of picking it up."

Historic Moment

LONDON (AP) — "One of the historic moments in the development of the human race," said Britain's leading radio astronomer of the American astronauts' broadcast today from within 70 miles of the moon.

"The American achievement in carrying out this hazardous program with such precision will be recognized as one of the great engineering and technical feats," said Sr. Bernard Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank observatory.

South Vietnam Admits Four Groups at Talks

PARIS (Reuters) — The chief South Vietnamese delegate to the Paris peace talks today acknowledged that arrangements for the conference implied the de facto existence of four groups around the table.

Lam said Saigon has accepted a compromise by agreeing to a "two sided" formula for the organization of the Paris conference.

"I would add," he said, "that the ambiguity of this formula, permitting each camp to organize itself as it wishes, implied in fact the existence of four groups on one side and the other of the table."

The question of whether there are four parties, as Hanoi and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front insist, or two sides, as Washington and Saigon say, is at the heart of the procedural disagreements holding up the start of the enlarged talks.

Mouse Rescues Nuclear Engineers Foiled by Frog's Sex Problems

Stumped in attempts to thread a cable under a roadway on the site of the $85,000,000 station, the engineers finally tied a piece of string to the tail of a mouse which skittered through the conduit.

The frog declined to jump despite the bright idea of positioning another frog at the other end of the pipe. The engineers believe they may have mistaken the sex of the other frog and there was no attraction for the string carrier.

The highly-technical problem was discussed in the current issue of Ontario Hydro News.

Earthlings Moon-ga

Wise Men Mistress o

New Wonder For Christmas

HOUSTON (AP) — The Apollo 8 astronauts, three space age wise men, soared into a Christmas Eve orbit around the moon today and televised fascinating pictures of a wild and wondrous landscape that enabled earthlings to share their incredible adventure.

Col. Frank Borman, Capt. James Lovell and Maj. William Anders etched their names beside those of history's great explorers—Columbus, Magellan, Balboa, da Gama—at 4:59 a.m. EST today as they fired Apollo 8 into a perfect lunar orbit.

"It looks like plaster of paris, or sort of greyish beach sand," was Lovell's first impression of this alien celestial body that has awed man since his beginning.

Two and one-half hours later, the astronauts flashed the scene to home television sets with the same camera that Monday had relayed pictures of the earth from 200,000 miles away.

The bright reflection of the sun dulled some of the features, but viewers could not help but be caught up in the excitement of seeing pictures beamed live by three adventurers 230,000 miles from their home planet.

Earthlings were treated to a bleak, barren landscape of crater-pocked plains, boulder-strewn plateaus and rugged mountains.

It looked like a most inhospitable place, a scene of desolation more complete than any Sahara.

The television was beamed after Apollo 8, a tiny speck in limitless space, whirled through its second of 10 planned orbits of the moon.

Each pass takes about two hours.

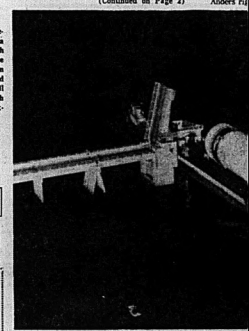
The spacecraft was injected initially into an orbit ranging from 69 to 183 miles above the surface

The astronauts are to shoot themselves out of orbit at 1:06 a.m. Wednesday and start the 58-hour return to earth.

The momentous orbit insertion climaxed a 69-hour journey that started Saturday at Cape Kennedy in which the astronauts, like three wise men of the past, guided themselves toward a bright object in the heavens.

After a suspenseful 36 minutes in which the astronauts were out of contact behind the moon, manoeuvre, Mission Control where they executed the orbit Centre excitedly announced.

"We've got it! We've got it! Apollo 8 is in lunar orbit."



After a check to make certain all systems were working, the control centre asked:

"What does the old moon look live?"

Navigator Lovell replied:

"The moon is essentially grey. No color. . . . The Sea of Fertility doesn't stand out as well here as it does on earth. . . . We're getting quite a bit of contrast as we approach the terminator."

Clear, Crisp Weather Expected for Holiday

Christmas 1968 will be clear and crackling crisp in the Quinte district.

And there's just enough snow to make it comfortably white.

There'll be a nip in the air as congregations wend their way to midnight services scheduled in many churches tonight. The low tonight is expected to touch zero.

And it'll be almost as invigorating later in the morning.

The forecast high for Christmas Day is 10 degrees.

The holiday also has been happily marked by the absence of any serious incident thus far in the Quinte counties.

Traffic flowed steadily in to many communities last night as the homeward trek ending in family reunions got underway.

One family, however had unexpected misfortune.

On Highway 7 at the Delcon road an automobile driven by John Howard Stinson, 24, of Cannington, Ont., rolled over after clearing through roadside guide posts.

His wife Joan is still in Belleville General Hospital today suffering back and collarbone injuries. The couple's three-year-old daughter, Julis, escaped with cuts and bruises.

Damage to the automobile was estimated at $2,000.

In Belleville, volunteers from United Community Services drove through the day, cuppying clothing, bedding and food to hundreds of families.

In both town and country it's impossible to forget what time of year it is. The Quinte district fairly glitters with colored lights and decorations.

Second Fire Hits Blairton

BLAIRTON — The second fire in less than a week is under investigation at this community, five miles northwest of Marmora.

Provincial police from Campbellford this morning are investigating a fire that broke out in a back shed behind a former summer house now used as a home.

Police said the blaze was put out before much damage was caused.

The school house is used as a home by Ed Fecteau, neighbor of a family of 13 that were burned out early Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Willimer Grieves and their 11 children are now with relatives in Belleville after fire gutted a former hotel where they moved six weeks ago.

Provincial police and Inspector Bill Hope of the Ontario Fire Marshal's Office at Belleville are still investigating the incident.

Obituaries

MISS JUDITH BLAKELY (Lindsay)

The funeral for Miss Judith Blakely, 22, of Lindsay, killed in an auto accident on Highway 27 north of Toronto on Friday was held Monday from the Mackey Funeral Home in Lindsay where service was conducted by the Cambridge United Church minister.

Former school mates of the young woman acted as bearers with interment taking place in Lindsay Cemetery.

Miss Blakely was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawson Blakely of Lindsay and for the past two years had worked as a secretary in Toronto. Three years ago she was a contestant in the Miss Canada contest.

Besides her parents she is survived by a sister Janice, and three brothers, Dale, Douglas and Donald, all at home.

An aunt, Mrs. Jack Empey, lives on Wellington Crescent in Belleville.

MRS. EDNA MAE SNIDER

The funeral service for the late Mrs. Edna Mae Snider was held from the Weaver Funeral Home at Trenton on Friday, Dec. 20.

The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Fred Love of North Trenton United Church.

Burial was in the cemetery at Aurora.

Mrs. Snider who resided in the locality for 26 years died in the Trenton Memorial Hospital in her 72rd year. She had been in failing health for two years.

Mrs. Snider was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blair.

Married twice, her first husband William Brillinger is deceased.

Also surviving are three daughters Mrs. James (Kathleen) Cullen, Brighton, Mrs. Arthur (Theresa) Williams, Trenton, Mrs. Joseph (Betty) Nicholson, Frankford and one son Gordon Brillinger, Roseland Acres, R. R. 2, Trenton.

Family Night

At a recent family members' night held at the "Y" on Victoria Ave. over 200 family members, including three year olds to grandparents, enjoyed a variety program. It included swim fun contests, games, father and son volleyball, square dancing conducted by Jo and Annette Marlok, and films, all rounded off with cider and doughnuts.

Gazing down on a landscape of cratered pocked plains, boulder-strewn plateaus and rugged mountains, Lovell reported on the great number of craters.

"The craters are all rounded off," he said. "There's quite a few of them. Many of them look like, especially the round ones, look like they've been hit by meteorites or projectiles of some sort. The walls of the craters are terraced, about six or seven terraces on the way down."

The historic engine ignition that propelled the astronauts into lunar orbit occurred at 4:59 a.m. EST.

They had been behind the moon for 25 minutes before firing the engine for a four-minute burst that consumed 16,000 pounds of fuel and dropped Apollo 8 into an orbit ranging from 69 to 191 miles, almost precisely the path sought.

"Keep a good eye on us," Borman advised the ground before Apollo 8, a tiny speck in limitless space emerged around the edge of the moon.

They were to circle 10 times in 20 hours above the rugged lunar terrain, photographing it and paving the way for future astronauts to land.

Borman, Lovell and Anders braved a hazardous trek 250,000 miles across a trackless void to reach the moon, a goal man long has dreamed of.

The astronauts confirmed to ground controllers that all was well aboard.

Anders' voice sounded as cool and calm as on a training exercise as he read out a series of figures reporting the technical condition of the spacecraft.

Immediately after resuming contact with earth stations the spacemen were kept busy — through a series of drills designed to ensure that all systems were functioning properly.

Apollo 8 earlier had been caught in the grasp of lunar gravity and was zipping along at about 5,700 miles an hour when it darted behind the backside.

Allowed to continue on this course, Borman, Lovell and Anders would have whipped once around and back, and headed back to earth—one of the mission's built-in safety valves in case the engine failed to ignite.

The firing slowed the speed to about 3,700 miles, the speed necessary to orbit the moon.

During 20 hours in which they were to orbit the moon 10 times, the explorers were to take hundreds of photographs and determine how well they can navigate by tracking key landmarks on the surface and report visually on what they see.

Although Borman, Lovell and Anders were more than 250,000 miles from home, they'll know it's Christmas. Mission control planned to pipe Christmas carols and a recorded church service to them over the radio link, and there have on board a turkey dinner fashioned from space food.

They'll be on their way home Christmas Day as they plan to fire out of lunar orbit at 1:06 a.m. Wednesday to start the 58 hour return trip.

Apollo 8 is to splash into the Pacific at 10:50 a.m. Friday and the astronauts will be reunited with their families in Houston the next day for a belated Christmas celebration.

Moon Looks Grey

co up to the eastern part of the United States. It appears now that the East Coast is cloudy. I can see clouds over part of Mexico; the parts of Central America are clear."

Lovell described the waters as "sort of royal blue" and the land areas as "dark brownish to light in texture." The ship was about 200,000 miles from earth at the time.

Addressing himself to Col. Frank Borman, the spacecraft commander, Lovell speculated.

"Frank, what I keep imagining is if I am some lonely traveller from another planet, what would I think about the earth at this altitude? Whether I would think it would be inhabited or not?"

That brought, in mission control, what a spokesman said was the loudest laughter ever heard.

"Don't see anybody waving — is that what you are saying", said Michael Collins, the astronaut acting as ground communicator.

"I was just kind of curious if I would land on the blue or the brown part of the earth," Lovell said.

At that point, Borman chimed in: "You better hope that we land on the blue part."

Mike Collins added: "So do we, babe."

Later, while directing astronaut-cameramen William Anders in the infinitesimally small movements that put the earth in the field of view of Apollo 8's nine-degree telephoto lens Borman said: "Our earth is disappearing up and to the right."

He caught himself and added: "Our earth and your earth."

Viewers could plainly see the terminator—the line between light and dark. The terminator was creeping across the Atlantic at the time.

We would like to extend our warmest holiday greetings to our friends. Thank you. Merry Chistmas.

We wish you a Merry Christmas

The terminator is the line between darkness and light on the moon.

He added that the view was good and that it was easy to pick out landmarks.

On the first pass, the astronauts zeroed on earth-features intended to serve as guideposts for one of the five areas considered prime astronaut landing sites—a flat area in the Sea of Tranquility near the crater Censorinus.

"It's almost impossible to miss," Lovell reported. "Very easy to pick out. I can see very clearly the five-cratered star formation which we had on our lunar chart . . . and over this mountain chain we can see the second initial point, the triangular mountain."

As Apollo 8 sped toward the terminator, Lovell continued his vivid description:

"You can see the entire rim of the craters from here . . . the white crescent on the far side where the sun is shining on it. The shadows are quite lengthy now."

As Apollo 8 passe dnorth of the craters Colombo and Gutenberg, Anders reported "very goodetail . . . they're very visible."

ARDA Upgrades Incomes

Bringing low income farmers to an efficiency level which will assure them minimum incomes is more and more the goal to which Ontario ARDA (Agricultural and Rural Development Act) policy is being directed.

This statement by Herb Crown, ARDA Branch Director, was made at the recent Ontario Conference being held in Toronto and attended, by professional staff of the production and rural development division of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food.

Mr. Crown said a second aim of his department was to assist low income rural people to obtain greater dependency on income from off farm sources.

The ARDA director said the first objective is being accomplished through the farm consolidation and enlargement program and improvement of land and water resources for agriculture.

The approach to the second objective is through counselling services, retraining mobility and community development.

It is not anticipated that Ontario ARDA will be the agency to create alternative employment opportunities for low income rural people but it will have a major responsibility in providing counselling services for low income farm operators to stream these people into the proper adjustment program — whether it be retraining, farm employment or mobility assistance.

Mr. Crown stated that his priority in this province has placed ARDA on an effecting rural adjustment programs regardless of the future of the Federal-Provincial the present Rural Development Agreements, which terminate March 31, 1970.

On the farm counselling services for the Central Ontario ranging from Peterborough through to Prince Edward to Deyo of Wilton, Clayton Hall of Plainfield, and Joe Galway of Gananoque.

These men, working with their supervisor Robert R. McMahon of Kingston, have a total of 55 years experience in the business of farming, 29 years in farm credit supply business management and seven years in adult education.

IN MEMORIAM

HOLLEMAN — In loving memory of a dear husband and father who passed away December 25, 1967.

My lips cannot tell how I miss him,
My heart cannot hide my pain,
I had eleven dollars saved up
In a home that is lonesome today.
—Always remembered by Lizzie and family.

ALLEN — In loving memory of a dear husband and father who passed away December 25, 1967.

Sweet memories are all I have left,
Which I cherish more than gold;
It caused us bitter grief to part,
But God knew best we could not withhold.
And could not give relief.
Sometimes I sit and think of pain
His troubled nights are gassed;
I miss him more as years go by,
I miss him more than ever before.
His sweet words I long to meet once more,
Where parting is no more.
Sadly missed and remembered by Dear Wife,
Has only gone before,
Dear Wife, remember I miss him,
He counts the tears I shed,
And prays that soon we'll be only asleep,
Your darling is not dead."
Some day, some time, my eyes shall see
Some day, some time, his hand I'll feel
And never say farewell.
—Sadly missed and remembered by wife Marie and sons Robert and Donald, daughter Lillian and son Pat and family.

ALLEN — In loving memory of a dear father James Cornell, who passed away Dec. 25th, 1954.
What we would give if we could call
Back the years that are gone and Bring back the days we spent together
And hear your voice once more.
—Sadly missed and remembered by daughter Lillian and son Pat and family.

Just sit with you and chat awhile,
Just hold your hand and see your smile,
And sit with you and chat awhile.
—Sadly missed and remembered by daughter Lillian and son Pat and family.

ALLEN — In loving memory of a dear son, Bill who was killed in action, December 24th, 1943.
God gave us a wonderful son,
To live through his boyhood days,
To love through his manhood years,
And took him home to rest.
Dearer to us than words can tell,
The son we lost and loved so well.
Not a day do we forget you dear son Bill.
In our hearts you are always here,
Not a day do we forget you dear son Bill.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by Mom and Dad.

Bell Expects Busiest Christmas Season Ever

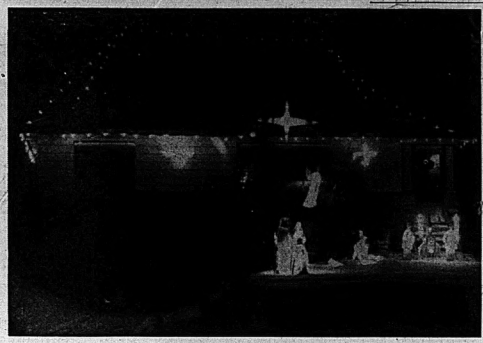
C. H. Buckley, Bell Canada's manager in Belleville, said that the volume of calls, particularly on Christmas Day, is much heavier than at any other time during the year. "And this year, with reduced rates for many long - distance calls both within Canada and to certain countries overseas, we expect a greater increase than ever before," Mr. Buckley added.

A full staff of operators will be on duty to help customers during the busy period. "However, because of the volume of calls, some may not go through as fast as normal" he added.

Mr. Buckley made the following suggestions to help get calls through as easily as possible:

Place calls during off - peak hours. The peak periods on Christmas and New Year's Day are expected to be from 11.30 a.m. to 1.30 p.m. and from 8 p.m. to 10.30 p.m.

Direct distance dialed calls will get through faster than operator-handled calls.



If it is not essential to call on Christmas or New Year's Day, the weekends during the holiday season give a good bargain.

In Ontario and Quebec, Bell Canada's family calling plan gives 10 minutes of conversation for the price of five, from 10 p.m. Saturday evening to 6 a.m. Monday morning.

Callers might save time by asking information in advance for the numbers of those to be called by DDD.

If you should get a busy signal when you call, wait a while and try again rather than call the Operator.

Sunday rates will apply for both Christmas and New Year's Day. Family calling time is from Tuesday at 10 p.m. to Thursday at 6 a.m. for both days.

Postmen Get Both Holidays

Instead of offering limited service over the Christmas Day and New Year's Day holidays as has been the case in previous years, this year all services are being cancelled.

On Boxing Day, Thursday, December 26 only Sunday services will be performed. This means there will be no street letter delivery and but one street letter box collection in the evening.

60,000 Participate In Programs

There has been a total of almost 60,000 participants in "Y" activities in Belleville in the first 11 months of 1968, according to the report of the membership committee. 15,636 of these were non-members.

Of this number 6,054 were free participants for which no fee was received by the "Y".

This included the school swim instruction programs for the public and separate schools, children in the day camp whose parents could not pay, community extension programs, church and young persons groups, guests of members, the Nun's swimming program.

Several of the members' programs are filled to capacity but there is room in others for additional members.

Sindbad and the Mermaid To Be Presented in Picton

PICTON (Staff) — Not a Christmas carol but Sindbad and the Mermaid will be the Christmas performance at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute in Picton Dec. 26, 27 and 28.

Written by Chris Wiggins and directed by Thomas Crothers the two act play will be another change from the usual theatre culture offered to residents of Prince Edward.

And Mr. Crothers, a teacher of Theatre Arts at PECI, has been recognized on several occasions. In 1967 he organized and directed the school's production of Antigone, winning top honors in the Eastern Ontario Drama League Competitions.

Another play, Oedipus Rex, which he directed this year, won the best classical play award in the EODL competitions.

Now that the PECI theatre is off the ground Mr. Crothers hopes to get more participation all across the county.

He has formed a committee with the support of the PECI school board and other people in the community to get live theatre organized.

Sindbad and the Mermaid will be the group's first performance in that delightful area of the Guild known as Children's Theatre, where the audience responds to the action and dialogue on stage.

It will be interesting to see the ages of the children who turn out for the three performances.

Parents should first make sure the sitter they employ is old enough to accept responsibility and carry out instructions in the event of an emergency, he said.

A lot of trouble at Christmas would be averted if families decorated trees with flameproof decorations. The chief recommends keeping tree outside until ready to use and removing them from the homes by New Year's day.

A good practice is to check tree lights often and make sure they are switched off before retiring or leaving the house.

Place all Christmas wrappings in cartons and place them outdoors. The use of fire retardent chemical spray on the tree is no substitute for immersion of the butt end in water.

It is dangerous to place a Christmas tree so it blocks the exit to a room.

If an emergency should arise the first thing to do is to see everyone is out of the building, Chief Poste stressed. Then call the fire department, he added. Under no circumstances re-enter the building he said.

'Watch Electrical Apparatus'

Fire Chief Warns Residents

Fire Chief Ted Poste has warned residents of the city and adjacent areas to be especially watchful of heating equipment and electrical apparatus in the homes during the holidays.

Noting that there have been two fatal fires in the area in the last month he suggests parents planning to attend Christmas and New Year parties take time to instruct baby sitters in proper procedure in case of fire.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

The 17th Belleville troop recently went on a hike to Jones Creek to test their walkie-talkie sets. While in the area the Scouts came across a rabbit with a broken leg.

They immediately gathered the animal up and brought it in to the local Humane Society for care. Scouters in attendance were Skipper William Dunn and his Assistants Brian Hale and Jon Wannamaker.

The 10th Belleville group had a parents' night in which the troop and pack entertained the adults. The Cubs led by Cubmaster Ross Taylor recently participated in a pamphlet drive.

Last Wednesday's meeting took the form of a gala Christmas party. The Scouts, meanwhile went on a Saturday hike.

The 12th Belleville "B" Pack (St. Joseph's) learned that Christmas parties can be educational as well as amusing. Akela Mrs. James McArdle and her assistant, Gordon Power invited Cpl. James McArdle of CFB Trenton to show slides entitled "Around the World".

The boys also brought in gifts for the Retarded Children's Hospital at Smiths Falls. The Cubs' parents were not forgotten either. They received "Mom and Dad" gold plated greeting cards.

The most amusing gift was received by Gordon Power — a special greeting card buried inside six boxes.

The Cubs in the Red Six won the three month inter-six competition.

American Optical Expands

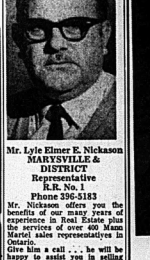
Construction of a 26,000 square foot addition to the American Optical Company plant on West Bridge Street is expected to commence shortly, it was announced today by company officials.

The contract for the construction of the addition has been let to Eastwood Construction of Peterborough.

The new plant addition, to be located across the south end of the plant, will increase the present floor space by approximately 30 per cent.

In announcing the letting of the contract, H. J. Fitzgerald, President of American Optical Company Canada Limited stated that two additional lines of bifocals would be manufactured in the Belleville plant.

The first, an executive type bifocal which is a bifocal manufactured from one piece of glass. This lens is presently only manufactured in the United States. In addition, cut-off type fused bifocals, now partially processed in the plant will be fully manufactured in Belleville with the addition of new equipment.



American Optical has been a vital contributor to the expanding export volume of manufactured goods from Canada and lenses made in Belleville are being used in every continent of the world. A substantial protion of the production of these lenses is intended for the international markets.

Christmas 1968

It has been a year of riots and heart transplants, of black power and student power, of violence in the streets of America and changes in educational methods and administration.

It has been the year that an old war—in Vietnam —dragged on, and a new one—in Nigeria—came into prominence, not so much for its own significance but because thousands of innocent people in that country are starving as a result.

There has been killing on the battlefield, as there has been from time immemorial. In the United States, blood has flowed on the streets as the forces of radicalism confront those desirous of preserving the status quo.

There has been death again by assassination—the arch symbol of everything evil in the biggest melting pot of all. Martin Luther King lived and died for the betterment of his fellow Negroes, and Robert Kennedy for the establishment of a society that might come nearer to the true brotherhood of man. One legacy of their death that will not easily be erased from the memory is the nobility and courage of the two widows, one of whom, Mrs. Kennedy, has just given birth to her eleventh child. So life goes on.

On the world scene there is, as ever, friction. In the Middle East where Christ was born, where he lived and was crucified, Arab and Jew still engage in a timeless confrontation that while it defies solution cannot erase the greater timelessness of the cross or the vision of Bethlehem.

Man, being man, will continue to display his imperfections and his alienation from the Christian ideal. He will kill and he will destroy, but he will also save lives, feed the hungry and strive to improve the lot of people in underdeveloped lands. That is the paradox of man, at odds with himself and with others, yet seeking in his own poignant and groping manner an outlet for the best that is in him.

Now it is Christmas and the family of man forgets, if only briefly, those things that divide and alienate. For some it is a lonely time, because many live alone or are separated from their families by distance. For them there could be some significance, something on which to focus their thoughts, in the orbital flight of the moon by three United States astronauts.

Many ask the question, what is the need for such a flight? The immediate answer is that it is the grandest attempt by man thus far to loose himself from the bonds of earth. It is like one more mountain to climb. And that is reason enough.

If anyone should be lonely this Christmas think of these three men in their space capsule. Yet they remain linked with earth and home by the marvels of electronics and engineering, the fruits of man's genius and creativeness which reach their highest inspiration in the celebration of the birth of Christ.

For men and women and children everywhere, let this be a Christmas when they raise their eyes to the heavens and to the stars for new insight into the miracle that is creation.

Emergency Clerical Staff Work Out Postmasters' Raises

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — So what's $30,000?

Well, for one thing, it is the emergency payroll of 44 clerks hired to figure out what share of a $6,000,000 salary increase each of Canada's 10,000 postmasters is to get. (For them, a Merry Christmas.)

(But it is something else again — like more than all but a fortunate 111 of Belleville's 12,197 income taxpayers earn in a year.)

That $30,000 for the 44 clerks, though, is only the basic payout. (And for them, too, a Merry Christmas.)

For they were assured by the Unemployment Insurance Commission that from early November to the end of the year, they could count on "all kinds of overtime," as a UIC official phrased it.

It has taken a couple of months to figure out who among the postmasters gets what share of that $6,000,000 raise, because the 44 clerks are not exactly accountants.

Just for kicks, if you were here in the Capital where the hiring of the clerks was going on you could have applied for your share of that $30,000 plus "all kinds of overtime."

You would have made an odd discovery.

They didn't even ask you if you could add two and two, or does it make four — or five — and do you work in the "new" or "old" math?

They asked you nothing, except did you want the job?

And they assured you that if you made mistakes in your calculating, you could always pile up the overtime correcting them.

Could be it was one of the reasons the job is stretching through to the New Year.

(So what's $20,000? Nothing, really, except more than all but 74 of St. Thomas's 11,881 income taxpayers earn in a year.)

While Finance Minister Ben Benson and the tough Trudeau government may hang back in financially stonewalling the provinces today continue hanging soft in dealings with the federal civil service on pay.

The $6,000,000 raise awarded to the 10,000 postmasters might seem a simple thing to calculate if it were a straight job of division.

But it is not, for the postmasters don't all earn the same, and the salary increase comes in three levels of an average four percent retroactive to October, 1966, a further eight percent this October and an additional seven percent next year.

There are some parliamentarians who suspect the civil service commission does it that way, making it so complicated that nobody can ever be sure just how far salary increases go over the finance minister's self-proclaimed government guidelines.

(But, shucks, what's a mere $30,000? A trifle, except more than all but 75 of Grande Prairie district's 11,965 income taxpayers make.)

Funny thing, too, is that Finance Minister Benson, a hot-shot chartered accountant himself, has been boasting how the new, modern, go-go administration in its arithmetic is being so rapidly computerized.

There is a nest of federal computers out at Turney's Pasture, a government annex through the Dominion Bureau of Statistics does its mathematical calculations.

But Turney's Pasture is maybe six miles from Confederation Heights where the post office has its administrative headquarters building.

And apparently nobody thought of borrowing any of Turney's Pasture computers and programmers through postmasters' pay raises all in the flick of an electronic switch.

(But what the heck, who cares about a piddling $20,000? Nobody, except maybe the 26,191 in Sherbrooke who pay income tax, all of whom but a fortunate 245 don't make that much in a year.)

Odd isn't it, that the post office which, crying poverty, has raised everybody's mail rates, should be so uncaring of doing things the hard, $20,000-plus-overtime way.

(So why bleed over a negligible $20,000? No reason except that only 27 of Amherst's 4,815 income taxpayers earn that much.)

The freshman postmaster general, Eric Kierans is the darling of the postal unions. The letter carriers and the postal workers whose combined strike shut off the mail for some four weeks last summer say he is wonderful. They just dote on him, even if the taxpayers might have a different appreciation of the way he is running the post office.

(No matter, though, to weep over an unnecessary "nothing really" $20,000 — except that only 69 of Owen Sound's 9,507 income taxpayers see that much in a year.)

Twenty thousand dollars? Who cares?

And a Merry Christmas to all you non-postmasters.

Teen Boom

Mothers "With It" Regarding Young People's Xmas Garb

Brockville Recorder and Times

What will teenagers be getting this Christmas?

Clothes are high on the list of things that teenagers want for Christmas. A men's wear shoop says that the big item for boys is bulky sweaters, just as in the past few years. But the old traditional blue and gray shades have gone out — gold is the top color, along with green and brown. Ski jackets and slacks are up in sales (gold, green or brown again) but hats and ties are down, down, down. Comparatively new this year on Christmas lists are suede and leather jackets and coats.

One boy we know of, however is demanding a set of bagpipes.

Mauve. That's the word in girls' wear. And if they don't get that, then it's purple or brick red. What they want are bright colors, "way out" clothes what they don't want is dull shades.

Even the local store says that in former years the basics—slacks sweaters, gloves— were the rule. Now dresses — mini and bright — are being bought up by obedient parents. "The mothers are getting with it," says a saleslady.

Hot sellers are elephant pants and also pant dresses, co-ordinated outfits in which the tunic over the slacks can be worn alone as a mini dress. Long sweaters in bulky knit are going like mad, along with self belted, hip-length shell sweaters.

Christmas Stamps In Doghouse

Letter to The Globe and Mail

It gave me great pleasure to read (Christmas Stamps — Dec. 5) that someone else is equally depressed about Canada's stamps, and in particular the Christmas issue. I should also like to mention the most unexciting and "un-Centennial" issue that appeared in 1967.

Could we not have a competition among Canadian art and design students to produce some graceful and worthwhile "ambassadors" of Canadian mail? I would suggest that the postal department spend a little time looking at the stamps from other countries, in particular those countries whose economy cannot honestly afford such a glorious art gallery.

I hope more people complain and then perhaps our "with-it" Prime Minister, Pierre Trudeau will endeavor to brighten our postal system.

(Mrs.) S. A. Grant,
Toronto.

A Quebec View

Canada — Two Cultures Enjoying Equal Status

Quebec Le Soleil—It seems evident that in talking about a revision of the Canadian constitution, one wants to insist on the distinct differences of our two fundamental cultures even if it is not the only aspect of the question. Canada is made up of 10 provinces and two territories but that is not 12 distinctions. Contrary to the United States, Canada has two languages and two cultures; and keeping this in mind, one cannot pretend that there are 12 Canadas, but two.

This fact brings to light the importance of these two entities being completely equal. For several years, we have seen Canadian politics head toward the realization of this objective.

It also is possible, perhaps, to maintain that Canada will have a culture which will develop in two ways, bound with tradition, customs and all that is inherent to Canadian man.

It would not do to hatch only one stereotype Canadian who would be neither fish nor fowl. . . .

. . . The constitution cannot take into account or uphold constant or changing realities. Some realities will remain permanent, some will change. Moreover, a particular region would be determinant as to which characteristics one wished to see in it.

It cannot be ruled merely by a stroke of a pen, whether it is a province, township or county. It identifies itself by its total behavior, its spontaneous attitudes, by proper analogies, by fixed laws and given changes.

One can then come to the conclusion if it is not the only one, that the sociological statistics of a country are the larger guidelines of constitutional options. . . . This is a point that committees, which have been established so far to study the possible constitutional options for the country, will certainly fail to define . . . and to clarify.

The Secret of Good Manners

Windsor Star

In any list of the world's most polite people, the Japanese, the English and Germans are sure to rank near the top. Japanese bowing, English civility, and German handshaking are legendary.

It is probably no coincidence that these three countries are also at the top among larger areas of the world in density of population. It is even possible to establish a theory that civilized politeness is forced upon a people by centuries of living in crowded conditions.

The converse, unfortunately, doesn't hold true. Canada has a much lower density of population than the United States, yet Americans are not noticeably more polite than Canadians. But this may be because we are both comparatively new nations where the pioneer spirit of independence is only slowly giving way to the urban spirit of co-operation.

It may be a clue for us in North America, however. Cities are growing like mushrooms, creating as they grow many tough problems of traffic, taxes, tensions, and so on. Perhaps we are overlooking the fact that the Japanese, the English and the Germans have recognized for years: that common politeness eases the tensions of overcrowding.

Today In History

Dec. 24, 1968 . . .

The declaration of Lima was signed at Lima, Peru, 30 years ago today—in 1938 —by delegates of the Eighth International Conference on American States. The event climaxed 10 years of trying to realign the relationships among the countries of the Americas.

Books Galore – But How Many Are Reading Them?

Windsor Star

Those whose business is books makes much of the statistics which every year show an increase in publishing titles, book sales, library circulation and every other facet of the business.

What can never be determined, however, is how much actual reading goes on, how much enjoyment or instruction people get from books. For there is no means of measuring how much of the increase in the number of books can be attributed to increased population, increased leisure, or even, in less developed countries, increased literacy.

Certainly television has had a depressing effect on reading, both because it is physically easier to watch television than to read and because the sheer noise of television makes concentration on a book difficult.

But the printed page seems to be holding its own, and more. And the quality of books, bar a temporary swing toward four-letter words and erotic details in novels, is keeping up nicely. Some book enthusiasts, indeed, argue that quality doesn't matter. As long as the habit of reading takes root in an individual, they say, he will quickly find his own level of quality.

This view was shared by an obituary writer for The Times of London, commenting on the recent death of Miss Enid Blyton who wrote about 300 books for children. Miss Blyton's books, The Times says suggested, were not great literature, but they were harmless. Many children can read but do not read much. Miss Blyton's books may have attracted such youngsters. "Undoubtedly she helped many a child on the frontiers of book reading to take his first step."

Lost Art

John Parkin in The Hamilton Spectator

Letter writing by individuals is almost a dead art, killed by the telephone and pressures of daily life which, we plead, do not give us either the time or peace of mind to write long and chatty letters our grandparents wrote.

Starts Tonight

U.S. Joins Viet Cong in Ceasefire

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese forces joined the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese in a Christmas ceasefire tonight after an all-day battle Monday in which the South Vietnamese claimed their troops killed 159 guerrillas.

The southern allied truce was to run for 24 hours, until 6 p.m. Christmas.

The Viet Cong had proclaimed a 72-hour truce beginning at 1 a.m. today, but military spokesmen reported during the first six hours the Viet Cong made seven mortar and ground attacks on South Vietnamese military posts, killing six soldiers and one civilian and wounding 18 soldiers and five civilians. The government said six Viet Cong were killed.

Despite these attacks, the U.S. Command said at noon that it had no reports of any significant action.

American commanders made final preparations for an unprecedented Christmas Day meeting with Viet Cong representatives to discuss the Viet Cong's offer to release three U.S. prisoners of war.

The meeting, scheduled for noon Wednesday, is to be held about 30 miles northwest of Saigon and five miles from the Cambodian border.

The U.S. command said the three are 21-year-old army men captured within the last eight months and previously listed as missing. They were identified as Specialist James Bright of Ocala, Fla.; Specialist Thomas Jones of Lynnville, Ind., and Pfc. Donald Smith of Akron, Pa.

The fighting Monday in the coastal lowlands—the South claimed 159 Viet Cong killed—cost the government forces 14 dead and 56 wounded, a spokesman said.

In the 24 hours preceding the Southern allied truce, 30 U.S. B-52 bombers dropped 1,000 tons of explosives on Viet Cong bases and troop concentrations in the arc north of Saigon and in the Central Highlands. The heaviest strikes were concentrated along the jungle approaches to Saigon, some within 24 miles of the capital.

American troops seized two Viet Cong munitions stockpiles only 10 miles from Saigon. They yielded more than 300 rounds of mortar shells and rocket-propelled grenades.

Yuletide Preparations Completed

Israeli Warplanes Hit Guerrillas in Jordan

BETHLEHEM (AP) — Israel warplanes pummelled Al Fatah guerrillas inside Jordan today while in this Judean hilltop town 80 miles to the south Yuletide preparations approached their Christmas climax.

The planes smashed at the saboteurs the Israelis said were based in the abandoned village of Marshiya facing the Beisan Valley just south of the Sea of Galilee.

The army charged the Arabs lobbed rockets and light arms fire from the village at an Israeli patrol on the River Jordan ceasefire line at 7:30 a.m.

Palls of smoke were seen by observers in Tiberias as the planes swooped through a driving rain to hit the targets.

They were supported by Israeli tank fire.

There were no Israeli casualties in the brief fray.

Israelis have been calling in aircraft—one or two at a time —to hit at saboteur bases close to the ceasefire line. This is the third time in a week.

Meanwhile, thousands of Christian pilgrims ignored Al Fatah threats of possible trouble in the Holy Land and converged on the sites and shrines revered by the faithful.

More than 2,000 Arabs—Christians and Moslems—have also arrived from Jordan. They will be celebrating the end of Ramadan, Christmas or visiting their families in Israeli-occupied territories.

The Al Fatah has warned pilgrims they will not be responsible for their welfare if acts of sabotage erupt during the celebration of the birth of Christ.

The weatherman predicted a bleak, cold but snowless Christmas in Bethlehem, occupied by the Israelis since the June, 1967, war.

An estimated 25,000 pilgrims have arrived, and 3,000 more were expected before Christmas. Hotels in both sectors of Jerusalem were reported almost full.

The midnight mass tonight will be recited by the latin (Roman Catholic) patriarch of Jerusalem, Msgr. Alberto Gori.

The ceremonies will be televised by Israeli television.

One tape of the mass will be presented to Pope Paul in Rome Dec. 27.

Gromyko Homeward Bound

CAIRO (Reuters) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko left Cairo by air for Moscow today after three days of talks with President Nasser and other government leaders on the Middle East crisis.

The foreign minister held a second lengthy meeting Monday night with the Egyptian president. They spoke for a total of eight hours on the situation in the area and prospects for a peaceful settlement.

No official statement has yet been issued, Details of the talks so far have been kept a close secret by both Egyptians and Russians.

Gromyko told reporters in a brief airport statement the Soviet team was extremely satisfied with the talks.

"It is naturally understood that among questions discussed was the situation in the Middle East and the liquidation of the traces of the Israeli aggression," he said through an interpreter.

"We also discussed the consolidation of mutual relations between the United Arab Republic and the Soviet Union."

Complete Instructions for Carving Turkey

By MARY MOORE

My willing cabable helper on Christmas Eve: David Pitts, 11 years We have it all arranged. On Sunday on arrival in Victoria I will be at the Pitts' household where Joy will reign. Marianne wants some of my shortbread so instead of loading my luggage with breakable shortbread, Davey and I will be making it.

So while we may not have a White Christmas in Victoria, it will not be as cold as in the East and I will be with those six loved ones.

But my message today is to those stout souls whose duty and I hope, pleasure, is to carve the turkey.

CARVING THE TURKEY

Many a host will insure his success at this manly duty by sharpening the carving knife himself but it is the cook's duty to be sure it is done. That point is a major must.

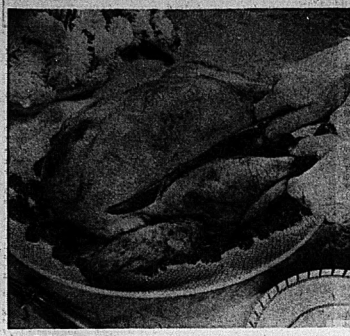
Next is to place the roasted turkey (see yesterday) on a preheated platter large enough to give the carver surplus space on which to hold slices. The neck end of the bird should be to his left. With guard up on the carving fork insert it low halfway along the breast on the side of the turkey farthest from the carver and pointing towards the rear of the bird. Thus the bird is secured firmly on the platter. Remove entire leg with your razor-sharp knife by cutting through skin and flesh between body and thigh around hip joint. Most carvers will appreciate a paper napkin at hand to hold end of drumstick between their fingers when severing the joint cartilage. Place leg on a plate and sever upper and lower leg at knee joint and slice into uniform slices of dark meat. Make a deep incision through breast meat parallel to wing. Slice white meat beginning at the front halfway up breast. Cut thin slices down to incision made previously and the slices will fall away readily. Place a slice each of dark and white meat on each of the warm plates. This method speeds up serving the increased number you have invited for Christmas dinner. You may have a dining table large enough to accommodate all adults and children. But we discovered that the children had far more fun at their own Christmas decorated table in the kitchen. They could be silly with their hats and horns and not distract the concerned mothers.

* * *

As I write this Christmas Eve message to you I suddenly become nostalgic. All year I receive your friendly letters and the bond between us is very real. When Christmas dinner time arrives I steal a few moments to meditate on those millions of Canadian dinner tables surrounded with loved ones and my heart goes out to the cooks who have done their very best to make it memorable. At that private moment all seems right with the world.

From Mary Moore, a Merry Christmas.

Dinner Menus



TUESDAY

(Christmas Eve — Prepared in Advance)

Home Baked Beans; Chili Sauce or Mustard Pickles; Whole Wheat Rolls; Chopped Cabbage Salad; Lemon Sauce; Christmas Cookies; Coffee.

THURSDAY

Braised Bacon - Wrapped Chicken Livers; Mashed Delicate Turnip, Creamed Green Peas; Cucumber, Radish and Lettuce Salad with French Dressing; Apple Dumplings; Lemon Sauce; Coffee.

Father has sharpened his knife to a razor-edge and now his big moment has arrived — carving the bird. He tackles it with confidence, separating the thigh joint first and transferring it to a working plate which Mother has thoughtfully placed at his right hand.

Ann Landers
Characteristics of Kin Compared to Animals

DEAR ANN: A group of us were sitting around the other evening talking about the behavioral patterns of animals. Mr. T. said all his life he has run into people who not only look like certain animals but they possess the behavioral characteristics of those animals.

ANN LANDERS

I got to thinking about my own family and he is right. My sister not only looks like a cat, but she is lazy and completely selfish. My brother who bears a strong resemblance to a fox (pointed ears and reddish hair) is an extremely shrewd operator, sly and cunning. An aunt of mine looks so much like a rabbit her friends nicknamed her "Bunny." She has milk-white skin, pinkish eyes and her nose twitches constantly. (Incidentally, she had nine children.) My sister-in-law looks like a cow. She weighs at least 190 pounds and is always chewing on something. She has large brown eyes and an empty, expressionless face. Nothing, but absolutely nothing, is going on in her head.

After examining several of your pictures, Ann, I've decided you look like a lamb. I hope you don't consider this an insult. I didn't mean it that way. Comment, please. — BRAIN JOGGER.

DEAR BRAIN: So you think I look like a lamb, do you? Well, considering the wealth of other possibilities, I didn't come out ba-aa-aaaa—d! Thank ewe.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a secretary in a busy, aggressive firm. We do a great deal of entertaining of executives from other cities and I am always included.

Don't get the idea I am a party girl. Nothing could be further from the truth. I'm 24 and happily married to a wonderful man. When the firm entertains, my husband is always with me. The problem is, I drink too much. I am not an alcoholic but once I get going I don't know when to stop. This has been going on for about two years.

Yesterday I found out for sure that I am pregnant. Both my husband and I are thrilled. I don't want my husband to know it but I am worried about whether or not my drinking will affect the unborn child. I am in good health and have never been sick except for the hangovers. Please tell me what your medical consultants say about this. — PINK AND BLUE.

DEAR P AND B: A pregnant woman who drinks instead of eating could injure her unborn child by robbing that child of proper nutrition.

Talk to your obstetrician about your drinking and take his advice. If you have a tendency to get as stiff as your letter indicates, he might suggest you put the cork in the bottle for the duration of your pregnancy. Falling is always a hazard for pregnant women — even sober ones.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

BELLEVILLE ROTARY CLUB ENTERTAINS

Many of the registered blind of the Quinte area enjoyed the 21st. annual Christmas party in the Church Hall of the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Belleville.

This Christmas party has been sponsored annually by Belleville Rotary Club. In acknowledging the thanks of the chairman Rotary president, Ken Wormald said that the party had come of age, and would be carried for many years to come.

Other service clubs were represented by "Lions" members, Thorn, Spear and Sprouls Currie, who drove the blind from Trenton.

Greetings from Ed Wheeler the Field Secretary, were brought by Roy Lesperance, the assistant field secretary. Mr. Wheeler was unable to attend. Miss Lynn Beatham C.N.I.B. "home teacher" for the Quinte area also gave her personal season's greetings.

Jack Deacon also led the group in singing Christmas carols.

All participated with enthusiasm in a "know Ontario" contest given by Everett Fairman, a Kiwanian. The winner of this contest was Aurel Caissie of Trenton.

Rev. D. Sutherland gave an appropriate Christmas message which was thoroughly enjoyed.

Thanks to the women of the Church Guild who catered the bountiful meal, was given by Mrs. Maude Rollins.

Season's greetings were also extended by Clarence Morris, president of the White Cane Club.

A.N.A.F. AUXILIARY

There will be an advance poll for the election of club officers held on Jan. 8 and 9 from noon until six p.m. This is primarily for the senior members who do not like venturing out after dark and the odd member whose work pre-ents him attending the regular meeting.

Senior members would like to have a car bring them to the club and then back home should call the club at 968-9116. To be eligible to vote or stand for office a member must have an active membership card or a receipt showing his dues have been paid for 1969.

At a meeting of the World Veterans Federation held in Toronto over the weekend, Jack Lundberg was elected as the Canadian Council of Veterans member to represent Canada at the General assembly meetings in Vienna in 1970. Dick Burns, a WVF member also attended the meeting.

Madoc Couple Celeberate Golden Anniversary

MADOC — On Wednesday, December 18, Mr. and Mrs. George Harris, two well-known residents of the Madoc area, were "at home" to their friends and neighbors on the occasion of their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

On that day, 50 years ago, Miss Martha Dobney was married to William George Harris by Rev. A. Frederick at the bride's home on Crookston. Shortly after their marriage, they moved to a farm near Cooper where they lived until 1955.

They resided in Cooper until 1958, when they moved to their present residence in Madoc.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris are active members of the United Church and have served on many Boards of Stewards. Mr. Harris is a life member of the Orange Lodge, and Mrs. Harris is a charter member of the Cooper W.I. and has been a faithful member of the Red Cross Church organization and community Clubs. Both are still active member of the Madoc Agriculture Society.

The couple have two children, and five grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris received a plaque from the Ontario Government, telegrams, flowers and several gifts, numerous cards and many wishes for their continued happiness.

Eastern Star Chapter Holds Yule Party

The party was in the form of a pot-luck dinner, and about 150 sat down to tables laden with all kinds of good things to eat, and beautifully decorated in the Christmas theme and lighted with red and green candles.

The head table guests and officers marched in to music played on the accordion by Bruce Swan — who is a brother of the Worthy Matron.

Grace was said by the chaplain, Mrs. Ivy Lovelace. The Worthy Matron, Mrs. Wanda Clare, and Worthy Patron, Mr. Orlee Glass welcomed everyone, and wished for all a Merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

The head table guests were introduced by Robert Jones A. P. After partaking of a sumptuous dinner, the guest speaker Rev. A. Parsons B.A. B.D. of Bethesda United Church, was introduced by Ivan Clare P.P.

In his interesting address Mr. Parsons stated that Christmas means many different things to many people. To some, especially to children, it is a time of great expectations. Even the first Advent season was a time of expectation to the Hebrews, as they were expecting the coming of the Messiah, as had been prophesied; and it was also a time of fulfilment, in the birth of Jesus.

Bruce Swan played the accordion for the singing of Christmas carols, until sleigh bells announced the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus; who, after greeting everyone and wishing them a merry Christmas, distributed gifts to one and all from a beautifully decorated tree.

One of Greatest Gifts Is Independence to Grow Up

By DORIS CLARK

When Johnny and Jane open up those be-ribboned packages on Christmas morning, can they count on an even more precious gift from you—the gift of being allowed to grow up?

I read about a pregnant single girl whose habit of wholesale obedience to her mother had resulted in ready submission to the persuasions of a boy friend. Too much control by a misguided mother had robbed her of a mind of her own.

Today I was talking with a mother who told me that, when her boy was seven, he wanted to go down town on the bus by himself to buy the Christmas present he had in mind for Mummy. Mummy's heart was in her mouth as she gave permission and cash.

When he left home she threw on her coat and beat him to the store. He arrived and she shadowed him, without watching what he bought, until he was safe back on the bus headed for home. (He's married now, and doesn't know yet!)

I'm not saying it is easy: it isn't. But if you want to grow useful, worthy, decision-making adults, you start early to encourage independence.

Remember the preacher in Goldsmith's Deserted Village? "And, as a bird each fond endearment tries,

To tempt his new-fledged offspring to the skies,

He tried each art, reproved each dull delay,

Allured to brighter worlds, and led the way."

Mothers, Fathers, Young People: These paragraphs are my gift to you. Clip and pin them up where they will remind you all of the exciting challenges which ought to go with growing up.)

Doris Clark

Dear Doris: What does the saying, "Life Begins at Forty", mean? — Just Bill.

Dear Bill: It's like this: We spend the first 20 years or so gaining enough education to know how to earn a living. We pile up more experience as we gain a foothold on a career or get launched at raising a family.

Only when youth starts slipping away have we developed enough perspective and philosophy about life to really enjoy being alive.

And, according to the proponents of the idea, this begins at 40, or thereabouts.

The teens and 20's will hardly know what these paragraphs are about; but the 40's and 50's will find much truth in the idea.

* * *

Confidential to Saddened: To your warmly hospitable friend who has lost her husband, you might say something like this:

"I know just how greatly you must be missing Jim. You had so many happy years together that this makes the loss even more devastating, while at the same time increasing everyone's gratitude for every moment of the time you had.

"I personally am grateful that I had the privilege of knowing him, and of sharing in the happy atmosphere which the two of you created for all those who visited with you even occasionally."

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Hurry and get into bed. We'll have to skip our story tonight. I have to fix things for Christmas dinner tomorrow, and I still have the kitchen to clean up."

Child: "I'm not tired. I don't want to go to bed."

Mother: "Let's have our bedtime story in front of the fireplace tonight. It's so pretty here with the Christmas tree and decorations."

Child: "Read the story about the littlest angel the way you always do on Christmas eve."

One of the best gifts a family can have at the Yule season is a relaxed mother who has time for the happy customs of Christmas. These are the things children will long remember.

Staff Holds Party

The Belleville General Hospital Staff Association was honored to have the Philippine Club of Belleville present a very entertaining half hour at their Christmas Party.

The program was composed of folk dancing and group singing. The dances, from different areas of the Phillipines with their diversity in type, tempo and music reflected the character of a nation that has been influenced by other countries.

A short talk was given by Miss Enrica Ocdol, president of the Philippine Club. She greeted the audience in her native tongue, wishing them a Merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

The Philippines is a very small country — just a speck of Canada. It was proclaimed an independent republic by the President of the United States in 1946. Our national language is Tagalog, half Malay and half Spanish. Our culture is also a mixture of Spanish and American, however, our system of government is patterned after that of the U.S."

In concluding her talk, Miss Ocdol said, "all of us feel lonely for our families this time of year, but then, we have our friends, to share the Christmas festivities with."

After her speech, thanks were extended to her, and her club, the Philippine Club, with season's greetings on behalf of the Staff Association of the Belleville General Hospital.

Six Men Are Facing Possible Gallows Trip

OTTAWA (CP) — The shooting of three policemen in Ontario this month has resulted in charges against six men that could lead them to the gallows.

The capital murder charges are among the first to be placed since the Criminal Code was amended to abolish the death penalty for murder except for the killers of police and prison guards.

The abolition went into effect last Dec. 29 for a five-year trial period and left the deliberate slaying of police or prison guards as the only hanging offence for murder under the code.

A few weeks later in Montreal, 30-year-old Gilles Parent was charged with capital murder in the Jan. 5, 1968, bank-robbery slaying of Det.-Sgt. Charles Jeary in Montreal.

Parent is to go on trial for his life sometime this winter and a warrant is out for the arrest of Andre Ouellette, 32, on a capital charge in the Jarry shooting.

Five men were charged Sunday night with capital murder in Hamilton, hours after Sgt. John C. McMurrich, 34, died in the street of wounds from his own revolver.

His partner, severely beaten, fled in a hail of bullets after he and Sgt. McMurrich were accosted while keeping a wild house party under surveillance. Another man was shot and killed in the melee.

Both the Hamilton policemen were in plain clothes, although on duty.

Earlier this month, William N. Pratt, 35, was charged with two counts of capital murder after the slaying in Minden, Ont., of two provincal police officers.

Det.-Sgt. Lorne Chapitis, 39, and Opl. James Smith, 42, both unarmed, were shot Dec. 11 without warning as they walked to a house to talk a suspect into surrendering.

The last of 701 executives in Canada since Confederation occurred Dec. 11, 1961, when Ronald Turpin was hanged for the shooting of a Toronto policeman.

Bail System's Reform Likely

OTTAWA (CP) — Reform of the sharply-criticized bail system and a law to control wire-tapping are probable in a second overhaul of the Criminal Code next year.

Justice Minister John Turner has said in an interview that he will introduce a major reform of the code in June or September. It would be in addition to the changes proposed in a bill introduced last week.

Much of the legislation probably will be based on recommendations of the Ouimet committee on corrections, which has been working since 1963.

It is expected to present a raft of recommendations in March on everything from arrest to pardon.

The government has been under pressure for some time to reform the bail system, considered a court house evil that means jail for those who can't pay, but has been awaiting the Ouimet recommendations.

Mr. Turner has expressed concern about "bugging" as an invasion of privacy since he became minister last July.

The current omnibus bill, reintroduced last week a year after Prime Minister Trudeau first unveiled it, relaxes rigid laws on abortion and homosexuality and toughens the law as it affects drinking drivers and those who might misuse firearms.

The proposed bill, if it is based on the Ouimet recommendations, may mean a fundamental overhaul of a code that is shabby and outdated in many areas, especially those affecting civil rights.

Besides bail and wiretapping, contempt of court procedure, search warrants, minimum sentences and records all may come up for change.

Pravda Denies Canadians Said Schools Faulty

MOSCOW (CP) — The Russian newspaper Pravda today described as "the usual falsification of bourgeois propaganda" a Canadian Press story Dec. 2 saying that the consensus of Canadian educationists who recently visited Russia is that Soviet education is about 25 years behind schooling in North America.

The Pravda comment was contained in an article by its Ottawa correspondent, Konstantin Geyvanodov. He referred to a news story by Peter Buckley, CP Moscow correspondent, on impressions of the Canadians after their brief visit to the Soviet Union.

The Pravda article said many foreign delegations study the Soviet education system on the spot and "after returning home they all acknowledge that they have received much that is valuable and instructive."

"I am sure that this was also the case with the above mentioned delegation of American and Canadian teachers and that this fact did not satisfy the taste of the Moscow correspondent of the Canadian Press agency, P. Buckley, who used the visit by this delegation to the Soviet Union for inventing another anti-Soviet concoction."

"Trying to substantiate the desired for the real, this unscrupulous journalist, who is acting now in the role of 'expert' on questions of education, concludes that the schools, their equipment and methods of education in the U.S.S.R. lag behind Canada's by 25 years."

Pravda said that within a few days after publication of the Buckley article, "Bert Curtis . . . gave a series of lectures in which he indicated that the arrangement of education in the U.S.S.R. made a very favorable impression on him."

Christmas is here!
We're sending our warmest wishes to you and your family for a very, merry Christmas! Thank you for your patronage.

Municipality of Ottawa-Carleton Comes Into Existence Jan. 1

OTTAWA (CP) — Add two cities, plenty of townships and villages, top with a super mayor, serve on New Year's Day and, voila, you have it—the new Regional Municipality of Ottawa-Carleton.

The Ontario government concocted the recipe last June for its first experiment with regional government. The ingredients have been cooking since then but the first official taste comes Jan. 1, 1969, when the dish becomes a legal entity.

Chairman of the regional council is Denis Coolican, a robust 55-year-old whose career spans a spell as reeve of the nearby Village of Rockcliffe Park—home ground for ministers and diplomats—and important posts in the world of big business.

Already dubbed "super mayor," Mr. Coolican fills the role nicely. His background includes periods in the board rooms and the bush, the latter for his marathon canoe expeditions. He is fluently bilingual.

He will preside over a council with 20 members from the cities of Ottawa (200,000 population) and Eastview (35,000), the villages and townships of Carleton County and a late joiner, Cumberland Township.

The new corporation will administer certain services in an 1,100-square-mile area—including some 50 miles of Ottawa River waterfront—containing about 425,000 people.

The regional government's first budget is expected to run about half of the City of Ottawa's 1968 outlay of some $55,000,000 in gross expenditures.

Mr. Coolican was asked by Ontario Premier Robarts and Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough to take the $30,000-a-year chairman's post. He was vice-president of Brazil Light and Power Co. Ltd. at the time. He's also a former president of Canada Bank Note Co. Ltd.

The new regional government will be responsible for assessment, regional boards, water supply, welfare, capital financing and regional planning.

Other than that, the municipalities will continue to administer their own affairs.

The Ottawa-Carleton experiment is part of the Ontario government's over-all plan to make municipalities of less than 8,000 population disappear.

The Niagara region will be the next affected, with legislation promised for this session of the legislature. Mr. McKeough has said Northern Ontario regions will likely be the last affected.

Studies are already under way in these regions: Hamilton-Wentworth, Waterloo, Brant, Norfolk-Haldimand, Metropolitan Toronto, the Lakehead, Muskoka and Sudbury.

Mr. Coolican told an interviewer his aim is the orderly development of the region through more effective planning.

"We hope there will be economies through integration of certain services and avoidance of duplication.

He sees benefits for the federal government in having one main voice to deal with locally on development of the national capital area. Planning, growth and land use are the areas where he expects the greatest improvements.

Virtually all the new government's 1,100 to 1,200 employees are being transferred directly from member-municipality staffs. The new government also acquires some $1,000,000 worth of Carleton County Council's assets outright—mainly a jail and land—and its debts.

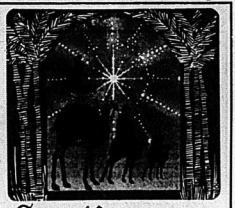
The regional government embraces many small communities including: Richmond, Stittsville, City View, Manotick, Bells Corners, Carp and Fitzroy Harbor.

All main road arteries become a regional responsibility but the City of Ottawa will continue to maintain its own and pass the bill on to the regional government. Regional council will directly handle design and major road projects.

Frobisher Will Get New Centre

OTTAWA (CP) — Three Edmonton firms have won a multi-million-dollar contract to construct a modern town centre in Frobisher Bay in the eastern Arctic.

The northern development department said Monday a contract for a civic square complex in the settlement 1,000 miles north of Montreal has gone to Solar Construction Co. Ltd., Lockerbie-Hole (Western) Ltd. and Batoni-Hunford.



Best wishes for a season filled with good health, good cheer for you and your family. We wish to extend our thanks to all our fine friends and neighbors for their loyalty and confidence.

Hooded Thugs Rob Simpson's Of $200,000

MONTREAL (CP) — Three hooded men armed with pistols and a shotgun made off with $200,000 from the Robert Simpson Ltd. accounting offices Monday morning shortly after the theft of more than $200,000 from a suburban bank branch bank was discovered.

Police described the daylight robbery of weekend receipts at Simpson's Mountain Street office, about four blocks from the company's busy downtown Ste. Catherine Street department store, as the largest Christmas season robbery in recent years.

Witnesses told police the bandits carried out the raid in less than five minutes.

Two of the robbers held the office's 50 employees at bay while the third rifled cash drawers.

Police said they could not explain how the bandits gained entry to the office, where doors are electrically locked and opened from a desk control inside.

Meanwhile, police in suburban Ville d'Anjou were investigating the theft from a branch of the Bank of Montreal located in a shopping plaza. Preliminary investigation indicated that at least 60 of the plaza's 80 stores had deposited money sacks in the night deposit box.

Police said there was no sign of forced entry into the vault, described as "extremely sophisticated," and no burglar alarms were sounded during the night.

No other details were immediately available.

A Simpson's executive said in early reports that about $100,000 was taken in the raid on the company's accounting office but police later revised this figure to $200,000.

Police said Monday night that the bandits "obviously obtained details of the layout of the office from someone thoroughly familiar with the operation."

The offices, located on the third floor of the building, house the general and accounting offices of Simpson's.

Company officials said the money taken by bandits consisted of C.O.D. cash receipts collected by warehouse employees.

Police said a woman employee was taken to hospital suffering from shock.

No shots were fired.

Tweed

TWEED—Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hughes of Arden and daughter have moved to Woostock, where Mr. Hughes is employed as a CPR operator.

Mrs. Alberta Gregg of Vanachar celebrated her 100th birthday recently at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Gregg. All of the family and grandchildren were able to attend the celebration.

Miss Colleen LaFontaine of North Victoria Street, Tweed, will be enjoying her Christmas Day and dinner with her sister Miss Edna LaFontaine in St. Mary's of the Lake Hospital, Kingston, where she has been a patient since November of 1966.

Keystone Cops Capers

Intelligence Work Often Has Offbeat Humor

OTTAWA (CP) Intelligence work isn't long been a subject of infinite merriment in these parts.

Especially since an RCMP counter-espionage agent shadowed a Russian embassy officer so closely that he followed him right into a one-man cubicle in a men's washroom.

Or since an RCMP constable working on a case involving influence-peddling in high Ottawa places took notes on the envelope of an old gas bill and then lost the envelope.

Defence Minister Leo Cadieux has added to this Keystone Cops lexicon with his testimony before the Commons defence committee.

Asked whether NATO was forewarned of the Aug. 20 Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, Mr. Cadieux said:

"I suppose, like any other structured body, they—he intelligence net—have meetings, say, at nine o'clock in the morning for intelligence briefings and as this invasion happened during the night, therefore they learned of it when they met."

Other stray intelligence data:

The defence research board holds an annual, closed symposium here. The Chateau Laurier, where the meetings are held, was carefully "debugged" this year as usual. However, the main speaker handed out copies of his speech to the press.

A highly-placed source said the government, when it suspects secret documents are being fed to the Russians, orders RCMP counter-intelligence into the job but doesn't tell the force what the documents are all about because they are secret. As a result, the RCMP doesn't know sometimes what it is looking for.

There are seven towns and villages around Ottawa in which "safe houses" have been established for the cabinet in case of nuclear attack. Locations of these houses are secret but, one source said, "a man in the liquor store in Carleton Place can tell you where the one in Carleton Place is."

The secret government communications centre at nearby Carp uses cipher code to transmit messages within Canada and abroad.

Why not plain language in peacetime?

"Because it is a secret communications centre," an official said.

Leithead's Morale Said Quite High

MOSCOW (CP) — William Leithead, a 20-year-old Simon Fraser University student, imprisoned in the Soviet central Asian city of Tashkent for narcotics smuggling, was reported Monday to be in good health and spirits despite a court decision last Thursday which increased his sentence.

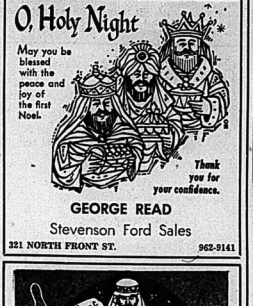
A Canadian Embassy official who returned to Moscow Monday from a visit to Tashkent said Leithead's morale was "quite high," although the Presidium Supreme Court granted an appeal by the state prosecutor which increased his term to three years from two.

Nor was there any indication that Leithead was upset at the prospect of his forthcoming move from Tashkent jail to a collective labor camp, the official said.

No decision has yet been taken on what further legal moves Leithead and his Tashkent lawyer may attempt.

Leithead is reported to be studying Russian and French languages.

His original sentence of four years had been reduced to two years on appeal but that decision was successfully appealed in turn by the prosecutor.



No Christmas Laughter In Saddened Mine Town

FARMINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — They had a Christmas party, decorated the streets and played holiday music over loud much.

There will be little joy in this saddened coal-mining region Christmas Eve. Seventy-eight of its men lie entombed in cavernous Mountaineer No. 9 mine, ravaged 10 days by explosion and fire and finally sealed Nov. 29.

People from throughout the United States sent tons of toys, food and clothing and thousands of dollars to try to make the holidays more bearable.

For a brief moment there was laughter among the 124 children made fatherless by the disaster.

That was Saturday when Santa and Mrs. Claus appeared at a Christmas party organized by the local volunteer fire department.

One small girl, clutching her new doll with one hand and hanging onto her mother's coat with the other, asked: "Is Daddy coming home for Christmas?" Her mother wiped away a tear and answered "No".

A wife of one of the dead miners cried when she saw crates packed full with toys for the children, sent from throughout the country.

"I'm glad because I can't pay for the presents I already bought my kids," she said.

Last week an Ohio farmer sent 11 tons of onions and potatoes, neatly packed in 50-pound sacks.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer carried on the biggest drive in its history and produced a cheque for $75,000 and two vans of toys, food and clothing.

The nickels and dimes from school children and Sunday schools all but flood the offices of the Citizens Mine Disaster Committee in Farmington.

Philip Campo, chairman of the committee, said the more than $107,000 contributed so far will be placed in an education trust fund for the children.

This town is saddened, of course, but it has not given up.

Children attending the local Roman Catholic Sunday school perhaps best expressed the feeling of the people when they hung Christmas cards in the town hall windows which read:

"I will offer my communion this Sunday for the families of the 78 miners killed in No. 9."

Tweed

Grant Elliott of Tweed, spent a recent week skiing at Mount-Tremblant, Quebec. On his way he visited with his sister, Mrs Gordon Hill, in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Clark and Mr. and Mrs. G. Jackson spent a few days recently with Fred Jeanerett, who is a patient in the Newmarket Hospital. They also called on Mrs. Jeanerett and Judy at Gromley, Ont.

Raymond Higgins of Sudbury spent a few days recently with Mr. and Mrs. James Kehoe in Read.

Girl Identifies Kidnap Pair

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — U.S. Attorney William Meadows says Barbara Jane Mackle has identified Gary Steven Krist and Ruth Eisemann-Schier as the couple who buried her alive in North Georgia after she was kidnapped.

Meadows' disclosure came Monday during a preliminary hearing at which federal extortion charges were added to the kidnapping counts against Krist and Miss Eisemann-Schier.

Krist, captured Sunday on swampy Hog Island off the Florida Gulf Coast, replied "Yes" twice during the hearing when asked if he understood the new charges and his rights.

Miss Eisemann-Schier, 26, described as a five-foot-three, sometimes-blonde of athletic build, is being sought.

Miss Mackle, a 20-year-old Emory University co-ed and daughter of a wealthy Coral Gables land developer, was kidnapped from an Atlanta motel last Tuesday. Federal Bureau of Investigation agents found her late Friday buried in a coffin-like box in a shallow pit 20 miles from Atlanta.

Bethlehem Quiet Oasis In Middle East Strife

BETHLEHEM (AP) — The birthplace of Jesus this Christmas looks like an oasis of peace in the desert of Middle East strife. It's so quiet, Arab traders complain, that business is terrible.

Manger Square, in front of the Church of the Nativity which stands over the traditional birthplace of Jesus, is deserted apart from a handful of tourists.

A biting wind cuts through the hilltop town, fluttering thin strings of flags over the square and shaking the colored lights on the tiny stooping Christmas tree, a gift from Israel.

Soldiers rolled up to the occupied town in force Monday and scattered through the streets—evidence of Israel's determination to make sure the celebrations of the birth of the Prince of Peace pass without incident. There have been veiled threats to the contrary from Arab sabotage organizations.

Checkpoints on the road to Jerusalem—down which Joseph and expectant Mary plodded for shelter in Bethlehem—stopped Arab cars and subjected occupants to a body search.

Barriers will spring up today all around the town to keep all but Christians out. Pilgrims arrived in Israel by the thousands for the celebrations. The Christmas ceremonies, which begin this afternoon, when the Latin Patriarch, Msgr. Alberto G. Orl, arrives here will be televised worldwide.

The tourist office in Bethlehem expects 10,000 pilgrims, about the same as last year.

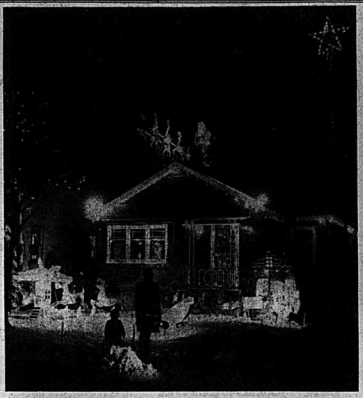
YMCA Committee Meets



At the recent Directors' Meeting at the Belleville Family "Y" the report of the membership commitee was presented and pointed up the fact that memberships both individual and family were increasing.

To date there are 1,907 memberships. Unlike many organizations the "Y" membership runs for a year from the time it is taken out — not according to the calendar year.

The philosophy behind Y programming was discussed and it was agreed that the "Y" provides a vehicle in which the development of the total person is the criterion of progress — not the skill level attained.

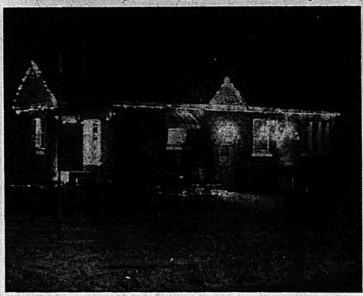
Individual needs differ. The "Y" is concerned with the individual rather than production figures.

Harry J. Fast, president, reported a few new donations to the building fund had been received and said others were expected.

No. 2 Most Spectacular, Don Foster, Emily St.

Most Spectacular – Everett Dickey, 4 Russell St.

Rotary Donates $250 to Fund



Members of Belleville Rotary Club yesterday contributed $250 for the work of the Salvation Army at a Christmas meeting attended by the children of club members.

Lt. Col. Wilfred Hawkes expressed thanks to president Ken. Wormald and members for their contribution and introduced the Belleville Citadel Band which led the singing.

Solo numbers were contributed by Captain J. Reid and Keith Payton. They were accompanied at the piano by Mrs. J. Green.

Captain Reid, who is divisional youth officer for the Army's Eastern Ontario region, leaves shortly for Winnipeg where he will take up a similar position for the Northwestern Ontario and Manitoba region.

His territory will extend from the Lakehead as far north as Flin Flon and Thompson, Manitoba.

Second Prize Originality – J. A. Barnett, Crestview Ave.

Most Original, Fred Tompkins, 240 West College

Lighting Awards Are Announced

Everett Dickey, 4 Russell St., won first prize for the most spectacular display and Fred Tompkins, 240 West College St. was judged to have the most original lighting display.

A panel of three judges chose the winners from the applications sent to the PUC by home owners.

Ten winners were chosen, five from the most spectacular category and five from the most original category. All received prizes of electrical appliances.

Other winners in the most spectacular lighting display category are Don Foster, 80 Emily St., M. DeGenova, 6 Ernest Court, W. D. Cook, 38 Forin St., Raymond Lucas 313 Albert St.

In the most original display category, the other winners were J. A. Barnett, 35 Crestview Ave., Norman Jennings, 20 Kellar Dr., Mrs. Les Lennox, 159 Bleecker Ave. and J. R. Fletcher, 70 Everett St.

Butcher, Baker, Candle Stick Maker

The weary but happy merchants were ready for the last minute shoppers as eve of the big day grew nearer. And no one welcomed more the time for relaxing and joining in the celebrations than butcher Bill Sweet bearing up well to deliver a giant 27 pound turkey; busy bakery salesman Doug Hatfield and the candle seller at James Texts Mrs. J. W. MacLaurin. With the hundreds of other store employees in the city they'll have Christmas Day and Boxing Day holidays as a reward to look forward to and enjoy with their families.

Christmas holidays and fun in snow go together for the younger set. This giant snowball and its maker get an assist from a gallant young man, who provided haulage on his sleigh to a snow fort construction site.

Cunard Cancels Cruise to Florida--Dispute with Coast Guard

LONDON (AP) — The Cunard Line today cancelled a cruise to Port Everglades, Fla., by its liner Franconia as a result of its dispute with the U.S. Coast Guard over safety regulations.

It was the third time in two weeks that British passenger ships have been affected by the dispute.

Six hundred passengers were to have sailed from Britain today aboard the Franconia and the ship was to pick up more passengers at Port Everglades and continue to Bermuda. A Cunard spokesman said the cancellation cost the company $216,000.

He said the Franconia will sail without passengers Jan. 8. In case the dispute is settled by the time the liner arrives at Port Everglades Jan. 17, she will pick up American passengers and go on to the Caribbean.

The coast guard at Port Everglades claims that British board of trade certificates issued to British vessels do not comply with new American safety regulations.

London authorities argue that the British certificates are the world's best guarantee of passenger safety.

Coast guard officials barred another Cunard liner, the Carmania, from leaving Port Everglades Friday for failure to meet fire safety regulations.

The line has refunded the passengers' money, and the delay is costing a reported $4,000 a day while the Carmania is docked in the Florida port.

The P. and O. liner Arcadia also had been barred from leaving the port, but the coast guard reversed its decision Monday night and accepted the liner's British safety certificate, allowing the ship to sail for the Far East.

British board of trade officials are in Washington to discuss the safety issue and a Cunard spokesman said the line would await the outcome of the talks.

Seals Rumored On Buffalo Trail

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The rumor mills are grinding again for those box-office lightweights, Oakland Seals.

The Seals were last in the Western Division of the National Hockey League last season. Although they're now tied for second place, they drew only 1,829 fans Sunday night at San Francisco when they beat Philadelphia Flyers 2-1.

Last summer, rumor had it that the Seals' franchise would be transferred to Vancouver.

Now a fresh rumor, promptly denied on all sides, has it that the Seals will be switched to Buffalo, N.Y.

Hockey writer Nelson Cullenward wrote in the San Francisco Examiner:

"Eastern sources swear the move to Buffalo is in the making and if it does come about at the end of the season, the bay area ice fans will have a strong hand in forcing the move."

Cullenward said his source was an NHL official.

But NHL president Clarence Campbell said in Montreal:

"There is no official foundation for the rumor as far as the league is concerned. I have no knowledge along these lines and there is nothing current in league circles. Of course there has been speculation, but that is all."

He said the league will be in a better position to appraise the situation at the end of the season when the tangled financial picture in Oakland should be clearer.

The new rumor has been floating around for a week, said Fred Hunt, general manager of the American Hockey League Buffalo Bisons.

"I would be inclined to say they're not coming here," he added.

"Maybe it's possible," said Reuben Pastor, owner of the Bisons. "But I own the professional rights here and anything to be done must be done through me."

The Buffalo team has the best AHL record this year with a 15-5-6 mark and has drawn up to 8,700 fans at games in Memorial Auditorium.

Pastor said an NHL franchise for Buffalo would draw "thousands of Canadian fans to every game." Buffalo's bid for an expansion franchise two years ago was passed over but a group of prominent local businessmen have been trying ever since to win an NHL team for the city.

"I can say point blank that not a single thing has been done, either at a league or club level, to transfer the franchise to Buffalo," Torrey said.

"I have just returned from a league meeting in New York which I attended with our major owners and there was not one word of such conversation."

Appeal Possible

Dancer's Case Still Unsettled

BOSTON (AP) — Hanging on Peter Fuller's office wall is a picture of Dancer's Image in which the winner of the controversial 1968 Kentucky Derby appears to be smiling quizzically.

"See that look?" the Boston sportsman asked newsmen Monday after a ruling that the colt had indeed won the Derby but could not share in the purse because an illegal pain-killer was found in his system.

"You can tell he's asking: 'Are you kidding, Pete?' "

The wealthy auto dealer indicated he wanted to continue his battle to clear the colt's record.

"Concerning my further appeal, I will confer with my attorneys ...," Fuller said. "Still, in all candor, I must remind you that Dancer's Image ran the last quarter on May 4 at Churchill Downs with all his ability and heart to finish the course—can I as his owner and friend do less?

Fuller's comments came at a news conference called after an announcement by the Kentucky Racing Commission that it was upholding Churchill Downs stewards, who ordered the Derby's purse money redistributed after a chemist said he found an illegal drug in a post-race urinalysis.

The commission's announcement in Lexington, Ky., came after 14 days of testimony on Fuller's appeal of the ruling.

Namath Picked AFL's Best In Two Polls

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath was chosen in two polls today as the American Football League's Most Valuable Player.

Namath, who leads New York Jets into Sunday's championship game against Oakland, was an overwhelming choice in 156 voting by an Associated Press panel of 30 sports writers and sportscasters, three in each AFL city.

He also was selected in a poll of AFL coaches.

Namath received 38 points from the coaches who voted for first, second and third. Runner-up was his New York Jet teammate, flanker Don Maynard, with 12 points and two first-place votes. John Hadl of San Diego also had 12 points but no first-place votes.

Namath received 15 votes from the AP panel while eight players shared the other 15.

Lance Alworth of San Diego was runner-up with four votes. Bob Griese of Miami had three, Len Dawson of Kansas City and Hadl two each and Oakland's Daryle Lamonica, George Sauer of New York, Paul Robinson of Cincinnati and Kansas City's Bob Holmes one each.

In sparking the Jets to their first Eastern Division title, Namath completed 49 per cent of his passes for 3,147 yards and 15 TDs.

Bargaining Punch Says, He'd Like Shack Back

TORONTO (CP) — Punch Imlach says he would like to see Eddie Shack back in a Toronto Maple Leafs uniform.

"If I were offered him right now I'd take him," Imlach, coach and general manager, said Monday. "He could play for this team."

Imlach traded the left winger to Boston Bruins for Murray Oliver, May 15, 1967.

Shack was offered to several other National Hockey League clubs during the summer but the Bruins were not able to arrange a satisfactory trade. Leafs at the moment could use no big wingers.

Christmas is a time for giving, and some of the most meaningful gifts ever made came in the world of sport.

Not necessarily Christmas gifts, but in a spirit more than equal to the occasion.

Gifts like the time Babe Ruth — probably the greatest single sports personality of all time — drove 60 miles the night before a world series game to visit a sick boy.

"And if you write anything about it," the Babe threatened close friend Grantland Rice, "I'll knock your brains out."

One of the most significant contributions to sportdom was made by the late Branch Rickey, and it involved the signing of a 26-year-old ballplayer to the 1945 edition of the Brooklyn Dodger organization.

Call it Branch Rickey's Christmas present to baseball . . . to everyone.

On the morning of August 28, 1945, a bewildered young man was led into Rickey's walnut-paneled inner sanctum to embark on his sport's greatest adventure.

As he entered, he was confronted by the awesome baseball genius himself — behind his familiar bushy-browed and cigar-decorated countenance.

Rickey camouflaged his eagerness to sign the young star to a professional contract. He knew the problem he was flirting.

"There's more than just playing," Rickey was bellowing at the nearly-unnerved Dodger designate.

"I wish it meant only hits, runs and errors — only the things they put in the box score. Because you know — yes, YOU would know — that a baseball box score is a democratic thing.

"It doesn't tell how big you are, what church you attend, what color you are or how your father voted in the last election.

"It just tells what kind of a baseball player you were on that particular day."

Realizing by now that Rickey's heart was much more mellow than the gruff front he presented, the young ballplayer ventured a query.

"But Mr. Rickey — when the chips are down, isn't what they put in the box score what really counts?"

"It's all that ought to count, but it isn't," Rickey snapped. "Maybe one of these days it will, but all that counts.

But that's one of the reasons I've got you here.

"If you're a good enough ballplayer, and a big enough man, we can make this a start in the right direction. But let me warn you it's going to take an awful lot of courage.

The imposing figure strode over to the young man, put his face within inches of him, and demanded: "Have you got the guts to play the game, no matter what happens? That's what I want to know!"

"I think I can play the game, Mr. Rickey," Jackie Robinson said.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY TIPS

Goalies should always look for those soft shots from close to the net.

They're often caught napping by flip shots off the backhand.

If a goalie stays on his skates and in position, he cuts down the risk of a cheap goal.

Famous Fosbury Flop Featured in Saskatoon

SASKATOON (CP) — Two world record holders and a unique high jumper head a strong contingent of United States athletes Friday and Saturday in the fourth annual Saskatchewan Indoor games.

Pole vaulter Bob Seagren, quarter-miler Lee Evans and Dick Fosbury, who dives over the high jump bar backwards, will be among 50 U.S. competitors in the meet that has attracted more than 1,200 athletes.

In the 1968 Olympic Games at Mexico City, all three won a gold medal as Seagren and Evans shattered world records and Fosbury broke the Olympic mark.

Seagren, a student at University of Southern California, set an unofficial world indoor record of 17-1 in the 1966 meet here and reached greater heights in the Olympics with an outdoor mark of 17-8½.

He holds the world indoor record of 17-4¼ and has a pending world outdoor mark of 17-9.

Dennis Phillips of Oregon State who won the Amateur Athletic Union title with a mark of 17¾, Bruce Simpson of Toronto and Paul Hegiar of University of Texas will supply the pole vault opposition for Seagren.

Evans set his world record in the 400 metres with a time of 43.8 In the men's 1,600-metre relay, he helped his team set a world record of 2:56.1 to better the listed mark by 3.5 seconds.

Fosbury won an Olympic gold medal with a leap of seven feet, 4¼ inches.

Canadian Teams Gain Hockey Split

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada won one and lost one Monday night in international hockey exhibitions.

The Ottawa-based national team, which beat the Czechs 7-3 Sunday, romped to a 9-3 victory over Sweden's second national team at Ottawa.

Don Davidson and Steve King each counted two goals in the Canadian win over Sweden. Singles went to Ritchie Bayes, Bob Murdock, Jim Adair, Terry Caffery and Derek Holmes.

The Canadians led Sweden 3-1 at the end of the first period and 8-2 at the end of the second.

Canada got seven penalties to the Swedes three.

Big 9-3 Margin

Ottawa Nationals Whip Viking Seconds

OTTAWA (CP) — Don Davidson scored two goals Monday night to lead Canada's Ottawa-based national hockey team to a 9-3 win over Sweden's second national team.

The game before more than 5,000 fans at the civic centre was a breeze for the Canadians after they took an early 3-0 lead. The game lacked the excitement of Canada's two-game split with Czechoslovakia during the weekend.

Steve King also scored two goals in helping the Nationals to victory. Ritchie Bayes, Bob Murdoch, Jim Adair, Terry Caffery and Derek Holmes got singles.

The Canadians came out hitting in the first half of the opening period and had a two-goal lead before the five-minute mark.

Aided by a porous Swedish defence they forechecked steadily and had numerous scoring opportunities.

The score was 3-1 at the end of the first period, and 8-2 at the end of the second.

The Swedish team, known as the Vikings, was several notches below the calibre of the Czechoslovakian team with which the Nationals split a two-game series over the weekend.

The Canadians lost to the Czechs 3-1 in Montreal, Friday, and bounced back to beat them 7-3 here Sunday.

Swedish coach Arne Strömberg, in a news release introducing the team, said he expected "four or five of the Vikings to show their eventual world champion shape during the tour."

JACK BOWNASS

aided by a porous Swedish defence.

The Czechs broke loose for four goals in the second period in defeating Canada before 8,498 fans.

The Czechs outskated the Canadians and capitalized on defensive errors. Jiri Holik led the Czechs with two goals and singles were scored by Jan Suchy, Antisek Sevcik and Jaroslav Jerk.

Scoring for Canada were Morris Mott and Fran Huck.

AFL All-star Roster Dominated by Oakland Raiders' Best

NEW YORK (AP) — Flanker Lance Alworth of San Diego Chargers and defensive tackle Buck Buchanan of Kansas City Chiefs were the top vote-getters while Oakland Raiders placed the most men on the American Football League all-star team named by The Associated Press Monday.

The Raiders had six players voted to the 22-man squad while the Chiefs placed five men on the team, and the New York Jets had three players make it. In the balloting by the 30-man panel of sports writers and sportscasters, Alworth received 28 votes, most of the offensive team, and Buchanan got 27, tops on the defence.

Alworth is joined in the backfield by quarterback Joe Namath of New York and running backs Paul Robinson of Cincinnati and Hewritt Dixon of Oakland.

On the offensive line are split end George Sauer of New York, tight end Jim Whalen of Boston, tackles Ron Mix of San Diego and Jim Tyrer of Kansas City, guards Walt Sweeney of San Diego and Gene Upshaw of Oakland and centre Jim Otto of Oakland.

Besides Buchanan, the defensive line has ends Gerry Philbin of New York and Rich Jackson of Denver and tackle Dan Birdwell of Oakland.

Willie Lanier of Kansas City is the middle linebacker.

The corner linebackers are George Webster of Houston and Bobby Bell of Kansas City. The cornerbacks are Miller Farr of Houston and Oakland's Willie Brown and the safeties are Johnny Robinson of Kansas City and Dave Grayson of Oakland.

In making the team for the ninth time, Mix is the only player to be named every year the league has been in existence. Otto has missed only once, in 1966, and Alworth has made it six times, or every season but his first.

Mushmouth Greets Athletic Community

By GEORGE H. CARVER

GREETINGS FROM MUSHMOUTH

Dear ex-Boss:

Herewith are my annual greetings to my many friends in various fields of athletic endeavor.

To the merry sprites of sportdom, eyes ashine la smiling face,
Be they squirt or tyke or novice may they take their rightful place
In athletic endeavor echelons through future stardom years,
In victory all valiant — in defeat no tears.

To the diamond Joes of baseball, (you can toss in softball too,)
May the fickle bats of fortune never leave you feeling blue,
May your home runs come in clusters, your sacrifices few,
And your victories be plenty, give or take, say just a few.

And to pucksdom's panting faithful be they Morrisons or Mo's,
Commercial, Gas House, juvenile or midget, peewee,
May your shooting eyes ne'er falter as you battle through the night,
And may you always turn it on, including that "red light."

To the roamers of the fairways, roughs and lushy velvet greens,
May your games ne'er give you reasons to recall what-might-have-been,
And your drives soar true to target, your putts and lache's sure,
And some day may you proudly say, "I made that hole-in-one."

To the yeomen and "yeowomen" of the proud and mighty bow,
May your arrows speed to target true wherever you may go
And your bowstrings always taut, remain in titular array
And add the world's top honors to your championship display.

To the Jock and Jane of the Roarin' Game may the year bring you no knocks,
And the gods that guide your game's neat slide not put sand upon your rocks,
And if the chip should make a slip, just smile, don't be a grouse,
Who knows, before the game is o'er, you'll score a neat full house.

And to the guys who summer-wise don shirts and shorts and knicks,
And go half-peeled to a soccer field (they do it just for kicks)
May Christmas hold for these hooters hold a vision of things to be,
A year from now they'll find — and how — some titles on their tees.

To the white-wing gals and their sailor pals may the winds blow brisk and free,
May you always feel a craft a-heel, a-surge through a flowing sea,
May your harbor lights be burning bright with a warmy welcome home,
And you greet a friend as you slowly bend o'er a beaker of club-house foam.

So to clubs, associations, coaches, Stars and sportsmen all,
May Christmas bring its utmost joys to every home and hall,
May your efforts be successful, no matter what your name,
Remember - - - "It is not who you are, but how you played the game."

Holiday Greetings.

Overtime Defeat Eliminates BCI, Snaps School's Golden Ball String

A foul shot with one second remaining in overtime spelled defeat for Belleville Collegiate Monday and snapped the Collegians' string of three consecutive Queen's University Golden Ball Tournament championships.

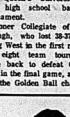
The 37-36 overtime loss to Cobourg West in the second round of the round-robin double elimination tournament followed a first round 60-40 loss to Ernestown, and eliminated BCI from Queen's University's annual high school basketball tournament.

Kenner Collegiate of Peterborough, who lost 38-37 to Cobourg West in the first round of the eight team tournament, came back to defeat Cobourg 45-38 in the final game, and capture the Golden Ball championship.

BCI played without injured guard Brian Harder, but dressed three junior players, forwards Dave Wright and Brent Gallupe and guard Mike Scarlett in an attempt to bolster the squad for the Queen's Tournament, which included teams from Ernestown, Kingston, Cobourg, Peterborough, Cornwall, Oshawa and Shawville.

BCI's string of golden championships ended abruptly when Paul Allan sank the game winning foul shot after scoring on a 30 foot jump shot with one second remaining to tie the game.

Forward Bill Mindenhall led the senior collegians' scorers with 11 points, while Ken Richardson hooped nine and junior forward Dave Wright added seven points.



Allan topped Cobourg West's scorers with 14 points, while Smith added ten and Culhan six for the Cobourg crew.

The junior reinforcements played well in the first round loss to Ernestown, with Dave Wright netting 10 points to top the Collegian scorers. Ken Richardson added eight points while Brent, Gallupe and Ted Shaw contributed six points each.

Gordie Howe's
HOCKEY

For many of us involved in hockey, we forget one very important thing. Selling the game.

We are too close to hockey and we are guilty of feeling that everybody else is just as interested in the game as we are. This is not the case.

Danny Lawson, a junior with Hamilton last year before making the jump to the Red Wings this season, had a surprise recently when he attended a banquet in Detroit and talked to numerous youngsters. What astounded him was the youngsters knew so little about hockey and the Red Wings and other teams in the National Hockey League.

It shouldn't have. Detroit, to my mind, is the most knowledgeable hockey city in the NHL next to Toronto and Montreal. We are across the Detroit River from Windsor and draw fans from that section of Ontario all the way from Sarnia and Loodon.

But in Detroit itself and its surrounding cities, there is still a big selling job to do. Many of the surrounding cities such as Dearborn and Livonia have ambitious hockey programs for youngsters, but one of the chief handicaps in the Greater Detroit area is the shortage of rinks. This is gradually being overcome, but the game still must be sold and it is up to hockey and the people involved in it to sell the game.

Take in Detroit, hockey is among the Big Three in pro sports. However, to be realistic the fact must be faced that it ranks behind the baseball Tigers and the football Lions.

To me, naturally, hockey is the greatest sport in the world. But I realize, too, that hockey people just can't expect to throw open their doors and expect the crowds to rush in.

The late Jack Adams was one of the game's greatest salesmen. The fact that hockey is a success in Detroit rests largely with the selling job he did in the early years.

I remember they would kid Mr. Adams about the fact that if three people were talking on a Detroit street corner, he would join them and start selling hockey.

In the old days, too, he would walk into the dressing room on a Monday morning and say: "want volunteers for banquets . . . tonight, tomorrow night, Wednesday night, we play Thursday, and Friday night."

That was the way he operated. When we weren't playing, we were out selling the game.

And why not? As I said before, it's the greatest game in the world.

Ski Winner To See Europe

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Mike Lafferty sailed to victory in the men's downhill at the Alpine Holiday Classic ski meet here Monday and won himself a trip to Europe in the bargain.

Lafferty, who skis for the University of Colorado, whipped over the course in 68.8 seconds, two-tenths of a second faster than runner-up Jere Elliott of Stamboat Springs, Colo.

Bill McKay of Edmonton finished sixth in 1:09.3, Bert Irwin of Kamloops, B.C., tied for seventh in 1:10.2 and Wayne Henderson of Banff, Alta., and Currie Chapman of Ottawa tied for 10th in 1:10.5.

Erica Skieger of Stowe, Vt., and Ann Black of Seattle finished in a dead heat—at 97.8 seconds—for the women's down-hill title.

Betsy Clifford of Ottawa finished seventh in 1:40.2 and Judy Crawford of Ottawa tied for 10th in 1:41.1.

Sports On All Fronts

EAST ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — Althea Gibson Darbon, a former tennis queen but a mere commoner among women's golfing elite, is attempting a comeback on the courts.

The 41-year-old former Harlem tomboy, who is struggling to make it on the ladies' pro golf tour, said Monday she will attempt a tennis comeback in the Oakland pro invitational in California in February. It will be her first major tournament since 1960.

As Althea Gibson, she won both the Wimbledon and U.S. championships in 1957 and 1958, the third woman to accomplish that double feat and the first Negro woman ever to win a major tennis title.

OTTAWA (CP) — Harry Jerome, the Vancouver track and field star, will undertake special studies under the national fitness and amateur sport program, the federal health department announced Monday.

Jerome has represented Canada at the last three Olympic Games and in all Pan-American and Commonwealth Games held since 1959.

He formerly held the world record for the 100 metres, co-holds the world 100-yard record, and has shared the world record for the 440-yard relay.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Francisco Warriors, double and triple-teaming San Diego's Elvin Hayes, held the National Basketball Association's leading scorer to 15 points en route to a 125-95 triumph Monday night.

Playing without centre Nate Thurmond and forward Clyde Lee, the Warriors controlled the backboards after the second quarter and allowed the Rockets' high-scoring front line only 39 points, their lowest output of the year.

Rudy LaRusso wound up with 30 points for game honors.

Steinbeck and Norman Thomas Are Eulogized at New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Two men who stirred the conscience of the United States in the depression and left lasting marks on its politics and letters-novelist John Steinbeck and socialist Norman Thomas—were eulogized Monday in memorial services.

Henry Fonda, who starred in the movie version of Steinbeck's novel Grapes of Wrath, was the main participant at the author's funeral.

Fonda read passages from poems by William Synge, Robert Stevenson and Alfred Lord Tennyson during the 20-minute service at St. James Episcopal Church.

Steinbeck, who died Friday at 66, was to be cremated, with burial to follow in Salinas, Calif.

Thomas was praised as a "great man who never knew how great he was" at a memorial service at Community Church.

Rev. Sidney Lovett, chaplain emeritus of Yale University, said the six-time Socialist party presidential candidate "sought justice justly" and "walked firmly, but non-violently, in the paths of brotherhood."

Thomas was cremated soon after his death.

Communists Expelled

VANCOUVER (CP) — The revolution of local members of the Communist Party in Canada reached the national level Monday after Charles Caron and Charles Boylan said they were expelled by the CPC's central executive committee in Toronto.

Both Mr. Caron and Mr. Boylan were members of the national central committee and Mr. Caron has already been expelled from the B.C. branch of the CPC.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscopes for Holidays

For Dec. 25th

Your birthday today: The coming year holds unplanned diversions, interesting experiences into your reach. Most of them helpful, although inconvenient. The strong stress of these changes will require much meditation to find time, poise for constructive use of the life-opportunity. Today's natives tend to idealism and hunger for personal perfection.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): This Christmas is hectic, full of surprises. Trying to guide matters causes confusion. Sit back, unless safety is endangered.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): On this very active holiday, avoid overexertion. Your friends do many unexpected things. A need for tact when confronted with unforeseen events!

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): It seems nobody quite anticipated the impact of his givings and actions. You are best off by just relaxing and watching the incidents popping all around you.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): The going could get so complicated you may have to sit out some of the day. Take time to visit old friends, particularly older persons. Rest.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 23): Unsettling conditions invade even this holiday, and disrupt some of your plans. The young and single may put together a romance today. . .!

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Enjoy the fun along with others this Christmas Day. In the press of excitement don't promise something you can't deliver later. Santa Claus didn't.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Appoint yourself ahead of time as emergency monitor. Moments of pleasure do get mixed into the hubbub of the holiday. You'll see.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): You of course prefer to be at home instead of visiting. Use your telephone for contact with kin at distances. You put in a hectic, much longer day than planned, right?

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 Dec. 21): Leave your money in your pocket. There's so much going on that spending would not add improvement. Take a break during this strenuous day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 Jan. 19): Your usually effective lines of organization get swamped by the rush of new things. Watch, also, unforeseen intensity of personal reactions. Remember, much is not meant for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 Feb. 18): A muchly enjoyed but complex day. You miss details simply because so much is going on at the same time. (You'll hear the rest of the story later.)

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Home is the best place to spend this restless and erratic day. Observe carefully your loved ones. You will have much to ponder tonight.

Your birthday today: Social and community responsibility comes to be part of your life this coming year. You may be called upon for service beyond what your current plans include. Today's natives are sensitive to human dignity.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your leadership in arranging details comes into better use. Visiting and phoning take up a good deal of your time.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): So many details go into so many directions you will be lucky just to cope with the nearest of them. Keep an extra pen handy.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Parties are numerous but not as real in your life as the last-minute details for your holiday activities. Do the amenities . . . but do not linger.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You are apt to learn something new today despite preoccupation with holiday arrangements. One major idea could change your whole future: be alert, see it in perspective.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Put all your attention onto tomorrow's arrangements. Time is running short and you may not get some deliveries made unless you pursue every detail.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Today is uneven, too active for comfort. Avoid complex instructions to others. You may invite criticism for no real cause; take it in good grace.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): You should speak up early! Assume control! Otherwise nothing will get done. Everybody assumes somebody else has taken care.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): You have luck with last minute shopping: just be sure it's in hand and all in one piece. Review your situation early for adjustments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): In the last minute, a permanent, important agreement may be struck. Don't be casual about any promise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Just when you are too busy to even acknowledge its receipt, some long-awaited possibility pops open. Act at once . . . if you ever intend to.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): It's an exhausting day rushing around tending details and visiting people who can't come to you. Quit as early as possible.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Keep up with your observations other course open. Take a break and then keep going.

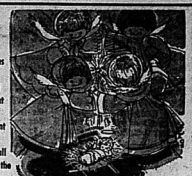
GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Tact. Avoid close contacts or intimate discussions wherever possible. Dissension is near the surface.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Find some balance between home and business demands. Give no explanation on the job whatever. Use care and diplomacy to explain the deal to your loved ones.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Long journeys are not favored if began today. Stay on the ground and revise your materials and equipment before you go. Impatience is something you can survive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): There is certain to be a log jam of holiday adjustments and year-end settlements to make. Put your attention onto your responsibilities!

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Much more love is present than you notice. Back away from arguments; give everybody time to think things over. In privacy, reflect that the stalling is only a passing phase.



SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Tensions may still beset you or your associates. Put aside your pride. Take some action to protect your health.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You can easily be misunderstood, so be less commendatory the better. Be alert. Learn to listen carefully to others — not just what they say but what they project.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Family conferences may be intense and difficult. Clear the air and produce understanding concerning financial matters. Avoid recriminations altogether. Home situations take preference today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Difficulty is the prevailing quality of the environment. Pick your way through the tangle with patience; settle each item before moving on to the next.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Check before doing anything which upsets other people's arrangements. Accept an opportunity if offered, even though you don't see backing.

Trudeau Off For Caribbean Holiday Before PM Conference

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau goes to Montreal today to spend Christmas with his family and then flies south for some scuba-diving to get in shape for the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London next month.

He told a news conference Monday that he suspects the Commonwealth is an anachronism, then hastily added that it is a "valuable club" if for no other reason than that it brings together leaders of a couple of dozen countries.

He suggested that Canada might play the role of a bridge between the Commonwealth and French-speaking countries or, as he put it, between the Anglophones and Francophones.

Mr. Trudeau threw the British into a flap by saying any reporter was free to have a look at the agenda of the Jan. 7-16 Commonwealth conference in London. Never before has an agenda been made public officially in advance.

An external affairs department spokesman later made public the agenda, described by Mr. Trudeau as having few precise items.

The agenda: World political situation and trends; world economic situation and trends; Rhodesia; future Commonwealth co-operation; and secretariat matters.

Asked whether he has any fresh ideas on the Rhodesian problem, Mr. Trudeau said no "but I hope Harold Wilson has." Wilson is British prime minister.

Mr. Trudeau will leave here Jan. 3 for London. He will return here the day before from the Caribbean or Gulf of Mexico where he will be scuba-diving down to 140 to 150 feet. His exact vacation spot was not immediately announced.

Mr. Trudeau said he is taking no diving companion from Ottawa but was sure to find someone to team up with on the spot.

"You can't have people with you all the time," he said.

"I don't think anybody will shoot me on the bottom of the ocean. If they did, it would be accidental."

The prime minister announced:

—The postponed federal-provincial constitutional conference will be held here Feb. 10-12.

—All provinces have agreed in principle to a single Canadian delegation to the mid-February culture conference of French-speaking countries in Niger. However, the method of composing the delegation had not yet been devised.

—Ottawa has been invited to the next meeting of education ministers from French-speaking countries in the Congo in Mau. Mr. Trudeau said he doubts that any individual province has been invited.

—He is going to try to improve his communications with the public in 1969. These had been unsatisfactory in 1968 apart from the June 25 election result.

—New Commons rules had "at last" brought Parliament into the 20th century. He was "extraordinarily happy" about this.

—He expects the Commons to pass 40 bills in its January-June session.

—"Good government is boring, I suppose."

The Christmas Story

In a lowly manger, hewn from the rocky hillside of Bethlehem, a Child was born . . . and herald angels sang. To the manger came humble shepherds, in wonder and rejoicing. Three Wise Men journeyed from the East, bearing precious gifts. And over all shone the miraculous light of a Star. In the words of the Christmas story, that light lives and shines across the ages, bringing hope and promise to all mankind. May the spiritual joys of the season bless you and yours, abundantly on this Christmas Day and forevermore.

Pueblo Crew Members Flying Home for Yule

SEOUL (AP) — The 82 freed crew members of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo left by air for San Diego, Calif., today and a joyful Christmas reunion with their families.

Two U.S. C-141s took off with the men and a coffin with the body of Fireman Duane H. Hodges, 22, of Creswell, Ore., fatally injured when the North Koreans captured the Pueblo Jan. 23.

The planes were scheduled to arrive at San Diego's Miramar Naval Air Station at 5 p.m. EST after a refuelling stop at Midway Island.

The navy said at least 197 wives, children, mothers, fathers, brothers and sisters have gathered at the base. Many left their homes for San Diego in such a hurry they didn't have time to buy Christmas presents for the men.

A U.S. Army band played California Here I Come and Anchors Aweigh as the men boarded the planes. Clad in blue fatigues, they appeared rested and smiled and waved at a crowd of 200 persons seeing them off.

The Pueblo skipper, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, 41, was the last to board.

The crew was released Monday after the U.S. first repudiated and then signed a North Korean draft statement apologizing for intruding into North Korean waters.

Col. Aren C. Buchanan of the medical corps, after examining the crew, said some of the men showed evidence of beatings. He said some had black eyes and bruises.

He said some showed signs of malnutrition, although it seemed none would suffer permanent harm.

Barrie Students Suggest Shortening Winter Holidays

TORONTO (CP) — Students from four Barrie high schools Monday asked Education Minister William Davis to cut short Christmas and winter school vacations and let students out earlier in June.

The students said the school year could be shortened if teachers' conventions were rescheduled and if students stayed in school on Nov. 11, Remembrance Day.

The department has announced that students must stay in school until June 27.

Plans Statement

TORONTO (CP) — William Davis, Ontario education minister, said Monday he will make an announcement early next month on the decision to close high schools at a later date in 1969.

However, he said in an interview he did not "want to let anyone get the impression this thing will be changed."

Christmas Trappings Modern

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The whole panoply of Christmas trees and decorations and presents and cards and Santa Claus figures surely must seem to the uninstructed to be a "tradition" almost as old as Christendom.

But it is not. All the festive trappings we associate with the Christmas celebration were unknown to us when Lincoln was a little boy. It is only in the last century or so that what we fondly call the "Christmas atmosphere" has been enveloped in stockings and gift wrappings and sleighs and deer and all the rest of that delightful, if burdensome nonsense.

We re-create "traditions" in our own minds, to make them seem older and deeper and more symbolic and significant than they really are — so much so, of course, that the symbolism eventually obscures the substance and becomes a goal in itself — as the physical trimmings of Christmas have turned Christ's Mass into a kiddies' holiday.

Actually, the celebration centring around the Christmas tree — decorated with candles and dripping with presents — arrived in America by way of England through Germany after 1840. Until that comparatively late date, Christmas here was nothing of a secular, much less a juvenile, celebration.

Following Queen Victoria's marriage to Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha in that year, a mania for German customs overtook England. Until then, even the concept of "Santa Claus" and his reindeer were unknown in English-speaking countries, so little "Christian" was the whole idea.

Indeed, the name Santa Claus is a contraction of "Santa Nikolaus," who is the patron saint of children in Germany, and whose feast day was Dec. 6, not Christmas Day, when someone would don the costume of a bishop and distribute little trinkets to "good children."

And the well-known Christmas card is of equally recent vintage, but is an English addition, not imported from Germany. It is generally believed that the earliest Christmas cards were designed as late as 1844 by W. C. T. Dobson, a painter of the Royal Academy who specialized in pretty and innocuous illustrations of no particular merit.

From a religious holy-day that was far more reflective than festive, Christmas has willy-nilly been turned into a holiday in which "good will" means buying a child a present, and "peace on earth" means buying a neighbor a drink. Originally celebrated to mark the birth of the "new man," it has more and more come to signify the emptying of pockets for the old man, and the imperious domination of Things over Spirit. Exactly what Jesus was calling us away from.

Firemen Evacuate Hundred Residents Of Big Apartments

MONTREAL (CP) — Firemen donned oxygen masks and scaled nine-storey aerial ladders Monday night to evacuate more than 100 persons from a high-rise apartment building in the city's west end as a five-alarm basement blaze filled the structure with dense smoke.

Police said two firemen and at least three other persons were treated at hospital for smoke inhalation and another 10 persons were given first-aid at police stations.

But some reports said 50 persons were treated at hospital.

The rescue operations were carried out by more than 200 firemen who answered the five alarms with 38 pieces of equipment, including eight aerial ladder trucks and two "snorkel" vehicles which carry firefighters up to 100 feet in the air on hydraulically-operated platforms.

In another fire Monday, some 90 children were evacuated from the St. Pie X Hospital for the Mentally Retarded in suburban Laval. The afternoon blaze was quickly extinguished and there were no injuries.

In the apartment house, smoke from a fire in the second-level basement billowed upward through the 13 storeys of the 75-unit building at the corner of Sherbrooke and Decarie Streets.

While firemen brought occupants—including infants in arms —from upper floors of the building, a crowd estimated by police at more than 800 was kept back by about 80 policemen.

Firemen said residents could return to their apartments overnight.

Residents said no fire alarm sounded in the building. Most had no knowledge of the fire until they smelled smoke in their apartments—often long after the street below was filled with fire vehicles.

Upper-storey rescue operations were hampered by aerial ladders that reached no further than the 10th storey.

The blaze was believed to have started either in lockers or in the garage of the building. Cause was undetermined and no damage estimate was available.

IT WORKS BECAUSE IT SWINGS!
That's the principle behind the pendulum clock, invented in 1657. Earlier clock were found only in cathedrals and public squares; today it is a rare home that doesn't contain at least one time-keeping device. The days of the sundial and the hourglass are gone and the modern world depends upon accurate clocks.
If the days of your older clock are gone in your house, chances are that a home somewhere in this area would use it.

To Your Good Health

Diabetics Have Trouble in Pregnancy

By Dr. George C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My granddaughter is 24 and has been a diabetic since she was 19. She takes insulin. She has a daughter, now 6 years old, but she lost a baby in 1966 at 6½ months. Then she got pregnant and carried the baby nine months and three weeks over-time, but he was born dead. He weighed 11 pounds, 12 ounces. She had a terrible time.

The doctor says she should not get pregnant again, but she thinks if she waited about two years she could carry another baby. I'm afraid it could be her, and not just the baby next time. What is our opinion? — Mrs. F. G.

It is very well known that diabetic women frequently have difficulties in pregnancy — miscarriage, toxemia of pregnancy, large babies, babies who are born dead or die soon after birth.

The longer the diabetes has been active, the more likely is there to be trouble. Your granddaughter's diabetes, discovered five years ago, is no of long duration, in terms of the above paragraph.

Still, after one stillbirth and one miscarriage, her prospects of a successful pregnancy are not particularly bright — except for this possibility: that she may not up to now have been keeping her diabetes under adequate control, even though she takes insulin.

Keeping diabetes under control means constant attention to diet and exercise, as well as medication and it requires regular checking by the physician. This is especially true of the patient is a "brittle diabetic", one whose diabetes is unstable and difficult to keep in balance.

Another pregnancy for your granddaughter does not portend any particular risk for her, but the question of whether she can produce a living, healthy baby is another matter, and I think she should discuss this very carefully with her doctor.

Some things you have not told me. How well, in general, is she controlling her diabetes? If she isn't controlling it now, there is little likelihood of her doing it in pregnancy — and if she hopes for a successful birth she must keep it then.

Is she overweight? Is she gaining or losing? Is the amount and type of her insulin checked periodically?

Diabetic mothers do have healthy babies, but it is essential to keep the diabetes under excellent control. Under such conditions, a caesarean operation, about four weeks before the expected date of delivery often makes the difference between success and failure, but even this usually is pointless unless the diabetes is maintained in correct stability.

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter is a missionary in Central America and has a jungle rot in her right toes, also a split in her fingernails. Could this be lack of vitamins of what? — Mrs. R. M.

Probably not. Far more likely is infection from one of funguses that thrive in moist, warm climates.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received each day, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Toronto Stocks

A decline on the Toronto Stock Exchange today was caused by an even sharper drop in New York. Previously brokers thought the rising trend, which seemed to be picking up speed Friday, would continue after the weekend.

However, prospects now are clouded by New Year's depressing influence and the fact that the Toronto market will be closed for much of Christmas week.

The exchange will be open from 10 a.m. until noon today and there will be a full day's trading Friday.

In industrials, Falconbridge fell 1¾ to 103¼, Seagrams ½ to 50, BA Oil ¼ to 45¼, Alcan ⅛ to 29¼, Bearer Lumber ½ to 18¼ and Bell ¾ to 46½.

Guaranty Trust advanced ¼ to 11¾ on sales of 22,025 shares. A. B. Ramsay president, said there were no new corporate developments to account for the heavy turnover. The annual report is due Jan. 10.

Canada North - West Land dropped 55 to 69. The stock has been soaring recently on rumors that the firm might receive a takover bid.

McIntyre Porcupine gained 3 to 97 after the company announced a 30,000,000 coal contract with a consortium of Japanese steel producers.

Hudson Bay Mining rose 1 to 72½, Pine Point ½ to 42¼ and Highland-Bell 30 cents to $4.80.

On index, base metals fell 21 to 113.12 and western oils 2.71 to 246.05. Golds rose 1.09 to 242.05. Volume was 1,129,000 shares compared with 4,226,000 Friday. Losses outnumbered gains 290 to 246.

Ladies Club Entertains

The members of the Prince Edward-Belleville Ladies' Club entertained families and friends at the annual dinner and social evening at the Recreation Centre, with 65 in attendance.

Traditional turkey dinner with all the trimmings was served by the Victoria Willing Workers whose president is Mrs. Roy Wedgwood. The tables were attractively decorated in the Christmas theme with an artistic floral arrangement on the head table. A draw was made on this item and Mrs. H. Insley was the lucky winner.

President of the club, Mrs. F. Henderson welcomed the gathering after which tables were cleared and a fine program followed. The opening was carol singing with Mrs. M. Doyle as accompanist and the various numbers included: a solo by Mrs. L. Wannamaker; reading by Mrs. P. Baird; piano solo by Miss K. McCulloch; accordion solos by Clyde Dawson; readings by Mrs. M. Welch; musical numbers by Mr. and Mrs. Don Dawson; solo by Mrs. H. Insley; reading by Mrs. B. Way. The program concluded with skit entitled "A Slight Mistake" with Mrs. A. Mitchell, Mrs. Carel, Mrs. J. Dowdle and Mrs. D. Atkins.

Mrs. L. Wannamaker extended thanks to the caterers for the lovely meal provided and Mrs. O. White expressed thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Don Dawson and son Clyde for their participation in the program.

A social hour followed at the close.

Moon Travellers Come Safely Home

Apollo Lands Right on Dot

ABOARD USS YORKTOWN (AP) — "Climaxing a magnificent space odyssey, the Apollo 8 moon explorers came home from the heavens today, steering their spaceship to a pinpoint landing less than three miles from the main recovery ship in a darkened Pacific Ocean.

Col. Frank Borman, Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. and Maj. William A. Anders reported they were in excellent condition after the momentous journey.

They landed just before dawn and waited patiently in their bobbing spaceship for 45 minutes until the first rays of light began to illuminate the Pacific so that swimmers could safely drop into the sea to secure the Apollo 8 craft.

The three Americans ended man's greatest space adventure and one of history's most momentous explorations when they survived man's hottest and fastest dive through the atmosphere and parachuted into a gentle rolling sea about 5,000 yards from the Yorktown.

The astronauts climbed into a life raft and were hoisted aboard a helicopter 80 minutes after landing. They were ferried quickly to the carrier, which had steamed toward the scene from the moment of touchdown.

With a beautiful dawn breaking over the Pacific, Borman, Lovell and Anders were greeted on the carrier deck at 11:20 p.m. EST.

Hundreds of sailors cheered and snapped pictures as the bearded adventurers stepped on deck and strolled a bit uneasily across a red carpet rolled out for the occasion.

The astronauts were dressed in white flight suits, into which they had changed while waiting for recovery.

They smiled and waved to acknowledge the cheers of the sailors.

Borman, stepped to a microphone and thanked the crew for the great recovery operation.

"We're very happy to be here with you," Borman said.

"We appreciate your efforts. We know you had to stay out here over Christmas. It seems that Jim Lovell and I always seem to fly in December."

"But on Gemini 7 we got home before Christmas.

"We are very proud to be part of this great achievement. We're proud of it and we appreciate the part you played in getting us back."

Borman, Lovell and Anders all looked in great shape as they left the microphones and walked to an elevator, which took them down to a sick bay for a medical examination.

With the astronauts safely on the carrier, officials in the Mission control centre in Houston unfurled a large American flag and the U.S. national anthem was played over a communications circuit.

Helicopter spotted the six-ton spaceship dangling under its three red and white parachutes as it dropped to the sea. They were overhead moments after the 10:50 a.m. EST splashdown.

While waiting for pickup, the astronauts chatted by radio with the commander of the helicopter hovering overhead.

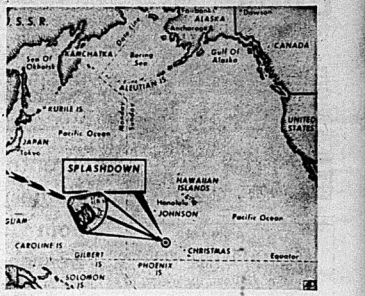
Cmdr. Donald S. Jones asked the astronauts what the moon was made of.

"It's not made of green cheese at all," Borman replied. "It's made out of American cheese."

Asked what they wanted for breakfast, the astronauts replied "steak and eggs, the same that we had before we left the Cape (Kennedy) last week."

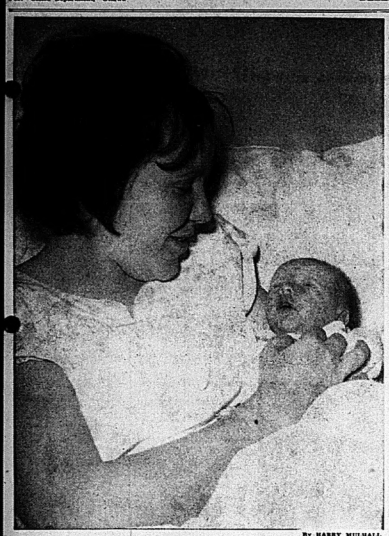
They came down at 10:50 a.m. EST.

They are the first U.S. astronauts to land in darkness. It was 4:50 a.m. local time, about an hour before dawn and 45 minutes before first light.



Unless there were an emergency, frogmen did not plan to deploy from the helicopters until first light, leaving the astronauts to wait out the recovery in their floating craft.

"Crew condition okay," came the happy report as Yorktown.



The astronauts had been away

Tweed Couple Receive Second Christmas Baby

By HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter)

Christmas is a time for children — and parents everywhere arrange their celebrations in keeping with the age-old tradition.

Doubtless, the Leonard Kehoes would agree with that?

Only problem is, children keep no interrupting their Christmas celebrations — and in the most delightful way.

Christmas night 1967 saw the Tweed couple — then married little more than a year — speeding toward Belleville General Hospital. At 12.25 a.m. Boxing Day, Mrs. Kehoe gave birth to a son — the first baby born in the hospital over the Christmas holiday.

A year passed and Geoffrey Thomas Kehoe, now a bouncing, bonny boy, was the central personality as the couple readied for another yuletide.

Then came Christmas night 1968 — and suddenly the Kehoes again were making hurried tracks toward Belleville.

At 11.15 p.m. Mrs. Kehoe once again gave BGH its first Christmas Day baby.

And for Leonard Kehoe, a distillery worker at Corby's, it was his second son, this time weighing 6 lbs. 13¼ oz.

As for Mrs. Kehoe she was the proud recipient of congratulations — with some expected variations.

"They're all teasing me about ending up in hospital on the same day," she said.

China Tests A-bomb

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — China today exploded a nuclear device in the atmosphere, the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission announced.

The AEC said the detonation had a yield of about three megatons—equivalent to about 3,000,000 tons of TNT—the same as a Chinese test which took place June 17, 1967.

The test was detected at about 2:30 a.m. EST today in the Lop Nor area of Sinkiang province, where previous tests have taken place.

It was the eighth atmospheric test detected by the AEC.

No additional information was immediately available.

Italian Railroaders Take Train on Spree

MONZA, Italy (AP) — An investigating judge is trying to decide what to do with two engineers who police say got drunk and took the Sondrio-Milan electric train on a wild run.

Ferruccio Civardi and Giuseppi Vilani, both 55, took 30 bottles of wine from a freight car and drank most of it.

Witnesses told of empty bottles flying from the locomotive window as the two men piloted their train Sunday through the Alpine foothills. Sometimes they went slow, sometimes fast, and now and again they'd stop.

When they stopped, many of the frightened passengers jumped off.

'Is it all clear?'

Power Toboggans Used To Hunt Missing Plane

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Power toboggans fanned out today in search of an aircraft down with four men aboard as continuing snowfall obscured visibility and grounded search planes.

Aboard were pilot Roger Rheault, 19, and three passengers: Robert Ellis, 37, and his brothers Barry and Jerry 26 and 22, respectively.

All are Port Arthur residents.

British, Dutch Navies May Merge in Far East

LONDON (AP) — A London newspaper reports that secret negotiations are going on for a partnership between the British and Dutch navies to maintain a defence role in the Far East.

Chapman Pincher, Daily Express columnist, says it could lead to "a virtual merger" of the two navies.

The report was described by a defence ministry spokesman as pure speculation.

Pincher, regarded as a defence expert with good sources in the government, writes:

"The move has arisen mainly from the desire of both navies to maintain a Far East role in spite of the fact that their governments have relinquished their East of Suez bases."

Moon Landing Seen Possible in Spring

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo 8's trail-blazing flight around the moon has given space planners a firm foothold to try for a moon landing in the next few months — maybe April or May.

One major piece of Apollo hardware still remains to be qualified, the lunar module spacecraft that will taxi future astronauts from a three-man Apollo craft in lunar orbit to the moon's surface.

That four-legged lunar lander is to get its first manned space test about Feb. 20 during the next three-man mission, Apollo 9.

If the lunar module performs perfectly in earth orbit on Apollo 9, astronauts conceivably could land on the moon on the following flight, Apollo 10, in April or May.

Present plans for Apollo 10 — to be flown by a three-man crew headed by veteran astronaut Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford — call for the pilots to fly a moon orbit mission in which the lunar module separates from a three-man Apollo spaceship and approaches within 10 miles of the surface, but does not land.

"Our present plans are to not commit Apollo 10 for a landing," said Air Force Lt.-Gen. Samuel C. Phillips, Apollo program director. However, "we might want to exercise a more ambitious option," he noted, as was done when the National Aeronautics and Space Administration decided to send Apollo 8 around the moon.

The first lunar landing mission now is expected by Apollo 11, next May or June. Astronauts have not yet been assigned for that flight.

The particular lunar module assigned to Apollo 10 does not have fuel tanks with enough capacity and weighs too much for a lunar landing. So if a decision is made to fly the Apollo 10 crew to the moon's surface, another lunar module would have to be assigned to the mission, Phillips pointed out.

Television will continue to be an important factor in the space flights.

Thursday it gave a glimpse of three explorers returning home as the last of six scheduled TV broadcasts from Apollo 8 was made at an altitude of 112,000 miles. It showed the sunlit side of the earth, including North and South America covered by numerous clouds.

Apollo 8 is Wednesday may include a live telecast of astronaut Russell L. Schweickart walking in space from the lunar module back to the three-man Apollo craft. With him in Apollo 9 will be Air Force Col. James A. McDivitt and Lt.-Col. David R. Scott.

Television cameras will also be aboard on the following missions, including the lunar landing itself.

In the Old Tradition

The first pair of skates usually comes at Christmas and it's an old Belleville custom that they be immediately tested on the city's ice-bound harbor. Despite record cold, many youngsters again this year observed the tradition — like three-year-old Scott Laing, here with his first skates and hockey stick.

C. Eaton Pays Visit To Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cyrus Eaton, the American industrialist reported to have flown to Cuba last Saturday, did not inform the United States state department of his trip in advance, a department source said Thursday.

"This is the first we've heard about it." the source said when told of Eaton's trip.

He said he was unsure what action, if any, would be taken against the Canadian-born Eaton when he returns. Travel by American citizens to Cuba with certain exceptions, is not allowed.

The purpose of Eaton's trip was not disclosed.

Allore Is Superintendent Of Separate Schools

F. B. Allore, area superintendent of separate schools, has been appointed superintendent of Quinte Highland Separate School Board.

E. J. Buckley, board chairman, announced the appointment his morning.

Mr. Allore, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Allore, Stoco, has been area superintendent with headquarters in Belleville for the last two years. For two years before that he was an inspector in the Belleville area.

He has 14 years experience as an elementary school teacher and principal and was also a secondary school teacher and principal before becoming an inspector.

The oldest of 15 children, Mr. Allore holds an honor graduation diploma from Tweed High School, a bachelor's degree from the University of Western Ontario, a bachelor of education degree from the University of Toronto and a master of education degree from the same university in curriculum development and administration.

He has also taken post graduate courses at Harvard, Pennsylvania State Teachers' College, Colby College and Concordia College, all in the United States.

He and his wife, the former Kathryn Keffer of Kitchener, have three sons, Morgan 9, Michael 4, and Stephen 3.

Moira River Authority Gets $24,000 Provincial Grant

A provincial grant of $24,000 to the Moira River Conservation Authority has been approved for a preliminary engineering study and flood plain maps for the lower Moira.

Hastings MPP Clarke T. Rollins said today that he had been informed of the grant approval by Hon. J. R. Simonett, Ontario Water Resources Minister.

The area for the study will include the river channel from the Bay of Quinte through Belleville, Carrollton, and Corbyville to Foxboro, a distance of five miles.

Belleville city council some months ago requested the Moira Authority to do the engineering study of the river channel within the city limits.

Since then the Authority decided to extend the survey area north of the city and application was made for the grant approval.

It is expected that Chrysler, Davis, and Jorgensen, Willowdale consulting engineers, will do the survey.

Holiday Season

Trenton Eyes Safety Record

TRENTON — The Trenton area looks as if it's headed for a safety record this holiday season.

Police and fire forces here report there have been no serious accidents or fires.

A spokesman for the Brighton OPP detachment said their cruisers had been called to only three minor accidents making the beginning of the holiday season one of the lowest ever in accident counts.

"This could be our best season yet," said the police spokesman "and we hope it stays that way for the rest of the holidays."

Here in Trenton police officials say everything has been quiet and no injuries have resulted from any of the minor accidents which have occurred.

Fire chief Cecil Ellis said today no major blazes have been reported.

The number of fires caused by decorative lights and Christmas trees have not arisen above the zero mark.

"The season is going very well," said chief Ellis, "and if it stays like this we are in for a record-breaking holiday."

Only one fire has been reported and there were no injuries.

However, the real test is yet to come.

Police and fire officials stressed that if Trenton is to maintain its clean slate extra precaution is to be taken on the upcoming New Year's holiday.

He reminds motorists to make frequent use of taxis after they ring in the New Year.

Trenton Planes Join Search

Four aircraft from Trenton Search and Rescue are taking part in the search for four Lakehead men who have been missing since Christmas Day when their plane disappeared on a flight north of Fort William.

Captain Grant Gilbert, in charge of Trenton Search and Rescue said that two Dakotas, a Caribou and a helicopter were taking part in the search which was continued today after poor visibility grounded the planes yesterday.

Also taking part in the search are 12 aircraft from the Thunder Bay Flying Club and ground search parties using snowmobiles.

The missing plane was piloted by Roger Rheault, 19-year-old member of the Thunder Bay Flying Club. His passengers were brothers Robert, Barry and Gerald Ellis, all of the Lakehead area.

R. O'Coin President Of Legion

TWEED — Russell O'Coin of Tweed was elected president of the Tweed Branch, Royal Canadian Legion during the election of 1969-70 officers that took place at the monthly meeting of the Branch.

Other officers elected were: first vice-president, Leslie Brady; second vice-president, Roy Parks; secretary, Lacy Woodhouse; treasurer, Lloyd "Bud" Price; Sgt.-at-Arms, Oscar Thurston. On the executive consists of Harry (Leslie) Thompson, Ray Woolfrey, and Earl Moyston.

McLeod Named New Director

Lennox and Addington County Board of Education hired J. Colin McLeod of Kingston as its director of education on Monday.

The former area superintendent of schools for the department of education accepted the board's offer of the position of director of education, chief executive officer and secretary of the board at a negotiated annual salary of $25,000.

Donald G. Timmins, secretary-treasurer and business administrator at Napanee District Collegiate Institute for the last year and a half, was hired as business administrator at a salary of $18,000.

The two senior posts were filled following closed meetings of the board, Chairman Bruce Caughey of Amherst Island said 27 applied for the director's position and 32 for the business administrator's position.

Extra Clothing Provides Bonus for the Needy

City and area families needing clothing items will be able to obtain a bonus from the community Christmas Fund.

Due to the generous response to an appeal over the weekend there are more articles for children and adults on hand at the headquarters on John Street.

Fund officials decided to make the extra clothing available at St. Andrew's church and the Opportunity Shop this coming Monday.

In the meantime a letter is going out to needy families inviting them to take advantage of the free offer.

The depots where the clothing is being displayed and handed out opens at 10 a.m. and closes at 4 p.m.

Snowmobiles Now Licenced

PICTON — All snowmobiles now have to be licenced and registered according to a November 1 regulation adopted by the department of transport.

Since then the department of transport has called for the licencing of powered toboggans whether or not they are ever taken off private property.

In addition anyone driving a snowmobile on a road or highway must have insurance similar to that needed for a car. But it is not necessary to have insurance in order to get the plates.

The registration fee is $4. and licences purchased now are in effect until October 1970.

So far in Prince Edward County 80 of them have been registered.

One licence bureau official said however it was doubtful that the number of snowmobiles registered presented an accurate indication of the number sold in the area.

Coldest Christmas Holiday of Century Brings City Temperature to 16 Below

The Quinte district is taking an icy breather before wrapping up 1968 with the last big event of the holiday season — New Year's.

Weather, sharp and penetrating as reindeer antlers, was the dominant fact of life during the two-day celebration around the Quinte district.

In the Belleville - Trenton area, the mercury dipped to 13 below zero on Christmas Day — and kept on going down to 16 below Boxing Day.

For both days the previous recorded low at Canadian Forces Base Trenton weather office was in 1935 — eight and 10 degrees below respectively.

While every household generated traditional yuletide warmth, many a family reunion felt the effects of the Arctic-like snap.

Water pipes froze and furnaces cut out under the pressure of the sustained cold spell.

One plumbing company reported at least 20 calls for help in thawing out ice-bound pipes.

Taxi and tow truck services also were in demand as automobiles refused to start.

There were more beneficial results.

Either immobilized or discouraged from unnecessary exposure outdoors many residents stayed close to home.

Travel was sparse throughout the holiday and police reported few traffic incidents — none of them serious.

For fire departments it was a nervous time. On-duty firefighters spent the Christmas vigil with crossed-fingers as home-heating devices were pressed to keep pace with the mercury's polar plunge.

However, not everyone stayed home for Christmas dinner. Liquor, cocktails and favorite wines were available with restaurant and hotel meals for the first time in Ontario this Christmas. District dining establishments promising special holiday catering did good yuletide business.

Meantime, with the holiday over, the weatherman had more promising predictions today.

Warmer air was moving in to the Quinte district and a high of 25 degrees was expected — rising to 35 Saturday.

However, the possibility of freezing rain tonight posed the threat of hazardous driving conditions.

Cold in Picton

Starting Cars Creates Problem

PICTON (Staff) Sub-zero temperatures and harsh winds took their toll of automobiles in Prince Edward County over the very cold holiday.

Although slippery road conditions put quite a few cars in the ditches the real problem was getting the cars started in order to drive them into the ditches.

In Picton the Ontario Motor League towing service at Picton Motors reported that they had been kept very busy on both Christmas and Boxing Day.

Yesterday afternoon Picton Motors even had a waiting list of cars unable to get going because of overly cold engines.

However, the problem wasn't confined just to Picton and all over the county there were many inactive cars and just as many perturbed owners.

Quick's Sunoco Service station in Wellington had 12 calls on Christmas Day alone and topped the first figure with 15 calls on Boxing Day.

With all the other garages and towing services also getting calls over the two day period it would be quite impossible to get an exact figure on the number of cars that were immobile.

One provincial police officer said that he thought there must have been upwards of 200 car owners in Prince Edward County that needed assistance to get driving again on Christmas and Boxing Day.

Luckily, even with all the problems of frozen cars and those that ended up in ditches there were no serious accidents in the county.

Provincial Police in Picton reported a very quiet holiday with almost no calls coming in at all.

Everybody was phoning the garages.

Marketing Board Aims For Changes in System

Every second day pickups from Grade A Milk Pool producers with 4,000 pounds or less per day is the aim of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board.

To make every other day pickups possible, the Board has ruled that by May 31, 1969 all farmers in the above category must have a bulk tank capable of holding two days' milk at peak production.

Four benefits are expected to accrue from the board policy: 1. more economical pickup of milk on an every other day schedule; 2. a better representative sample of all milk produced will be possible; 3. tanks built to cool at the rate of 25 per cent capacity will not be overloaded and 4. transporters will be able to reduce farm pickup times and increase route efficiency.

However, exceptions to the above policy are to be granted when milk from two different breeds of cattle must be kept separate at the farm.

Also where producers have an average daily production of over 4,000 pounds in the peak production period they are permited to request exemption from the every other day pickup.

Producers requiesting exemption must apply to the board in writing and their tank cooling equipment must meet the requirements established in the Milk Commission of Ontario quality regulation O. Reg. 432.

Ontario Milk Marketing Board elections have resulted in re-election for Elphege E. Lefebvre, Region 1; and for George R. McLaughlin, Region 5, and Ray McDougall, Region 9.

Francis M. Redelmeier was elected for Region 6 and H. B. Gallagher for Region 12.

Others Play Part

The United States, like the Soviet Union, owes a good deal of its pre-eminence in space research to scientists from other countries.

The Germans of course can claim much of the distinction for the initial developments in rocketry which have led to the space achievements of both countries. Tangible evidence of this were the "flying bombs" the Germans hurled on Britain in the closing stages of the last war.

After the war the Americans acquired Werner von Braun who played a leading part in the German effort rocket research. Other experts went over to the Soviet side.

On CBS' early morning coverage of the Apollo flight it was two Commonwealth scientists who were seen in conversation at one stage. They were New Zealander Dr. William Pickering, who is head of the U.S. jet propulsion laboratory at Pasadena, California, and Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank Observatory in England.

Canada too has been playing its part by providing equipment for U.S. space flights. As revealed recently, a Trenton firm — Erie Technological — manufactured noise suppression devices for the Apollo space ship.

It is all very strange and wonderful. And as a footnote we have been wondering what the birds' — nature's first winged creatures — think of it all. As the Saturn 5 rocket awaited blast-off at Cape Kennedy earlier this week, television viewers could see birds flying across the site. Since then there has been a picture of a solitary duck flying unconcernedly past at the moment the rocket shot into the sky. If a duck thinks like a human, perhaps it is now just "old hat."

Strange Crimes

Many of the crimes of our day are committed by persons whose mental capacity is below normal. Some are subsequently found, under psychiatric examination, to be insane, unable to distinguish between right and wrong.

But what sort of mentality would be behind the individual alleged to have kidnapped 20-year-old Barbara Mackle, daughter of a wealthy U.S. industrialist?

Accused of the kidnapping is a 22-year-old university student described as an "intellectual," with an impressive scholastic record, and a young woman accomplice.

Miss Mackle, now safe and well and with her family again, was abducted and kept for four days in a coffin-like box below ground near Atlanta, Ga.

How do people dream up such incredible schemes? We would not know. About the only good thing about the whole escapade is the fact that Miss Mackle was unharmed and that virtually all the ransom money of $500,000 her father handed over for her release was recovered.

Christmas for the Mackle's likely was a happy time. But it could easily have been otherwise. Their wealth must have been as nothing had the girl been a victim of foul play. Such occurrences there is a lesson for all — that in this world we never realize just how good a life it is or how lucky we are, until something very real and personal like this happens to some family.

The Bug in B. C.

There are reports of Hong Kong flu in British Columbia. Well, it had to happen sometime and somewhere, and it seems appropriate, if the bug is to strike Canada at all, that B.C., being the closest to Asia, should have it first.

The people out West will not thank us for this observation, but there it is. Meanwhile the grippe is rife in the United States — and of all places, outer space. Yes, the Apollo astronauts have had a touch of it. Two of them, anyway, complained of nausea, and a later report said it had been of the 24-hour variety.

Still it is good to know the men are prepared for anything. They have taken along a big chest of pills to counter any discomfort of this nature.

Strange to think though of the moon eventually being contaminated with man's ailments. Once it was the men who ventured out in their frail ocean-going vessels and arrived in strange lands — in the process passing on to the natives sundry unwanted viruses. Now it is the turn of outer space, although whether there is any form of human life on the other planets remains to be seen.

OTTAWA How do you feel about money, now that Christmas has come and gone, with some of the bills still to pay?

A bit concerned, maybe?

Any of the joyous Noel spending, by any chance, go into furniture, chairs, rugs, drapes and such things?

If you are just a bit concerned about the money, and did spend some of it on redecorating, you will be feeling, perhaps, a little like Energy Minister Joe Greene.

He blew a wad — it has turned out to be precisely $15,635.20 — on refurnishing his executive suite.

Other ministers of this and other cabinets have spent more, and nobody said very much about it.

But Joe spent colorfully — color him green for Greene — and caught the Commons' critical eye as few cabinet ministers have.

Perhaps it was that naively, he might have wondered "what is $15,635.20?"

After all, hadn't his cabinet colleague Charles "Bud" Drury splurged $889,466.27 on refurnishing his department?

Nothing, really, except that the $889,466.27 went to outfit an entire department with a two division staff running perhaps 3,500 . . . and Joe shot the $15-635.20 to refurnish his own suite for the comfort and convenience of himself and maybe as many as nine personal office retainers.

Unhappily for Joe, some of those pesky Opposition MPs, handy with figures, calculated that in the proportion of a staff of 10 as against 3,500, if "Bud" had spent on that scale, he would have gone for better than $6,000,000 on his new furniture.

Which sort of put it in a somewhat larger perspective.

The Opposition, Conservative has been wondering out loud in the House of Commons — where the taxpayers, if they are listening at all, are liable to hear — how $15,635.20 on fancy fixings for Joe's office fits into the context not only of the prime minister's hotly-pursued "Just Society," but of Finance Minister Ben Benson's hard-pushed program of stern austerity.

Example: Maritime Conservative MP Bob Coates has observed that the government's spending "belt" that Benson is supposed to be tightening "must be made of elastic, or how come it could be stretched to let Joe go for that $15,000-plus on new rugs, drapes, tinted phones and lushly leathered chairs and the best of desks that money can buy."

Example: Manitoba New Democratic MP Edward Shryer has been shrieking that it is nothing less than an "obscenity" his word for it — that Joe should be able to lay hands on "thousands of dollars for fine-feathered furniture when Benson swears he can't find a penny for retired civil servants some of whom have to scratch along on a princely monthly $30."

Shryer, the old meanie, has shouted that it is because Joe is nothing but an "egoist."

Listen to Ed Shryer as he screams about it in the House:

"At a time like this when the government insists it can't scrape up money for some but the essentials, there has to be something obscene in providing office accommodation in which the new rugs are not measured by the square foot but by the acre, with expensively wood panelled, and the phones tinted.

"Who needs it, except cabinet ministers with overblown egos."

Of course, there was some exaggeration in Shryer's shouting.

Joe has not really got "acres" of new carpet — just 1,466 square feet of it — which is many more than his predecessor in the department, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, who struggled along with only two of the nine-office suite.

But what makes it fun for the Opposition is that Joe's 1,466 square feet of new rug are green — and so are the phones. Green for "Greene" — or is it, more correctly, green for green like in grass?

What started it all and quite unfairly was the blast on a hot-line radio program that Joe had got himself a desk carrying a $900 price tag, and a $38 wastebasket.

Not a trace of them has been found, and the Opposition took the trouble to dispatch a scout. Tory MP Gordon Aiken to make a first person recognizance of the premises.

And from then on, neither Conservative nor New Democrat gave Joe any peace. Together they loaded the Commons Order Paper with questions about Joe's posh pad which hung the $15.-635.20 price tag on it.

Hundreds of millions, even billions of dollars of government spending the taxpayers don't always dig — but $15,635-plus for green rugs and green phones they do.

Believe poor Joe, they do indeed.

It may even have played a part in that heart flutter which bedded him on his return from his Latin American trade and air tour.

When Sport Is Not So Sporting

Peterborough Examiner

If the federal government is really intent upon matching our professional hockey players against the Russians someone should begin considering the likelihood of diplomatic incidents occurring. However understanding we may be toward our players' enthusiasm, we cannot forget that they do have a facility for drawing blood. Surely the last thing we want is for the Russians to charge Canada with aggression and complain to the UN.

Sport is now closely associated with violence. Soccer is riddled with punch-ups, amateur athletics in the United States has provoked racial strife, wrestling has no satisfaction unless it is gory, and football has become brutalized.

We were dismayed the other day to learn that a murder charge was laid in Australia following a dispute over a cricket match. How long will it be before curlers start stoning each other?

Guarding Against Christmas Tree Fire Hazard

Montreal Gazette

Christmas trees are chosen for a number of reasons, for the right height and the right width for the graduated size of the branches, for their fullness and strength. It is sometimes forgotten that the tree, freshly cut, is an unusual kind of house ornament for it is still alive, as alive as cut flowers.

Like cut flowers, it needs water, and it is always surprising how much water it drinks in a day.

To set the base of the Christmas tree in a generous container of water, and see that it is kept filled each day serves more than the purpose of keeping it healthy and green. It is the first rule in guarding against that most frightening of holiday disasters, a Christmas tree fire.

Other rules, listed by the Montreal Fire Department, include:

All decorative wiring should be carefully checked.

Decorative lights should be turned off before going to bed or leaving the house.

Lit candles or other open flames should be placed near the tree and there should be no smoking near it.

Decorations should be flameproofed or made of non-combustible material.

Some general advice is to clear up debris, such as gift wrappings, as soon as possible; the tree itself should not be kept up after New Year's; even with the best of care, it has dried out by then.

The tree is the symbol and the centre of this family holiday. Too often, it has suddenly been transformed into a blazing menace to the home and all in it.

A little care can insure against this happening.

Loch Ness And Its Monster

Peterborough Examiner

With the exception of a handful of incredible remnants there are few people inclined to put much stock in reports of such things as abominable Snowmen or the Loch Ness monster. It is not surprising; there have been all kinds of hoaxes exposed in connection with every report of a nameless thing seen in some remote area of the world. Why, it wasn't so long ago that the little town of Port Hope was stirred by a suggestion that there were sharks cruising around its harbor. They turned out to be nothing but a few harmless fish-fodder for the Toronto newspapers.

New monsters are becoming remarkably scarce these days now that Everest and the rest of the Himalayas have been worked over and science fiction has ruined all the suspense of any new horrors that might be lurking about. There are still the upper reaches of the Amazon that are relatively unexplored and it is a safe bet that they will produce some kind of drama that will definitely unearthed and it is a safe bet that they will produce some kind of drama that will definitely unearthed for the adventures on television.

But we must not be too skeptical. In the cage of an ill-fit one of the more popular monsters—that of Loch Ness—evidence indicates that there is a curious beast within. Certainly there is enough meticulously recorded evidence, detail and photographic evidence to support a suggestion that Loch Ness contains a strange creature.

Scientists from the University of Birmingham, using the latest sonar recording devices, have discovered that the Loch was undoubtedly inhabited by "live creatures, uncharacteristic of fish." This was the hotly description that the scientists allowed themselves but it opens the way to a whole new spate of speculation.

The inference is that the loch is not the home of one, but a whole herd (shoal? flock?) of monsters. Should observers now report the appearance of Loch Ness Monsters (plural) and begin the fascinating occupation of attempting to differentiate between this specimen and that on the basis perhaps of age, sex or family.

The topic is infinite. One can only hope that some spoil-sport does not throw grass than the canny Scots who have nurtured their monster in frustrating ambiguity up to now, does not manage to trap a monster and end the whole glorious mystery.

Wisdom of the Centuries — In a Student Magazine

Ottawa Journal

The words in this editorial are not exactly those of Tiny Tim, but in their own way each says much the same thing. They have come to The Journal by a roundabout route. We found them in the December 12 issue of the Glendon College magazine "Pro Tem". The editor of "Pro Tem" says that they were found in Old Saint Paul's Church, Baltimore, dated 1692.

Readers, we believe, will enjoy the admirable sparseness of this old message which carries it through the centuries; the quaintness of the language seems to heighten the sweetness of what it wishes to say.

Desiderata

Go placidly amid the noise and haste, and remember what peace there may be in silence. As far as possible without surrender be on good terms with all persons. Speak your truth quietly and clearly; and listen to others, even the dull and ignorant; they too have their story.

Avoid loud and aggressive persons, they are vexations to the spirit.

If you compare yourself with others, you may become vain and bitter; for always there will be greater and lesser persons than yourself.

Enjoy your achievements as well as your plans. Keep interested in your own career, however humble; it is a real possession in the changing fortunes of time.

Exercise caution in your business affairs; for the world is full of trickery. But let this not blind you to what virtue there is; many persons strive for high ideals; and everywhere life is full of heroism.

Be yourself. Especially, do not feign affection. Neither be cynical about love; for in the face of all aridity and disenchantment it is perennial as the grass.

Take kindly the counsel of the years, gracefully surrendering the things of youth.

Nurture strength of spirit to shield you in sudden misfortune. But do not distress yourself with imaginings. Many fears are born of fatigue and loneliness.

Beyond a wholesome discipline be gentle with yourself. You are a child of the universe, no less than the trees and the stars; you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should.

Therefore be at peace with God, whatever you conceive Him to be, and whatever your labors and aspirations, in the noisy confusion of life keep peace with your soul.

With all its sham, drudgery and broken dreams, it is still a beautiful world. Be careful. Strive to be happy.

Harmonious Trio

Apollo Crew 'Last of the Good Guys'

HOUSTON (AP) — Here's a quick look at the three Apollo 8 astronauts:

Apollo commander Frank Borman, 40, a veteran of the American space program, said jokingly in a pre-flight interview that he and his crew are "the last of the good guys."

However jokingly he intended, the harmonious conversational exchanges between ground crew sharply contrasted with the volatile Apollo 7 forerunner commanded by Walter M. Schirra.

Graduated eighth in a 1950 class of 670 at the U.S. Military Academy, Borman pursued an aviation career plagued by medical problems that threatened repeatedly to ground him for life. He overcame them and was named in the September, 1962, group of astronauts.

He is an air force colonel.

Calm, precise and deeply religious, Borman married his high school sweetheart from Tucson, Ariz., a blue-eyed blonde named Susan. They have two sons, Frederick, 17, and Edwin, 15.

Borman and Apollo spacemate James A. Lovell Jr., manned the 14-day Gemini 7 flight. Prior to the Apollo 7 mission, they had 755 combined hours in space, more than the entire Soviet cosmonaut corps.

Command module pilot Lovell, also 40, was originally the back-up pilot for Michael Collins, who was forced out of the astronaut selection began in 1959.

FRANK BORMAN

JAMES LOVELL

He was passed over for the first group but reapplied and was accepted.

Born in Cleveland, raised in Milwaukee, Lovell, like Borman, married his high school sweetheart, Marilyn Gerlach of Milwaukee. The Lovells have four children: Barbara, 15; James, 13; Susan, 10; and Jeffrey, 2.

Lovell enjoys the reputation of crew comic.

Besides Gemini 7, Lovell commanded the final Gemini flight, the four-day Gemini 12. He now is the most travelled astronaut in the world.

Lunar module pilot William A. Anders, on the other hand, is, at 35, a space rookie.

Like Lovell, he attended the Naval Academy, but chose the air force as a career. He is a major. Anders also attended the Air Force Institute of Technology at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio and graduated with a master of science degree in nuclear engineering.

Anders is the son of "an old navy battleship man" and was born in Hong Kong while his father was executive officer on the gunboat Panay cruising the rivers of China.

He and his wife, Valerie, of Lemon Grove, Calif., have five children: Alan, 11; Glen, 10; Gayle, 8; Gregory, 6; and Eric, 4.

WILLIAM ANDERS

Moon Travellers Come Home Safely in Apollo

from earth exactly six days three hours on a dramatic mission, that thrilled the world and gave man his first closeup look at the mysterious celestial neighbor that has intrigued humans since the beginning.

They travelled 69 hours outward to the moon, circled it 10 times in 20 hours at an altitude of 70 miles and then raced home along a 58-mile corridor. They logged about 537,000 perfect miles.

To reach their landing target in the Pacific, Borman, Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. and Maj. William A. Anders survived man's hottest and fastest re-entry through the atmosphere.

Apollo 8 slammed into the outer limits of the atmosphere at 24,850 miles an hour, was punished by forces nearly seven times the pull of gravity and was blistered by heat of more than 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

The astronauts had been on a perfect course since they fired themselves out of moon orbit early Wednesday and started their 58-hour, 233,000-mile homeward journey. So accurate was the path that three planned mid-course corrections were cancelled.

Like a speeding bullet, Apollo's velicity gradually increased until it reached a breath-taking 24,650 miles an hour as it slammed into the outer boundary of the earth's atmosphere 400,000 feet above the Pacific Ocean. That's 7,000 miles faster than any previous man-in-space re-entry.

Temperature in the cabin remained a comfortable 70 degrees.

Before hitting the atmosphere the astronauts jettisoned a service module attached to the cabin. The shedding of this equipment lay reduced Apollo 8s weight to about 12,000 pounds from 31,500.

To reduce the effect of gravity buildup, Apollo 8 skipped like a stone off the atmosphere at 180,000 feet, bouncing back out to 210,000 feet before making the final plunge.

During the hottest, fastest part of descent, radio communications were cut off from the spacecraft about three minutes.

The first word that Apollo 8 had survived the blazing dash came from Lovell, who radioed: "Were in real good shape."

The crew reported they had powered through a "real fireball during the critical re-entry."

Ships quickly picked up the descending spaceship on radar.

The atmosphere braked the speed of the fleeting craft, making it possible for small parachutes to pop out to stabilize it.

At 10,000 feet the three main chutes blossomed and the astronauts floated gently downward into the Pacific, travelling at a comparative snails pace of 22 m.p.h.

First word that the astronauts were down came from a helicopter that reported seeing flashing lights, and added the dramatic words: "We have voice contact.

Within minutes after the landing, a helicopter was over the spaceship, illuminating the area with a giant floodlight.

With their early in-flight illnesses gone and the 20-hour moon orbit segment behind them, Borman, Lovel and Anders were noticeably more relaxed as they shot into the final 24 hours of the mission.

They talked of coming home, joked with ground controllers and even waxed a little poetic.

"It has been a fantastic voyage," Anders reported.

Televising a picture of his home planet, the shimmering half-disc he left six days before, Anders commented:

"I must have the, feeling that the travellers in the old sailing days used to have. I have that feeling of being proud of the trip and still happy to be going back home and back to our home port."

"We're sure looking forward to home," Lovell said.

"We're looking forward to having you back," replied the mission control communicator.

As Apollo 8 telecast its sixth and final show, Borman promised that future Apollo astronauts would beam TV from the desolate surface itself.

"This is Apollo 8 signing off," he said. "Well see you back on the good earth very soon."

The astronauts planned to remain on the Yorktown for a day, primarily for medical checks. Saturday they were to fly off the carrier to Hawaii and transfer to a larger plane for a flight to Ellington Air Force Base, only a half-hour drive from their homes near the space centre.

Their families planned to greet them when they land at Ellington at 5 a.m. Sunday—and for a day at least they'll have time for a belated Christmas celebration.

After that they'll begin extensive debriefings on their historic mission, in which they circled the moon 10 times in 20 hours and paved the way for other astronauts to land there sometime next year.

Experts will question them carefully on the performance of the huge Saturn V that rocketed them out of this world Dec. 21, the Apollo 8 spaceship that performed magnificently through the six days, their flu-like illnesses early in the flight, and, of course, the moon itself.

Moon geologists will be eager to study the thousands of pictures which were taken of the rugged surface, described by the astronauts as "a vast expanse of nothing, "uninviting, "unappetizing, looking like plaster of paris or "beach sand.

They'll quiz the astronauts about any scientific knowledge the trio may have gained about the features, whether craters were formed by meteorite impact or volcano.

There will be questions about variations in orbital path as Apollo 8 circled the moon at an altitude of 70 miles, and if these were caused by large concentrations of material buried beneath the surface.

Also, the geologists will want to know if the moon has a weak atmosphere and what the hidden backside looks like.

But most of all, space agency officials will ask them about investigating and attempts to land. Preliminary reports from Apollo 8 indicated it was relatively easy to navigate and locate landmarks on the surface.

Woman Wants Prayer Banned in Outer Space

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The woman who was instrumental in getting prayer removed from public schools in the United States now wants prayer banned from outer space.

Madalyn Murray O'Hair, after hearing the words of the Apollo astronauts while circling the moon, said she would get her complaint with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and that she is getting a mail campaign started with her note to the Manned Spacecraft Centre.

She spoke to reporters of Radio Station KTRH in Houston.

"Yes Indeed," said Mrs. O'Hair. "I think that they (the astronauts) were not only ill-advised but that it was a tragic situation, on a scientific venture, that something of this nature should have been brought in."

"It seems to me," she said, "that when man is expanding human knowledge and attempting to explore so that we can find answers that is extremely unfortunate for a nation to direct—or persons in a program to assume for themselves—either one way or the other, that they should read portions of the Genesis Bible which is accepted by a very minor number of persons in the total world.

Municipal Road Costs Are High

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario spent more in aid to municipalities for local roads in 1968 than for new highway construction, Highways Minister George Gomme said in his department's year-end review.

He cautioned municipalities to adopt a hold-the-line policy on road construction in 1969.

Assistance to municipalities accounted for 41 per cent of the department's budget of $483,804,000, he said. The municipalities got $190,975,000, compared with $181,854,000 for new provincial highways.

Toronto Teaching Hospitals Face Staff Crisis

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says a crisis may be brewing over the staff setup and pay scales at the major teaching hospitals of the University of Toronto.

The newspaper quotes one doctor, not identified, as saying that 75 per cent of the university's medical faculty is "up in arms" over the issues.

It says many doctors who teach may be lured into the more-lucrative, private field in the suburbs unless the issues are resolved.

Hospitals immediately affected are the Toronto General and Toronto Western, but all 10 teaching hospitals eventually would feel the pressures.

Another issue concerns patients who agree to receive treatment from a team of medical students. In the past, doctors in teaching hospitals treated indigent patients free in return for teaching students. Most patients now have hospital medical insurance.

The newspaper says hospital teaching staffs are wondering who will share in the thousands of dollars in fees suddenly available now that medical insurance has eliminated the need for free treatment of teaching patients.

Hospitals have suggested that this money be spread among the various departments in the hospital.

Prof. A. L. Chute, dean of the university's medical faculty, comprising about 880 physicians, says the medical school itself should share in the money. He said the school's residents and interns aid the doctors.

The medical faculty recently appointed a committee representing the dean, the faculty and all 10 teaching hospitals to prepare a co-ordinated plan for hospital expansion. The committee was to look into the issue of salaries and organization.

It marked the first time the faculty had invited administrators and trustees to join them in planning.

The faculty has already suggested that between 30 and 50 per cent of staff doctors at Toronto General and Toronto Western become full-time, with a ceiling on their earnings. Another suggestion was that care of all patients be handled by a team headed by a doctor who would not necessarily be the patient's own physician.

But the newspaper says many doctors are not prepared to compromise their responsibility to a patient even in the interests of training new doctors.

Toronto Police Leader Says Pension Fund Badly Handled

TORONTO (CP) — Syd Brown, president of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Association, says the trustees who handle the pension fund of Metro's 3,200 policemen should be fired.

Mr. Brown said letters have been sent to each member of Metro council asking that the board of trustees be disbanded.

Union officials say the pension fund, worth $34,369,631, has been poorly managed.

They want the trustees—Metro Chairman William Allen, Charles O. Bick, police commission chairman, and Joseph Eaklin, Metro finance commissioner—replaced with a committee more representative of the police members.

Members of the board of trustees can be changed only by Metro council.

Mr. Brown said a mass meeting of members will be held Jan. 29 at which the trustees will be asked questions.

Murray Segal of Toronto, recently retained as actuary for the association, said Thursday that if the pension assets had been heavily invested in blue-chip common stocks, the fund might total more than $50,000,000.

He said Metro policemen were being penalized because the trustees were using association funds to build roads, parks and schools and subsidizing the general taxpayer.

Mr. Allen said municipal debentures were the "soundest investment" and said he would not risk the police money on the usually better-yielding securities of the open market.

Mr. Segal said that by investing in Grade A stocks, the fund could have achieved a return of from 10 to 12 per cent.

The association's 1967 report, released last April, showed the fund's interest on investments at $1,747,632, or 5.08 per cent.

Fisher Feels LaMarsh Honors by Disapproval

TORONTO (CP) — John Fisher said Thursday he joined "distinguished company", when Judy LaMarsh, former state secretary, called him a "potentially dangerous choice for the job" of chairman of Canada's Centennial.

The description of Mr. Fisher was contained in published reports of excerpts of a new book, Memoirs of a Bird in a Gilded Cage, written by Miss LaMarsh.

"Her intemperate tongue has placed me in distinguished company," Mr. Fisher said in a statement. "Not long ago she publicly called Prime Minister Trudeau a seven-letter word beginning with 'b'.

"Now she refers to Lester Pearson as 'gutless.'"

In the book, Miss LaMarsh describes Mr. Pearson, the former prime minister, as "gutless"—a man who "will back off from any fight and seek a compromise. . . ."

Mr. Fisher also charged that Miss LaMarsh has "apparently reversed her opinion of me."

A VERY SINCERE THANK YOU!!

Robert Michaud, Jr.

Our warmest thanks to the people of Belleville and the Quinte area for the very generous share of business accorded us during the past year. It has been our pleasure to serve you.

Our policy of selling Better Furniture and Carpeting at modest prices has been well received, and we appreciate the many opportunities of assisting with advice on room decor and planning.

Your reception of our large Rug and Broadloom department has been most encouraging. As you know we carry one of the largest displays of Carpeting between Toronto and Montreal and our volume of sales enables us to buy direct from the manufacturer at savings that are passed on to you. Again our thanks.

Moira Musicmakers

Students Spread Happiness

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

The Moira Brass Quintet. Or better yet, the Moira Secondary School Brass Octet. It all sounds extremely impressive. More impressive than ordinarily, because brass octets are rather hard to find.

This fact, in itself, is a claim to the unique.

The group, composed of Steve Rose, Phil Kirby, Robb Matthew, Doug Williamson, George Sheffield, John Luffman, Dave Magee and Steve Sheppard, has received good response for their efforts.

The quintet-octet was formed to play on their school's float in the Santa Clause parade.

Spokesman for the group, Doug Williamson, explained "We decided to stick together and play for charitable causes, whenever and wherever there is a need."

"Our purpose is to represent the 99 per cent of teenagers no one ever hears about; the high school students who care and are willing to try to bring happiness to others," he continued.

So far, the have played for the Arthritic Association, the Mental Health Association in Deseronto, and Hastings Manor residents.

The group is self-organized, and except for the occasional advice from Moira music teacher, Ian Docherty, they go it alone.

Although there is very little rehearsal, the practices that are needed are held in school. Arrangements to play, and bookings are the job of Doug Williamson.

The group originally started out with five members: Doug, George, Steve, Phil and Dave. However, due to conflicting dates, certain members had to replace others, and often with different instruments. Usually only five of the group play, but often if more members can make the engagement, they do.

Speaking about possibilities for the future of the group, Doug hopes they can realize more musical engagements in the coming months. And if all goes well, they probably will.

Young Men With Horns

Yule Play Thrills Children

PICTON (Staff) — Just how do Prince Edward students spend their Christmas holidays? Some of them go back to school.

Yesterday at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute the Quinte Island Theatre presented the children's play, Sindbad and the Mermaid, written by Chris Wiggans.

With a cast consisting almost entirely of students and an audience made up of children of all ages the performance was a great success.

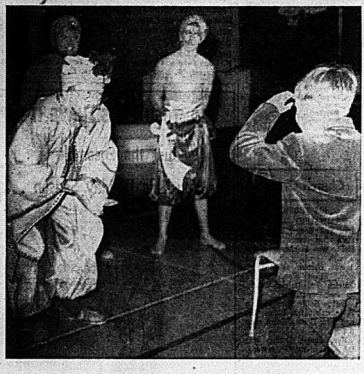
It will be presented again on Dec. 27 and 28 by the group which has lately been so well received in the county.

The Quinte Island Theatre, although connected with the drama club at PECI, is made up of both students and others interested in theatre, students or not.

The man responsible for its formation, Thomas Crothers, a drama teacher at the high school and the director of the play Sindbad, has been pushing live theatre throughout the county and has won numerous awards for the plays he has directed in Eastern Ontario Drama League competition.

There are now over 50 members in the drama club at the high school and the students are devoted enough to give their holiday time to the theatre. Yesterday was the beginning of three good examples.

Starring in the performance are Lin Begbie as Sindbad, Mark Rabbett as the Caliph and Andy Edgar as the Vizier and Ting Tang Tong.



Other stars in the play are Ted Ross, Janet Alexander, Diane Rutter, Brian Cowan and Jim Plomer.

Children's Theatre indicates by its name that there is audience participation and conversation between the actors and the spectators.

And there was plenty of participation in yesterday's performance.

Two young playgoers even got up to teach the Caliph's guards how to salaam correctly.

The next play presented by the group will be "Please Don't Sneeze", also writen by Chris Wiggans.

A Lesson for Sindbad

The audience played its part in Prince Edward District Collegiate's production of Sindbad and the Mermaid yesterday. The young man teaching the Vizier, director Thomas Crothers, and Sindbad, Lin Begbie, how to salaam properly received a big laugh and heart shaped lollipops for his troubles.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I don't know why Jean bothers to come home from college. She hardly talks to us, and she doesn't seem interested in any of the family fun."

Dormitory and college living often create a stored-up need for a spell of solitude.

Give your college - age daughter some time to be alone during her vacation. She probably has been with people almost every hour of the day for months.

Menu Including Roast Ham Suitable for New Year's

By MARY MOORE

Tradition enters forcefully into the planning of New Years dinner menus. Some families know the menu they want and have had all of their lives on that first day of the new year. For some it must be goose. To others the idea of another feed after Christmas does not appeal.

For the goose lovers I gave the method of preparing and roasting one on Thursday, December 19th.

A glazed and decorated roast ham looks beautiful, is popular and goes a long way. So I have decided on a menu:

GLAZED FRUIT-DECORATED ROAST HAM

6-lb. fully cooked boneless ham
1-3 cup pineapple juice (or juice drained from canned pineapple)
¼ cup brown sugar
Narrow strips green pepper (for decorating)
Halved or sliced red and green maraschino cherries (for decorating)

Remove outside transparent wrapping from ham completely and score fat into uniform diamonds. To make diagonal cuts in each direction, line bottom of baking dish with foil. Place ham on it, cover loosely with foil tent and bake at 300 deg. Fahr. 2 hrs. to heat through. If you are using a meat thermometer, internal temperature should rise to 130 deg. Fahr. since the ham is precooked. One-half hour before mea'time mix well together the pineapple juice and brown sugar and brush carefully all available upper surfaces with some of it. Return to oven and continue roasting, uncovered, for another 15 min. Now remove from oven and apply decorations: place 5 or 6 long strips of green pepper, about ¼ wide as a piece of coarse string, 1½ fan-like arrangement on top of ham to represent stems of flowers. At top of each arrange three halves or slices of red maraschino cherries to look like flowers. On next "stem" arrange three halves or slices of green maraschino cherries. Continue until you have three red and three green "flowers" alternating. Now carefully brush flowers and stems with remaining pineapple - brown sugar glaze to fix them to ham. Return to oven at 300 deg. Fahr. for another 15 min.

Transfer to preheated platter. Carefully pick up foil and turn in edges and cool, then discard it and enclosed fat.

Garnish ham liberally at base with big branches of parsley, or if desired, pickled canned crabapples or rosy cinnamon apple rings.

NEW YEAR'S DINNER MENU

Broiled Pink Grapefruit Halves Maraschino
Glazed Decorated Roast Ham Rosy Cinnamon Apple Rings
Stuffed Sweet Potatoes
Creamed Spinach with Rosemary (see tomorrow)
Perfection Salad Moulds (see tomorrow) on Bibb Lettuce with Mayonnaise

Ann Landers

Divorcee Urges Others To Seek Their Rights

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I could kiss you for printing the letter from "Smartened Up Ex-Wife." She urged every divorced woman to keep hounding the rat until she gets the support money ordered by the court.

ANN LANDERS

I'm a divorcee who raised four children. I've been in court so many times I could conduct the hearing myself. Some women who can't afford to hire a lawyer give up because they don't know their rights. Tell them again, Ann — they can get help from the district attorney. Every county has one. If the bum is in the military we can go to the chaplain and find out what her legal rights are.

Major tips: Make sure the original divorce papers state the exact amount of payment, plus cost of living as an increase when the children reach high school age, or an increase if the bum should get a pay raise or strikes oil in his backyard. And don't think it can't happen. It happened to me. — LUCKY LEE.

* * *

DEAR LUCKY: Congratulations — not on the divorce, on the oil, honey. It's nice to have something to pour on those troubled waters. Thanks for writing.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My 15-year-old granddaughter is unhappy at home. June must share a room with her 13-year-old sister. The poor child must help with the younger children, does part of the ironing, cooking and cleaning. I know she'd be happier here and I'd be delighted to have her. Her parents refuse to let her come.

I have a lovely home, two servants, and June could spend her time studying or doing whatever she wished. I could give her an easier life and introduce her to a better class of people. It would be wonderful for me, too, because I am lonely.

Will you speak for her — and for me? — J.L.

* * *

DEAR J.L.: No. Your granddaughter belongs in her parents' home. Of course she wants to come! Any 15-year-old girl would rather leaf at her grandmother's than scrub, clean and iron and share a room with a younger sister.

Your "generous" offer sounds like poorly disguised selfishness. Lay off.

* * *

DEAR ANN: I am a maid in a very well-known motel. A party of four people just left this room which looks like a cyclone hit it. They left three pennies on the dresser.

Why is it that the bartender gets a tip for mixing a drink, the waitress gets a tip for bringing food, if the engineer comes in with a new light bulb, he usually gets a quarter or 50 cents. The maid gets nothing. Yet she is the one who really does the dirty work. Is this fair?

You are a friend to the working people. Will you say a word for us? — PASSED UP.

* * *

DEAR PASSED UP: Happy to. A great many people travel today, and some of them don't know they should leave money for the maid. So — I'm telling them — here and now. Fifty cents a night for one person is about right. One dollar if there are two or more in the room. Anyone who can't afford this modest tip should stay home.

CHURCH GROUPS

(FRANKFORD AND STIRLING MISSIONARY COUNCILS)

WMC president, Mrs. Ed Strome called upon vice-president Mrs. Gerald Curry to welcome everyone, after which Mrs. Curry extended season's greetings to all present.

WMC Stirling president Mrs. Melville Grills took charge of the program. Miss Marjorie Forbes opened the gathering in prayer, and a scripture reading was given by Mrs. Grills. The Stirling women presented a skit and sang carols.

The narrator, Mrs. Donnan Sr. gave a message, "Christ is the centre of Christmas." Various scripture verses were read. Later, Mrs. McInroy read a poem, and Mrs. K. Goodman rendered a solo, and brought the message of the evening.

Mrs. Grills thanked the Stirling women for the program. Mrs. Strome gave a reading, and later Christmas carols were sung. Several WMC women served Christmas refreshments, and a time of fellowship was enjoyed by all.

National Secretaries' Association Holds Meeting

The regular monthly dinner meeting of the Bay of Quinte Chapter of the National Secretaries' Association (International) was held on Dec. 17 at the Hotel Quinte, Belleville. Following a social period and dinner, Phil Flagler, Sales Representative and Farm Program Director, Radio Station, CJBQ was introduced as the speaker for the December meeting by Miss Marjory Cross. The theme of Mr. Flagler's talk dealt with the qualities most secretaries desire in their boss. Mr. Flagler also mentioned several conditions of the job which secretaries consider important, such as good equipment, pleasant surroundings, reasonable salary and time-off policies.

The speaker was thanked for a most enjoyable talk by Miss Thelma Schlievert.

The business session was conducted by Mrs. Verona Meades, president. Two guests were introduced to the members — Pat Burns and Grace Williams — and it was noted that an application for membership had been received from Mrs. Iris Downing.

Reports were heard from the various committees and it was decided that a special membership drive would take place at the February meeting, with each member being asked to bring a guest. The education committee will be arranging a program for the evening of February 10 at the home of Mrs. Maggie Coltman. The members were informed that Miss Marjory Cross had been appointed Chairman of the "Secretaries' Week" activities, which this year runs from Apr: 20 - 26, with "Secretaries' Day" on April 23.

Following the business portion of the meeting, an auction was held of various items which the members had contributed, and it proved a lively ending to the evening.

SOCIALS

Miss Judi Boyce of Trent University is spending the Christmas season with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Boyce, 11 Cherry Gardens.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

At the regular meeting of Franck Lodge A.F. and A.M. four members were invested with 30 year pins. Bro. Bert Bush, W. Bro. A. E. Arthur, Bro. C. A. Dunn and Bro. W. E. Dunn (who was unable to be present, W. Bro. Arthur served as W.M. in 1927, being Sr. P.M. of Franck Lodge No. 127, W. Bro. A. E. Arthur and Bro C. A. Dunn were initiated the same evening Dec. 2, 1918.

The pins were presented by W. Bro. H. Haggarty and W. Bro. K. A. Paul.

Successful Living

Everyone in Need of Faith

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I have read your letter over many times and found it not only sympathetic but helpful. I took your suggestion and joined a badminton club. I am enjoying it.

But here I am depressed again. I get terrible urges to hurt myself and have done so. My psychiatrist says when I'm depressed as well. He says I have to learn to love myself more. That's easy to say, but how does one do that? — Scared To Live.

Dear Scared: Some wasn't built in a day. You have taken one good step; be grateful for those concerned and helpful people who care enough to talk with you. I think your minister means you need a sense of self-worth.

Is your work as church organist doing you any good — I mean spiritually?

We need faith, all of us. I couldn't begin to cope with my pile of mail, or even try to help others with their lives without spiritual reserves. Would you start reading and thinking about inspirational things if I were to recommend some literature?

I need your commitment to have a go at it before I even name the books.

* * *

Dear Doris: Thank you very much for the wonderful paragraphs about old people which I just finished reading. I think we all pay much of no little attention to the elderly.

There is nothing quite as beautiful and relaxing as to sit with somebody who is older, has seen and lived through a lot more than oneself, and to listen to the tales of times long gone.

I am the mother of seven, and I feel our children are missing something very important by not having contact with the older generation. It gives you a continuity in life. I remember my grandmother dearly; she lived to be almost 94 and I had the privilege of spending most of my school vacations with her.

Now my husband's parents are dead, and my parents, still living in the old country (Switzerland), are actually strangers to our children. Is there no a way to adopt a set of grandparents over here, perhaps a couple who have no grandchildren of their own and would like to have some? Old People Are Precious.

Dear Old: I have heard slight rumors about such efforts being started in two or three places. Could readers clue us in?

* * *

Confidential to Forbidden Lover: You were human and vulnerable, chiefly because of your husband's alcoholism. No one can take from you the wonder that such a fine man as your friend found you worthy of love.

But he has shown strength in renouncing it; make it easier for him by matching that self - denial with your own. Nothing else will do.

You say your husband is showing you more consideration lately. Then encourage him. Let your new - found, secret self-esteem help you to be generous about him. You can be important in his cure from the disease caused by the Demon Rum.

* * *

(We now have some understanding of why people act as they do. Write to Doris about your particular human problem, enclosing a stamped, self addressed envelope for private reply.)

MILLTOWN BIRTHDAY CLUB

The Milltown Birthday Club held its annual Christmas dinner at Sun Luck Gardens.

After a delicious meal the members went to the home of Olive Vance, 21 Jones St., where they enjoyed several games of euchre. Prizes went to Ruby Elizabrick, Lillian Bennett, Olive Vance and June Bennett. A special prize went to Lily LeForte. Gifts were exchanged and carols were sung after which lunch was served.

The next meeting will be at Leona Hinchey's.

STIRLING — Christmas was much in evidence on December 12, when Mrs. J. R. Donohoe opened her home for the annual Christmas meeting, where 12 members and two guests were present.

Several business items were discussed. Two barn sale dates were announced for the coming year.

Mrs. Stan Meeks will again look after Christmas treats for the children of the parish. A donation will be sent to the Good Thief Apostolate. Mrs. LaChappelle displayed an advent wreath and read the "Liturgy of Advent". Mrs. Ray Burley read a story entitled "Bethelehem".

The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ray Burley.

Mrs. Donohoe conducted a contest, followed by the exchange of Christmas gifts, after which she and the girls served a bountiful lunch.

Bach in Carpeted Pigpen Step on Road to Luxury

MADRID, Iowa (Reuters) — An Iowa pig farmer has decided his pigs would be happier and he would have to work less if he piped Bach music into the pig pen, installed central heating and let the hogs walk on carpeted floors.

Harold Robbins, 63, says he hoped his pig pen within a year will be so luxurious and so automated: "I won't have to go outside my living room to feed the pigs."

"All I will have to do is touch a button and they will be fed," he explained. "And if I hear a little pig squeak (two way speakers are installed in the barn and home,) I will just turn a television camera on and see which sow is standing on the pig, punch a button for the feeder and the sow will move off the pig to eat the feed."

New Yorkers Shiver

Fuel Delivery Strike Causes 'State of Peril'

NEW YORK (AP) — Three New Yorkers have died from lack of heat and 10,000 are seriously ill in unheated apartments, the city health commissioner says, and any fuel firms that refuse to co-operate in making emergency deliveries will be prosecuted.

The board of health declared a "state of peril" Thursday, five days after a settlement was reached in the strike of fuel deliverers.

Delays in deliveries prompted Mayor John V. Lindsay to call for "extraordinary" efforts to get fuel to buildings with sick people.

The health commissioner, Dr. Edward O'Rourke, said three deaths were directly attributable to lack of heat. His department estimated that 3,400 people would die in the city this week, half from flu complications.

With temperatures dipping to the teens, the city remained in the grip of a flu epidemic that had drained its supply of vaccine. Slightly higher temperatures were forecast for today.

Deputy Mayor Timothy W. Costello said health department personnel would be stationed at about 100 fuel depots in the city "to order that those buildings identified as health emergencies receive oil on a priority basis."

More than 700 unheated buildings have been designated as emergency hospitals because of a large number of ill residents.

Costello estimated that 28,000 New Yorkers were without heat.

The health department said 1,282 people had died in the city in the five-day period ending at midnight Wednesday. Twenty of the deaths were attributed to the flu and 95 to pneumonia.

Edward T. Heeg, executive president of the New York Oil Heating Association, said its 300 members would do everything in their power to meet emergency situations.

The city was also plagued by a shortage of blood, brought about by the high flu rate. Canada both prospective donors and blood banks' personnel.

Greece Charges Arabs With Attack on Plane

ATHENS (AP) — Greece today formally charged two Arab terrorists with eight counts including murder in the attack on an Israeli airliner at Athens airport Thursday.

The Athens public prosecutor levelled eight charges against Mahmud Mohammad Issa, 27, and Maher Hussein Yamani, 19, including premeditated and attempted murder, illegal possession and use of firearms, possession of explosives, arson, endangering human lives, damaging foreign property and disrupting airplane communications.

If found guilty on the murder charges, the two men could be sentenced to death.

Issa and Yamani were apprehended by police minutes after two Arabs shot up an El Al jet airliner, killing one Israeli passenger and slightly injuring several others. There were 56 persons aboard the Boeing 707.

The two men were expected to be brought before an investigating magistrate Saturday for pre-trial testimony.

Negro 'Minister' Leads Police To Iowa Child's Frozen Body

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A fugitive from a Missouri mental hospital has been charged with murder after leading police to the frozen body of 10-year-old Pamela Powers, missing since Christmas Eve.

A self-styled minister who identified himself as Anthony Ethbell Williams, 24, a Negro, wordlessly directed detectives to Pamela's half-clothed body, wedged between a culvert and the side of a snow-covered 15-foot embankment, Thursday.

Police waited results of an autopsy to determine how the blonde, blue-eyed fourth-grader died and how long she had been in the spot near Mitchellville, 10 miles east of Des Moines on Interstate 80.

Des Moines Police Chief Wendell Nichols said Williams agreed to disclose the place to detective Capt. Cleatus Leaming and Lieut. Wallace Nelson during the automobile trip from Davenport, Iowa, where Williams had turned himself in Thursday morning.

After his arraignment on a charge of murder Thursday, Williams spoke only to his lawyer, Henry McKnight.

Nichols said officers did not press Williams for details of the Christmas Eve abduction or slaying under terms of an agreement with McKnight on Williams's surrender.

Officers who accompanied Williams and the two detectives to the girl's body said Williams showed no signs of emotion.

His return to Des Moines police headquarters—only four blocks from the YMCA building where Pamela disappeared Tuesday—was conducted under heavy security after police received anonymous telephone calls threatening Williams's life.

McKnight said Williams called him three times before walking into Davenport police headquarters and announcing: "I'm Anthony Ethbell Williams. I understand you're looking for me."

Davenport Detective Lieut. John Ackerman said Williams asked for a dollar to pay the balance of his $3.60 cab fare from Rock Island, Ill., on the other side of the Mississippi River, where he had been since Wednesday night.

The search for Williams centered in Davenport after a car matching the description and license number of the one which sped away from the Des Moines YMCA Tuesday was found parked and abandoned.

Police found a pair of orange stretch pants and white bobby socks stuffed with YMCA towels and a blanket into an Interstate 80 rest area waste receptable near Grinnell, Iowa, Christmas Day.

Pamela's father, Merlin Powers, 45, was called from his home in Urbandale, a Des Moines suburb, to identify the clothing.

Pamela and her parents had been watching her brother, Marl, 14, participate in a junior high school wrestling match when she left for the lobby to buy a candy bar. She did not return.

Kansas City police records revealed that Williams had been committed to the mental institution in 1965 after being arrested on two charges of molestation and one charge of raping a seven-year-old girl.

Hospitals records showed Williams walked away from the hospital in July, 1968. He had lived at the YMCA since October.

In Des Moines, Williams served as assistant minister and organist at the Maple Street Baptist Church.

Montreal Port Delays Costly States Shipper

TORONTO (CP) — Lack of manpower and poor weather at the port of Montreal is costly to importers who use that harbor for trade, Keith G. Dixon said Thursday.

Mr. Dixon, general manager of the Canadian Importers Association, said the situation is especially bad during the holiday season when productivity in Montreal harbor deteriorates as men are either not available or are unwilling to work.

The longer a vessel stays in port the greater the costs, he said in an interview. For importers employing chartered tonnage to transport goods to Canada the situation is intolerable.

"This whole process of delays, delays and more delays is getting impossible," he said. "Shipments are deferred, do not arrive on time and the constant trouble of trying to get ships loaded and unloaded in a reasonable time hampers trade."

Mr. Dixon thinks a planned year-round container shipping service through Halifax may be an equalizer in the traditional Maritimes versus St. Lawrence River port competition.

If it provides a fast, efficient and trouble-free service from Canada, Montreal may well get a good run for its money, he said.

Other possible remedies might be to provide dockworkers with payroll incentives to work in bad weather or during peak seasons, Mr. Dixon said.

"With common sense, there must be a solution. Port operators should either say the port will be closed for the winter at a certain date, or if they intend to keep open year-round, they should sit down with labor and steamship agents to devise some scheme for reliable, dependable service," he said.

Pueblo Officer Misled Captors With Charts

SAN DIEGO (CP) — Lieut. Edward Murphy, executive officer of the Pueblo who was navigator on the bridge when the U.S. spy ship was captured, said Thursday he deliberately misled his captors when they forced him to draw charts showing the ship inside North Korean waters.

"I wanted to make sure there were enough inaccuracies in what I was saying to be identified," Murphy told a news conference.

He said the North Korean officer "who had to prove the whole farce" had no navigational experience and allowed obvious errors to pass.

The 31-year-old Murphy said the errors included positions that would have required a speed of 2,500 knots to maintain, and another position 32 miles inland. He said he planned the inaccuracies to show to the world that the evidence was doctored by the North Koreans.

There is absolutely no question 'n my mind and the minds of the crew or of the captain that during no time did we intrude into the territorial waters of North Korea," Murphy said.

At the same news conference, a navy spokesman presented a study which he said convinced the navy that the Pueblo was no closer than 16 nautical miles from the nearest North Korean land when it was taken last Jan. 23. This would be four miles North Korea's claimed territorial limit.

The navy is conducting intensive questioning of the 82 freed crew members of the Pueblo after examining doctors reported finding no serious defects, other than malnutrition.

A team of more than 100 intelligence specialists began talking with the crew Thursday afternoon in what will become one of the most exhaustive investigations of a loss of a ship in U.S. Navy history, officials said.

The investigators want to know precisely how much sensitive electronic equipment may have been left intact when the North Koreans took control of the intelligence vessel.

The circumstances of the capture and treatment of the Americans also concern the questioners in great degree.

The word on the health of the men, returned to the United States last Tuesday after 11 months captivity in North Korea, came in a news conference Thursday from Rear-Admiral Horace Warden, commanding officer of the U.S. Naval Hospital here.

"All of them show effects of malnutrition . . . instability in balance . . . and no doubt there are other deficiencies which we have not yet had time to study in depth," Warden said.

He said all the men examined had been physically mistreated.

Communications technician Sidney Karnes was reported to have believed he would be shot in the back as he walked over the bridge from North Korea to freedom Sunday.

"I didn't know whether to walk or run, but decided to walk as I surely would have been shot if I ran," Karnes said.

"It was the longest walk of my life," he added.

The mother of another crew member said her son's North Korean captors had fired machine-gun bullets around him to make him admit he was "scared."

Irene M. Roose of Trenton, Neb., mother of Quartermaster Alvin Plucker also said: "They made him sit in a chair all day long with his legs straight, his head bowed and his hands clasped. If he moved he got beaten.

"He had to sit in this cramped position, then they ordered him to stand. If he staggered, they beat him."

A navy public relations officer said he could neither confirm nor deny the disclosure Thursday by state department officials that Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher, the Pueblo's skipper, was shot in the legs when the North Koreans opened fire on the ship.

Civil Trial Granted

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal has granted a civil trial to a Hamilton man convicted of manslaughter two years ago in his wife's death to decide whether he can claim $43,000 of her $67,000 estate.

The trial, ordered by Mr. Justice A. R. Jessup, also will determine whether Oliver Robin Charlton, 28, was criminally responsible for the shooting death of his wife, Tally Ann, 27.

Charlton had first been charged with non-capital murder. After two days of trial he pleaded guilty to manslaughter and was sentenced to five years in prison. He was paroled last May after serving 20 months.

CAN'T PROFIT

Mr. Justice J. M. King of the Ontario Supreme Court ruled last April that Charlton was not entitled to any of his wife's estate because it is a rule of public policy that no one can profit by his own wrongful or criminal act.

He ruled that Charlton's plea of guilty to manslaughter was "a solemn, public, confession that his wife's death was caused by his criminal act."

However, Mr. Justice Jessup said in his ruling earlier this week that Charlton's confession "is capable of explanation" and "may be capable of diminishing" if circumstances warrant.

Hussein Shuffles Cabinet

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein reshuffled his cabinet Thursday and gave the country a tough new security chief.

Six ministers quit and were replaced. Premier Bahjat Talhouni handed over the defence portfolio he had held himself to Deputy Premier Ahmed Toukan.

Appointed director general of public security was Maj.-Gen. Mohammed Rasul Kilani, a former intelligence chief. He replaces Maj.-Gen. Maan Zabi Nouwar, who goes to the foreign ministry with the rank of ambassador.

New men in the cabinet are Sheikh Abdullah Goshem, Moslem religious affairs; Nizam Sharabi, national economy, and Mohammed Adib Ameri, information.

Hong Kong Flu Deaths Double

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Deaths attributed to the Hong Kong flu more than doubled across the United States in the third week of December, say officials at the National Communicable Disease Centre in Atlanta.

Official figures for the week ending Dec. 21 show roughly 50 more "pneumonia-influenza" deaths recorded in 122 cities than would have normally been expected.

City Police Keep Ice-Bound Vigil

Christmas Custom: Skaters on Belleville Harbor

Speedy Reunions By Turbo

Christmas Day Busy in City

It was the coldest of times -- it was the warmest of times.

For some, it was the busiest of times.

Outdoors, there was the harsh, polar-like plunge of weather temperatures. Indoors, the warmth of reunion, recreation and relaxation within the family circle.

And, both indoors and outdoors, for a handful of key people, there was the behind-the-scene bustle which is one of the newer traditions of Christmas.

These are the people who man community services— firemen, police, telephone workers, broadcasters. This year, they were joined by others - - - plumbers and heating technicians as record cold snap froze waterpipes, stalled furnaces.

For Belleville police, the busiest watch came Christmas Eve as local citizens relaxed after the bustle of yuletide preparations. Some relaxed too well, apparently, and the result was far from a silent night. Officers processed a minor rash of complaints, and charges, mostly involving liquor infractions.

By contrast, Christmas Day was a policeman's dream — with scarcely a telephone bell to break the peace and quiet.

But the quiet was deceptive. Bellevillians were busily phoning elsewhere.

Earlier, the experts had predicted local subscribers would make about 12,000 long-distance phone calls Christmas Day. By the day's end Belleville-Trenton residents had upheld the Canadian tradition for record telephone talk.

A total of 14,963 long-distance calls had been made — 2,400 more than expected. This didn't include the number of overseas calls, which must be booked in advance of the Christmas rush.

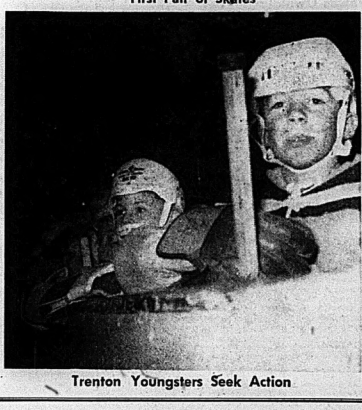
Firefighters spent a quiet Christmas - - - albeit a nervous one. They have their own tradition: The colder it gets the more danger of unexpected outbreaks.

As temperatures plunged to 13 degrees below Christmas Day pressure on all heating devices mounted. Worse, Boxing Day saw the mercury plummet to 18 below. The threat materialized, but not its consequences. The two-day yuletide ended without a serious alarm being raised.

The piercing cold put pressure on other services. Tow trucks were in demand as automobiles went dead. Taxis were kept busy as scores of householders found themselves immobilized.

Some householders frantically sought out plumbers and furnace servicemen as the weather directly affected domestic scenes.

One company reported its furnace repairman worked through Boxing Day and "half the night" answering calls.



But the professionals were not alone in holiday activity. The amateurs also gave a helping hand behind the scenes. Like at the animal shelter near Wallbridge Road. There local volunteers spelled off officers of the Ontario Humane Society and made regular trips to ensure the pets had Christmas and Boxing Day dinners.

First Pair of Skates

Christmas meant bustle on the railroad as crowded trains sped Canadians homeward for family reunions. Behind the scenes, it was business as usual for men like this car inspector sounding wheels of westbound express in arctic-like weather.

Canada Showed Policy Change in Disorganized Year at UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada made a bit of history at the United Nations this year, perhaps showing some of the federal government's new look in foreign policy.

Twice in the recent session of the General Assembly, Canada broke with her traditional friends to support resolutions.

At another time it gave more support to an Afro-Asian cause than other Western leaders were prepared to give and in still another occasion she departed from past policy on China representation.

For the UN as a whole 1968 ended in a note of frustration with the Middle East, the Czechoslovak invasion and the United States elections combining to make substantive progress in world affairs all but impossible.

There had been a hopeful sign earlier in the year when the Big Three nuclear powers —the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union—agreed to the nuclear-weapon non-proliferation treaty. But cold war polemics stopped further progress in disarmament later in the year.

Despite this, the fall session of the General Assembly could point to some solid achievements. It did agree to a study of air, land and water pollution. There was progress in the field of human rights and aid to developing countries.

There also were bad moments, such as the Afro-Asian confrontation with the West over a proposal to drop South Africa from the UN Conference on Trade and Development because of her racial policies.

The unprecedented move was defeated narrowly. The West had feared expulsion of South Africa in this instance would establish a precedent under which other countries could be expelled from the UN or its organs.

Canada stepped down from the Security Council at the end of the year after a two-year stint as a non-permanent member. Canadian Ambassador George Ignatieff, in a busy year, was a force behind the scenes in such situations as the Middle East. He helped start talks going that ended in the recent release of the 82 surviving crew members of the U.S. spy ship Pueblo by North Korea.

Canada also took a leading part in debates during the General Assembly on such things as disarmament and creation of a committee to study peaceful exploitation of the seabed.

On the annual debate on the seating of Communist China, rejected again, Canada took a slight step away from the past when it voted against a resolution that would have sent the matter to a special committee for study. On the main resolution of the seating of Peking, Canada abstained because it called for expulsion of Nationalist China.

Canada took these historic steps:

—Sided with the Soviet Union against the West in helping to pass a resolution that made Russian one of the working languages of the General Assembly.

—Sided with the Afro-Asians —and thus breaking with Britain—on a resolution that demanded independence not be granted Rhodesia until majority rule is given to the black Africans.

—Sided with the Afro-Asians again on a resolution calling on Portugal to grant the right of self-determination to its African colonies. In this resolution the sponsors had made the wording moderate enough —after consultations with Canada and other powers—for Canadian support. Some Western powers abstained.

Generally it was a difficult session.

The United States was operating under an outgoing administration and the American delegation here followed a hold-the-line policy while it waited until Richard M. Nixon took over the White House in January.

The Czechoslovak invasion by the Soviet Union and her Warsaw Pact allies cast a cloud over the UN. The United States, criticized for years over Vietnam, turned the tables and lashed the doctrine of the "socialist commonwealth" under which the Soviet Union invaded Czechoslovakia. Canada and many other Western countries joined in this criticism.

Appointment early in the year of Gunnar Jarring, the Swedish diplomat, as a special envoy to assist all sides in the Middle East to reach a settlement was a positive step. But at year's end Jarring had made little progress after many talks with Israelis and Arabs.

Still, there were those who said that without Jarring's appointment the situation in the Middle East would have been far worse.

Habs Dump Leafs To Recapture Lead

By SCOTT BUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal Canadiens have reclaimed first place in the Eastern Division of the National Hockey League and a goaltender who might help them hold on to it.

The Canadiens moved into top spot Thursday night by defeating Toronto Maple Leafs 4-2 after learning that goaltender Gump Worsley would rejoin the team for practice today.

Worsley has been inactive since mid-November when he was ordered to take a rest because of a nervous ailment and an aversion to flying.

Rogatien Vachon, Montreal's other regular netminder, is out with a hand injury. But, with rookie Tony Esposito in the nets Thursday night, The Canadiens encountered little difficulty in downing the Leafs.

In other NHL games Thursday night, New York Rangers downed Oakland Seals 3-1, St. Louis Blues edged Pittsburgh Penguins 3-2 and Minnesota North Stars tied Los Angeles Kings 4-4.

A crowd of 17,895 at Montreal saw the Canadiens move one point ahead of the runner-up Boston Bruins, idle Thursday, and three ahead of Toronto with the victory.

Montreal goals went to Ralph Backstrom, Henri Richard, Bobby Rousseau and John Ferguson. Murray Oliver and Norm Ullman replied for Toronto.

Esposito had 34 saves for the Canadiens and Bruce Gamble 41 for Toronto 31. But Gamble made several brilliant stops to keep the Maple Leafs in the game.

Rousseau scored his 16th goal of the game, the winner, at 17:58 of the second period with a backhand shot that struck Gamble and bounced into the net.

Ferguson picked up an insurance tally at 13:55 of the first period when he took a lead pass from Beliveau, skated around Toronto defenceman Jim Pelyk, and blasted the puck between Gamble's legs.

Centre Dave Keon of Toronto suffered a rib or back injury in the second period and saw no further action. It was not immediately known if Keon would miss any games because of the injury.

Reggie Fleming and Phil Goyette scored 75 seconds apart early in the second period to get the Rangers off to a 2-0 lead against Oakland.

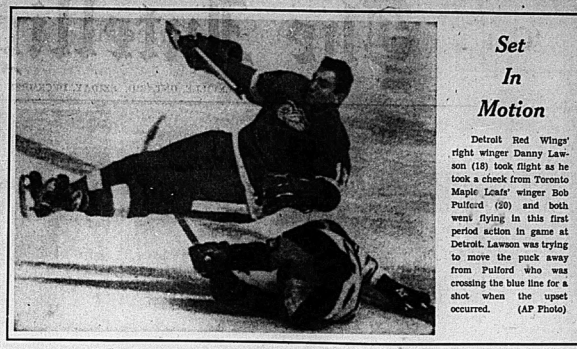
The victory, watched by 17,250 New York fans, stretched the Rangers' unbeaten streak to four games, but was only their second victory in 11 games.

The Rangers announced that injured right winger Rod Gilbert is about ready to rejoin the team. Gilbert, out three weeks with a chipped bone and stretched ligaments in his left ankle, skated Thursday and may see limited action this weekend in two games against Montreal.

The Blues allowed Pittsburgh to take a 2-0 lead in the first period, then rallied to gain the victory which moved them 12 points ahead of runner-up Oakland in the Western Division.

Val Fonteyne and Gene Ubriaco scored opening-period goals for Pittsburgh. St. Louis began its comeback at 0:33 of the second period on a goal by defenceman Noel Picard.

A crowd of 15,056 at St. Louis saw Jim Roberts tie the score at 5:47 of the final period with the Blues' first short-handed goal of the season.



Gary Sabourin scored the winner at 7:10 of the final period to help the Blues stretch their undefeated home streak to 11 games.

Minnesota gained its tie before 7,772 Los Angeles fans, when Danny Grant scored his 16th goal of the season at 10:02 of the third period.

Danny O'Shea scored two goals for the North Stars and Bill Goldsworthy added another. Bill Flett scored twice for Los Angeles and Dale Rolfe and Ed Joyal once each.

Ray Cullen of Minnesota, the second leading scorer in the Western Division, will be out about a month with a hairline fracture of his right ankle, the North Stars announced before the game.

The fracture was disclosed in x-rays taken at Los Angeles. Cullen suffered the injury Wednesday night in a game against St. Louis. The 27-year-old centre had 10 goals and 25 assists, second only to Red Berenson of St. Louis in the Western Division.

Set In Motion

Detroit Red Wings' right winger Danny Lawson (18) took flight as he took a check from Toronto Maple Leafs' winger Bob Pulford (20) and both went flying in this first period action in game at Detroit. Lawson was trying to move the puck away from Pulford who was crossing the blue line for a shot when the upset occurred. (AP Photo)

Hull Only Out Game or Two

CHICAGO (AP) — Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks, the National Hockey League's leading scorer, had a broken jaw wired together Thursday but possibly will miss only two games.

"The fracture is just above the angle of the jaw and below the right ear," said Dr. Myron Tremaine, a team physician. "It's hard to say how long he will be out, it may be a week to 10 days. But knowing Bobby, I don't think he will sit out too many games as long as he can skate.

"Chances are that as soon as he gets accustomed to breathing with the wire and the soreness he will be able to play. He will find it a little hard to eat and will have to have the right type of food."

BOBBY HULL

Hull was forced out of Wednesday's game in Chicago Stadium which Toronto Maple Leafs won 4-3. It lowered the Black Hawks to fifth place, a point back of New York.

In the second period Hull caught an elbow from the Leafs' Mike Pelyk.

Dr. Tremaine said he wasn't sure that the fracture was suffered at that time.

"I think Bobby may have broken the jaw a game or two ago," he said. "He told me that he had been having some pain on the spot of the fracture for a few days.

"Of course, being hit with an elbow certainly touched things off."

It is considered certain that Hull will miss the afternoon game in Minnesota and probably Sunday's meeting with Los Angeles in Chicago Stadium.

U.S. Netters Start Packing Davis Cup

ADELAIDE (AP) — Harry Hopman's big gamble failed and the Davis Cup, the symbol of world tennis supremacy, is headed back to the United States for only the fourth time in the last 18 years.

Stan Smith and Bob Lutz, both from the University of Southern California, crushed Australia's Ray Ruffels and 17-year-old John Alexander 6-4, 6-4, 6-2 in the deciding doubles match today.

The rout required only 67 minutes, giving the United States a 3-0 lead in the best-of-five series and a chance to score the first 5-0 sweep in 20 years.

The final two singles matches will be played Saturday.

Clark Graebner of New York meets Ruffels in the first match followed by a joust between Arthur Ashe Jr., of Richmond, Va., and Australian champion Bill Bowrey.

A three-hour, five-set victory by Graebner over Bowrey and Ashe's triumph over Ruffels in four sets put the Americans up for today's doubles clincher.

Hopman's gamble was in inserting Alexander into the doubles although he and Ruffles played together on eight days except for an obscure tournament several weeks ago.

Alexander became the youngest player in history to compete in the Challenge Round and his nervousness and insecurity were apparent as he lost vital services to give the Americans the first two sets and wilted under the constant pounding of the more experienced Americans.

Hopman said he decided on the Ruffels-Alexander combination this morning. His move was partly dictated by the fact he felt Bowrey needed a day's rest before tackling Ashe, holder of the U.S. Amateur and Open crowns and rated the best amateur in the world.

Hopman since 1938 has captained 21 Australian teams and has just set 15 of them on to victory, losing to the Americans on five occasions.

The doubles match, played before a small crowd of 5,000 in bright, sunny weather, was such a mismatch that it soon became dull.

Smith and Lutz never lost a service during the three-set match and only once had a break point against them.

In the opening singles, Graebner outlasted Bowrey 8-10, 6-4, 8-6, 3-6, 6-1. Then Ashe polished off Ruffels 6-8, 7-5, 6-3, 6-3.

Tennis Official Urges Open Cup

ADELAIDE (AP) — Philippe Chartrier, vice-president of the French Lawn Tennis Association, said today it is imperative that the Davis Cup go open—the sooner the better.

"It is just a matter of how and when," he said as the United States wrapped up the 67th Challenge Round before a small crowd at the Memorial Drive Courts.

Chartrier, with Robert Abdesselem of France, has been holding talks here this week with top representatives of the other three top tennis-playing nations —Australia, the United States and England.

The tennis powers have explored a wide range of problems, chief of them the matter of opening the Davis Cup to the pros and efforts to ease the cold war between the amateur associations and pro promoters.

Chartrier said there was unanimous sentiment among the tennis chieftains that the Davis Cup must go open.

He also said all the tennis executives have shown concern over the small crowd attending the Challenge Round here. On opening day, only 5,500 turned out and the crowd was even smaller for today's doubles.

SOLUNAR TABLES
WHEN TO FISH OR HUNT

The schedule of Solunar periods, as printed below, has been taken from Mrs. Richard Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

Gordie Howe's HOCKEY

On a recent swing to California, I had an interesting experience. It was at a sportswriters' luncheon in Oakland where I was invited to give a short talk on hockey.

Before I continue, I would like to point out that California is where some of the way-out styles get their start. It, too, is a hotbed for hippies.

Anyway, at the luncheon, one of the questions from the floor was "What is your feeling about pro athletes wearing long sideburns and beards and so on?"

The writer asking the question also pointed out that baseball had discussed banning sideburns and beards.

So I told them.

In professional sports, we are projecting the All-American image as I see it. We are selling virility, the clean-cut, masculine look. So I'm in favor of banning long sideburns and beards.

Maybe I'm old fashioned, but hockey is a contact sport. It's a man's game. It's rough and I think the players should look cleancut and masculine.

To me sideburns and beards should be banned. I buy baseball's argument.

I know there are a few long sideburns around the National Hockey League and the men who wear them are certainly much enough. I also know that more than one general manager in the National Hockey League has ordered sideburns shortened.

And, here's a question! Can anyone remember seeing a mustache on a player in the NHL? I can't although I've heard that Jimmy Orlando, when he was with the Red Wings, grew one for a few weeks on a dare.

Someone, I realize, will raise the point, too, that Joe Namath, the quarterback of the New York Jets, not only had sideburns, but a droppy mustache and a goatee. In fact, they called him Dr. Fu Manchu. And he's no sissy.

But I still stand behind my argument. It's my opinion.

At that luncheon in Oakland, however, I suppose half the men there were wearing the long sideburns. Yet, to my surprise, 90 percent seem to buy my argument.

Browns' Back Hot

If Kelly's Busy, Watch Out Baltimore!

CLEVELAND (AP) — The night before Cleveland Browns met Baltimore Colts during the regular season, Bill Nelsen, the Browns' quarterback, picked up a newspaper to see how his alma mater—Southern California—had done that day.

"The first thing I noticed," Nelsen recalls, "was that USC had run O. J. Simpson more than 30 times. And I remember thinking 'a guy can get killed running that many times in one game.'

"The next day the first thing I did after we played the Colts was to get hold of a statistical sheet, and the first thing I noticed was that I had run Kelly 30 times."

Kelly is Leroy Kelly, and he survived the workout Nelsen gave him.

But he killed the Colts, penetrating the Baltimore defense for 130 yards, catching two passes and scoring a pair of touchdowns as the Browns took a 30-20 victory.

That's the only blemish on the Baltimore record in 15 games this season and Kelly's performance that day is probably the major reason Baltimore coach Don Shula says "we'll be watching him all the time Sunday" when the two teams meet in the National Football League title game.

Kelly put together seven 100 yard days during the regular season while gaining 1,239 yards and becoming only the third three-time 1,000-yard rusher in NFL history.

"We think," said Nick Skorich, who runs the Cleveland offence, "that if Kelly runs the ball 20 times he'll break a long one sooner or later. We also feel if we give him the ball 20 times he'll gave us 100 yards."

Kelly, however, takes a more modest viewpoint.

"Defences are getting better and better," he said. "The long gainer is becoming rarer—you seldom see a back breaking away any more. The important thing is constantly picking up yardage."

'Get Lamonica'—Jet Defence Motto

NEW YORK (AP) — "Get Lamonica."

That, says Gerry Philbin, is the best defence against Oakland Raiders' passing attack.

New York Jets, for whom Philbin plays defensive end, must contend with that attack Sunday in the American Football League championship game.

Daryle Lamonica is the centre of the attack, and he devastated Kansas City with five touchdown passes last Sunday in the Western Division playoff.

"If we get to Lamonica early, then we could save what could be a long game for us," said Philbin, who was named to the AFL all-star team earlier this week. "We've got to keep on his back. We have to get to him because when he's hot, he's hot.

"Even if you can't tackle him and throw him for a loss, you can get your hands in his face. If he has to throw over your hands, he's very likely going to throw a bad pass."

Lamonica didn't throw many bad passes six weeks ago when he completed 21 of 29 against the Jets for 311 yards and four touchdowns.

"He had a pretty good day, but I think we put pressure on him," Philbin recalled. "We got to him twice, and we made him scramble a few times. Anyone is less effective if he has to run around while he's trying to see his receivers.

"But he throws so quick you have to get in on him or he'll hurt you. He's also one of the toughest quarterbacks around. We've given him some good shots in the past—nothing dirty but just hard—and he just bounces right back. You can't rattle him mentally, either."

Throughout the season the Jet linemen have run a little pool in which they each put $10 weekly. The money would go to the man who tackled the quarterback the most times. This week, however, the $10 bills have stayed in their wallets.

"We don't have anything going on this game," Philbin explained. "We don't need anything. It's all or nothing. We don't need any extra incentive."

Mo-Hawks Seek Weekend Wins

The Belleville Mo-Hawks will be out to enhance their chances in the playoff picture this weekend when they travel to Collingwood tonight to take on the fourth place Kings and again Sunday when they play host to the sixth place Kingston Frontenacs.

The Mo-Hawks are hoping to rebound this weekend after suffering a pair of tough 5-4 losses last weekend to Galt and Barrie, the top two teams in the eight team OHA Senior "A" league.

The Mo-Hawks are in seventh place with 12 points in 23 games, and they trail sixth-place Kingston by six points in the race for the sixth and last playoff spot.

A pair of wins this weekend would move Belleville into a challenging position in the playoff picture, and Coach Davey Jones is looking for a similar effort to the one his club made last weekend against Galt and Barrie. Jones said that Stu Muirhead has left the team be cause of business reasons and the burden of law courses which he is studying.

Belleville suffered a 3-1 defeat in their only previous encounter with the Collingwood Kings, who are coming off a 13-4 home ice victory over the cellar-dwelling Woodstock Alcans last Sunday.

The Mo-Hawks have split six games with Kingston this year and will be out Sunday to take the lead in the inter-city rivalry.

Morrisons Face Uphill Struggle

A stiff uphill struggle is in the offing in the next few days for the Belleville Morrisons, who are fighting for the fourth and last playoff spot in the six-team Eastern Ontario Junior "B" hockey League.

The cellar-dwelling Morrisons are five points behind fifth place Kingston Frontenacs and seven points behind fourth place Cobourg, but they have three chances in the next four days, to advance in the standings, and two of these chances are against the Kingston club.

The Morrisons play host to the Frontenacs tonight at the Belleville Arena, and Monday they travel to Kingston for a return engagement. Sandwiched in between these two games is a Sunday encounter in Peterborough with the league - leading Don Byes.

Coach Floyd Crawford's crew will have revenge on their minds in all three games; the last two times they played Kingston the locals suffered 8-3, and 9-4 losses on successive nights, while last Sunday Peterborough overpassed the Belleville squad 12-2.

Coach Crawford hopes to have a full squad available for all three games, as he points his team for a second half run at a playoff spot.

Five-Pin Frolic

Holiday Classic Will Roll Tonight

Local bowlers will celebrate the festive season tonight with the fifth annual "Holiday Classic" invitation five-pin tournament at the Bowl O-Drome.

All sixty-four entrants will bowl a four game qualifying round with the top sixteen advancing into single game match play.

Two lanes in match play eliminate a bowler, and the top eight bowlers win cash prizes, with first prize worth $80 to the winner, and second prize worth $40 to the runner-up.

An entry fee of $6 covers all bowling for the tournament which starts at seven o'clock.

The tournament is sanctioned by the Bay of Quinte Bowling Association, and is open to members of the Ontario Bowlers' Congress, Bay of Quinte Bowlers Association, or any other affiliated association.

Non-members may purchase a membership for $1.25 at the time of bowling.

Trenton Midgets On Right Track

Trenton midget all-stars defeated North Bay 8-3 Thursday to advance into the second round of the championship series of the Orillia Midget Hockey Tournament, while Belleville's Imperial midgets lost 4-2 to Hamilton and enter the consolation round of the 16 team double elimination tournament.

George Ferguson paced the Trenton attack with three goals Thursday, and he will get a chance to add to that total today, while Blake Kerr's Imperial midgets can stay alive in the tournament with a victory today.

Kinsmen Keep Winning

Belleville Kinsmen bantams continued their winning ways on Boxing Day as they thumped Trenton 7-3.

The Kinsmen tallied two goals in the first period, three in the second and two more in the final stanza as they limited Trenton to a single goal in each period.

Danny Lapointe fired a hat trick to pace the Kinsmen while Grant Goegan added a pair of goals. Single markers went to Harrington and Robbie Foster.

Sports On All Fronts

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Herve Filion, the Angers, Que., sulky driver who set a world's record this year for most harness racing victories in one season added two more to his total at Western Fair Raceway Thursday.

* * *

HULL, Que. (CP) — A team from Gatineau, Que., edged Ottawa 6Ts by a 3-2 score Thursday in the first game of the Hull Kiwanis bantam hockey tournament. In other games, Point-Gatineau, Que., trounced Arnprior, Ont., 5-2 and Ottawa Warriors shut out Aylmer, Que., 9-0.

* * *

TOKYO (AP) — Sadaharu Oh became Japan's second $100,000 a year baseball player Thursday when he signed his 1969 contract with Yomiuri Giants. He is an outfielder and hit 49 home runs last season. Team-mate Shigeo Nagashima, an infielder, previously signed a $100,000 pact for the coming season.

* * *

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Harness driver Maurice Trudeau, 50, a native of Sherbrooks, Que., fell from his sulky and died Thursday during the running of the fourth race at Western Fair raceway. Trudeau was driving his own horse, Eldoras Irishmen. Death was believed caused from a heart attack. An autopsy was ordered.

IT WORKS
BECAUSE IT SWINGS!

That's the principle behind the pendulum clock, invented in 1657. Earlier clocks were found only in cathedrals and public squares; today it is a rare home that doesn't contain at least one time-keeping device. The days of the sundial are gone and the bourglass are gone and the modern world depends upon accurate clocks.
If the days of your older clock are gone in your house, chances are that a home somewhere in this area would love to use it.

Apollo Flight Log Capsules Lunar Probe

HOUSTON (AP) — Here is the day-by-day log of the around-the-moon mission of Apollo 8 astronauts Frank Borman, James Lovell and William Anders—all times eastern standard:

Saturday, Dec. 21: Borman, Lovell and Anders blasted off exactly on time at 7:51 a.m. from Cape Kennedy, Fla., the first men to ride atop a 363-foot tall Saturn V rocket. After 1¾ orbits of earth, nearly three hours after liftoff, Saturn V's upper stage restarted to begin the 220,000-mile trip toward lunar orbit. Traveling more than 24,000 miles an hour, the Apollo 8 crew at that point had ventured farther and faster than man ever flew previously. Main spacecraft engine fired for first time 11 hours after launch to make Apollo 8's flight path more precise.

Sunday Dec. 22: Borman came down with what doctors suspected was "24-hour intestinal flu." He vomited, had aches. Lovell and Anders reported they had been slightly ill and took pills to control diarrhea. Despite their illness, they beamed their first live TV program showing the astronauts at work.

Monday, Dec. 23: Borman reported that "nobody's sick" anymore. Crew fired small maneuvering rockets for a small course correction and gave the world its first deep-space television portrait, beaming to home TV viewers a glowing picture of earth from 202,000 miles in space. Later, they reached the point in space where the moon's gravity has greater pull than earth's making them the first men to be "literally out of this world," as mission control reported.

Tuesday, Dec. 24: Apollo 8 pilots joined the ranks of history's great explorers at 4:59 a.m. when they started their spaceship engine to kick Apollo 8 into an initial lunar orbit ranging from 69 to 193 miles high. They televised to earth dramatic pictures of a barren and forbidding lunar terrain and announced the moon's surface "looks like plaster of paris" and "dirty beach sand with lots of footprints in it." A second engine firing during the third circuit changed Apollo 8's path to a 70-mile-high circular orbit. The crew scheduled the moon a total of 10 times before starting engine shortly after 4 a.m. Christmas Day to begin the trip back to earth. In a dramatic telecast during the ninth lunar orbit, the astronauts showed view of earth over lunar horizon and beamed pictures of lunar terrain which they described as "a vast, forbidding expanse of nothing." The telecast was closed with a dramatic reading of the story of the creation in the first chapter of Genesis in the Bible, with each astronaut taking turns reading the script as earthlings watched darkness closing over the lunar terr

Christmas Day, Dec. 25: Apollo 8 crew ended 20 hours in lunar orbit by starting main engine to begin the trip back to earth. Delighted that the vital manoeuvre was successful. Lovell told ground controllers: "Pleased to inform you there is a Santa Claus." At 12:39 p.m. spacecraft passed back into earth's sphere of gravitational influence. Pilots treated earthlings to a TV broadcast showing how to prepare a meal in space.

Thursday, Dec. 26: Pilots caught up on sleep in preparation for re-entry Friday morning, but took time out to give people a look at earth via television from 112,000 miles away.

Girl, 17, Inquires About The Pill

By Dr. George C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like information on birth control pills. I'm single, have a serious boy friend and we are almost engaged.

I am 17 and a senior in high school and he is a freshman in college. I have heard that that the pills will do harm a person. Is it possible for me to obtain them and how? My future husband would like me to take them. Must I see a doctor, do you have to be married, etc.? — B. T. W.

Yes, you have to go to a doctor.

Quite aside from all moral considerations, the increase in venereal disease makes me think it is time for young people (and their parents) to take another look at the "sexual freedom" these days.

"The pill," excellent as it is as a contraceptive, is not an unmixed blessing. It permits more s ex u al independence, but it doesn't do a thing to prevent venereal disease.

My opinion is that you, at 17, should discuss this with your parents. If you aren't old enough to do that, I don't think you're old enough to listen to this college freshman who wants you to take the pill. There can be side effects too.

There's a good deal of room for argument, additionally, as to whether, at 17, you are yet able to form any dependable judgment as to whether this boy is, in reality your "future husband."

That's how I feel about it, and if this brings down a storm on my head, so be it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Do you have a booklet on bladder infection, and what to do about it? — A. H.

This problem is so closely related to the kidneys that you will find it included in the booklet "Your Kidneys: Facts You S h o u l d K n o w About Them." It is available for 30 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope. Send requests to Dr. Thosteson, care of Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, Po. Box 158, Dundee, Ill. 60118.

D e a r Dr. Thosteson: Recently my mother's illness was diagnosed as amyotrophic lateral sclerosis. Will you write abo t this so others will be aware of it? Information is difficult to obtain — D. G. M.

Our knowledge of this rare disorder consists of its symptoms and the changes in the body.

It involves the nervous system, with degenerative changes in a portion of the spinal cord and certain related nerve trunks. The result is a progressive weakness, or shrinking of muscles.

It does not affect the brain or the sense of touch; nor will it affect control of bowel or bladder.

The initial symptoms are fibrillation, or twitching, of muscles, usually of the hands, lips, and shoulders. These muscles become gradually but steadily weaker until they may be virtually unable to move.

It affects older individuals as a rule. The c a u s e is not known. One report suggested mercury poisoning, but in most instances no cause can be found or even suspected.

There is no treatment, but as you can readily understand careful nursing is essential. Feeding becomes a problem because of difficulty in chewing or swallowing.

The patient may (and probably will) display marked physical distress. I am mentioned above, but do not make the mistake of thinking that he can't understand, think, or feel.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Does a child's blood type show the same as the mother and father? — B. S.

Sometimes, sometimes not.

Ability But No Work

Shipbuilders Look With Concern to Ottawa

Launon, Que. (CP)—Davie Shipbuilding Ltd., builder of the largest ocean-going ships made in Canada, is looking to Ottawa for some sign that the industry will continue to have a proud future.

Threatened by dwindling ship orders and a shrivelling shipbuilding subsidy, Davie Shipbuilding is among the firms with a vital interest in the federal government's promise to look into the question of re-establishing a strictly Canadian ocean fleet.

A series of discussions on this topic between industry representatives and transport Minister Paul Hellyer is coming up early next year.

Shipbuilders have expressed concern, however, about what they consider to be a key omission. It has not been spelled out that the ships of a future Canadian merchant marine would be built in Canada.

To many in the industry, it is unthinkable that this point is not contained in the terms of reference given to the special committee investigating the possibility of a Canadian ocean fleet.

Richard Lowery, president of Davie Shipbuilding, says there is no question of the capability of Canadian shipyards to handle such an assignment.

He said in an interview that the Davie shipyards in Launon near Quebec City have the space, the labor skills, the technical know-how, the background in ocean ship construction and the desire to place Canada once again among the nations having their own merchant marine.

"Over the last 10 years, the company has turned out 55 ships ranging from destroyer escorts and coast guard cutters to tankers, lake freighters, tugs, trawlers and ice-breakers.

Davie built its first ship at Launon in 1697 and has built ships of up to 45,000 tons—the largest made in Canada.

"Our problem is one of work, not ability," Mr. Lowery said.

"We could build ships of up to 90,000 deadweight tons without having to change our yards around. In fact, there is one area specially constructed where we could build submarines."

On the Davie order book now are a search and rescue ship for the transport department, two tankers and a laker for Hall Corp. of Canada. But Mr. Lowery noted that the federal government has very few ships that need replacing—in other words, fewer and fewer government orders.

The company president said he does not want to leave the impression that Davie Shipbuilding is destitute.

The firm is already heavily involved in allied industrial engineering, and produces railway tank cars and ore cars among other things.

The problem is the future of 4,000 skilled shipbuilders if it happens there are no more ships to build.

The present federal shipbuilding subsidy level is 25 per cent for the three-year period that started Jan. 1, 1966. Starting next Jan. 1, it will be reduced by two per cent a year until the level of 17 per cent is reached in 1972.

Mr. Lowery said the industry had not given up on the subsidy question, and continues to seek ways and means of convincing the government of the need to continue subsidies rather than lowering them and eventually cutting them off altogether.

He emphasized that the problem is a national one.

"We haven't felt that Ottawa should necessarily be presented with a regional approach to shipbuilding. It should be related to the industry as a whole.

"Each shipyard should not have to go up and tell its own story."

Herring Loss Puzzles Iceland

REYKJAVIK (AP) — Iceland is the home of the cod and the herring and it is in deep trouble.

The herring, which have been swimming into Icelandic fishnets by the millions for years, have headed for unknown shores.

The Icelanders, some of them descendants of Vikings, are worried about their standard of living.

Fish, and specially herring —fresh, frozen, dried, pickled, smoked or ground into meal —are normally 90 to 95 per cent of the country's exports. In the last two years, fish exports have dropped 45 per cent. This year, the herring catch is expected to be only one-sixth of the 895,000 tons captured in 1966.

The national reserves of foreign exchange have fallen to $12,000,000 from $60,000,000. There have been two devaluations of money since November, 1967.

Add all that to Iceland's winter, when a day is limited to three or four hours of murky light, and one might think the Icelanders were ready to throw up their hands.

Not the Icelanders.

There are only 200,000 of them, descendants of people who have been clinging to their rocky, volcanic island since Ingolfur Arnarson, the first settler, arrived from Norway in 871.

They intend to stay.

After all, says Dr. Gylfi Gislason, minister of education and trade, "the charm of a flower does not depend on its magnitude, nor the beauty of a piece of music on the number of instruments that play it.

"To stay hasn't been easy.

There have been 150 eruptions from 30 volcanoes since Ingolfur arrived; the Icelanders expect one each every five years. About six per cent of Iceland's 40,000 square miles is covered by lava fields. Another 12 per cent is covered by glaciers and 24 per cent by other wastes, meaning it is uncultivable.

Earthquakes are common. The earth under parts of Iceland bubbles and gurgles with huge pockets of boiling water mud and steam. Most Reykjavik's 80,000 inhabitants enjoy central heating with hot water piped from the springs.

Reykjavik is a pleasant architectural blend of old buildings, some of corrugated iron, solid structures of the early 1900s and glassy, modern apartments, schools and hotels.

The next most important town is Akureyri, a fishing port and commercial centre in the north, not far from the Arctic Circle.

"In the back of most minds here, one Reykjavik businessman said, "lurks the thought of earthquakes, volcanoes and ice—ice drifting down from the Arctic in such masses that all Iceland could be surrounded and cut off.

Also in most minds in Iceland is the fact that the country has been completely free of Norwegian and Danish rule for only 50 years. Anything which might make Iceland dependent on another country is repellent.

But emigration is not thought of. The gloom of winter is replaced in the summer by equally long days of sunshine, clear skies and gorgous solar eruptions.

And, until recently, the Icelanders have been catching more fish per person than any other country—about six tons per person each year. The standard of living has been high, thanks to the herring. Nearly every home has a telephone and a radio. The 189 automobiles for every 1,000 inhabitants are almost matched by television sets.

Probably the most durable conversational subject after fishing is the NATO base at Keflavik, 35 miles from Reykjavik. The United States Navy has a contingent of about 2,000 men and several hundred families living there.

While Icelanders find it painful to have foreign troops on their soil, a recent poll showed that most favored continued membership in NATO and keeping the base.

Winters Warms Up In Early Show Time

NEW YORK (AP) — Jonas than Winters seems to be a much more amusing fellow in the early evening than in the later pater. It may work out that CBS's Jonathan Winters Show got the better part of he deal in the time swap with Hawaii Five-O.

The variety hour had its premiere in the earlier Thursday period, and its star had some funny turns, one at the top of the show when he was extemporaneously answering questions from the audience and later when he was playing a drunken liquor inspector in a sketch.

For a windup there was a refreshing sequence when our friend hero gathered around him members of Roy Rogers and Dale Evans family to tell the story of Hansel and Gretel, he did such a terrible job that he was roundly booed by the kiddies at the end—a fine change of pace after all the lovable, well-rehearsed story-tellers to whom we have been exposed of recent date.

The hour contained another especially bright number—a quick review in comedy blackouts of some major events of the year. It encompassed de Gaulle's France's money troubles with a de Gaulle spoof. It made a joke about the hijacking of airliners —a Castro-like creature was shown sticking a gun at Santa's head and ordering his sleigh south. And it even took in the Ovanis-Kennedy wedding—there was Winters in a little Lord Fauntleroy suit standing on a pier and shooting through a bull horn in the direction of a large yacht anchored nearby: "Can Caroline and John come out and play?"

Hawaii Five-O, which took over Winters' old time last Wednesday night, continues to be another stereotyped cops-and-robbers story with only those lush island location shots to give it any distinction.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Western oils led a firm advance on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Volume was moderate.

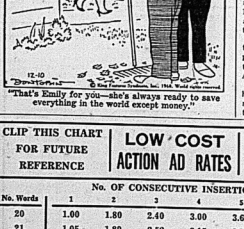
By mid-morning, the western oil index was up 3.94 to 251.52. The three other major indexes also were higher.

Canadian Superior Oil rose 4 to 62, Ranger 1⅞ to 14¼, Braalsman $1.10 to $6.10 and Banff 1 to 15¾. Among the most active oils, Canada Southern Pete gained 70 cents to $5.70 and Mill City 14 cents to $3.45.

In industrials, MacMillan Bloedel rose ½ to 27½, Noranda ½ to 33⅝, OSF Industries ½ to 27½ and Canadian Goldale ⅝ to 31.

The heaviest traders were Canadian Breweries, up ¼ to 10, and James United Steel, up ¾ to 14¼.

Magna Electronics lost ½ to 13¼. Annual profits were down by 40 cents a share from $1.50 last year.



Revenue Properties gained ½ to 18¾. The company has bought a minority interest in Seaway Multi-Corp., formerly Seaway Hotels.

Several mining stocks advanced sharply. Merrill Island was up 70 cents to $3.50, Consolidated Canadian Faraday 60 cents to $4.95 and Campbell Chibougamau 45 cents to $9.25.

On index, industrials gained .67 to 187.34, golds .22 to 240.24 and base metals .23 to 112.89.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 912,000 shares compared with 615,000 at the same time Tuesday.

Tax Reduction Deadline

FOR TENANTS AND LANDLORDS

Dec. 31

Virtually all home-owners and tenants in Ontario are entitled to benefit this year from a reduction in residential property tax.

Tenants of all eligible apartments and houses are to receive the tax reduction allowance from their landlords on or before December 31, 1968.

The landlord has received the reduction in property tax from his municipality. He or his agent is required by law to pass on the full amount of the reduction that applies to each tenant who is eligible.

A tenant who has moved during the year should advise his former landlord of his present address.

This new system was established in 1968 by the Ontario Government in order to ease the burden of municipal and school taxes. The Province, in effect, is paying part of the property taxes for each eligible house and apartment.

TAX REDUCTION NOTICE

Full information is contained in the free pamphlet "TAX REDUCTION NOTICE" which is available at your Municipal Office or by writing the Municipal Subsidies Branch of the Department of Municipal Affairs, 801 Bay Street, Toronto 5, Ontario.

This Was the Year In Hollywood, When...

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This was the year in Hollywood when —

Cary Grant, the screen's perfect husband, was accused by his wife of beating her while on LSD trips. The divorce revelations did nothing to diminish his popularity.

Jack Valenti put across a rating system for movie. Producers began vying for an X, which means a picture is unfit for children and hence enticing for adults.

The new status symbol among film stars became the $1,000,000-a-picture fee. Liz Taylor and Richard Burton welcomed new members to the club: Julie Andrews, Lee Marvin, Paul Newman.

Two assassinations prompted Hollywood to search its soul about violence on the screen.

Nudity in films hit new bottoms: Rod Steiger's, Charlton Heston's, Paul Newman's and so on.

Barbra Streisand's husband struck a new note in press relations by allegedly slugging a photographer for taking too many pictures.

The production code for self-censorship was relaxed almost to the point of apathy. A popular new formula for movie plots: Boy meets girl, boy loses girl, girl gets girl.

And there was almost as much girl-girl and boy-boy kissing on the screen as there was of the usual kind.

Vanessa Redgrave paused between making American-financed movies to lead anti-American parades in London.

A new candor was sounded in interviews. Lee Marvin talked about housekeeping with his girl-friend. Alex Cord discussed his decision to marry Joanna Pettet before the birth of their baby.

And just where was it that Eddie Fisher married Connie Stevens?

GIVES UP WOMEN

Frank Sinatra gave up Mia Farrow and Elizabeth Taylor, the former in marriage, the latter in a movie.

Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis pushed all the film stars off the movie magazine covers with her own headline-making.

This was also the year when the Burtons bought a yacht for their dogs, when Katharine Hepburn won another Oscar after a 35-year lapse, when Anna Magnani broke her foot kicking Anthony Quinn, when Laughlin socked it to the television industry, when Lucille Ball put her two children to work, when a Beatle and his girl-friend appeared on an album cover completely in the nude.

Some year! And now 1969 is coming. Are you ready for it?

Roll-under Hair Set Is Easily Switchable

By REBA and BONNIE CHURCHILL

Preview a new coiffure "wardrobe" during the holidays. Keep the styling swirly, simple and easily switchable. As actress Heather Young illustrates, a roll-under set can be arranged in a variety of ways. For instance, Buster Brown bangs and flip-up sides transform perfectly with today's "little lady" fashions. Combout time is 3 minutes — almost as quick as you can wrap a package! Styling secret: Back-combing is restricted to understrands around neck, which boosts the flip into a bouncy silhouette.

When original hair style begins to droop, twirl strands around fingers, and fashion tangle curls. Or, quicker yet, add a curly fall. Brush hair back from forehead and hold in position at crown with a large floppy, schoolgirl bow. Luster not only adds a festive, party touch but conceals where hairpiece is anchored. Faster than you can decorate a Yule ball, you'll have heads spinning, for styling time is seven minutes.

Another speed change that is ideal for the busy on-the-go person are a flurry of demi-curls that spring across the back and sides of the head. Heather, whose busy life ranges from new bride to co-star in the 20th-TV series, "Land of the Giants," discovered style can be completed in five minutes. Part hair from ear to ear, then arrange strands into pencil-slim ringlets and pin in position. For perky effect, keep curls short — above ears. Accent bob with a jeweled clip and glitter earrings.

Diesels for India

Fires Leave 400 Homeless

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 400 people have been left homeless by a rash of Montreal-area fires which have ripped through two major apartment house dwellings and a city's east end when a four-storey row of tenement buildings since Monday. Early Thursday, 21 families were evacuated in sub-zero temperatures from their homes in the four-storey structure on Christmas Eve.

Christmas ended abruptly for the families, many of whom huddled in the street in 20-below-zero weather watching their belongings go up in smoke.

"I can't believe it. I just can't believe it," said Albert Gallagher, a machinist. He and his wife and two children escaped unhurt.

"All I know," he said as he watched ice-caked and weary firemen struggle with the blaze, "is that somebody came running around knocking on doors telling people to get out."

The fire apparently began on the ground floor of the tenements and worked its way up, setting off oil drums.

Bone-chilled firemen from nine departments took more than eight hours to bring the fire under control.

Chief Inspector Andre Robidoux of the LaSalle fire department said an investigation has been opened to determine the cause of the fire and to establish why the flames were able to bypass built-in firewalls.

The first of the three major fires began Monday night in suburban Notre-Dame-de-Grace where firemen rescued more than 75 residents of a high-rise apartment building.

They donned oxygen masks and scaled nine-storey aerial ladders as the five-alarm blaze filled the structure with dense smoke.

The fire was believed to have started either in lockers or in the garages of the building.

CHARGED TOO MUCH

Russians Tell of Impressions Of Year Alone in Tiny Cabin

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Three Soviet scientists studying space-flight conditions lived alone for a year in a small cabin, using water distilled from their own urine and dehydrated food.

They gave their impressions Thursday of their lonely year of participation in an experiment designed to test man's ability to withstand the isolation of long flights into outer space and visits to other planets.

Details of the experiment were announced by the Communist party newspaper Pravda earlier this week. It published an interview with the three scientists Thursday.

Dr. Gherman Manovtsev, biologist Andrei Bozhko and technician Boris Ofyshyshev told about the psychological tensions of living in the 12-square-yard airtight cabin.

They warned that the strains of playing any games, including chess, could be sources of friction.

The three said they had no serious conflicts during their year of confinement.

"Of course there were moments of strain, but we struggled against these successfully," Manovtsev said.

He added that it is important to exercise great care in choosing the teams to live and work together in such conditions.

"They have to have great patience, delicacy and tractability," he said. "Even then I think all games must be avoided, even chess."

Asked whether they wanted to get out of the cabin during the test, Manovtsev replied:

"At first there were feelings like this. Sometimes I experienced an overwhelming desire to visit Moscow, especially during the autumn."

Bozhko said: "We could have left the cabin if we had wanted to. But I do not think any of us did—from vanity."

The three men underwent several weeks of hospital tests after emerging from the cabin Nov. 5 and said they all felt in good health.

To broaden their specialized diet, they also grew vegetables in a miniature greenhouse.

They kept a normal appetite, spent much time doing exercises, and worked a five-day week, taking turns at cooking, washing and other domestic duties.

In their free time they read from a limited supply of books, watched a miniature television set, listened to the radio or played tape recordings.

Montreal's Police Aim at Education

MONTREAL (CP) — The name of the game in 1969 for Montreal's police department will be education, not just prevention or retribution.

Large numbers of city police officers will be exchanging patrol cars for high school classrooms in a campaign to help stamp out crime in Canada's largest city.

Police Director Jean-Paul Gilbert says a public relations department will also be expanded to enlist greater co-operation between the public and a hard-pressed police force that in 1968 faced an unparalleled wave of gangland-type slayings and dynamite bombing incidents.

Rival gangs fought for lucrative territories—leaving possibly 32 murdered victims in the Montreal area alone—and mailed contents set bombs in public places and strike-bound property.

Some of the unprecedented underworld activity was believed linked with organized crime controlled by international syndicates.

More than 2,000 armed hold-ups were committed in 1967 and there will be "certainly more in 1968." Statistics show 1,021 armed holdups to mid-November 1968.

The year's largest theft was the armed holdup of two security guards at the downtown Place du Canada Sept. 25 when three men stole $209,000 as the money was being delivered to the Bank of Montreal.

But it was the bombings and gangland slayings which hugged the nation's headlines in 1968.

Police speculate the latest slaying, which may be identified with underworld warfare, occurred Dec. 18 when the bullet-drilled body of Roland Berthiaume, 30, was found on an east-end street.

As in the cases of the other 31 victims, police have not made any arrests.

Police believe the struggle for underworld supremacy involves five gangs, one of which is a Mafia-type "family" attempting to maintain its hold on such enterprises as prostitution, narcotics, protection and loan-sharking.

One police officer said the identities of those responsible for most of the underworld murders are known—but getting sufficient evidence to prosecute is another matter.

More than 45 bombs—generally sticks of dynamite attached to alarm clocks—were set in the metropolitan area during the year and about 20 exploded, causing damage to stores, strike-bound premises and private homes.

In December, the City of Montreal and the provincial government each offered a $10,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible.

Investigation of most of the bombing incidents—many linked to labor unrest—has been the work of Sgt. Robert Cote of the Montreal police department and his five-man squad.

Mao Orders City Youth To Be Sent to Country

HONG KONG (AFP) — China's national program to resettle urban youths in rural and remote frontier regions has received a mighty boost from Chairman Mao Tse-tung's latest personal directive.

The directive, first broadcast over the national radio network Dec. 21, called on all parents in the towns and cities to dispatch their sons and daughters who have finished junior or senior middle school, college or university to the countryside.

The directive, now being vigorously implemented around the nation, will likely empty Chinese cities of large groups of youths in the 14-to-25 age group.

The program has been carried out on lesser scales on and off for many years.

Soon after the start of the Cultural Revolution in mid-1966, youths in the hundreds of thousands resettled in the countryside flocked back to their home cities under the pretext of participating in the Cultural Revolution. This sudden influx evidently disconcerted the urban authorities who in early 1967 issued clear-cut instructions ordering them back to the countryside.

The directives were repeated many times during the year, an indication that Red Guards, once back in town, were reluctant to return to the rural areas where life is relatively harsh and unglamorous.

It appears that these youths have, possibly under coercion and persuasion combined, mostly returned to their farm life by now.

The latest waves of migration as reported by Chinese radios involved mostly fresh graduates from middle schools and universities some of them having finished their studies in 1966.

The resettlement is evidently a long-term program. During the last few days it has been described by Radio Peking and the official People's Daily as a "hundred-or thousand-year grand design to prevent revisionism."

It is officially argued that the youths, through their manual labor and integration with the peasantry, would discard their "bourgeois" arrogance inherent in the traditional Chinese urban intellectuals.

Apart from ideological motive, it appears that the state is hard put to find them employment in urban centres.

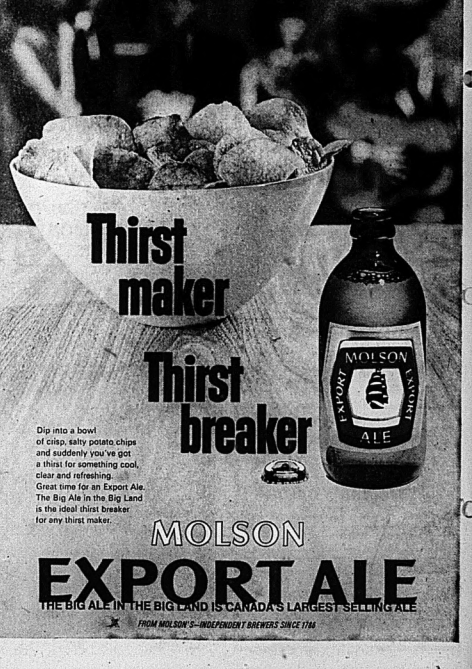
"We also have a pair of hands and do not want to lead an idle life in the town," many young migrants were quoted by Radio Peking as declaring before they bade goodbye to city life.

The frequent references to idleness of the youths in the city and the fact that some of the resettled completed studies in 1966 would suggest that employment in the cities has become a serious chronic problem.

The Cultural Revolution, particularly during the turbulent phases from 1966 through the summer of 1967, disrupted the country's industrial production.

The scale of the latest population shift to the countryside is colossal.

Official figure given last April, says the population of Changhsa, capital of Hunan province, is 1,000,000. Radio Peking reported in November that during recent months some 200,000 middle-school and college graduates, or one-fifth of the city's entire population, have been resettled in the countryside.



In east China Xiangsi province, where its capital Nanchang is the only big city, 721,000 cadres, revolutionary teachers and students, doctors and medical workers as well as other urban dwellers of unspecified occupation have been resettled in rural areas, Radio Peking said.

Strictly Personal

Credit Never Matches Blame

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When summer dwindled into fall this year, I heard no great murmuring from the populace about the "short cool summer" we had, when most of the expected riots in the black ghettos never materialized.

Yet, had they happened, everyone would have nodded his head sagely at the fulfillment of these dire expectations, and the air would have been filled with grim pronouncements.

When the election was over last month, and it turned out that the polls had been uncannily accurate in their predictions of the popular vote, I heard no large burst of applause or approval (or even apology) from the millions who had gazed upon the polls with deep dubiety.

Yet, had they happened to be off by a considerable percentage, the air again would have been clamorous with recrimination and indignation and dark talk about "doing something" to the perpetrators of such folly.

This is the way it goes, and we must understand it. What does not fit in with our predictions and prophecies and forebodings is quickly forgotten, while what confirms them is sharply imbedded in the public consciousness. And while we are quick to blame those who fulfill our worst expectations, we are just as reluctant to credit those who act better than we had predicted.

There is some perverse element in the human animal that dispenses credit and blame with unequal measure. Hardly anyone is ever given credit for acting better than he needs to, while everyone is condemned for acting worse than we think he should.

Everyone in public life is painfully aware of this distorted sense of equity in praise and blame. A politician can do a dozen things right without a glimmer of recognition from the electorate, but one wrong step may bring down on him a cascade of rebuke—not merely from his enemies, which is to be expected, but from his previous supporters as well.

My own daily mail is quite characteristic in this respect. Many of the letters, quite unconscious of their implications, will tell me that "I have read the column for many years and generally like it, but this time you really hit a foul ball," or words to that effect.

But they never wrote in to let me know about the columns they liked and agreed with — until, perhaps once a year, something happens to stick in their psychic craw and they feel forced to expel it in any way. In the same manner, to take a more common example, hardly anyone would write to a restaurant complimenting it about good service over the years — but one bad meal, sloppily served, brings down wrath. To accentuate the negative seems an almost ineradicable human failing.

Your Dollars

Contracts Complex

By KEN WEERES

The laws pertaining to contracts can be extremely complex. You are strongly advised to see a lawyer if you must determine your legal rights. He is the only person qualified to determine your position on the finer points of contracts

There are, however, a few steps to insure that the contracts you sign are what you think they are. Again, it must be emphasized, deal only with a reliable firm. Before signing a contract, be certain that the firm will keep its end of the bargain. If in doubt, check. Many families have been taken by signing contracts with fly-by-night outfits.

Most contracts you sign when purchasing goods are the conditional sales contract. Under this contract, you have possession of the article but you do not own it. Ownership of the property remains with the seller until you have fully paid the contract.

Before signing any contract read it carefully. Be certain any items that you do not understand are fully explained to you. If the agent says "This clause does not apply to you" — beware! Have him scratch it out.

Also, do not sign contracts with blank spaces. All spaces should be filled in before signing. And keep a copy of the contract.

Any oral agreements between yourself and the seller not written into the contract are usually not binding. While there may be exceptions, it is usually presumed that you have included all facts in the contract. In case of problems in this area, see your lawyer.

When the term "as is" is in a contract, you as a buyer, assume responsibility for determining and accepting that condition. Should it prove defective, it is your loss. But this need not always be a disadvantage.

Because it is in "as is" condition, it has not been repaired by the dealer and thus may be selling quite cheaply. Providing the needed repairs are not extensive or you can fix it yourself, you may get a good value.

The word "guaranteed" by itself means very little to you as a buyer. The guarantee must be specific and state exactly the terms of that guarantee. Should it read "guaranteed for life" it does not mean your lifetime, but rather the lifetime of the article you purchased.

Once you have signed a contract, it cannot be changed or altered unless agreed upon by both the seller and buyer. You cannot simply change your mind once you have put your signature on the dotted line. Your signature means you have agreed to all the terms and provisions of the contract.

When a merchant makes an unintentional error in the price of an article, either through advertising or a tag on an article in the store, he is under no obligation to sell you that article. For example, if a newspaper ad reads Fur Coat $1.80 when it should read $1800 the store does not need to sell any coats at the advertised price. When the error involves only a few dollars, he may sell the article at the wrong price to maintain goodwill, but he need not do so.

Nor is a merchant under any obligation to accept refunds if you change your mind regarding an article you purchased. Again, he may take it back to maintain goodwill, but he need not do so.

The Better Business Bureau advises you to take the following steps in signing contracts: read and understand the contract, get the exact meaning, get everything in writing, keep a copy, and finally, if in doubt, see a lawyer.

In our country, the relationship between buyer and seller is based on understanding. The decision to make a purchase rests with you, the individual. You can do business with whom you choose.

Most contracts are fair and legal. But there is always a small percentage of these sellers who are out for the fast buck. These are the firms which you must be on guard against to protect your dollars.

Sunday School Lesson

Facing Greater Tomorrow

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

A group of people were discussing the greatest day in their lives. Some said it was the day they were married. Some of the more religious said it was the day they committed themselves to God. One man had not spoken. Finally, someone asked him, "Well, what's the greatest day in your life?" "Tomorrow," he answered simply.

Looking ahead to something greater, that is what makes life worthwhile. The child looks forward to graduating from school. The graduate looks forward to establishing a home of his own, and to getting established in worthwhile employment. The worker looks forward to a promotion or a raise. Some look forward to retirement. Newly married couples look forward to having children of their own. When the children are grown and gone, they look forward to being grandparents. People look forward to getting out of debt. They look forward to greater accomplishments. The central figure in the play, "Death of a Salesman," even looked forward to his own funeral as a time when his children would be impressed by the people who attended it.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for December 29: "The Kingdom Shall Come," Revelation 21 through 22.

Many people look forward to another chance. They look forward to an improved future. Maybe last year wasn't so good. They hope the new year will be better. A new year can be an incentive for people to try harder, so they will not repeat the mistakes and failures of the past.

This is where religious faith plays such a vital role. When people from Judah were marched away into captivity, many of them lost hope. What future was there for them in Babylon? Jeremiah wrote to tell them that even there they could find reasons for living and doing their best. (Jeremiah 29:7,10)

Isaiah encouraged them with the hope of a new nation they would one day build; a nation where people would not hunger, where they would be sheltered from the heat, and would have water for their thirst. (Isaiah 49:10)

The early Christians faced a time of great discouragement. Many of them were being martyred for their faith. Evil rulers seemed to have complete control over the world. To be a Christian of his day a man named John wrote a book called "Revelation" to call them to have courage; to take renewed hope. Today might be bad. Tomorrow would be better.

This hope of a better tomorrow was baded on a God who can "make all things new." (Revelation 21:5) He can create a new heaven and a new earth. He can wipe away tears, ease pain, and even overcome death itself. (Revelation 21:1,4)

In vivid pictorial language, John pictured a better day for the persecuted. God is stronger than evil, and will overcome. They must work for a better world believing that God is working with them. He will not give up so long as they have faith in Him.

Christian faith always holds out the hope of a better tomorrow even if it is the last day of a person's life. God is not limited to this life. He can grant a greater tomorrow in heaven itself.

Men's ultimate faith—must be in God. They may not know what the future holds, but they must believe that He holds the future in His hands. When John looked out from his place of exile on the island of Patmos, he was conscious of being separated from his fellow Christians by an ocean of water. The first thing he said as he described the new age was that the sea was no more." (Revelation 21:1)

Men today are separated by oceans of hatred and pride. To the extent they let God dry up those oceans, will there be a greater day of real progress and brotherhood in the world.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 28

Your birthday today: : Your coming year could be termed "belated pioneering." Changes you might have begun years ago now emerge with urgency. Your resources are just enough; you must get some retraining as well. Little help is available and few, if any, examples for your guidance. You must do it yourself.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Three days of tension finally dwindle. Go after people you can't reach during the week; make proposals for the coming year.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Consult today with doctors, dentists, dieticians, technical advisers. Search for transactions to put through before the end of the year. Use great care in discussing obligations.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Get busy on things to be squared away before the end of the year. Nothing is gained by worrying over friends and relatives. Focus on private problems.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Keeping busy is the most sensible course. Somebody puts in a good word for you, unasked. Accept help where offered.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): There is support available, and some recognition for you in recent days. Press forward, without doubts or misgivings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): This is more a day to think and negotiate than doing. A stranger without realizing it, may put you next to an opportunity right in your own back yard! Take the initiative.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): While serious mood prevails, bear up with undiminished energy and you come out into emotional sunshine. Your intuition arises to lead the way. (Listen carefully to mate this evening . . .

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov 21): Your ideas find agreement in high places, resistance or hostility in low places. Avoid travel or go ahead or behind the critical periods.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Stay in home territory and put your main energy on problems you recently settled. Do not sign contracts today! Think about health maintenance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your tact or creativity helps your great interests in surprising places; a matter of individuals happening to see and appreciate. Relatives and neighbors go in the way.

AQUARIUS. (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Disconcerting news must be taken into account. Leave off extra pleasure trips: finish what you are involved with now. Conditions are about to shift: —

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Stay away from policy discussions. Tend regular routines. Take your share of neighborhood affairs. Settle up with relatives now.

Rain Ices Roads

By Roy Peacock
Staff Reporter

Right on the heels of coldest Christmas in years, the Quinte district last night was visited with a five-inch fall of snow which coupled with winds gusting to 20 miles per hour, clogged country roads and slowed vehicular traffic in urban centres to a crawl.

This morning the snow changed to freezing rain and police warned motorists to stay off the roads if at all possible until snowplows and sanding crews had made their rounds.

In the immediate Belleville area main highways were plowed by mid-morning but freezing rain turned roadways into a sheet of ice, making driving conditions hazardous.

"Snow-covered and slippery" was term used by Provincial Police in describing area highways.

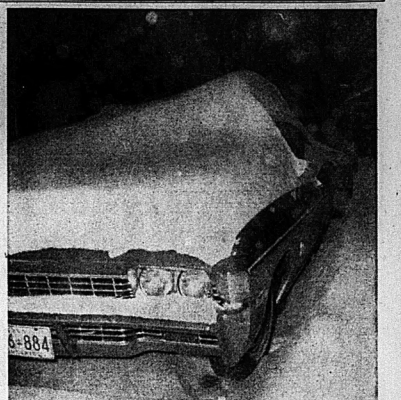
In the city the works department had all available snowplow and sanding equipment out and by early morning most of the main traffic arteries were cleared.

But side streets and the less travelled arteries had to wait their turn.

During the height of last night's storm city police reported that their cruisers were getting bogged down in the snow.

The duty forecaster at Trenton Air Station said the freezing rain which started about seven this morning would continue most of the day and would turn to snow late this afternoon or early evening.

Earlier temperatures failed to climb to the expected level, resulting in heavy drifting as the winds buffeted the fluffy snow.



Light snow started to fall in Belleville about five thirty Thursday afternoon, turning to moderate snowfall in the early evening.

27 Die As Jet Burns

CHICAGO (AP) — A North Central Airlines twin-engined prop-jet airliner attempting to land at mist-covered O'Hare International Airport Friday night slammed into a hangar where a drum and bugle team had been practicing and exploded in flames.

North Central officials said 27 persons were killed and Cook County (Chicago) authorities said 27 bodies were counted in the wreckage, which burned for more than an hour.

The airline said it believed there were 42 passengers and four crew members aboard the Convair 580.

Eight boys, members of a drum and bugle corps which had just ended a practice session in the empty hangar, were among 27 persons admitted to hospitals.

The crackup occurred when the plane apparently missed a runway in the fog and drizzle shrouding O'Hare, world's busiest airport.

The plane, Flight 458, originated in Minneapolis. A North Central spokesman said it may have had an extra passenger, an off-duty pilot who may have been riding in a jump seat behind the pilot.

"What did you bring me?"

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Rain, freezing rain and snow over southern Ontario will move to the south of the Lower Great Lakes and reach a position south of Montreal early Sunday. To the west of the storm brisk northerly to northwesterly winds will bring a fresh blast of cold to southern Ontario.

Russians Laud Trio's 'Courage and Mastery'

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The offical Soviet news agency tonight praised the "courage and mastery" of the three Apollo 8 astronauts, and said their round-the-moon flight "ushers in a new stage in the history of space exploration."

It made the comment at the end of a 350-word report on the safe return to earth of the astronauts, whose mission was described here as "risky" when it began.

Earlier, both Tass and Moscow radio had carried brief account reports of the astronauts' return within 30 minutes of the Pacific splashdown.

The Apollo 8 flight around the moon had for Russians little of the drama it produced in the West because of its low-key treatment in press, radio and television.

While television viewers in Western Europe and North America were watching the blast-off live and were treated to direct transmissions from the craft's cabin, Russians saw nothing more than two brief pieces of film throughout the flight.

But the Russian man-in-the-street showed considerable interest in the flight, and there were smiles when the news spread through Moscow Friday night that the astronauts were back safely.

Kremlin Got Details On LBJ's 'Hot Line'

WASHINGTON (Reuters)— President Johnson disclosed today that progress reports on the flight of Apollo8 were flashed to the Soviet Union on the "hot line" between the White House and the Kremlin.

He described how this came about when he recorded a message of congratulations to the three American astronauts who made a safe splash down in the Pacific Ocean after their historic around-the-moon flight.

The president said the Russians on the Moscow end of the "hot line" responded enthusiastically when asked by American personnel here if they would like to be kept informed.

Johnson said the Russians were very solicitous of the astronauts' welfare, and expressed great interest in the success of the flight.

The "hot line" was installed after the Cuban missile crisis in 1962 to provide instantaneous communication between the White House and the Kremlin in times of world crisis.

Astronauts 'In Great Shape'

ABOARD YORKTOWN (AP) — The Apollo 8 astronauts continue physical debriefings aboard this carrier today before flying to the United States and a belated Christmas with their families.

"They're in great shape," reported Dr. Clarence A. Jernigan, a space agency doctor aboard the carrier.

Jernigan said Col. Frank Borman, Capt. James Lovell and Maj. William Anders seemed to be in better condition than many astronauts who returned from earth to medical investigation.

"They look great and are looking better all the time, completely alert and very happy," Jernigan commented after the astronauts completed an extensive five-hour examination following their pinpoint splashdown in the Pacific Friday.

The astronauts had been in space for six days, three hours, during which they soared outward toward the moon for 69 hours, circled it for 20 hours, then made a 58-hour run back to their home planet.

They landed in darkness within three miles of this carrier and were quickly retrieved by helicopter. The landing point was 1,043 miles southwest of Hawaii.

Borman, Lovell and Anders planned to fly off the carrier about 5 p.m. EST today, heading for Hickam Air Force Base, Hawaii, where they are to transfer to a C-141 transport plane for a flight to Ellington Air Force Base, Tex., near their Houston homes.

They are to arrive at Ellington at 5 a.m. Sunday. Their families will be waiting to welcome them.

After a late Christmas celebration, the astronauts will begin nine days of intensive debriefings in which experts will question them about all aspects of the flight, from the performance of the Saturn V rocket that fired them away from earth, to their views of the lunar surface and the performance of their spaceship.

They have already described the moon as being a colorless, desolate spot, highlighted by boulder-strewn plateaus, crater-pocked plains and rugged mountains.

But preliminary analysis of what they saw and learned has strengthened America's desire to land men on the moon next year. The astronauts reported they had no trouble detecting land features or navigating around the moon, and they said a spot picked as a likely landing zone "is a very good one indeed."

Space officials at Houston told a news conference they were optimistic that the Apollo 8 flight would lead the way to lunar landings, large space stations and trips to the planets.

Air Force Lt.Gen. Samuel Phillips, Apollo program director, said:

"We will fly five Apollo missions next year, three of them configured with equipment capable of landing on the moon."

The Apollo 9 flight, scheduled Feb. 28, will be an earth orbit mission with the main goal of testing the Lunar Module, the space taxi which is to drop two astronauts to the lunary surface while the third orbits in the main Apollo ship.

Apollo 10 is to follow in May. At present it is planned as a moon orbit flight in which two astronauts will fly as close as 50,000 feet from the surface in a lunar module.

If there are no problems on these two flights, Apollo 11 probably will attempt a moon landing next July or August. The crew for that flight will be named in January.

Officials Cautious

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (Reuters) — Space officials today were enthusiastic about the Apollo 8 journey but cautious in committing the United States to a date when men could land on the moon.

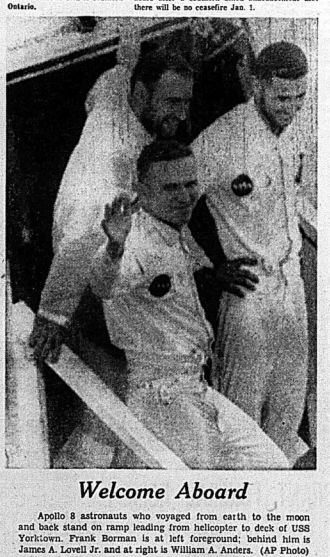
Dr. Thomas Paine, acting administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, would say only that the space flight program would "extend through many generations."

"This is the first time that man has gone out to the outer regions of space, free of the earth's gravity. But many are going to follow in the footsteps of the three astronauts."

The flight to land men on the moon, expected sometime in 1969, depends in part on the success of Apollo 9 in February to test the lunar module which will ferry two men from an orbiting ship to the moon.

LBJ Told Talks May Start Soon

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson says he has been told by his No. 2 Vietnam peace negotiator that there are indications the stalled Paris talks may move off dead centre soon.



In a news conference in Washington Friday, the president said that Cyrus Vance, deputy U.S. negotiator at Paris, told him earlier this week that "he believes we can get going on substantive talks after his return there and we are just praying that can be true."

Vance returned to Paris Friday after a trip in the United States to brief officials on the talks.

Johnson said the failure to end the war was the major disappointment of his five years in office. He leaves Jan. 20.

Heavy Snow Tangles Traffic

But Belleville again fared better than did the area to the north.

At Tweed another eight inches of fluffy snow fell, bringing the total snowfall so far in December to 31 inches — an all-time record for the month.

In Western Ontario the storm struck Friday morning crippling the major urban centres of Toronto, Hamilton and London with between four and six inches of snow.

By late evening the snow had turned to freezing rain in an area extending from Hamilton to Chatham.

Some let-up was expected today as temperatures rose but hazardous driving warnings for the highways remain in effect.

At London a woman and two children were killed when a transport trailer and a car collided on icy roads just outside the city limits.

Canadian National officials in Toronto said east-west commuter trains in Toronto were delayed by the storm stranding many commuters downtown.

At Toronto International Airport some Air Canada flights were delayed and one runway was closed to allow snow clearing.

At Belleville a railway spokesman said the 11.30 morning train from Toronto was expected to be about 15 minutes late.

But despite the hazardous driving conditions, there were no accidents reported by either city or provincial police in the Belleville area.

Belleville and District Obituaries and Funerals

Days remembered by state
Marilyn and Ken, Belleville, Ont.
and nephews, Rodney, Penny, Peter and Paula.

KETCHESON, Harry — In loving memory of a dear husband who passed away two years ago today.
Just a prayer dear, those who loved you.
Just a memory fond and true.
Just to show we still remember,
Because you left a gap that world will never fill.
— Ever remembered by wife Gertrude, daughters Sheila and Helen, son-in-law Harold and granddaughter Cheryl.

KETCHESON, Harry — In loving memory of my dear father who passed away December 29, 1966.
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought his death so near.
Only those who have lost can tell
The heartache and pain we feel.
For memory keeps you ever near dear.
— Ever loved and never forgotten by daughter Sheila.

To Present Brief

Liberal Association Outlines Proposal for International Airport

TRENTON — The Prince Edward Hastings Liberal Association has announced that they will present a brief to the cabinet in the near future outlining a $150 million airport in the area and by doing so foster the growth of a new city.

A five man committee late yesterday afternoon gave the reasons why they believed the much discussed airport should be situated in "southern Northumberland - Hastings."

"We have the best location in southern Ontario," said Bill Lane, chairman of the special committee.

He said that a southern Ontario site would eliminate the noise factor as planes would be flying over the water and there would be no houses in the immediate area to suffer from the drone of the aircraft engines.

"There are also deep harbour facilities in this area to ship bulk requirements for planes," he added.

And a final bonus, according to Mr. Lane, would be the railway lines which could be extended to the new airport if the suggested location were chosen.

"Trenton is growing, as is this whole area", he said, "and we feel that the addition of such an airport as this could be a great bonus."

William Menzies, a member of the committee, estimated a $150,000 outlay for the new airport and it was stated by the committee that 10,000 acres of land will be needed.

The committee did not label an exact site for the airport but did say that it would probably be situated on government owned land in the area.

The area suggested by the committee consists of submarginal land, according to Mr. Lane, and as a result is not suitable for agricultural use.

George Cunningham, a committee member and the Liberal candidate in the past election, said the committee was promised a good hearing in the cabinet.

"We have already contacted Ottawa and the brief will be presented to the cabinet in early January".

The 22 page brief puts most of its content on the new airport and the benefits which will come with it.

"This airport will bring new industry and more people which could result in a model community for the rest of the area", said Mr. Lane.

He added that premier John Robarts had stated that the airport would bring some 300,000 persons to the area of the chosen site.

And the five man committee believes that the southern Ontario region of Northumberland-Hastings should be the site.

"Such a site as we have chosen would not be congested like the metro centres", said Mr. Menzies.

The junction at which would be handling the transfer of freight from the new site must operate on a 24-hour basis according to Mr. Menzies.

"By 1980 we are in for a 10 fold increase in air freight transfer", he said, "and we have to have a site that can handle this influx.

The brief will be a formidable step in aid of procuring the airport for this area as Mr. Lane believes "the possibilities to come from this are endless".

The brief will not be made public until it is presented to cabinet and no date has been set for an expected response from the parliamentary body.

Hearing Slated For Wellington

WELLINGTON (Staff) — A public hearing to discuss the possibility of sewage works for the village of Wellington will be held on Jan. 13 in the village.

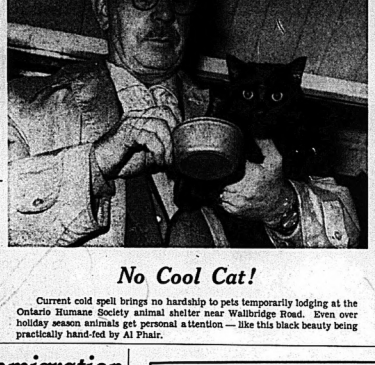
Plans have already been drawn up along with an engineer's report concerning sewage for the village and they have been forwarded to the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Approval for the project is required from the OWRC and the commission has announced that before any further action can be taken a public hearing on the matter must be held.

Almost 10 years ago in the village the council decided to put in a water system.

Although it went through and water was put in the village there was a fair amount of opposition to the decision.

At that time the sewage question also came up but council decided to do one thing at a time. It is not known what kind of a reception the sewage plan will receive from the villagers.



Plans of the proposal plan are available for scrutiny by the public at the office of the Municipal Clerk of the village of Wellington.

OMB Approves Tank For Deseronto Water System

DESERONTO — The Ontario Municipal Board has given approval for the construction of a $70,000 water tank for the town of Deseronto — the first step in an improved water system for the municipality.

Amalgamated Metal Industries and Lightfoot Construction Ltd. of Belleville were earlier awarded the contract in anticipation of the OMB approval which was received earlier this week.

Mayor James Sharpe says the town has been attempting for years to get started on a water and sewer system. Deseronto now has no sewer system and is badly in need of improved water service, according to the mayor.

Proctor-Silex Strikers Back on Picket Line

PICTON (Staff) — After a two day rest from a six month vigil over the entrance to the Proctor-Silex plant in Picton, strikers are again walking the line.

They did not picket on either Christmas Eve or Christmas Day. However a Boxing day saw them turn out in full force and they are still at it.

Thanks to donations from other unions, both local and across the province all of the strikers and their children had very Merry Christmases.

"Everyone was satisfied," said picketer Bonnie MacNaughton, "there were plenty of beautiful gifts."

Another striker, Norm Tustin, went a little further and said "I don't think I'd be wrong in saying that some of the people had a better Christmas this year than ever before."

"None of the kids was lacking anything with all the donations that came in. Each one received just as much from Santa Claus, if not more."

Hundreds of items of foodstuffs, toys and candies were sent to the Picton strikers from sympathetic persons all over the province.

Over 250 toys, almost 1,000 chocolate bars, 400 bags of caramel corn and hundreds of apples along with food made for a turkey dinner Christmas according to the strikers who are now back on the picket line in front of the entrance to the plant.

Most of the Christmas gifts had come from unions in Brockville and Hamilton.

Now with Christmas over the strikers are back on the line switching off every 15 minutes so they can stay warm.

One more holiday from picketing on New Year's Day and the 75 strikers will be into their second year of picketing.

Adult Retraining, Immigration Two Aspects of Program

Adult retraining and immigration settlement were two important aspects of the Belleville branch of the Canada Manpower Centre program this year.

In a year end report of branch activities H. W. Karn, local office manager said that during 1968 approximately 400 had been provided with basic education upgrading to high school level and in skill development courses in specialized fields.

Living allowances paid to such trainees added approximately one million dollars to the local economy this year alone.

Also during the year 442 manpower mobility grants were authorized by the Belleville office. There were 93 relocation grants authorized, 164 exploratory grants and 185 travel grants approved.

Relocation grants for adult trainees made it possible for job seekers to accept employment in Toronto, Ottawa, Galt, Owen Sound and Bruce Lake.

Four local OTA graduates of the welding course went to the last named centre having been chosen for the jobs over applicants with many years of experience.

The local Manpower Centre this year has been active in the immigrant settlement program and since early autumn many Czechoslovakian refugees have arrived in the Belleville area to find employment and set up new homes.

Mr. Karn paid tribute to the "Wonderful community spirit" displayed by local individuals and organizations in making these new Canadians feel welcome in the area.

However, the Czechoslovakian arrivals were only a small segment of the new Canadians welcomed in the Belleville area. Since July of the year 140 persons from 20 countries chose the Quinte area as their initial Canadian home.

Almost without exception these new Canadians possess skilled or professional qualifications such as nurses, teachers, technologists, machinists, tool and die making and plant maintenance experience.

"In this respect alone, our local economy will receive great benefits, not to mention future cultural and social advantages which will be gained in the years ahead."

Mr. Karn said there appeared to be still some confusion about the specific roles of the Canada Manpower Centre and the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

He said these two offices had been separated for the past two years with the Unemployment Insurance Commission office having been moved to 86 Clarence Street, Kingston. However, the Local Manpower office still co-operates with the Kingston office and has the necessary forms on hand for jobless people to file claims.

Although the Federal Government winter works programs have been discontinued, Mr. Karn said there is still a Belleville and District Winter Employment Campaign Committee which assists in solving some of the problems encountered during the winter and early spring.

During the past year the local Manpower Centre has placed 2,141 persons in jobs, made 400 visits to employers while office counsellors presented 35 talks to student bodies in area high schools and at Loyalist College.

Vineyards Flourish In Okanagan

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP) — Vineyards are flourishing in British Columbia's Okanagan Valley.

Some growers say that B.C. will soon supplant Ontario as Canada's leading wine-making province; others feel this is a long time off. But they all agree it will happen eventually.

Today, British Columbia has more than 2,000 acres of vineyards, a far cry from Ontario's 22,000.

But the Okanagan is catching up, both in acreage and per acre yields, says Henryk Schoenfeld of nearby Westbank, home of Mission Hill Wines Ltd.

Mr. Schoenfeld, a former Ontario resident, says better soil, varieties of grapes and better climate make the area more suitable for vineyards than Ontario. It is also virtually free of mildew and other vine diseases.

Grape production has made impressive gains in the Okanagan during the last eight years, but the total production of 5,000 tons—most of it from immature plantings—has a long way to go to beat Ontario's production of 60,000 tons a year.

B.C. is gradually narrowing the acreage gap. Vineyards covered only 425 acres in 1952 but today they occupy 2,500. And they are increasing by about 400 acres a year and producing better grapes, says Tony Biollo, manager of Casabello Wines Ltd. in Penticton.

He says the value of the grapes now produced is $320,000, but new plantings should be producing $1,000,000 worth of grapes in two years.

"For us to catch up to Ontario would take a long time," he said. "We haven't got the land in the valley unless we pull out a heck of a lot of orchards.

"But the quality of the newer plantings is tops. We are using French hybrids and Reisling grapes that give us a European flavor and North American hardiness.

"If we can give our grapes the right type of protection and handling we will soon be producing wines equal to the finest of anywhere in Europe. They've been at it hundreds of years and we have been growing European varieties only five to 10 years, but we are gaining."

The provincial government is toying with a plan to grow grapes on thousands of acres of Okanagan sagebrush by diverting water from the Shuswap River to Okanagan Lake in a canal that would provide irrigation water.

"Our greatest need today is for more land for grape growing," says Agriculture Minister Frank Richter. "We are far short of our requirement now and have to turn to California for much of the grape supply for our wineries."

The B.C. liquor control board currently allows the province's six wineries to import 40 per cent of their grapes from California.

Apollo Mission

In the successful flight of Apollo 8 to within 60 miles of the surface of the moon, the orbiting of the lunar planet and the photographic survey of its forbidding landscape by three U.S. astronauts, man has completed his greatest voyage of exploration thus far.

We say it is the greatest . . . and yet ironically it could have been one of the easiest. When Columbus (and a handful of Vikings before him) set sail for America, when Magellan rounded Cape Horn, when Cartier and Mackenzie made their way across this country, when Scott pitted himself against the Antarctic and when Livingstone faced the jungles of Africa . . . in terms of physical hardship and difficulty these men accomplished much more.

The marvels of science and engineering enabled astronauts Borman, Lovell and Anders to steer a rocket ship more than 240,000 miles into outer space, circle the moon and return to earth, all in the space of a week. About the only discomfort they suffered in that time was a bout of flu and occasional fatigue.

Nevertheless the flight in every other sense was the most formidable adventure yet undertaken by man. Its success renders virtually certain an actual landing by astronauts on the moon in a few months time. What benefit such a visitation to the lunar planet will confer on mankind generally is not yet known. The astronauts themselves, gazing upon the heavenly body, made it clear they think the earth is the more desirable of the two. Here is the world of man that apparently exists on no other planet, and this is where they want to remain.

Yet it is man's destiny to reach out beyond himself and his immediate environs. Science stands to gain much from what the Apollo 8 and succeeding missions discover. The Apollo 8 mission was an extraordinary achievement, both in terms of scientific capability and of human endeavor. We salute the astronauts, three men who while reaching for the heavens had their thoughts on the ground and their faith in the hands of a supreme being.

Inner Strength

Nobility is a delicate flower in human nature. It is also rare. For all the pain and friction, the hate and the animosity that often seem to outweigh life's more pleasurable experiences, nobility may still be found amid the daily round and common task.

Occasionally an individual will reflect this quality, and it is easily recognized when encountered. Mrs. Martin Luther King, widow of the civil rights leader, is such a person.

Mrs. King's dignity, and the creation she gave at the time of her husband's death, will long be remembered. It was the same in a Christmas television interview, sitting in her home surrounded by her young family, the eldest aged 13.

Mrs. King has about her an aura of compassion and inner strength. She is also a woman of intelligence and extraordinary insight, gifted with words and in expressing herself.

Some of the things she said the other night attest to these qualities: "Unearned suffering is redemptive . . . My husband's death will bring about some of the changes that are necessary . . . We tend to hear the people who speak loudest — like the black militants — but we all have the same goal. . ."

In her uncomplaining approach to the world, the courage of Mrs. King is like that of two other young women who lost husbands and fathers: Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy (now Mrs. Aristotle Onassis) and Mrs. Ethel Kennedy.

Yet there is nothing submissive about her. Today the civil rights movement has in Mrs. King one of its principal champions, albeit one who places greater emphasis on the dignity of man than on militancy.

U.S. Tennis Win

In the world of tennis the big names these days have virtually all joined the professional ranks. Thus, unlike previous years, the Australian Davis Cup team which has gone down to defeat at the hands of the United States did not boast a single "name" player. The Americans on the other hand included two experienced men in Arthur Ashe (who incidentally has proved himself a match for many of the professionals) and Clark Graebner. Compared with previous encounters the Australians were young and raw. Still, as experience has shown they learn fast on the courts "down under." Next year could be different. After all, the Americans are taking the cup home for only the fourth time in the past 51 years. The Australians won all the other encounters.

Do Donald Fleming's New Rugs Cover Up A Lovely Spot?

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Remember the finance minister with the hole in his office rug?

If you are a housewife watching the cost-of-living soar, or a wage or salary earner seeing the buying-power of the dollar fall, then Hon Don Fleming, KC, PC, ought to be one of your heroes.

For he was the last of the federal finance ministers able to hold the cost-price wage line and protect the purchasing value of the dollar against inflation.

The hole in his Confederation Building office rug he regarded with some pride as a sort of flag to be flown by any finance minister in the fight for the taxpayers against waste and extravagance.

He ran the federal finances from 1957 to '62 with such a tight fist that his cabinet colleagues in despair finally took to waiting until he was out of the Capital before attempting to get some departmental spending money out of the treasury board.

And as long as there was that hole in his rug, nobody in the cabinet, not even Prime Minister Diefenbaker, cared to risk his righteous wrath by refurnishing the executive suite. (What changes since love been wrought!)

Donald Fleming, closing the last of his 18 Ottawa years as justice minister, did not contest the '63 election, returning instead to Toronto and his law practice.

Encouraged, perhaps against his better judgment, by the pledge of majority support in the party's parliamentary caucus, he ran — but far out of the winning money — in the Conservative leadership race last year.

The last-minute entries of Mitchell Sharp, Premier Duff Robin and Nova Scotia Premier Robert Stanfield drained off Donald Fleming's pledged western and maritime support, and much of what they left him was channelled away when Dief, on the very morning of the voting day-of-decision tried, forlornly, for reconciliation as The Chief.

That was it — or was it? — for Donald Fleming and national politics.

He left Toronto and Canada for Nassau in The Bahamas, so quietly — little was made of it except in the financial pages of the metro press — that people, if they thought about him at all, may have wondered whatever happened to Donald Fleming.

The answer to that one is plenty. And all of it for the best, at least financially.

The Honorable Donald Methuen Fleming is a boss banker wearing two hats

One is that of "General Counsel for the Bank of Nova Scotia in Executive, Financial and Other Matters in The Bahamas, Islands of the West Indies and the Caribbean."

(Yes, that is the title on the door.)

The other is "Managing Director of the Bank of Nova Scotia Trust Company in The Bahamas, Jamaica, The Caymans, Grenada and Trinidad."

Right off the top let it be said there are no holes now in Donald Fleming's office rug, a rivet thick, blond woolly carpet, wall-to-wall, in his executive den atop the Bernard Seiler Building in Nassau's heart-of-town Rawson Square, with a glorious harbor view sweeping from one end of Paradise Island to the other.

Immediately below his canopied sun deck sprawl the Prince George piers where the cruise ships dock.

He gets to this luxury executive suite by way of his own private elevator.

A crowning touch perhaps might be the huge marble washstand with its gold-colored taps and the other bathroom fixtures in old English Royal Doulton.

From this corporate eyrie, he flies or sails forth on inspection tours of Scotiabank establishments from Grand Bahama and Bimini to Trinidad and Tobago — or more conveniently, has the branch managers come in from all across the Caribbean and gather round his chairman-of-the-board executive table.

What of Donald Fleming at home?

Picture this . . .

. . . You walk through cream-colored walls curtained with bougainvillaea and across a sun - splashed courtyard landscaped with hibiscus, a pair of grandstand and two orange trees adding a practical breakfast touch.

. . . from the door you get a look-through view across a lovely picture-window living room to the emerald green sea, whispering in and creeming softly on his private beach of talcum powder sand.

. . . there are four bedrooms, three bathrooms, two kitchens, a study and den, utility room and guest house, all air-conditioned.

. . . another residence, two pools along the beach, is on the real estate market, wearing a price tag of $600,000.

Donald Fleming plays golf at Lyford Cay which, according to a global survey made by The London Daily Express which flew in a man for a look - see, is the world's most exclusive club-resort with beach lots going for an average of $1,000 per waterfront foot, and a membership including Henry Ford and Aristotle Onassis.

The man who used to have a hole in his office rug lunches at the East Hill club where once Lord Beaverbrook wintered in splendor-without-price.

You would say that Donald Fleming had it made.

And perhaps he has—but there is this — his pictures are all of Donald Fleming's Ottawa days. Pictures with the Queen, with Kennedy, with Dief and the old Conservative cabinet.

You get the feeling that he might be lonely, and you come away wondering whether he is really through with politics, or whether time and circumstance propitious, he might not return to public service.

Today In History

Yonge Street, the road from York, now Toronto, to Lake Simcoe, a distance of 50 miles, was begun 173 years ago today—in 1795. The road ordered by Governor Simcoe was completed by April of the following year. Col. Simcoe named it for Sir George Yonge, then secretary of state for war in the British government. One of the earliest highways in Canada, it is still one of the most important roads in Ontario.

1963— Westminster Abbey was founded by Edward the Confessor.

1862 — Spain recognized Mexico's independence.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder was appointed deputy to supreme commander Gen. Eisenhower; Ortona, Italy, was captured by Canadian troops; Allied headquarters announced that Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar was to be in command of the Canadian Corps in Italy; the Russian army advanced to within 18 miles of Zhitomar.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—British warships and coastal command planes sank three German destroyers and a German blockade runner; War Secretary Stinson of the U.S. announced that the head of the railway unions had agreed to call off a strike vote for Dec. 30; a large force of RAF bombers, including the biggest force the RCAF ever sent out, bombed Berlin.

Pistol Packing Scotsman

Montreal Gazette

The British Home Office seems a little careless these days. They placed no obstacles at all in the way of a sale at Sotheby's, the famous auction house the other day.

The sale was of a pair of "pocket pistols," ornamented in gold and made in Paris in 1740. They were bought by a Scotsman. The pistols were made for Bonnie Prince Charlie and carried, by him, in "The '45", his romantic attempt to gain the throne of the United Kingdom.

With Scots nationalism on the rise, could the pistols become the symbols of the new movement?

Perhaps the Home Office relies on Scots to remember what happened to their first owner.

North Korean Harassment
Pueblo Incident Was Hard Lesson for U.S. to Swallow

By Arch MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—The release of the crew of the U.S. spy ship Pueblo ends one of the more bizarre and embarrassing incidents in recent years, one that sorely tried the patience of some Americans.

"This has been a most frustrating episode," State Secretary Dean Rusk said in a special word of thanks to the public.

"There have been a few among us who counselled either violent reprisals, which could not save the men, or abject surrender to North Korean demands. But the great majority of our people have kept their heads."

The North Korean act was viewed as a throwback to the days when Barbary Coast pirates harried international shipping at will.

It became a leading item in the catalogue of mistakes attributed to President Johnson's administration by critics.

It was referred to regularly in Congress. The wife of the Pueblo captain, Mrs. Lloyd Bucher, helped keep the issue before the public with visits to the state department, letters and attendance at special Pueblo protest meetings.

"It was like a fable right out of Aesop," recalled the Washington Post. "The tiny mouse had his sharp teeth in the tail of the big powerful lion and just wouldn't let go until he felt like it."

The U.S. continues to insist the Pueblo did not violate the 12 mile territorial limit claimed by Communist and many other countries.

Seizure of the 83-man crew led to the U.S. drastically altering its policy of putting such lightly-armed slow vessels into vulerable position.

The Soviet Union, which has as many or more electronic snooper vessels in the world's oceans as the U.S., also has changed its formula for operating close to shore as a precaution against getting one of its ships in the same bind.

Complicating the recovery was the fact that North Korea, under the iron rule of Stalinist dictator Kim Il Sung, has been taking a standoffish attitude toward both the Soviet Union and Independence.

There was evidenly not much Russia could or would do to intercede on the U.S. behalf, anxious as it was not to be dragged by its defence treaty with North Korea into any shooting war that developed. That treaty also loomed large in exercising U.S. restraint.

For direct talks with North Korea, the Korean War is still on. There are still 50,000 American troops south of Korea and action every night along the North-South border.

That is why the Pueblo was off the North Korean coast exactly 11 months ago and why it was seized there.

'God and I Church Dropouts' Says Former Anglican Priest

VANCOUVER (CP) — "Well, there's one thing that God and I have in common," sighed former Anglican priest Jim McKibbon as he stared reflectively into a glass of excellent sherry.

We're both church dropouts."

Mr. McKibbon, 37, quit the priesthood this year after a decade of service and in the process stirred up a controversy over clerical freedom that rocked the Anglican Church in Canada from steeple to pew.

"My most pessimistic thought is that the church cannot or will not be reformed," the priest-turned-broadcaster said in an interview at his immaculately furnished apartment in the city's fashionable university district.

"I left the church with a feeling of immense relief, elation almost. The church in Canada is a captive of the bourgeoisie — it reflects nothing but middle-class values and it is destroying itself."

Views like this led inevitably to a collision between the handsome liberal theologian from London, Ont., and the more conservative Anglican hierarchy.

Mr. McKibbon started speaking his mind the instant he arrived in Vancouver from Ontario almost three years ago to take over as rector of St. Anselm's Church.

St. Anselm's is the type of church any rising young Anglican minister would love to build his life around. It's a cornerstone of Vancouver's refined and relatively wealthy upper-middle-class academic community.

But it just wasn't Jim McKibbon's cup of tea.

His Sunday sermons were spiced liberally with pointed opinions on the war in Vietnam, "Victorian codes of sexual morality," ill-treatment of hippies and the reticence of the church in bringing itself "out of the 18th and into the 20th century."

"There are three things an Anglican minister cannot talk about without getting into trouble: sex, politics and religion," said Mr. McKibbon.

"In other words, you are prohibited from discussing the most pressing moral, philosophical and social problems of our time."

Born and raised in London, Mr. McKibbon launched what promised to be a brilliant clerical career after graduating from the University of Western Ontario and the Huron Theological College.

He served parishes in Brantford and Kitchener, Ont., and was Anglican chaplain at the University of Waterloo, later returning to London where he became assistant minister of St. John the Evangelist Church and Student Christian Movement chaplain at Western University.

In 1965 he joined three other Lenten Lectures Presidents clergymen for a trip to Alabama where they took part in the late Dr. Martin Luther King's march on Selma.

"It was a strange and enlightening experience," he said. "The situation at that time was far worse than we had imagined and as Canadians it gave us a cultural jolt."

Shortly after arriving in Vancouver with his wife Gundred in March, 1966, Mr. McKibbon was inducted as St. Anselm's rector by Rt. Rev. Godfrey P. Gower, Bishop of New Westminster.

Eight months later the two men were involved in a bitter battle over the freedom of Anglican clergymen to say what they wanted when they felt like it.

The storm signals went up in November, 1966, when Mr. McKibbon took part in what was billed as a "psychedelic worship service" on a Friday night at nearby University Hill United Church.

The service, put together by Mr. McKibbon and his good friend Rev. Harold MacRay of University Hill, featured music by an "acid rock" band, dancing, a psychedelic light show and a go-go dancer from the Shanghai Junk nightclub. Mr. McKibbon said the service, which was televised nationally by the CBC the following Sunday, was a legitimate attempt at finding new forms of worship.

"It was intensely religious because it dealt with human emotions and that is what religion is all about," said the former rector.

Bishop Gower was sharply critical of Mr. McKibbon's involvement in the psychedelic service and the publicity it received. Insisting on the principle of clerical obedience, the head of the New Westminster diocese ordered the St. Anselm's rector to get prior approval for public appearances and experimental services.

St. Anselm's parishioners confirmed Mr. McKibbon in his post, but admonished him to obey the bishop, though he claimed he was being dazed and that the decree amounted to censorship.

He challenged the church to hold a heresy trial to determine who the real heretics are—the radical reformers or the fundamentalist conservatives. He fired a broadside at the church over its reticence on taxation of church property. And he attacked police for their handling of the city's burgeoning hippie problem.

The final break came this year, when 183 alarmed parishioners decided to take a mail ballot on whether or not he should remain in his post. Jim McKibbon beat them to the punch. He quit.

He said that following the psychedelic controversy a number of influential members withdrew their financial support. One man sent a $1,500 cheque to Bishop Gower with instructions that it was not to be used for St. Anselm's as long as Mr. McKibbon was minister.

"The economic withdrawal was highly effective, although we could have continued without this support. But it made a lot of other people in the congregation uncomfortable and the atmosphere was untenable."

Since leaving Mr. McKibbon, who is still technically on an indefinite leave of absence from the active ministry, has continued his broadsides against the church. He is building a successful career as a radio and television interviewer with the CBC in Vancouver.

"I go to church irregularly now," he said after a long, introspective pause for another sip of sherry. "Maybe once every three weeks.

"I see the same people. The middle-aged women, the old-age pensioners. Everybody is over 50. Where are all the young people, the kids that really count? They're on the outside looking in, like I am.

"I guess that they, too, know that God is a church dropout."

Jehovah Witnesses Will Gather Here For January Parley

Belleville will once again be host to some 500 Jehovah's Witnesses from surrounding communities on January 24, 25, 26, according to Mr. Thor Jensen, the local presiding minister of the group. The occasion is the Witnesses' semi-annual circuit convention being held at Moira Secondary School.

The convention has two purposes," remarked Mr. Jensen. "One is to help us improve our public ministry. The second is to encourage family unity at a time when many homes are simply filling a location where each family member comes and goes, absorbed in his individual interests, but rarely sharing with the rest of the family in a common interest."

Bonarlaw Personals

BONARLAW — Mr. and Mrs. James Meneely, Jerry of Oshawa, visited Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burkitt on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Heath, Lindsay, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Heath, Picton, Mr. and Mrs Don Case, Kingston, were guests with Mr. and Mrs. Everett Heath.

Burns – Ross

Rev. J. W. Hobbs assisted by Rev. A. S. McConnell officiated at the December wedding in St. Mark's United Church, Cannifton, when he united in marriage Linda Ruth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl H. Ross, of Corbyville, to James Ernest Burns, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Arthur Burns, of R.R. 5, Belleville. Organist Mrs. H. Farnham rendered appropriate nuptial selections, while the soloist was Miss Katherine Burnside of Madoc.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length short sleeved gown in A-line style. It featured a chapel train in matching organza fabric with Belgian lacette, and the lacette was repeated on the bodice and sleeve of the gown. The jewelled neckline further enhanced the gown, as did the tiered finger tip tulle veil, which fell from a cluster of rosebuds. The bride carried a bouquet of red roses.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Gary Ross, sister-in-law of the bride, of Belleville, wore a full-length light blue crystalline gown with royal blue velvet bodice with silver braid trim and matching petal headdress. She carried a bouquet of tinted mums.

Bridesmaids, the Misses Linda Martin of Corbyville and Janet Ross, sister of the bride, were gowns identical to that of the matron of honor. The ringbearer for the ceremony was Master James Ross, brother of the bride.

Best man for the ceremony was Robert Burns, of Toronto, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Gary Ross, of Belleville, brother of the bride and Wallie Hersberger, of Kitchener.

For the reception at Gilead Hall, the mother of the bride received the guests in a two-piece pink dress and jacket ensemble, with rolled beaded neckline and empire waist, completed by a winter white hat and black and white accessories. A corsage of white mums completed her ensemble. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom wore a peacock blue bonded crepe dress, feathered hat and corsage of white bronze-tinted mums.

For the wedding trip to Florida, the bride donned a gold wool coat with a ruffle trim for hat and matching brown accessories. A corsage of bronze roses added the finishing touch to her attire.

Upon their return, the couple will reside at 544 Dundas St. East in Belleville.

Iran Women's Groups Object to Mini Skirts

TEHRAN (Reuters) — Civic groups and women's societies have launched a campaign throughout Iran to ban the mini-skirt.

They argue that the Iranian Obscenity Act which calls for fines or prison terms for indecent exposure should be invoked, but the government so far has not banned mini-skirts except for schoolgirls and teachers during classes.

Both the girls and their teachers have found a way to escape the ban by wearing thigh-high boots. In addition, they are asking at what height above the knee a skirt becomes mini.

Fashion has moved toward long boots and shoemakers are working overtime to meet the market demand.

Maxi-boots are not only an accessory to mini-skirts but good protection against winter snow and rain in Tehran.

The town councils and women's societies that have taken up arms against mini-skirts claim they represent a fashion "totally foreign to Iranian society and its culture."

Women of the World Who Make News

By CAROL KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Women made every kind of news from politics to sport in 1968, but the year will be remembered for the most talked-about wedding since King Edward VIII gave up his throne for Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

After a cliff-hanging, will-they-won't-they serial between Jacqueline Kennedy and Britain's Lord Harlech, the world's most famous widow caught everyone on the hop when she announced her whirlwind October wedding to Greek shipowner Aristotle Onassis.

The match aroused emotions around the world comparable to the royal romance of 1936. Thousands to whom President John F. Kennedy's widow was virtually an uncrowned queen felt she had abdicated her special place in public esteem by wedding such a controversial figure as Onassis. His dealings had once brought him into conflict with the United States government and the gossip columns had fed for 11 years upon his friendship with opera star Maria Callas.

"Jackie, How Could You?" headlined one European paper, summing up the emotional reaction of the "antis."

Amid the criticism, there were those who took the view this marriage would at least ensure Jackie the privacy she had been denied during five years of widowhood. But the glare of publicity continued as a religious furore burst over the match with the divorced Onassis, who follows the Greek Orthodox faith. The Vatican finally ruled Jackie was a "public sinner" but said she would not necessarily be excommunicated from the Roman Catholic Church.

Meanwhile, a new First Lady prepared to move into Washington. Observers predicted a conservative new era under the one-time California school teacher Pat Nixon and her daughters Tricia and Julie, with knee-length skirts and a chintzy White House setting the style.

Lady Bird Johnson's five years would likely be remembered more for her beautify-America schemes than for any personal stamp on society. But she has been a popular figure and commentators have remarked how little of the criticism heaped on her husband has rubbed off on her.

Canada's royal commission on the status of women and a number of industrial incidents in Britain, reflected a new preoccupation with the struggle for sex equality—appropriately enough marking the 50th anniversary year of votes for women.

Bus drivers in a Norfolk port threatened to paralyse the city transport when a woman tried to join their number. A strike of women machinists at British Ford automobile plant strangled production for several weeks until Barbara Castle solved it over a tea-party talk.

Mrs. Castle continued her trail-blazing progress through the British government by moving from the transport ministry to cover all responsibility for labor relations and productivity, a job her male predecessor once described as "a bed of nails."

Judith Hart, 44, became the second woman in Harold Wilson's cabinet when she stepped up to paymaster general from her junior ministerial slot in the Commonwealth office. Like Barbara Castle, she is a Lancashire lass with a reputation as a fighter. In her new job she will concentrate on youth affairs.

Another fighting woman in British headlines was Mrs. Lilian (Big Lil) Bilocca, who faced threats against her life when she headed a protest march to Parliament of Hull trawlermen's wives. They demanded better safety rules after two trawlers sank with nearly all lives lost. But the trawler crews resented their interference, fearing it would affect their livelihood in the competitive privately owned fleets.

Two members of Britain's permissive pop society declared their intentions of having illegitimate children by Beatle John Lennon and Rolling Stone Mick Jagger. The respective mothers-to-be, Yoko Ono and Marianne Faithfull, both suffered miscarriages.

Italy's glamorous Sophia Loren, 34, anxiously awaited the new year hoping for the birth of a child after three previous miscarriages.

The 1968 Olympics gave women of many countries their supreme chance to shine. Canada's gold medal skier Nancy Greene became a star attraction at the Grenoble Winter Olympics along with French glamor-boy Jean-Claude Killy.

In Mexico, a popular Olympics star was Vera Caslavska of Czechoslovakia, winner of the over-all gymnastics title and gold medallist in several other categories. Vera, who mixed romance with sporting prestige by marrying a fellow Czech athlete in Mexico, scored her victories despite missing four weeks' training during the Soviet invasion of her country in August.

Also in the sporting field, Kathy Kusner of Maryland became her country's first woman jockey, but ran into stonewalling male prejudice when she attempted to ride in her first race.

Public Speaking Comes Easier When Knowing the Subject

By DORIS CLARK

Not long ago I mentioned a humdinger of a Sunday School teacher" who was always nervous when she stood up in front of our class. I sent her the clipping when it appeared and asked if she might have any additional ideas for those of us who find public speaking a trial.

Here is her reply:

Doris, My Dear:

I follow everything you do with interest and admiration. I thought your answer to "Jitters On My Feet" was excellent. You flatter me to think I could add anything helpful to it.

One must know her subject and more and more I realize how important it is to enunciate clearly and speak slowly and loudly so that everyone can hear.

Through the years it became easier for me when I realized I wasn't trying to impress anyone with my wisdom. Rather, I was just the medium through which the message was being transmitted, and if you really and truly know what you were trying to say (preparation is so important, even to looking one's best) then the medium would do a good job.

It is like music from a piano. If you know your music and the piano is in tune, the result will be good. To forget self, and the impression you are going to make, is one of the first rules. My simple little last minute prayer used to be, "Use me, and say what you want said through me, my Father."

That might not be the answer to a nervous little teenager, inexperienced and afraid! Maybe she should write word for word, write it two or three times, read and reread, and if at all possible, finally just make headings.

I think it is frightfully important to stand and take a good look at her audience before she says a word. If her heart is thumping, smile and tell them so. Right there and then she will establish a sympathetic bond between them that will strengthen her.

Finally, don't say "Never again!" but stick at it. Each time will be easier and, as she forgets self, she will begin to wonder why she ever found it so difficult.

If after all this it becomes more and more difficult, then maybe she should realize that both Martha and Mary have their work to do, and her job may not be public speaking.

Doris, dear, have you gone to sleep over this lengthy say-so? If so, I don't blame you, and, fortunately, I won't know!

(Do those words of wisdom inspire any budding orator to say "Yes" next time asked to "say a few words"? Let's hear from some of those who have "stuck at it" — and son!)

Preparing Vegetables Presents A Problem

By MARY MOORE

My niece Bev said "Now all I have to worry about is the vegetables." You see for the first time she is having New Year's dinner in her new home. Her mother is "doing" the turkey. I made her a Dark Blond Florida Fruit cake but those "veges" presented a problem to her.

Do you girls have vegetable troubles? They are such an important part of a festive dinner because they add that living color.

In my New Year's dinner menu suggested yesterday I included stuffed Sweet Potatoes (see Nov. 5, 1960). Spinach Rosemary (see below) and Perfection Salad (see below). Shirley looked up with her big brown eyes and asked "May I be so bold as to ask just what Spinach Rosemary is?"

Well Spinach Rosemary is cooked spinach with some rosemary added but for our young amateur cooks dutifully I will give you the details.

SPINACH ROSEMARY
(Serves 6)

2 lbs. raw spinach
1 egg
1 tbsp. freeze-dried chives
2 tbsps. butter
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. rosemary

Wash spinach well and remove coarse stems. Drain and cook covered in large saucepan in only the water that clings to the leaves. Turn it over once and as soon as it wilts drain through sieve and return to saucepan and chop while adding egg and mix in thoroughly. Add remaining ingredients and reheat, stirring constantly.

PERFECTION SALAD
Mix 2 envelopes (3 tbsps.) unflavored gelatine, ¼ cup sugar and 1 tsp. salt. Add 1½ cups boiling water and stir to dissolve gelatine. Then add 1¼ cups cold water, ½ cup vinegar and 2 tbsps. lemon juice. Chill until partially set. Add 2 cups finely shredded cabbage, 1 cup chopped celery, ¼ cup chopped green pepper, ¼ cup canned pimiento coarsely chopped, and 1-3 cup sliced stuffed olives. Pour into an oiled loaf pan or mould which will turn out neatly and look best on your prettiest salad plate. Chill until firm. Garnish with carrot curls and or ripe olives.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I was busy getting dinner and Jenny almost drank some of the laundry bleach that I keep under the sink. I can't watch her every minute."

Accidental poisoning is the most common nonsurgical emergency in childhood. About one million U.S. children are treated for it each year.

You may not be able to watch a toddler every minute, but you can move cleansers and poisonous items to a spot that's out of a 2-year-old's reach.

BC Woman Receives Fellowship

TORONTO (CP) — Lois M. Haggen of Grand Forks, BC, a former member of the British Columbia legislature, has been awarded a $500 fellowship for outstanding public service.

The award, made annually by the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, is called the United Nations fellowship.

Mrs. Haggen, as winner of the award which involves a $500 grant and a travelling allowance, will attend the sessions of the status of women comission at the UN, starting Jan. 27.

She was a member of the legislature from 1956 to 1966, serving her last term as a member of the New Democratic Party. Her late husband also was a member of the legislature.

Mrs. Haggen was defeated by 19 votes in a recent bid for mayor of Grand Forks.

PURE IS BEST

Landmarks Business of Nonagenarian

WINNIPEG (CP) — Floyd E. (Buck) Buckham's work continues to stand. Landmarks were his business.

"I put up so doggone many I can't remember them all," says the 90-year-old who retired when he was 95 and wishes he were still working.

Mr. Buckham supervised the steel work on many of Winnipeg's best-known structures, including placing the "golden boy" atop the provincial legislature.

His work on buildings that later became landmarks began here in 1907 after he learned his trade by working on railway structures in the United States and Canada and on Lakehead grain elevators.

"You can't get it out of a book," he says.

Born in 1870 at Rockport, Miss., Mr. Buckham recalls working as a muleskinner and at 14 helping his uncle drive 385 cattle to Kansas City. He joined his father in railway construction when he was 17.

Mr. Buckham "put up" Winnipeg's Amphitheatre in 1909—and almost half a century later supervised its demolition to make way for the Great West Life building.

He built and demolished the former Orpheum Theatre and the grandstand at Polo Park, now a shopping centre. Other buildings include the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, the Canadian National station, the Royal Bank building on Portage Avenue, a number of churches, the setting or resetting of statuary on the legislative grounds and later the installation of vaults and safes.

"Buying equipment always kept me broke. It was so expensive," he recalls.

His last job was the building of a 15-ton derrick at Riverton, Man., in 1965. He retired soon after.

His first overnight stay in hospital came last year when he had cataracts removed from his eyes.

His comments on life today include:

Modern women — "I think they're the same as they always were under those modern trappings."

Mini-skirts—"If they like them that way, that's their business."

Long hair on men—"It's a passing fad. I like mine cut short. But I don't like these dangled safety razors."

Reason for his longevity—"I always had hard work to keep me out of mischief."

Television—"I watch when there are any good programs."

Place of Residence Upsets Children

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We moved to this fine city during the summer and have found it friendly place. We want to stay here for both business and social reasons but our children are miserable.

John and Mary are respectful, well-behaved children who have never been in any kind of trouble. They have always loved school. Now they hate it. Every morning one or the other (or both) complains of a headache or a stomache — anything to stay home. Last week we got to the root of the problem. The teachers in both the third and the fifth grade seat the students according to academic standing. The moment a person walks into the classroom he can see who the "smart" ones are and who the "dumb" ones are.

Our son happens to be a bright student so we know he is not "sour grapes." He says he feels sorry for the kids who are in the "dunce seats" as he calls them and we believe him. Our daughter started out somewhere in the middle but has steadily been moved back. Now she is in the "book row."

My husband is ready to ask his boss for a transfer. He says he can't be happy when his kids are miserable. What do you suggest? — LUBBOCK MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: I agree that this academic caste system is a poor one and ought to be abolished. A committee of mothers who share your point of view should discuss this discriminatory seating arrangement with the teacher. If you fail to get satisfaction, go to the principal.

As a rule I am opposed to parents taking their children's side against teachers because the teacher is usually right. In this instance, however, I feel the children's objections are valid.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You receive many letters from teen-age girls who want to go steady but whose parents are against it. This is a letter from a girl who does not want to go steady, but whose parents insist. Will you help me?

My mother and father were born in another country. They say a girl should go with one boy at a time or she will get a bad reputation. They have the idea that a girl who dates several boys gets asked out because the boys who have scored pass the word around.

I'm 16 years old now and there is no one person I want to date exclusively. The boy my mother thinks I should go steady with is the most sexy maniac in the whole school but she doesn't know it and I wouldn't tell her. He has told my mother he'd like me as his steady girl and now she won't lay off my back. Please help me. — NEED YOU.

DEAR NEED: I don't approve of going steady and I have spelled out the reasons in this column many times. On the other hand, I don't approve of a girl dating 12 different fellows within two weeks either.

The ideal arrangement is to go with five or six different boys aand not get too chummy with any of them.

YOUR ANTIQUES

by Jack Jamieson

Colored Glass Balls Most Common Ornament

Colored and silvered glass balls are among the commonest ornaments associated with Christmas. Their exact origin is obscure. It is thought that the majority of blown glass ornaments were made in Lauscha in Thuringerwald, a small town in the mountains of East Germany.

Glass-blowing in Lauscha is said to have been a cottage industry in which whole families participated. In 1907 it was published that the local glassblowers had the second lowest German incidence of tuberculosis recorded in 1900, so well, and the impression you are going to make, is one of the first rules. My simple little last minute prayer used to be, "Use me, and say what you want said through me, my Father."

Mother: "I was busy getting dinner and Jenny almost drank some of the laundry bleach that I keep under the sink. I can't watch her every minute."

Accidental poisoning is the most common nonsurgical emergency in childhood. About one million U.S. children are treated for it each year.

You may not be able to watch a toddler every minute, but you can move cleansers and poisonous items to a spot that's out of a 2-year-old's reach.

BC Woman Receives Fellowship

TORONTO (CP) — Lois M. Haggen of Grand Forks, BC, a former member of the British Columbia legislature, has been awarded a $500 fellowship for outstanding public service.

The award, made annually by the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, is called the United Nations fellowship.

Mrs. Haggen, as winner of the award which involves a $500 grant and a travelling allowance, will attend the sessions of the status of women comission at the UN, starting Jan. 27.

She was a member of the legislature from 1956 to 1966, serving her last term as a member of the New Democratic Party. Her late husband also was a member of the legislature.

Mrs. Haggen was defeated by 19 votes in a recent bid for mayor of Grand Forks.

Landmarks Business of Nonagenarian

WINNIPEG (CP) — Floyd E. (Buck) Buckham's work continues to stand. Landmarks were his business.

"I put up so doggone many I can't remember them all," says the 90-year-old who retired when he was 95 and wishes he were still working.

Mr. Buckham supervised the steel work on many of Winnipeg's best-known structures, including placing the "golden boy" atop the provincial legislature.

His work on buildings that later became landmarks began here in 1907 after he learned his trade by working on railway structures in the United States and Canada and on Lakehead grain elevators.

"You can't get it out of a book," he says.

Born in 1870 at Rockport, Miss., Mr. Buckham recalls working as a muleskinner and at 14 helping his uncle drive 385 cattle to Kansas City. He joined his father in railway construction when he was 17.

Mr. Buckham "put up" Winnipeg's Amphitheatre in 1909—and almost half a century later supervised its demolition to make way for the Great West Life building.

He built and demolished the former Orpheum Theatre and the grandstand at Polo Park, now a shopping centre. Other buildings include the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, the Canadian National station, the Royal Bank building on Portage Avenue, a number of churches, the setting or resetting of statuary on the legislative grounds and later the installation of vaults and safes.

"Buying equipment always kept me broke. It was so expensive," he recalls.

His last job was the building of a 15-ton derrick at Riverton, Man., in 1965. He retired soon after.

His first overnight stay in hospital came last year when he had cataracts removed from his eyes.

His comments on life today include:

Modern women — "I think they're the same as they always were under those modern trappings."

Mini-skirts—"If they like them that way, that's their business."

Long hair on men—"It's a passing fad. I like mine cut short. But I don't like these dangled safety razors."

Reason for his longevity—"I always had hard work to keep me out of mischief."

Television—"I watch when there are any good programs."

Place of Residence Upsets Children

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We moved to this fine city during the summer and have found it friendly place. We want to stay here for both business and social reasons but our children are miserable.

John and Mary are respectful, well-behaved children who have never been in any kind of trouble. They have always loved school. Now they hate it. Every morning one or the other (or both) complains of a headache or a stomache — anything to stay home. Last week we got to the root of the problem. The teachers in both the third and the fifth grade seat the students according to academic standing. The moment a person walks into the classroom he can see who the "smart" ones are and who the "dumb" ones are.

Our son happens to be a bright student so we know he is not "sour grapes." He says he feels sorry for the kids who are in the "dunce seats" as he calls them and we believe him. Our daughter started out somewhere in the middle but has steadily been moved back. Now she is in the "book row."

My husband is ready to ask his boss for a transfer. He says he can't be happy when his kids are miserable. What do you suggest? — LUBBOCK MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: I agree that this academic caste system is a poor one and ought to be abolished. A committee of mothers who share your point of view should discuss this discriminatory seating arrangement with the teacher. If you fail to get satisfaction, go to the principal.

As a rule I am opposed to parents taking their children's side against teachers because the teacher is usually right. In this instance, however, I feel the children's objections are valid.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You receive many letters from teen-age girls who want to go steady but whose parents are against it. This is a letter from a girl who does not want to go steady, but whose parents insist. Will you help me?

My mother and father were born in another country. They say a girl should go with one boy at a time or she will get a bad reputation. They have the idea that a girl who dates several boys gets asked out because the boys who have scored pass the word around.

I'm 16 years old now and there is no one person I want to date exclusively. The boy my mother thinks I should go steady with is the most sexy maniac in the whole school but she doesn't know it and I wouldn't tell her. He has told my mother he'd like me as his steady girl and now she won't lay off my back. Please help me. — NEED YOU.

DEAR NEED: I don't approve of going steady and I have spelled out the reasons in this column many times. On the other hand, I don't approve of a girl dating 12 different fellows within two weeks either.

The ideal arrangement is to go with five or six different boys aand not get too chummy with any of them.

Colored Glass Balls Most Common Ornament

Colored and silvered glass balls are among the commonest ornaments associated with Christmas. Their exact origin is obscure. It is thought that the majority of blown glass ornaments were made in Lauscha in Thuringerwald, a small town in the mountains of East Germany.

Glass-blowing in Lauscha is said to have been a cottage industry in which whole families participated. In 1907 it was published that the local glassblowers had the second lowest German incidence of tuberculosis recorded in 1900, so well, and the impression you are going to make, is one of the first rules. My simple little last minute prayer used to be, "Use me, and say what you want said through me, my Father."

That might not be the answer to a nervous little teenager, inexperienced and afraid! Maybe she should write word for word, write it two or three times, read and reread, and if at all possible, finally just make headings.

I think it is frightfully important to stand and take a good look at her audience before she says a word. If her heart is thumping, smile and tell them so. Right there and then she will establish a sympathetic bond between them that will strengthen her.

Finally, don't say "Never again!" but stick at it. Each time will be easier and, as she forgets self, she will begin to wonder why she ever found it so difficult.

If after all this it becomes more and more difficult, then maybe she should realize that both Martha and Mary have their work to do, and her job may not be public speaking.

Doris, dear, have you gone to sleep over this lengthy say-so? If so, I don't blame you, and, fortunately, I won't know!

(Do those words of wisdom inspire any budding orator to say "Yes" next time asked to "say a few words"? Let's hear from some of those who have "stuck at it" — and son!)

CF-5 Fighter-bombers Start Coming Off Production Line

OTTAWA (CP) — Short-range CF-5 fighter-bombers have started coming off the production line at Canadair Ltd. in Montreal but the defence department still has no idea what it is going to do with them, informed sources said Friday.

A total of 115 planes are to be built for Canada's air force at a cost of $230,000,000.

The CF-5, acquired by the Pearson government, was originally intended as a support plane for Canadian ground troops.

It is therefore of little or no use in Canada, military authorities say, because it is extremely doubtful that Russia—or China —will ever invade this country.

They say the plane would be useful only in an overseas role, but all plans to obtain aerial refuelling tankers from the United States have so far fallen through.

Informants said no decision has been taken to deploy the CF-5 to West Germany, where Canada's mechanized infantry brigade is stationed.

Defence Minister Leo Cadieux told the Commons defence committee Dec. 3 there are enough CF-104 bombers stationed in West Germany to maintain the Canadian air division there until the mid-1970s, at least two years longer than the original estimate.

As plans stand at the moment, three CF-5 squadrons will be formed—at Cold Lake, Alta., Edmonton, and Bagotville, Que.

Production has been slowed down to nine planes a month. Half the production is going to The Netherlands.

Originally, the Dutch order for 90 CF-5s was to be filled after the Canadian order was delivered.

Douglas Harkness, former Conservative defence minister has indicated that the Conservatives will subject the CF-5 program to searching examination before the Commons defence committee.

He has said that when he was defence minister in the early 1960s, he rejected the plane, whose design is based on the U.S. F-5 or Freedom Fighter, even as a jet trainer.

Canada Prepared To Resume Contacts With Red Countries

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is prepared to resume full political contact with the Soviet Union, informed sources said Friday.

Such contacts were registered after the Russian invasion and occupation of Czechoslovakia Aug. 20.

It is understood that all NATO countries are relaxing similar restrictions which followed the lighting military blitz on Czechoslovakia.

Canada did not cut off all technical, scientific and cultural exchanges with Russia and the other Warsaw Pact countries which took part in the invasion —Poland, Hungary, Bulgaria and East Germany.

But exchanges with political content were postponed or cancelled.

The government declined to issue visas to a Soviet delegation which was to have attended the convention of the Canadian Institute of Forestry at St. John's, Nfld.

Some consideration was given to the possibility of cancelling the scheduled tour of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet to Czechoslovakia and Russia but it was permitted to go ahead and turned into a big success.

Geo. Ignatieff Succeeds Burns

OTTAWA (CP) — George Ignatieff, Canadian ambassador to the United Nations for the last two years, has been appointed Canada's substitute for the 18-nation committee on disarmament in Geneva.

He succeeds Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, who is retiring after representing Canada on the committee since 1962.

In making the announcement Friday, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said in a statement that Mr. Ignatieff's successor in New York will be announced later.

Inquiry Ordered In Pueblo's Loss

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A high court of inquiry has been ordered by the U.S. Navy to study the loss of the intelligence ship Pueblo.

The court of five admirals was directed Friday by the Pacific Fleet commander, Admiral John J. Hyland, to "inquire into the circumstances relating to the seizure of the Pueblo and the subsequent detention of the vessel and the officers and crew."

Basic issues to be decided include whether the Pueblo's skipper, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, had the "power to resist" when his ship was taken by the North Koreans.

A spokesman said the court also will consider whether statements allegedly made by the crew members during their 11-month confinement constituted violations of the military Code of Conduct—although the navy said such violations are "not a criminal offence" and cannot be prosecuted.

The court will not meet for several weeks until intelligence debriefings of the crew are completed. It can only make recommendations to higher officials and has no power to take punitive or disciplinary action, the navy said.

At the same time, the navy disclosed that the two top officers and nine other men aboard the Pueblo at the time of its capture were wounded by North Korean gunfire.

One, fireman Duane D. Hodges of Creswell, Ore., was mortally wounded. The injuries of the others have healed, the navy said. Bucher, the executive officer Lieut. Edward Murphy, and the eight others will receive Purple Heart medals in a ceremony next week.

The navy also disclosed Bucher is suffering from physical and emotional exhaustion and has been moved to a private room in a building separate from the crew quarters.

In explaining the court of inquiry, Capt. Cole E. Krouse, Pacific Fleet senior judge advocate, told a news conference there "will be no speculation on what could or would" be done to members of the crew for the loss of the ship and for any actions while they were prisoners of North Korea.

"Under no circumstances," Krouse added, "would information obtained by intelligence debriefers currently questioning the crew members be introduced in the court of inquiry."

The debriefing "is necessary in order that our government can obtain the maximum information . . . vital to the security of the United States. It will not be used in any way in any judicial, administrative or disciplinary proceedings."

Krouse said individual circumstances would decide if any of the men violated the U.S. military's Code of Conduct, a 1955 executive order signed by President Eisenhower after a study of American prisoners in the Korean War.

The code, a guideline to U.S. servicemen who become prisoners-of-war, pledges them to "make no oral or written statements disloyal to my country . . . or harmful to its cause.

Professor Weds 'Grand Duchess'

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Anna Anderson, 67, who claims to be Russia's long-lost Grand Duchess Anastasia, was married Monday to a 49-year-old former history professor at the University of Virginia.

The bridegroom is Dr. John E. Manahan, who has been active for a decade in aiding her efforts to prove herself the youngest daughter of Czar Nicholas II and only survivor of the Russian royal family.

Most historical sources say the czar and all his family were assassinated by the Bolsheviks in 1918. Mrs. Anderson, however, says she was only wounded by the firing squad and was smuggled into Romania by a young Russian soldier named Anderson, whom she later married.

Nancy Topped the World

The Year We Had Nancy's Heroics... And Calgary Stoics

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

The battle for medals at Grenoble and Mexico City; the idyll of Annabelle; a major league ball club for Montreal but no major league hockey team for Vancouver; heroics and heartbreak, victory and defeat—this was sport in Canada in 1968.

It was also Herve Filion of Angers, Que., breaking the world record for the number of trotting victories in a year; Al Balding of Toronto showing George Knudson the way as the two captured the World Cup of golf for Canada in Rome.

It was Nancy Greene, coming out of the West to win the Queen's Plate and Fergie Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., winning 20 games for Chicago Cubs for the second year in a row.

And it was Nancy Greene from the mountains of Rossland, B.C., winning a gold and a silver in the Olympics and her second World Cup of skiing before calling a halt to her illustrious career.

Here is a sport-by-sport breakdown:

WINTER OLYMPICS

Canada won a gold and a silver medal—both by Nancy Greene in skiing—and a third-place bronze by the national hockey team. Karen Magnussen, 13, of North Vancouver, and Jay Humphrey, Vancouver-born but skating out of Toronto, did the best job turned in by the rest of the team. Each finished seventh in figure-skating.

SUMMER OLYMPICS

Three Ontario horsemen—Jim Day, Jim Elder and Tom Gayford—captured Canada's only gold medal. Heartbroken Elaine Tanner, the swimmer from Vancouver and Winnipeg, narrowly missed gold twice, winding up with second-place silver medals. Swimmer Raph Huton of Ocean Falls, B.C., won a silver and the women's relay team a third-place bronze.

HOCKEY

Montreal Canadiens won the Stanley Cup with four consecutive one-goal decisions over stubborn St. Louis Blues. Chicago centre Stan Mikita, for the second year in a row, captured the Ross, Lady Byng and Hart trophies, top honors in the NHL. Gordie Howe, as the 1968-69 season opened, scored his 700th goal to account for more than 10 per cent of all the goals scored by Detroit Red Wings since their inception in 1926. Vancouver, trying for an NHL franchise for a second year, failed to pick up the troubled Oakland franchise. Victoriaville Tigers won the Allan Cup and Niagara Falls Flyers the Memorial Cup. University of Alberta won the Canadian intercollegiate title.

FOOTBALL

Rookie Vic Washington dropped the ball, picked it up and ran 79 yards to lead Ottawa Rough Riders to a 24-21 Grey Cup victory over Calgary Stampeders. Queen's Golden Gaels of Kingston toppled Waterloo Lutheran Golden Hawks in Canadian intercollegiate football, taking the Vanier Cup on a 42-14 victory in the College Bowl. St. Vital Bulldogs hammered Sudbury Spartans 63-7 for the Canadian senior title. Saskatoon Hilltops defeated Ottawa Sooners 27-19 for the junior crown and Winnipeg Hawkeyes defeated Quebec's Lachine Lakers 69-7 in the juvenile final. Jake Gaudaur gave up his Hamilton Tiger-Cats connections to become commissioner of the Canadian Football League.

CURLING

Ron Northcot of Calgary—Sparks and Fred Storey backing him up—won nine of 10 matches to capture the Canadian men's curling championship, then went on to add the international championship by defeating Chuck Hay of Scotland. Hazel Jamison and her family rink from Edmonton won the women's title; Bill Hope of Trenton, Ont., captured the schoolboy crown, and the Larry McGarrity rink from Kindersley, Sask., repeated as winners of the mixed title.

GOLF

George Knudson of Toronto won the Phoenix and Tucson opens, then took a back seat to Al Balding as they paired to win the World Cup in Rome. Balding took individual honors. Bob Charles of New Zealand, the patron saint of left-handers, won the Canadian Open with a six under-par 274, the only lefty ever to win a major tournament. Jim Doyle of Winnipeg won the Canadian amateur and Marlene Stewart Streit of Fonthill, Ont., swept both the Canadian open and close. Ben Kern, 21, of Clarkson, Ont., became the first Canadian ever named to the all-America golf team for United States college players. Sandra Post of Oakville, Ont., won the Ladies' Professional Golfers' Association tournament and was named rookie of the year on the U.S. women's golf trail.

BASEBALL

The baseball world was stunned when Montreal won a National League franchise. The club, named the Expos, will play in refurbished Jarry Park until a domed stadium can be built. There is only one other pro club in Canada—Vancouver Mounties of the Pacific Coast League.

THOROUGHBREDS

Lou Cavalaris, veteran Toronto trainer, found himself deep in controversy as the year ended. Dancer's Image, the colt he trained for owner Peter Fuller of Boston, won the Kentucky Derby but was disqualified over what analysts said was an illegal medication in the system. Cavalaris sent the Dancer out for the Preakness and the son of Native Dancer finished third—only to be disqualified again, this time for interfering with another horse. Dancer's Image was retired with an ailing front ankle. In Canada, Viceregal, son of Northern Dancer, the Canadian bred who won the Kentucky Derby in record time in 1964, went out eight times as a two-year-old and won eight races.

No Winners in Injury-Prone NHL

Mum's The Word

CHICAGO (AP) — Bobby Hull, the National Hockey League's toy scorer, may resume play next week, but he will have to keep his mouth shut for six weeks.

Hull's jaw, broken in Chicago Black Hawks' 4-3 loss to Toronto Wednesday, has been wired and he has arch bars on his upper and lower teeth immobilized with elastics to keep the teeth together.

Dr. O. K. Johnson, oral surgeon, said Friday Hull may be able to resume play Sunday or Wednesday, "depending on whether he can cope with the problem of getting air."

"Bobby has had his nose broken before which affected his breathing, and now with his teeth locked up, he'll burn up air fast," he said.

Dr. Johnson, who has treated broken jaws for Ken Wharram and Doug Mohns, said Hull would be on a liquid diet for the six-week period.

"He'll have to take nourishment through a straw—such as blenderized food, milk shakes and egg nog," the doctor said.

Hull, target of most NHL defences, caught an elbow from Toronto's Mike Pelyk, but previously had complained of soreness on the spot of the fracture.

Upended!

Czechoslovakian goalie Vladimir Dzurilla was flattened by forward Wally Kozak of Canada Wednesday during exhibition hockey game in Winnipeg. Jack Taggart and Jaroslav Jirik were ready to square off as referee Gordie Kerr moved in to keep them apart. Canada won the contest 6-2.

Parent's Thievery Earns Tie for Flyers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Philadelphia Flyers took the lead three times but couldn't hold it Friday night as Detroit Red Wings blasted through for a 3-3 National Hockey League tie.

But it was a frustrating night for the Red Wings. They outshot the Flyers 37 to 20, outmuscled them and carried most of the play but never could get in the lead.

Pete Stemkowski, scoring his ninth goal of the season, fired the equalizer with 5:22 to play.

Other Detroit goals were by Gary Unger and Rene LeClerc while Leon Rochefort, Forbes Kennedy and Allan Stanley counted for Philadelphia.

Stemkowski's counter came after heavy pressure by Detroit during which Bernie Parent made great saves on Gordie Howe on a power play at the start of the third period and shortly after on Pete Mahovlich.

The game was nine minutes, seven seconds old when Rochefort counted on a 30-foot slap shot to the corner. Unger tied it for the Wings at 4:40 of the second period, deflecting in Nick Libett's pass, but Kennedy faked Roy Edwards out of position to again put Flyers in front.

LeClerc took a Frank Mahovlich pass 61 seconds later to tie the score on a point-blank drive. Stanley made it 3-2 on a power-play goal at 15:41 and it stayed that way until Stemkowski made the equalizer. The game didn't change the standings.

Meanwhile a parade of NHL players made their way to and from sick bay.

Toronto Maple Leafs may miss centres Dave Keon and Mike Walton for a game or so and also winger Floyd Smith for at least 10 days. Keon has a groin pull, Walton has missed three games with flu and Smith is recovering from torn chest muscles after being hit by Hull.

Goaltender Rogatien Vachon Friday was declared fit to return to action with Montreal Canadiens after suffering a broken finger in the stick hand early this month. Goalie Ernie Wakely, with the club since Dec. 4, has been returned to Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League. Tony Esposito will share Vachon's duties.

Right winger Rod Gilbert and goalie Ed Giacomin, both sidelined by injuries earlier, will play in weekend games. New York Rangers said. Gilbert has been out nine games with a chipped left ankle bone while Giacomin missed three games with a bruised left shoulder.

Gilles Villemure, who filled in for Giacomin, has been returned to Buffalo of the American League.

Boston Bruins made wholesale changes in their roster as veteran Johnny Bucyk joined three team-mates on the injury list. Bucyk was declared lost for games with St. Louis Saturday and in Detroit Sunday because of a severe charley horse.

With forwards Eddie Shack and Tommy Williams and defenceman Gary Doak also sidelined with injuries, Boston called forwards Grant Erickson, 21, and Jim Harrold, 20, and defenceman Rick Smith, 20, from Oklahoma in the Central League.

Canadian Teams Win on Continent

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Two Canadian teams skated to easy wins Friday in their first games in separate international exhibition hockey tournaments.

In the Ahearne Cup series in nearby Leksand, Victoriaville (Que.) Tigers, defending Allan Cup champions, had little trouble beating Leksand 5-2.

In the Star Cup tournament, the Canada's Ottawa-based national team scored an impressive 8-4 victory over the top Swedish club, Vaesteraas, in a game at Vaesteraas.

Victoriaville getting solid goaltending from Jean-Guy Morissette, took an early 3-0 lead over third Swedish opponents.

Jocelyn Hardy paced the Tigers with two goals and Gerald Garneau, Michael LaBrosse and Clem Boudreau had one each.

The Canadian nationals were led by playing-coach Jack Bownass and the young line of Tom Martin, Terry Caffery and Richie Bayes. Bayes poured in four goals for the nationals, Martin added three more and Steve King had one.

The strong performances by the Canadian teams appeared to put them in contention for the trophies in both tournaments.

Nats Shade Czechs

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's Nationals fought back from a first-period deficit to edge Czechoslovakia 3-2 Friday night in an international hockey game.

Ted Hargreaves scored the period on a power play, deflecting Paul Conlin's slapshot from the blue line. It slid under Czechoslovakian goalie Vladimar Dzurilla.

It was the fifth game of a Canadian tour for the Czechoslovakian national squad, giving them a record of two wins and three losses.

Czechoslovakia went ahead 1-0 in the first period but Canada came back, making it 2-2 in the second period.

Canada's other goals were scored by defencemen Gary Begg and centre Chuck Lefley. Czechoslovakia goals came from left wingers Jiri Holik and Joseph Cerny.

Collingwood: 5-2

Kings Whip Weary Mo-Hawks

COLLINGWOOD — The Belleville Mo-Hawks dropped a decision to the weather and Collingwood Kings in a Senior "A" game in Collingwood last night.

The Mo-Hawks, who were weary after a five-and-a-quarter hour drive through a snowstorm, were late arriving for the game and were involved in a scoreless tie with the Kings until Collingwood rapped home three goals within two minutes and 18 seconds late in the first period.

The locals battled back, but Collingwood maintained their three goal edge to capture a 5-2 victory and move into sole possession of fourth place in the eight - team OHA Senior "A" league.

The loss leaves Belleville in seventh place with 12 points, six short of the sixth and last playoff spot currently occupied by the Kingston Aces.

Mo-Hawk left-winger Ralph Plaine hit the goal post with a hard shot on his first shift on the ice, but Collingwood dominated the play in the first period, outshooting Belleville 18 to seven.

Left winger Keith Smeltzer scored Collingwood's first goal at 16.11 when he cashed in a high backhand drive from a sharp angle on the right side.

Collingwood applied pressure after Smeltzer's goal and it paid off a minute and 23 seconds later when Glenn Barr picked up the rebound on Lecasse's shot and backhanded past Mo-Hawk goaltender Larry Holmes.

The Kings' third goal came 55 seconds later when Hee Brainard scored on a forehand shot from the right side with Holmes screened on the play.

Newly reactivated from the injury list, left winger Ralph Plaine put the Mo-Hawks on the scoreboard at 4.40 of the second period when he beat Kings' netminder Garry Wasik with a backhanded flip shot as he broke in alone.

Take 3 — Belleville Mo-Hawk.

Defenceman Jack Wilton again moved up to play left wing on a line with Andy Teeple and Al Ferguson, and scored the Mo-Hawks' second goal when he stole the puck off a Collingwood defenceman in the third period and backhanded it into the net.

The Mo-Hawks play host to the Kingston Aces Sunday afternoon at the Belleville Arena, in a game which they must win to brighten their chances of catching Kingston and claiming the sixth and last playoff spot.

Morrisons Shaded By Late Kingston Tally

STAFF — A third period tie breaking goal with both teams shorthanded nullified a strong effort by the Belleville Morrisons and gave the Kingston Frontenacs a 4-3 victory in Junior "B" action at the Belleville Arena last night.

The win vaulted the Frontenacs into a fourth place tie with fourteen points with Cobourg in the six team Eastern Ontario Junior "B" league, while the Morrisons remained in the league cellar with seven points.

The Morrisons were reinforced by two bantam all-stars and one midget all-star for the encounter with the Frontenacs. Kingston bantam defencemen John Mulvihill and centre Danny Lupenette, and right-winger Reid Mallory of the Western Tire Juveniles all played regular shifts and impressed, coach Doug Crawford with their skating ability and poise.

Kingston threatened to run away with the game in the first period when they jumped off to a 3-0 lead on a pair of goals by Danny Porteous and one by Scott Nicholson, but Dennis McCormack narrowed the margin to two goals at 16.06.

The Morrisons came back in the second period as John McConnell and Ray Summers scored to tie the score and set the stage for Frontenac captain Scott Nicholson's winning marker at 12.24 of the final period.

Snow Flurries and Kelly To Greet Colts in Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — A cold cloudy day with snow flurries and temperatures in the upper 20s is the outlook for Sunday's National Football League title game between the favored Baltimore Colts and Cleveland Browns.

Steady rain soaked this lakefront city Friday and into the early morning hours today, but the field at Cleveland Stadium was protected by a tarpaulin.

Unless there is unexpected heavy precipitation Sunday, Cleveland officials indicated the field will be at least as good as it was last week when the Browns upset Dallas Cowboys 31-20 for the Eastern Conference crown.

Coach Blanton Collier sent the Browns through a long drill on the sodden turf of Fleming Field at Case Western Reserve University Friday afternoon. Baltimore worked out at home and then flew into town Friday night. The Colts planned to defer up briefly at the stadium Saturday.

Collier is expected to stick with the same lineup that overpowered the Cowboys. Charley Harraway and Ernie Green probably will split the running back chores as Leroy Kelly's partner. Jack Gregory, a second year man, again will start as defensive right end with the veteran Paul Wiggin sidelined from fractured ribs, ready for relief work if needed.

Baltimore has decided to activate Timmy Brown, the halfback who has been used mainly as a kick returns specialist with the Colts. Brown was off the list last week due to a pulled muscle. Gail Cogdill, veteran flanker picked up from Detroit in mid-season, will be dropped off the active list.

Leroy Hill will start at fullback for the Colts who beat Minnesota 24-14 for the Western Conference championship in the Baltimore mud last Sunday.

A crowd of about 82,000 is expected to turn out for the game which will start at 2:35 p.m. EST. There will be television and radio coverage by CBS.

The winning share should be close to $10,000, plus a shot at one Jan. 12 Super Bowl in Miami against the American Football League champion.

As the Super Bowl pays a guaranteed $15,000 for winners and $7,500 for losers, the victory Sunday could mean a total of $25,000 or $17,500 for the survivor. The loser of this game will get about $7,000.

New York Jets and Oakland Raiders are also in the AFL crown Sunday in New York's Shea Stadium.

Weather Cancels Workouts Before AFL Title Game

NEW YORK (AP) — The condition of the weather, Darryle Lamonica and Warren Wells remained uncertain today as Oakland Raiders and New York Jets prepared for Sunday's American Football League championship game.

Both teams missed a final workout at Shea Stadium today because the frozen field was covered with a tarpaulin. If bad weather continues, the game won't be removed until just before game time.

NBC will televise the game starting at 1 p.m. EST.

The field was covered Friday morning as the snow started falling. Rain was forecast for today although the weather bureau said it should be fair and cold Sunday.

As thorny a problem as the weather is, coach John Rauch and the Raiders were more concerned about Lamonica, the man who makes the passing attack go, and Wells, one of his big helpers.

Lamonica hurt the thumb on his throwing hand in the fourth quarter of the Raiders' Western Division playoff game with Kansas City last Sunday. He didn't return to the game although no one really noticed it because Oakland had such a big lead.

Wells, Oakland's ace split end, hasn't practiced all week because of a heel injury. Wells was kicked in the third quarter of the Kansas City game, but finished the game with a sprained ankle.

Rauch said Wells's status was probably better but that Lamonica's thumb was "pretty good" Friday.

Lamonica threw for 25 touchdowns during the regular season and added five more as the Raiders won their ninth straight game last Sunday.

If Lamonica proves ineffective, Sunday, George Blanda, a 19-year veteran, will step in.

Wells caught 53 passes during the season and led the league with 12 touchdowns, 11 on pass receptions. If he can't go, Bill Miller will be at split end. Miller, who started once, caught only nine passes this year.

The Jets have a somewhat similar problem with flanker Don Maynard, who sat out the last game two weeks ago with a pulled muscle in his left leg. However, he says he's ready to go.

Coach Weeb Ewbank, who has his team in an AFL championship game for the first time, is undecided at three positions in his starting lineup. Depending on how he'll get with either Johnny Sample or Cornell Gordon at cornerback.

On offence, he will decide between Emerson Boozer and Billy Mathis for fullback, and either Sam Walton or Randy Rasmussen for the line. If Walton starts at tackle, Dave Herman will be at guard, but if Rasmussen starts at guard, Herman will play tackle.

City Novices Big at Brockville

STAFF — Belleville's Food City Novices scored two victories Friday and advanced to the semi - finals of the Thousand Islands international "Atom" hockey tournament played at Brockville.

In first round Class "AA" action Belleville nipped Oakville 3-2 on Randy Hutchinson's successful penalty shot after a scoreless overtime period. Peter Coates and Paul Hayman scored Belleville's other goals.

Food City novices defeated Peterborough 5-1 in quarterfinal action as Tony Meagher scored a pair of goals and Bobby Crawford Andy Lagrenette and Roger Suddard added single goals.

Other semi - finalists are Oshawa, Lindsay, Napanee, Bowmanville and the winner of a quarter - final game between St. Catharines and Montreal.

Locals Ousted

Pair for Trenton

STAFF—The Trenton Lions midgets scored a pair of victories Friday and advanced to the semi-finals of the fifth annual Orillia midget hockey tournament today. Trenton is undefeated after three games and plays Orillia in one semi-final...today while Toronto meets Kirkland Lake in the other semi-final match.

In second-round play Trenton edged Georgetown 4-3 in overtime and advanced to the quarter-finals where they dumped Hamilton 5-3.

Belleville's Blake Kerr's Imperial midgets defeated Detroit 4-2 in second-round play Friday, but were later eliminated by Toronto Marlboros who trounced the locals 8-1.

Begley Gets Holiday

STAFF — Jim Begley rolled a 400 game in his regular Major "A" League five-pin sortie last night, and it must have had an elevating effect.

Jim captured his second Holiday Classic event at the Bowl-O-Drome Friday night in the fifth year of the double-knockout match play tournament. The win was good for a $54 cheque.

Belleville's Jim Nicholls took the runner-up spot for a $32 prize in the field of some 64 bowlers.

Prize-winners for rolling high single games in their four-game qualifying rounds went to Wally Knapp (322), Jim Nicholls (327), Wayne Turtle (333), and Les Lenox (306).

IT WORKS BECAUSE IT SWINGS!

That's the principle behind the pendulum clock, invented in 1657. Earlier clocks were used only in cathedrals and public squares; today it is a rare home that doesn't contain at least one timekeeping device. The days of the sundial and the hourglass are gone and the modern world depends upon accurate clocks.

If the days of your older clock are gone in your house, chances are that a home somewhere in this area would love to use it.

Called 'Catastrophic, Outrageous'

Changes in Estate Tax Would Affect Millions of Wills

OTTAWA (CP) — On Jan. 1 many Canadians will start paying up to $125 a year in the federal government in new taxes, but this latest levy seems to be becoming the already forgotten element of the Oct. 22 budget.

The key—judging at least by public comment—is the proposal to change the federal estate tax.

One writer has called the proposals an assault on the sacred cow of dogma that would destroy the backbone of Canadian society.

A tax authority, writing in a daily newspaper, termed them a bid to out-Carter Carter, referring to what had earlier been described as the socialist tendencies in the 1967 version of the Carter royal commission on tax reform.

"Catastrophic" and "outrageous" are a few of the adjectives applied to the suggested changes.

Opposition Leader Stanfield told Parliament Nov. 29 that the proposals are another indication of something approaching "callousness and indifference or, indeed, injustice" on the part of the Liberal government.

If passed into law, the proposals would be of real concern to hundreds of thousands of Canadians, he said.

Some private tax officials have suggested that millions of wills would be affected.

Basically, there are three aspects to the proposals.

One would end any taxing of estates and gifts between spouses—for example, when a husband dies and leaves everything to his wife.

If he leaves anything to his children or others, however, or when his widow dies and passes the estate on, taxes would be slapped on and at generally higher rates than under existing rules.

Gift taxes also would be increased and, by a special cumulative feature, would affect many estate tax rates.

The proposal to free spouse-to-spouse estates and gifts from long sought by tax lawyers and accountants, among many others—has won almost unanimous approval.

The cruncher, as J. G. Hungerford, chairman of National Trust Co. Ltd., put it, would come when the estate is passed on to the next-generation.

In essence, the attacks on these proposals boil down to a charge that they will make it more difficult to retain an estate—usually described as a farm or a small business—within a family.

Said Mr. Stanfield, more emphatically:

"The new rates will make it virtually impossible for a family to maintain control of a substantial family business. This of course is bound to have a bad U.S. takeovers. . . ."

Some experts of the United States agree standing ready to gobble up small but thriving Canadian businesses and farms as they are pushed to the wall by the need to pay estate taxes has been widely publicized.

The attacks are not surprising, says one government official, since on the likes taxes. But what, if any, validity have they?

Edgar J. Benson, the finance minister who introduced the proposals in his maiden budget speech, has a succinct and predictable reply: "None."

He says critics overlook the fact that the proposals should benefit greatly widows of working men who die leaving a car, a few household effects and belongings, a house and a paid-up pension plan.

Under existing rules, the pension plan is included in the widow's estate and in thousands of cases is increased in the value of the estate to taxable proportions.

When I was revenue minister before this job, this was the single area where by far the biggest hardship was placed on people who had no resources to help themselves. I vowed I was going to stop it.

In his budget speech, Mr. Benson said the proposals would not affect most people. Changes in revenues in the next year because of the proposals would be tax collections in 1967-68 totalled $102,200,000, up from $87,100,000 the previous year.

Mr. Benson says attempts to forecast, longer-term changes in tax collections are considered too hazardous and difficult, but he adds that a consensus of department officials is that the effect would be little change attributable directly to new tax rules.

The government's defence against the forced-sale charges is that there is little evidence that the estate taxes need to meet an estate tax assessment has ever been the predominant factor in making someone sell a business he has inherited.

A recent Ontario tax study suggested that taxes do influence some sales, but Ottawa officials say it is not clear what other factors were involved in to what degree.

The major reason for selling a business, they say, is that the children just aren't interested in carrying it on. Others simply get some money from it and step out on their own.

Anyway, Mr. Benson says, the estate tax levels—existing and proposed—simply are not onerous enough to force sales.

Another government defence is that, in classical economics, an estate tax is regarded as one of the fairest levies possible, since the recipient is getting something he did not work for.

Whether you agree the new proposals are reasonable depends on how you feel about giving money to the government.

First are proposed changes in the general exemptions.

The free passing on of an estate to a widow would replace the existing $60,000 exemption, also granted a surviving but to-firm widower with a dependent child.

The general estate exemption, now $40,000, would be reduced to $20,000.

All children would receive at least a $10,000 exemption under the proposed changes. The exemption would be increased by getting

New Year's Eve Whoopee Will Cost Average of $35 A Couple

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

While Canadian chins droop deeper in their cups this New Year's Eve, a group of 300 Ottawa dancers plan a whoop-up full of nostalgia and cheer and no hangovers.

Celebrants at an Alcoholics Anonymous dance will get nothing more potent in their cups than coffee.

An AA spokesman swears things will get prohibited "you would swear everybody is drunk." But the group won't be picked up for driving while tiddly.

Many Canadians probably will be less lucky with their attempts to ring in the New Year.

And most will pay twice as much for their aching heads and muscles as they would for a normal evening's fun.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press showed that clubs and hotels plan to charge an average of about $35 for dinner and entertainment on the Eve.

In Toronto, that bill could soar to $75 a couple in the Imperial Room of the Royal York after food and drinks are added to the $35 cover charge.

Most of the entertainment offered will be little different from the regular night shows, plus a few paper hats and whistles.

Prime Minister Trudeau is setting an example for party-goers time of the old New Year's routine. He's off for a skin-diving holiday in the Caribbean.

Gov.-Gen. Michener also will escape after-effects by taking it easy at home New Year's Eve with a few friends and relatives.

He will likely be an early-morning caller New Year's Day when traditionally diplomats and other visitors arrive to wish him well.

Newfoundlanders still basically downtown celebrators at New Year's, will pay about $20 a couple in the popular night spots although the prices may also parties.

Police plan extra patrols in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick where the price range is $25 to $30 a couple for dining and dancing at the country clubs and hotels.

Hoard parties seem more popular among Quebecers than other Canadians. Downtown hotels and nightclubs in Montreal still had space available a week ahead for their annual dinner-and-dancing bashes at $15 to $25 a person.

L'Escapade, also the Chateau Champlain, is offering a champagne dinner at $35 a head.

Montreal police plan to keep their red reindeer lights flashing as a reminder, and like the Toronto police, will keep about 75 per cent of their force on duty.

Torontonians can ring in the year at a variety of big hotels and clubs charging from $30 to $55 a couple.

Many major hotels in Winnipeg, which at one time all staged their own parties, now prefer to rent their space to private parties, some of them booked a year ahead of time.

Regina night spots offer dancing and dinner for New Year's but the major social event is the RCMP ball held in the division mess for 200 couples in a formal dress, at $8.50 a couple.

Regina, Edmonton and Calgary police all said they will refuse this year to drive home inebriated drivers although the Calgary force operated a drive-home service Christmas Eve.

Hotels in Calgary and Edmonton are offering dinner and floor shows at prices ranging to $35 and at least one Calgary nightspot plans to offer patrons coffee before the drive home.

Vancouver policemen plan roadblocks checks at random points for drivers returning home from soldily-booked supper and night spots, ranging in price from $7 a person in the popular clubs to the Hotel Vancouver's $50-a-couple gala including a six-course meal.

For party-goers generally, the Victoria YMCA plans to begin its Jogging 69 program on Jan. 6 for those who believe "after the holiday . . . what we need is activity."

Fluoride Threat Is Not Eliminated Says U. S. Doctor

TORONTO (CP) — A doctor who helped touch off a provincial inquiry into fluoride pollution in the Port Maitland, Ont., area, said Friday the threat to human health in the region 22 miles south of Hamilton has not been eliminated.

Dr. George Waldbott of Detroit, Mich., said in a statement the inquiry, launched after the CBC television documentary Air of Death was shown in 1961, investigated the health status of only nine persons living in the area, whereas 27 persons had consulted him concerning their illness.

Dr. Waldbott appeared in the documentary which suggested that farmers were suffering from fluoride poisoning near a fly fertilizer plant and that cattle in the area were dying.

The report of the inquiry released recently said fluoride poisoning in the area was never a danger to human health. It criticized the CBC for treating "a complex problem in a way designed to create alarm and fear."

Dr. Waldbott said tests of drinking water in the area, taken by the Ontario Water Resources Commission, showed fluoride levels far above those considered safe by the United States public health service.

He said the Ontario health department took urine samples from 213 residents of the area, but "no attention was given to the fact that during certain hours of the day much less fluoride is eliminated than at others."

He said doctors called to testify before the inquiry lacked knowledge of fluoride poisoning.

He said the symptoms of the 27 persons he examined were characteristic of the "early non-skeletal phase of fluorosis."

Four Out of Ten Gift Recipients Said 'Freeloaders'

SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP) — About 40 per cent of "needy persons" who received free Christmas gift baskets through the Salvation Army in this area were freeloaders, Capt. Fred Land said Friday.

The Smiths Falls Salvation Army commander said at least 100 of the 135 persons who picked up the baskets arrived in their own cars and some became "quite unpleasant."

He said a man accepted a gift basket because he had always had one before, but a check showed he was regularly employed and he was in the middle-income bracket.

He said many persons who claimed a gift basket, containing 45 to 55 pounds of food, clothing and toys, were steadily employed.

The Salvation Army citadel in the community, 30 miles southwest of Ottawa, served as a centre to distribute gifts donated by service clubs and various organizations.

Hospitals Bar Visits

MONTREAL (CP) — At least three Montreal-area hospitals have suspended all visiting privileges temporarily in an attempt to protect patients against the flu.

St. Joseph Hospital in suburban Lachine and the suburban LaSalle General Hospital announced Friday visiting privileges are suspended "until further notice" so that patients may not be exposed to persons carrying the virus.

A similar decision was taken almost two weeks ago by Notre Dame Hospital in east-end Montreal.

Federal Salaries Surveyed

Pay Boosts Up to 29 Per Cent Recommended

OTTAWA (CP) — A team picked from the highest levels outside government has recommended salary increases of up to 29 per cent for the most senior federal government employees.

A report by the advisory group of executive compensation in the public service was made public Friday by the prime minister's office, which announced that the document has already been approved in principle.

The pay recommendations affect about 250 deputy ministers, chairmen and members of boards of commissioners, members of the judiciary and about 600 senior executive officers.

The group, headed by J. V. Clyne, president of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., was established in February on the recommendation of the Senate-Commons committee on the public service.

Its key salary recommendations would boost the annual pay of deputy ministers—high-est non-elected offices in government departments—to the following levels (present maximums in brackets):

Deputy minister 3—$37,000-$40,000 ($31,000); deputy minister 2—$33,000-$37,000 ($28,750)-$30,000—$24,000); senior executive officer 3—$23,000-$29,000 ($21,000-$26,250); senior executive officer 2 — $21,000-$25,000 ($19,-000); officer 1—$19,000-$23,500 ($17,-000); officer 1 — $19,000-$23,500 ($17,-200-$21,750).

Decisions on the pay of appointees above the highest level of deputy minister will continue to be made on an individual basis.

The advisory group stated—and the government endorsed—this point:

The group did not make pay recommendations for about 10,000 employees in managerial and confidential positions below the senior officer 1 level. Further data is needed and recommendations will follow in later reports.

The maximum yearly contribution for employee and employer rises to $82.20 from $81. For the self-employed, it goes to $164.40 from $162.

The maximum full retirement pension under the Canada Pension Plan becomes payable in 1976 but living cost increases this year have affected it already. It would be $108.33, up from $106.25.

Pension Payments to Rise To Meet Living Costs Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — Cost-of-living increases this year will push up benefits next year in the old age security, guaranteed annual income supplement and Canada pension plans.

The qualifying age for old age security also drops by one year to age 65 starting Jan. 1.

The old age pension will be increased by the maximum two per cent to $78 a month from $76.50 in 1963. During 1963, total number of recipients will be about 1,500,000.

About 780,000 will benefit from increases in the guaranteed income supplement. The maximum supplement to the old age pension will increase to $31.20 a month from $30.60 this year.

The maximum is payable to those with no income other than the old age pension. It scales down gradually until it disappears for a single person with extra income of more than $768 a year.

Under the Canada Pension Plan, contributions, payments and survivor benefits all will rise in 1969.

Employee contributors will pay 1.8 per cent of their yearly earnings between $600 and $5,200. The upper earnings limit for contributions goes up in 1969 to $5,20 0from $5,100 in 1968.

Employers pay the same proportion as employee contributors. Self-employed persons pay 3.6 per cent of yearly earnings in the same brackets.

Davis Says University Reform Can Be Achieved by Talk-ins

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Education Minister William Davis said Friday university reform can be accomplished by think-ins and talk-ins, and not by sit-ins and marches.

He warned 250 students at the annual conference of the Canadian University Press to beware of indulging in "ostentatious obscenity" in seeking student rights in universities.

Mr. Davis said any person or organization "convinced of the righteousness of their cause can too readily become the oppressor, as the history of revolutions bears eloquent witness."

He said violence, hooliganism and obstruction only strengthen those who would block the process of democracy, whether in society at large or in the university.

Mr. Davis criticized two recent marches to the provincial legislature buildings—one organized by University of Toronto students to criticize Ontario's student aid plan, and last week's mass protest against an extension of the school year for secondary students.

"Apart from the excitement ... I cannot in all frankness believe that either march was justified by facts, nor did the students' cause anything but harm to their own cause."

He added: "Perhaps young people today are in a way envious of the older generation who have marched for valid purposes in the past. Perhaps they feel the need to emulate their fellow students in France and Mexico who seem to have causes that are better founded.

"University reform, which most moderates favor, can be accomplished in my opinion by dialogue and democracy, by think-ins and talk-ins. I do not think it can be accomplished by sit-ins and marches."

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 29

Your birthday today: Your coming year poses questions on the direction your life may take. Your judgment now includes many subjective factors and may be faulty regarding its wisdom of your course. Have the prudence to consult the appropriate advisers. The new people in your life will need careful evaluation before collaboration.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): On this remarkably unpressured Sunday all matters revert to ideal, or at least normal. Your mind is refreshed and open to challenges. Enjoy a complete day in peace and choice of activity.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your church attendance turns out to be important in more ways than could have been anticipated. Short journeys add enjoyment. Catch up on local news.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Your role in your community is less emphatic. Just join with your peers and go along with what's doing. It's more fun that way today.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Use the present calm to level out any kinks in your relationships. Take full advantage of any opportunity to catch up on rest — you've earned it.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 21): Spend the day with correspondence and business matters. The outlook is improving, inspiring.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): This Sunday, finally, you have no pressing burden to carry or obligation to fulfill. Luxuriate in fun-pastime, mostly mental.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 23): Explore and settle family differences if any have developed lately. The day is happy in all early evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Go to church, even if you had not planned it. A special coincidence makes the effort worthwhile. Form an area of interest between yourself and appropriate individuals.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Moderation is the keyword (in all activities). Diet and suitable light exercise may be critically important to your health. Seek out — and complete — year-end chores not yet taken care of.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Affirm your faith, then go into mental activities. Stay busy with all the things which need doing to get you ready for the turn of the year.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Hobbies, correspondence, short visits, contacts with people in hospitals and institutions fill up your day. Make the most of an unpressured schedule.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Strengthen your legal situation: take investment of your share of the world's material wealth.

For December 30

Your birthday today: You need realistic superficial adjustments through the coming year. The challenge is to make your experience more productive. Wishful thinking is the remain hazard. Today's natives are noted for patriotic dedication.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Spending for superficial glamor is ill-advised. What you buy now will be passe long before you get any use out of it. Any bonus should be invested.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Great help from your intuitive and imaginative faculties today, but not much from other factors. Go ahead in confidence (and good humor). Clear out any clutter.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Your best working conditions are alone. People get on your nerves and you say too many wasp things. Expedite stalled items.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Remember, people do not commit a thinking transgressions with any intent to bother you personally. Clear statements, tact are essential.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): In human relations, let well enough alone. Patience in all matters is the main keyword; tenperance and moderation might also be added.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Actions for sentimental reasons leave you cold. People you care about seem to be balky. Try humoring them for a change. Plans already made can be advanced.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): If your accounts are not checked out by now, leave them alone. Spending, re arrangements of investments, and the like have no support at all today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Some people are drawn to experimental obituary; just to see your reaction. Be alert; bypass the game. Avoid seeing people known to be contrary. Domestic questions are touch.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You don't carry grudges and are unsuited to cope with the actions of people who do. Don't come down to the level of pettiness, spite or reprisal. No practical jokes today, please.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): New efforts at organization can just as well roll over into the coming year. Strive today to tidy up the year-end accounts for a clear record.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Keep business simple, whatever else you do. An error now turns into a long series of embarrassing, rolling re-adjustments. Look at your home, thinking what you'd like to change.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Where idealism casts an aura of glamor, expect compliments; where it does not, expect bitter comment. These reflections are from the lives of the critics rather than something you've earned.

Transplant Rejected

MONTREAL (CP) — The number of survivors of Canada's 14 heart-transplant operations was reduced to five Friday with the death of Ludger Senechal, 35, of Lauzon, Que.

Mr. Senechal, youngest Canadian heart-transplant patient, died two months and two days after receiving a replacement heart. The operation was carried out Oct. 25.

He had returned home to his wife and two children several weeks ago and was reported doing well until last Friday.

A spokesman for the Montreal Heart Institute, where Mr. Senechal underwent the operation, said the patient died about 5 a.m. Friday of what "appears to have been acute rejection of the transplanted organ."

Two of the nine heart recipients operated at the Montreal Heart Institute are still alive. They are:

—Rosaire Brieni 58, who received his replacement heart Sept. 30 and has returned home to his family as Canada's longest-living heart-transplant patient.

—Gerald Levesque, 53, who underwent transplant surgery Nov. 3 and is reported to be progressing well.

Other surviving transplant patients are:

—John Parkinson, 53, who received his heart at the Royal Victoria hospital in Montreal and is reported doing well.

—Charles Johnson, 54, who received his heart Nov. 17 at Toronto Western Hospital and also is reported doing well.

Czechoslovak New Federal System Starts

PRAGUE (AP) — The government of Premier Oldrich Cernik unanimously agreed today to resign in order that a new federal regime can take office Jan. 1, Prague radio reported.

The broadcast said Cernik presided at the final meeting of his government today and stated that "from Jan. 1 the new federal system will take effect."

"He recommended therefore that the present government should resign and hand its resignations to President Ludvik Svoboda," the broadcast added. "The ministers approved this proposal unanimously."

There was no word on when the resignations would be submitted to Svoboda, but this was expected shortly.

The new government, expected to be headed by Cernik as premier but with a smaller cabinet, is to be announced later, probably by Svoboda in a New Year's address.

A high ranking Soviet delegation arrived Friday and is holding closed door talks with Czechoslovak leaders.

The Soviet delegation, headed by Konstantin F. Katuschev, did not announce the purpose of its visit. But diplomatic sources said it probably came to check on Czechoslovakia's plans to change to a federal system of government.

Katuschev, the Soviet party secretary in charge of relations with ruling Communist parties, plays a key role in Soviet efforts to assure the "normalization" of Czechoslovakia after the August invasion.

The Soviet Union was said to have opposed earlier Czechoslovak plans to decentralize government authority under the new federal system.

Originally the idea was to set up a small federal government, giving more regional autonomy to the two major sections of this country—Slovakia and the Czech lands of Bohemia and Moravia.

There would have been two federal ministries of foreign affairs and defence, with other ministries divided between the regional governments. But later plans included seven ministries in the proposed federal cabinet.

The Kremlin opposed the first plan because it could have set a difficult precedent for regions of the Soviet Union, like the Ukraine, which have a long history of opposition to Russian domination.

Vasily Kuznetsov, Soviet first deputy foreign minister, accompanied Katushev. Kuznetsov, the chief Soviet troubleshooter here after the August invasion, is known to oppose Josef Smrkovsky, the progressive-National Assembly chairman.

Czech television, immediately after announcing the arrival of the Soviet delegation Friday night, reported petitions are still arriving from around the country demanding that Smrkovsky remain in his post.

In their first round of meetings, the Soviets saw only conservative elements in the Czechoslovak leadership, hard-line Communists believed more ready to make compromises with Moscow.

Moscow Not Opposed To Loans to Czechs

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Soviet Deputy Premier Nikolai Baibakow was today quoted as saying Moscow is not against Czechoslovakia accepting loans from the West.

"It is wrong to claim that the Soviet Union is against Czechoslovakia accepting credits from Western countries," he said in an interview with the Communist party newspaper Rude Pravo.

"Czechoslovakia can decide on this like any sovereign state," he added.

Baibakov, who also is chairman of the state planning committee, was here recently for economic negotiations with the Prague leaders.

Czech Deputy Premier Franisek Hamouz said in the same joint interview that reports of a $500,000,000 Soviet loan to Czechoslovakia were "romanticism and not healthy economic thinking."

The Soviet deputy premier also said it was possible that all of Czechoslovakia's economic tasks could not be solved by its own markets and that it would be necessary to buy equipment and machines from Western sources.

"In 1969, the government of the Soviet Union will ship $45,000,000 worth of goods above the trade contract," Baibakov said.

Hamouz, who headed the Czechoslovak side in the talks with Baivakov, after dismissing the reports of a Soviet loan, said Czechoslovakia would not renounce foreign credits.

NHA Mortgage Rate Likely 9.37 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP) — The ceiling on National Housing Act mortgage interest rates will bounce New Year, along with income taxes and pension contributions and benefits.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. will announce the new ceiling Monday and it is expected to be 9% per cent, compared with 8¾ during the past three months.

The rate is adjusted every three months and geared to the average yield on long-term government bonds at market prices. During the past four weeks this has been a shade over 7¼, to which the government adds 2¼ percentage points in determining the ceiling.

While rates actually charged by lenders under NHA have recently tended to be below the ceiling, rates charged in November pushed against the limit. CMHC said Friday the average charged in November was 8.74 per cent, compared with the ceiling of 8.75 and October's average rate of 8.16.

The high rates attracted more money into house construction without apparently deterring buyers seriously. House-building activity was at a record in November, with 19,037 new dwellings started, up more than 60 per cent from the previous November.

Income taxes go up Jan. 1 with the new two-per-cent social development tax being levied on taxable incomes. The limit per individual is $120 a year.

Also as a result of previously-taken decisions, benefits under old age security, guaranteed annual income supplements, and the Canada Pension Plan will go up. So will contributions and survivor benefits under the Canada Pension Plan.

These are geared to the cost of living as reflected in the Dominion Bureau of Statistics consumer price index during the first half of 1968.

Beirut Air Traffic Is Back at Normal

Israel Stands Firm

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel, undeterred by mounting condemnation from all sides because of its commando raid on the Beirut airport, promised further retaliation for Arab attacks.

Premier Levi Eshkol said Sunday in Tel Aviv that Israel will defend itself against aggression "in the place where it is planned and carried out."

"States which make it possible for terror organizations to organize and perpetrate acts of terror bear the responsibility for aggression, a responsibility which they cannot disclaim," he said.

Today's Chuckle

"If our car gets much older," said the long-suffering motorist, "they'll start issuing it upper and lower plates."

"We opened the box and it flew to Cuba!"

News Briefs

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — About 70 persons were feared dead today after tons of rock, loosened by rain and repeated dynamite blasts, fell 300 feet into a quarry and carried a section of shantytown with it.

BOSTON (AP) — The FBI and police visited underworld hangouts today for a clue in the hijacking of some $800,000 from a Brinks' armored car Saturday four blocks from the scene of the $1,200,000 Brinks' robbery in 1950.

Israeli Raid Loss Put at $33,000,000

BEIRUT (Reuters) — Air traffic at Beirut International Airport in Lebanon's capital was normal today after repairs to the runway which was slightly damaged during the Israeli raid Saturday night.

Four Israeli helicopters flew in a commando unit and destroyed 13 civil airliners standing at the airport. Most of the planes belonged to Middle East Airlines.

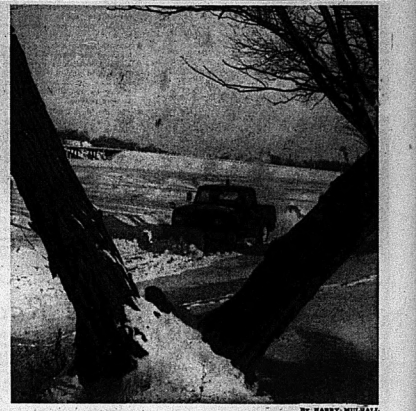
An official Lebanese source said Air France had placed a number of its airliners at the disposal of MEA at the request of the French government. The planes offered included a Boeing and two Caravelles.

Although officials have denied there were any casualties, well-informed sources said that at least two persons were slightly injured during the raid.

A government source said the wrecked planes would be left where they stood to allow inspection by insurance company representatives.

A spokesman said MEA airliners were insured with Lloyd's. He estimated the insurance to cover $33,000,000.

Kuwait Airways was one of several Arab airlines which offered to help MEA following the raid.



The MEA spokesman said the company was not inclined to accept offers of help from the Soviet airline Aeroflot and Pan American World Airways because it was negotiating with Ethiopian Airlines and Pakistani International Airlines on the lease of two Boeing 707 airliners.

MEA, biggest and richest in the Arab world, lost eight planes in the attack—a Boeing 707, a VC-10, two Caravelles, three Comets and one Viscount. Five other Arab airliners also were destroyed in the reprisal raid by commandos for the attack Thursday on an Israeli El Al Boeing at Athens airport.

Airliners at Beirut belonging to other nations were not touched.

Lebanese International Airways had two Coronado jets and a DC-7 knocked out and Trans-Mediterranean Airlines lost two DC-7s.

Egypt's United Arab Airlines helped out MEA by carrying about 60 persons to Cairo on its Comets.

After the Snow - - Skating!

After the weekend's hefty snowfall, where else could thoughts turn but to winter? And the city parks department has Belleville's biggest outdoor rink well underway. At Zwicky's Island a heavy crust of snow was being plowed today as workers prepared to install outdoor lighting around the kingsize skating pond.

City Sidewalks Plugged By Weekend's Snowfall

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

With streets in "pretty good shape" except for "trimming" operations, the city's public works snow removal crews concentrated on the plowing of sidewalks today following the weekend storm which dumped 13 inches of snow in the Belleville area.

"Other than the sidewalks we are in pretty good shape," stated city engineer Wilbur Purcell.

But the big snow removal job required round-the-clock effort on the part of the city works crews.

The engineer said that all city streets have now been plowed at least once, while most had been plowed a second time following the six-inch fall of snow Saturday afternoon and night.

By this morning the downtown area had been completely cleared of snow.

But lack of operators put a crimp in the sidewalk plowing schedule.

Several of the city works employees are on holidays, while the 'flu bug has incapacitated others.

"It was difficult to get operators to handle the sidewalk plows," explained the city engineer.

In at least one section of the city — Dundas Street West — the snow was so heavy that the sidewalk plowers were stalled. Heavy drifting and hard encrusted snow made it impossible for the plows to operate.

Today, snow removal crews are engaged mainly with "trimming up" operations around the intersections and, with roadways in good shape, the emphasis will be on sidewalk plowing.

Astronauts Open 10-day Query Period

HOUSTON (AP) — The Apollo 8 astronauts engage in the first full day of intensive questioning on their flight today as space officials release part of the treasure they brought back — color views unseen before the earth and the moon.

Col. Frank Borman, Capt. James Lovell and Lt.-Col. William Anders are set to talk into tape recorders about their 500,000-mile voyage around the moon and back.

They will follow the same schedule for nine of the next 10 days, talking with groups ranging from scientists to fellow astronauts.

Their only break will come New Year's Day.

"That will be their first day off in many, many weeks," an official said.

Twelve pictures taken by the Apollo 8 crew en route and around the moon — part of the scientific treasure they gathered in their six-day flight — were released Sunday by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Two of the color pictures of the earth were taken as the spacecraft was in orbit or near the moon. They show the earth as a glowing sapphire half-disc with wisps of clouds streaking the deep blue.

One view, taken as the spacecraft was en route to the moon, shows continents on both sides of the Atlantic. The west bulge of Africa shows as a brown patch surrounded by clouds. The east coast of South America is shrouded with clouds. The edge of darkness stands out as sunset moves across Africa.

Another picture shows most of the southern United States, with the Florida Peninsula standing out as if on a global map. A huge swirl of clouds cover the North Atlantic and beyond is the curve of the earth. Shallow waters in the Caribbean stand out as a greenish blue while the deeper waters are shades of tan or black.

It is a brilliant blue, with patches of brown that are white continents. The background is velvet black and the dark side of the earth cannot be seen. The picture has the pocked and rugged surface of the moon in the foreground.

Color pictures of the moon have a greenish or tan tint, but the astronauts said this color was not true. Instead, they said, the moon is more the color of "dirty beach sand."

Earthrise on the Moon

This view of the rising earth greeted Apollo 8 astronauts as they came from behind the moon after the lunar orbit insertion burn. Earth is about five degrees above the horizon in this photo. The lunar horizon is approximately 780 kilometers from the spacecraft. On the earth 240,000 statute miles away, the sunset time blacks Africa. (NASA Photo)

It's Cold Out West

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Western provinces remained in the grip of a cold front today while Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces felt the aftermath of a weekend of snow, sleet and rain storms.

The cold, with readings lower than 40 below zero, started on the British Columbia coast, spread across the Prairies and moderated in Northern Ontario.

Central Ontario received snowfalls of up to eight inches and in the south, especially in the Niagara Peninsula, three inches of ice coated hydro lines and forced some people to sleep in motels when power failed.

All of Quebec had snow during the weekend, the lightest fall being in northwestern sections where it was five inches deep.

In the Atlantic provinces, some areas of northern New Brunswick had five inches of snow and Newfoundland had eight inches in the west and north.

Victoria, ordinarily with one of the mildest climates in Canada, had a five above reading Sunday night. Vancouver was zero, Kamloops 30 below and Smiths 40 below.

In Alberta it was no better, with temperatures readings reaching 45 below. Highs today were expected to warm up to about 20 below.

The minus signs stretched into Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Lows of 40 below were expected overnight in Saskatchewan and 25 in Manitoba.

Northern Ontario had temperatures ranging from zero to 20 below Sunday night. In southern Ontario a mixture of snow and rain made driving hazardous.

UN Condemnation Appears Certain

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Private consultations were to be held today among members of the 15-country United Nations Security Council, aimed at agreeing on a resolution condemning Israel for the raid on Beirut International Airport Saturday.

There was little doubt that Israel would be condemned by the council, which adjourned a two-hour emergency meeting Sunday night until 9 p.m. EST tonight.

THE TEMPERATURES

Synopsis: A massive high pressure area dominating Ontario's weather is moving off eastward and a new disturbance will move out of the southwestern states to replace it. This new system will bring some snow to southern and central Ontario tonight and Tuesday. Temperatures will continue cold through Tuesday.

U. S. and South Balk at Truce

SAIGON (AP) — Thousands of U.S. and South Vietnamese troops pushed 60 offensive operations across Vietnam today, ignoring the start of a New Year's ceasefire proclaimed by the Viet Cong.

The Viet Cong radio announced its forces began observing a 72-hour ceasefire at 1 a.m. but warned they would strike back if attacked.

South Vietnam and the United States said they would not observe a New Year's ceasefire this year because of alleged Viet Cong violations of the 24-hour Christmas truce.

"All operations are being conducted as normal," a U.S. spokesman said.

More on the Way

Quinte Residents Tunnel Through Foot of Snow

Quinte-district dwellers tunnelled through a foot of snow to a new week today — and faced something of the same old prospect: More snow!

Possibility that 1969 may come wafting in over a new, white weather-woven carpet was posed today by the weatherman.

Being watched is a storm developing in the Missouri area, expected to move across the Great Lakes tomorrow. If it takes the Seaway route, the Quinte area can expect more snow sometime New Year's Eve.

Just how much isn't sure at the moment, says the duty forecaster at Canadian Forces Base Trenton.

But the storm can't deliver anything like the kingsize snow package that plugged the district Saturday.

Before it was finished:

- Some 12 inches of snow had fallen in less than 15 hours.
- The total fallout for December was 36 inches — more than double the normal snow for the month.
- In Quinte's northern townships the result was almost Jundallon as the storm piled against earlier snow. At Bancroft, depths up to 35 inches were recorded.
- And the department of lands and forests saw a similar pattern to the winter of 1959-60 when snow totalled 114 inches. Works departments — local and provincial — toiled round the weekend in return road communications to normal.

Biggest job came in the district's urban areas where snowbanks had to be carted away by the truckload to municipal dumps and open areas.

There were no serious road mishaps — for good reason.

The storm practically immobilized motorists. With hundreds of cars snowed-in many owners spent a muscle-straining Sunday emptying driveways of the storm's effects.

With the storm the weather warmed slightly — rising above the 32mm record lows of the Christmas holidays.

But it was still far from inviting outdoors.

The CFB weather office recorded an official low of 10 below for the Belleville-Trenton zone.

The warmer trend also was expected to hold good to tomorrow, at least.

High today was forecast at 15 above and low tonight 10 degrees above. Tomorrow, the mercury could rise as high as 20 degrees.

At Tweed, the department of lands and forests weather office had less cheery news.

"It looks about the same as it was for the winter of '59-60," said a spokesman. "It has about the same degrees of cold and snow."

That year a block - buster winter dumped 114 inches — and with the first real month of winter just ending the total to date for the current season already has climbed a third of the way up that record pile.

Storm Fouls Delivery Of Weekend Magazine

Sorry! We were plowed under!

Saturday's hefty snowfall partially fouled city carrier service of the full Intelligencer Weekend edition.

To speed delivery, copies of Weekend Magazine are dropped in advance at specified carrier pickup points.

During the storm more than 25 bundles of the magazine — about 1,200 copies — were buried as snow plows sought to keep city streets open.

There were insufficient extra copies in stock to make good the loss and The Intelligencer regrets any inconvenience caused its carriers and subscribers.

Snow Goes Boom!

Don't get any inspiration from this scene. There's only one way to clear that snow-plugged driveway — a shovel, and muscle liniment if required. Dynamite is definitely out — unless, like this worker today, you're breaking ice-snow layer for Zwick's Island skating rink lights.

Some Roads Are Still Blocked

PICTON (Staff) — There are still some roads in Prince Edward County completely blocked due to the weekend snowstorm that dropped from six to ten inches of snow on different parts of the county.

Complicating the matter were high winds blowing the snow into drifts that in some places reached a height of six feet. Drifts four to six feet were everywhere and many township and county roads were completely impassable.

Ontario Provincial Police began urging motorists to stay off the highways on Saturday morning. In most cases, however, the warning was unnecessary as cars snowed into driveways could not get out if they needed to.

Fighting the storm around the clock were workmen and tractors tried to keep the highways who just barely managed to keep up with the onslaught of wind, sleet and snow.

Many Belleville men working on shifts and driving three snowplows, a grader and four graders joined to keep the highways clear.

However, in some cases it was a case of before men and equipment could get to stricken areas and clear the way. At Mountain View highway 14 was completely cut-off until equipment reached the scene.

Another road in poor condition was the Quinte Skyway which was dangerously snow covered for the most of the weekend.

All appointments and dates were behind schedule as the weather almost slowed down time itself. Buses ran 20 minutes to one hour late at best.

This morning workmen are still at it around the county clearing roads and digging out cars. Public works employees in Picton are still tracing snow away from the main street area.

Moira Water Level Rises

Flooding conditions are not normally associated with zero temperatures, but it is just the kind of weather which can spell trouble in the lower reaches of the Moira River.

City engineer Wilbur Purcell said today that since last week's temperatures ranging down to 18 below, the level of the river ice south of the lower bridge has risen by at least two feet.

"The river is much higher than we would like to see it at this time of year", he said.

The reason of course for the increased level of the river ice is the fact that there are open sections in the College Street area where frazil ice formed by the below zero temperatures float downstream beneath the ice.

This frazil ice clogs up the river channel between the lower bridge and the Bay of Quinte. The result is the river current cannot readily discharge into the bay and the level of the river gradually builds up.

Trenton Traffic Slows to Crawl

TRENTON — The snow that enveloped the Quinte area this weekend had more people pushing cars than driving them.

But there were no major accidents in Trenton in spite of the hazardous driving conditions.

Trenton police report that they had no major calls and also received very few minor ones.

Traffic resembled a continuous lmobile line on Dundas St. and wherever there were stop signs or traffic lights a sure jam up occurred.

The biggest trap for unwary motorists was the parking lot next to the police station.

Once in, drivers soon discovered there was no way out. The area was not shoveled and there were very few cars that got out under their own power.

As a result the lot was in the state of constant confusion for with only one entrance-exit route, one car was enough to block the way for everyone else.

As a result the parking lot was closed early this morning as plows and trucks worked to clear the area to allow cars to park without having to call a tow truck to get out.

Garages report that their towing services have been working to the limit but calls have gradually declined as the weekend came to an end.

Brighton OPP report only minor calls. Most of these came from Highway 401 where road conditions were described as slippery.

Police warn that with the lowering of temperatures in the evening that the 401 is still hazardous, in certain areas.

Contract Let

Elmer C. Woods Construction of Belleville was the low bidder for the installation of washrooms and other related work at the new recreation building at the Belleville fairgrounds.

Mr. Woods' bid of $10,130 was the lowest of five received and was approximately $4,000 under the highest figure quoted.

Snow Drill

In the Mackenzie delta, 200 miles inside the Arctic Circle, drilling has reached below 8,000 feet at the second exploratory well, Tununuk K-10, being put down by three oil companies—Imperial, British-American and Shell. The first well in the area was drilled in 1965 by the same companies and discovered encouraging shows of gas.

Moving Snow at CFB Trenton Is Massive Job for Airmen

TRENTON — The next time you shovel out your driveway count yourself lucky.

For when snow comes to Trenton it spells a time of frantic movement at the Canadian Forces Base. And the men that do most of the moving are the 22 members of the base's snow removal force.

Their job is to keep the white stuff off roads and runways. But in the case of a heavy storm the difficulty of their job is heightened because a runway must be kept open at all times.

It is then that blowers and plows are dispatched to the main runway and work non-stop to clear the strip. After the clearing of the runway comes other 'top priority' areas. All other areas are forgotten until the main arteries are cleared.

But the whole operation is not just a matter of driving out to a spot and starting to plow.

From headquarters in the SRD sector of the base, plows and blowers are dispatched under radio direction. Each must keep in radio contact with the control tower when plowing the runway so as not to interfere with landing planes.

The snowfall that hit the Quinte area this weekend emphasized the massive job these men carry out.

Rex Glover, a 20 year veteran of handling the big plows, was on the move throughout the weekend.

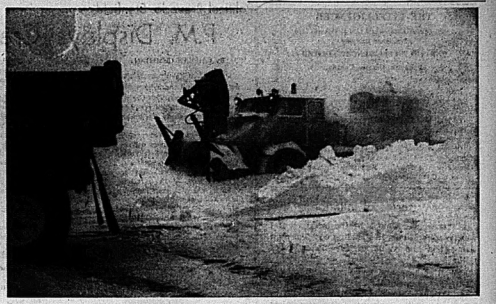
Rushing into headquarters he picked up some alcohol to dissolve the freezing rain on his windshield. Then it was back into the cab and out to the runway.

The big vehicle really moves once underway and the radio is always crackling with the voices of other members of the crew. He checks with the control tower to see if it is safe to cross the runway.

Soon he is working on the strip along with other plows and two blowers which are cutting through the mountain like snow.

"The worst thing here is the wind," explained Mr. Glover, "sometimes it catches you going the wrong way and the snow ends up all over the place."

All the time his hands are operating the switches which control the monster of a plow on the front of the machine.



"We'll work 24 hours on shifts," he said, "and it might take us three days to get this snow fully cleared away."

So there is a bit more work than shovelling out a driveway. These men keep CFB Trenton operative when a snow storm strikes. They are responsible for keeping the entire base clear.

As any of the drivers will tell you — it's no small job.

Clearing the Runways

Miniature Snowstorm

Cutting through the mountains of snow covering the runway at CFB Trenton, massive blowers throw the snow into the air. Wind turns this area into a miniature snowstorm as the blowers work full time to keep the runway open.

Auto Wasn't on Tracks

Train Hits Car in Wellington

PICTON (Staff) — A car-train collision took place in Prince Edward County Saturday night when the car wasn't even on the tracks. It was stopped at the railway crossing waiting for the train to pass.

Rev. Joseph Shannon of 53 West St. in Wellington pulled to a stop in front of the CNR crossing on Consecon St. in the village. A 45 car freight train started to pass by and all was well — at least for a few moments.

But things aren't always what they appear to be and Rev. Shannon soon discovered that some railway cars are wider than others.

Evidently he had pulled to a stop just a little too close to the actual railway tracks because it was soon obvious to him, as he looked down the track, that the overhang from a cement carrier car was soon going to take part of his automobile up the track.

Since he didn't have time to back up, Rev. Shannon and his 14-year-old son Rae, jumped out of the car and watched.

The train car came along and caught the front fender of Rev. Shannon's car tearing it off and taking it up the line. There were no injuries in the unusual mishap and damage to the car was estimated at a maximum of $500.

Sometimes you just can't be careful enough.

New Administration Centre Will Be in Napanee

NAPANEE — Napanee will be the administration centre for Lennox and Addington Board of Education.

The decision was reached by the 16-member board last week. The board named a committee to look into the possibility of renting or buying the present post office building at the corner of John and Bridge streets. The building will be become vacant next month when the new federal building opens.

Trustee Stanley Allore of Camden East suggested the board should build on property in Bath if negotiations for the Napanee post office fail.

A secondary school was once proposed for the vacant property in Bath but ratepayers to Napanee district high school cancelled the plans.

The board also decided to borrow $1 million from a local bank until assets from the existing school boards can be transferred to the new board.

The money is required to pay staff salaries.

The board will take out accounts with each of four bank branches in the county. The Toronto-Dominion bank in Napanee will receive the computerized payroll account, the Napanee branch of the Bank of Montreal will handle the general account, the Royal Bank branch will handle the capital accounts and the Tamworth branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce will handle the trust fund accounts.

Director of education, J Colin McLeod, said the board should be in no hurry to hire additional clerks and supervisors. He said departmental of education inspectors and superintendents could be used until the end of June.

Club Reviews Activities

Members of the Hastings County Farm Service Club will review their 1968 activities and re-organize and elect officers for 1969 when they hold their annual meeting at the Stirling Legion Hall on Wednesday, Jan. 8.

The meeting will be an all - day affair with a special TV show "Money Management" to be viewed commencing at 10.30. A noon hour luncheon will be held at St. John's Anglican Hall at which Bill Hurst, Soils and Crops specialist from Brighton, will be the guest speaker.

The Hastings Farm Service Club covers the work of the soil and crop Association, the county ploughmen's association and the county farm safety council.

Belleville Electronics Firm Gets Share of Market

A Belleville electronics firm has been recognized as one of the 13 Canadian companies sharing $1.7) million in sales projected over the next year as the result of participation in the recent convention show sponsored by the American Vocational Association at Dallas, Texas.

Electronic Controls Ltd. of Belleville showed products manufactured and assembled locally in the co-operative display sponsored by the federal department of industry and trade and commerce.

Considered equally important, according to a release from Ottawa, most of the Canadian companies signed on representatives in the United States.

The report pointed out that over 800 active inquiries on products were received from all areas of the United States.

The Canadian exhibitors displayed a wide variety of vocational training equipment. Among the items shown were electronic trainers, machine shop equipment and apparatus for fluid mechanics and thermodynamics experiments.

Two Forest Employees Die

Two long time employees of the department of lands and forests, both of whom at one time worked in the Bay of Quinte district, have died suddenly.

William E. Edwards, nursery superintendent at the department's provincial forestry station at St. Williams, died while on a business trip to Toronto, while James W. Anderson, manager of the Normandale trout rearing station died the same day.

Mr. Edwards was born at Canonoque in 1909 and in 1934 graduated from Toronto University with a B. Sc.F. and worked briefly with the Ontario Forestry branch. During the war he served with the Canadian Intelligence Corps where he earned the rank of Captain and in 1946 rejoined lands and forests, being stationed at Napanee, Angus and St. Williams.

Mr. Anderson was born at Chelsey in 1914 and joined the department in 1936. Following four years war service he resumed his duties with the department and served at the Glenora fish hatchery before being transferred to Normandale.

Mysteries of Inflation

Ever wonder what is behind inflation, and why in spite of cuts in spending costs keep on rising and the value of the dollar keeps falling?

Well we have, and we do not claim to have all the answers. But it is a little disturbing to find that even those who might be expected to have most of the answers — the economists and government experts — are no more enlightening.

Economists never seem to agree on anything involving the economy, while the government keeps tight control of spending despite its protestations about effecting economies.

While it does so, its own spokesman and public relations people put out official papers which purport to show just what is going on yet leave the taxpayer just as mystified as before.

In a recent Paper put out by the Ministry of Consumer and Corporate Affairs the question was posed, "What are the underlying reasons for our recent unsatisfactory price behavior?

The Paper goes on to say in part: "We have to recognize that our present state of knowledge of many aspects of the problem is insufficient to provide conclusive answers. We lack adequate statistical data and sufficient empirical research (despite Ottawa's army of civil servants) in the areas of price and income determination in Canada. Thus we are confronted today with explanations that are contradictory and differ with the approach of the particular economic interests of those undertaking the analysis or offering their policy prescriptions.

"Some," the Paper continues, "tend to put most of the blame on excessive wage demands or high levels of government expenditure; others point to excessive rates of profits, rising rents, interest rates and other costs. Accordingly the government has concluded that there is a real need for more objective research by qualified experts in the field."

So there it is. The government itself feels more research into the subject is required. That in itself may mean more inflation through the hiring of more 'experts' to do the research, only then to discover in all likelihood that no one is any the wiser.

Ever wonder then why we have inflation?

Onward to the Moon

When man sets foot on the moon, what then? The lunar surface itself is forbidding and contains no form of life. The Apollo 8 crew have described it as "a vast expanse of nothing, uninviting, unappetizing, looking like plaster of paris or beach sand."

Study of the astronauts' photographic survey, of course, is bound to reveal much more about the moon's physical contours and topography than is already known, and particularly of the other side of the planet hidden from view until comparatively recently. Cameras aboard an unmanned Soviet space probe took earlier pictures of the far side.

As of now, however, it is difficult to imagine anyone from earth remaining on the moon longer than is necessary to update scientific knowledge of the planet. On the other hand, when that is accomplished the possibility of more extensive probes of the planetary system by man must be considered. That being so, the moon may ultimately be no more than a staging post on the way to say Mars and Venus.

Again, there are the military aspects of all this space activity. Because the Soviet Union is attempting to reach the moon too, so the United States must achieve at least parity in this endeavor. Fortunately there is growing evidence of friendly rivalry in this sphere, rather than of hostility. The Apollo mission was followed with considerable interest in the Soviet Union and astronauts Borman, Lovell and Anders even received a telegram of congratulation on their accomplishment from ten Soviet cosmonauts.

There is another facet of all this space activity that should not be overlooked. And that is, it serves to take the heat off some of our problems on earth, to give us more perspective and restore our sense of wonder.

It may not solve the world's problems, the world of man that is. It does not bring Arabs and Jews any closer together in the Middle East, it does not put food in the mouths of the hungry or erase the United States' own problems — like the war in Vietnam or violence in the cities — but it does remind one of fundamentals. As someone has said, a sense of one's own insignificance in the cosmic scheme of things is a good thing to keep in mind.

Political Bravado: Stanfield

P.M. Displays Craft in the Great Rule Change Debate

By CARMAN CUMMING

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau left one indigestible lump for the opposition's Christmas pudding as he got ready to leave for the sunny Caribbean and skin-diving pleasures.

His suggestion—however indirect—that the Commons opposition may have been led into a trap on the rules debate will make very tough swallowing for the other side.

What makes it even lumpier is that the opposition had gone off to their own Christmas joys with the righteous conit of men who had done their job in blocking the "iniquitous" rule 16-A.

The thought that they may have been led into a trap like unsuspecting lambs to the sacrificial to bring them back Jet. 14 in an angry mood.

So much so, in fact, that observers were left wondering why the prime minister had done it. If there really had been a "very astute piece of planning" on the part of the government, why didn't he hold his tongue after the battle was won?

The question Mr. Trudeau raised, without answering, was whether the government really had called a retreat in its rules deal with the opposition last week.

In brief, the deal meant opposition acceptance of most of the rules changes as long as 16-A was sent back to committee for another look. This was the proposed rule that would have let the government set in advance the time limits on debate of any legislation.

At his Monday news conference, Mr. Trudeau played a dodging game with reporters on whether there had been a retreat.

At one point he said there had been a very astute piece of planning around 16-A, without going into details on what it was about.

Asked to expand, he said there were two ways of looking at the developments.

One was that the government had retreated, thereby showing its reasonableness, and he was happy to live with that interpretation if people wanted it that way.

"But I'm so satisfied with the over all results that I would suggest that the contrary strategy could be analyzed in this—that we presented a very revolutionary set of reforms; there was one that very few could ask for the opposition to agree to, 16-A. "We drew them into discussion of only that and objecting to only that. Then we pulled the ground out from under them. If I can put it, the trap sprung shut . . . and Parliament has got a new set of rules which is a darn good set of rules, and it's been done by unanimous agreement of Parliament."

Mr. Trudeau hastened to add that he hadn't planned it that way, "but I'm extraordinarily happy with it."

But the enchantment made at least one thing clear—that the 16-A issue is far from dead.

Mr. Trudeau left no doubt that the government will insist on a rule giving it the right to put a time limit on debate. And Mr. Sanfield made clear his party will continue to fight that.

Presumably it will also be on the lookout for hidden traps.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 30, 1948.

Addressing the Optimist Club Freeman Burrows, secretary manager of the Chamber of Commerce, told of experiences gained during 5½ years in the RCN, when he rose to command of a corvette. Speaking of his tours of convoy duty in the North Atlantic, he painted a vivid picture of the grim battle for supply in the early days, when three convoys were steered about, trying to appear to enemy eyes as a dozen. From this starting point, Mr. Burrows depicted the gradual progress until in 1945, great convoys sailed from New York constantly growing at each rendezvous, and guarded by numerous rocket equipped corvettes, merchant aircraft carriers and rescue ships.

Formerly general manager of the Quinte Memorial Chapel and for some years acting as office manager at the Belleville General Hospital, Donald A. McKinney has joined the staff of the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, it has been announced by John R. Bush, proprietor.

30 YEARS AGO

December 30, 1938.

Mrs. George Thompson spent a few of the holidays with her sister, Mrs. Mildred Berry, Gananoque.

James H. Follwell was home from the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, to spend the holidays at his home on Grier St.

Jack Parrott is spending a few days in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. E.A. Vanderwater of Redmersville left today for Florida where they will spend the next three months.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Edwards have returned home from Toronto where they spent the holidays.

Capt. John Watson, Mrs. Watson and family will spend New Year's Day with friends in Kingston.

40 YEARS AGO

December 30, 1928.

Mrs. Gerald Clapp and young son, Dundas St., have returned home from Peterborough, where they spent the holidays with Mrs. Clapp's parents.

J. A. McFee addressed the members of the Rotary Club on Optometry, the profession in which he is engaged. His address was most interesting and informative.

At a meeting of the Rlwanis Club the following officers for the year 1929 were elected and installed: president, George Lee; vice president, Joseph Hallsh; secretary-treasurer, George Griffin; directors, John McIntosh, Bernard Collins, George F. Cole, Bryson Donnan, Terry Dolan, Fred Malott, Charles Hama, Russell Wotten, George Boristeel and Peter MacLaurin.

50 YEARS AGO

Bob Sills is in Kingston to make arrangements for the Knight McGregor concert there next week under the auspices of the GWVA.

The Rev. George Marshall, of Ottawa, the newly appointed pastor of Emmanuel Church here, will take up residence in the city about Feb. 1st.

Rt. Wor. Bro. W. N. Ponton has added to the editorial archives of the Daily Ontario a graphic and gold beautifully printed card of invitation to a Masonic concert and ball held in the Ontario Hall, Bridge St. E. on the evening of December 28, 1868. How many of the ancient brotherhood of merry, merry, merry Masons remember tripping the light fraternal toe on that occasion 50 years ago? The cards are signed by W. A. Shephard, as secretary.

Small Towns Make the Scene

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

The nicest compliment we have heard paid to the small town in many a blue moon, comes from John V. Lindsay, with love, to Cooperstown, NY, pop. 2,700. "I'd like to be mayor of this town," he said. "I'll bet it's a good life."

What one would have said it with so much grace? None but John Lindsay could do it with all the proper equipment. He is that supposedly, non-existent specimen, a native of New York City. What's more it is people that go on. The novelist James T. Farrell once wrote that every great American novelist came from a small town or had a small-town experience in a city, which enabled him to know people. One of the early American humorists whose identity remains in said that "The city has everything a small town has, and further, more. They've got it on for," but that is true no longer, if it ever was.

Many a small-towner who has helped make a city big shares Mayor Lindsay's dream of winding up in a small town with some equivalent of his hanging up his stinger at a second-story window. Most of us won't ever do it, for various reasons and even more, various excuses. But we can set forth the proposition that there's nothing small about a small town except its size, and that's just right.

Focus on Spanish In the U.S.

Victoria Times

One facet of the language problem common to the United States and to Canada is now undergoing serious study by our neighbors. More highly concerned now than they have been over the problem posed for Mexican-Americans, the United States is investigating the "extent to which rules and practices of public-school systems preclude or impose sanctions on the use of Spanish in school or on school grounds."

This, it is suggested, involves inquiry into the extent to which denial of the right of instruction in the individual's mother tongue is a violation of his civil rights.

There is, of course, a significant difference in the problem confronting the United States and Canada. In this country, French is a recognized official language and, as such, enjoys a preferred position over the tongue of any minority which speaks anything but French nor English.

The civil rights element in the American data does, nevertheless, have some interest for a very large number of Canadians. They may be expected to await with some concern the findings of an independent, bipartisan investigating agency which shortly will open hearings on the question in San Antonio, Texas.

Pro Sport is Lucrative

Regina Leader-Post

There is now another goal for athletes to aim at in addition to the .300 batting average, the less-than-four minute mile or what have you. This is the $100,000 salary.

It is reported that more than 50 athletes will have earned that much or more in salaries or prize money by 1968.

There have always been a few super - stars who commanded super-fabulous fees. Rosh's 1926 contract for $80,000 with the New York Yankees would probably be worth some $200,000 in 1968 dollars. But the average athlete in the old days earned far less.

Times have changed.

The median salary in professional basketball today is said to be $25,000. In U.S. professional football it is $22,000, with the minimum in the National Football League set at $15,000. In U.S. baseball, the median is $17,000.

With prospects like this, what can a parent tell a youngster who wants to go out and play ball instead of practising the piano?

Of course he could always be told about Denny McLain, one of this year's baseball heroes. McLain who is dickering with the Detroit club for a raise from $35,000 to $100,000, is an accomplished organist who reportedly can earn as much pulling the stops during the off season as he does pitching the horsehide the rest of the year.

It always helps to have something to fall back on, although his prowess on the diamond probably has much to do with his popularity as a keyboard artist.

Garbage Disposal Problem

Brockville Recorder and Times

Nobody wants his own garbage or his neighbor's and therefore creates a problem. And the big thing today is to attempt to minimize one else's property a garbage dump.

Cities throughout the world are plagued by the seeming perpetual problem connected with garbage disposal. In Brockville, there are problems too. The late Edward VII's royal family deodorizer is the bane of the people who live downwind with it as a garbage dump. The dump is in Elizabethtown. There's no place in town for it, and earlier attempts at incinerator failed miserably.

In the United States the problem is reaching alarming proportions and many dangerous schemes are being tried. The city of New York is hauling a half a million freight trash, loaded with garbage to abandoned mines and quarries for landfill operations. San Francisco is studying a plan to haul garbage by rail 375 miles northeast to Sump 10, an abandoned mine to be used as landfill and covered with earth. It will amount to 1,500 tons a day and the mountain county will receive 25 cents a ton for permitting the dumping of garbage. The trash will be hauled by the township balance its books.

Garbage is polluting swamps, meadows, rivers and lakes in many parts of Canada and the United States. No one wants it but a solution must be found for its disposal. It is ironic in a day when we can send a man to the moon that scientists haven't yet devised some simple means of disposing of garbage to the advantage of mankind.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 30, 1968 . . .

Duke Richard of York was assassinated and killed 508 years ago today—in 1460 —while marching with troops to expel the Frenchborn Queen Margaret from England. His son Edward took up the leadership of the Yorkist cause and expelled King Henry VI and the Lancastrians, seizing the crown for himself as Edward IV and thus ending the first phase of the Wars of the Roses.

1865—English author and poet Rudyard Kipling was born.

1944—King George of Greece virtually renounced his throne when he proclaimed a regency to rule his native land.

Now—The Moon Itself

Military Implications of the Space Race

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The tremendous feat of orbiting a manned spacecraft 10 times around the moon and then bringing it back to earth with definite accuracy has given the United States a decisive lead over the Soviet Union in space technology and achievement.

Undoubtedly the Russians now will put on a spurt and attempt a spectacle of their own perhaps in the form of an orbiting manned space laboratory or platform that might be used as a staging post for a landing on the moon.

But even if this step is achieved, American confidence is unlikely to be again so badly shaken as it was by the launching of the first Soviet Sputnik in 1957. The U.S. has shown through the three-man Apollo 8 adventure that it has reached and perhaps even mastered some of the most complicated and baffling elements of operating in space.

Each step taken contained its risks and critics have suggested that from a scientific view, the Apollo journey was foolhardy since it would add little to man's knowledge of the moon. Some have suggested the money spent might better have been applied to untangle the human chaos in American cities.

These critics have decided to look on the space program from a purely civilian scientific view. The glamor and spectacle of racing for the moon has overshadowed the prime purpose for the American crash program in space technology. The Pentagon feared Soviet military mastery of space. It believed it was essential for American defence that Americans learn how to manoeuvre in space with as great a skill as a potential enemy in war—and even attempt to gain superiority in space, if this could be possible.

It was the combined skill of achieving pinpoint accuracy in launching Apollo 8 and making it obey the most demanding commands, as well as skill in maintaining communications over vast distances, that may have impressed American military leaders most. Whether the Russians or the Americans are the first to achieve a landing on the moon may be secondary to the question of which side achieves leadership in mastering space manoeuvrability.

It is perhaps for this reason that the success of Apollo 8 will intensify the space race. The prestige of being the first to land on the moon will undoubtedly add a sport to the spirit of competition but as long as the Russians and the Americans suspect each other and the cold war continues, there will be no rest on either side in exploring and possibly controlling what might be a new military dimension.

Up for the Winter

A typical scene along Canadian water fronts. Boats in drydock at Picton Marina lie abandoned for the winter awaiting the spring thaw. The winter haul-out gives boat owners a chance to repair and refinish their vessels. Most of these craft are lifted onto their cradles by a crane.

Birth Control Methods Developed

NEW YORK (AP) — As part of $18,050,000 the Ford Foundation is spending on birth control and reproductive biology bears fruit, a woman may soon be able to spit on a piece of paper to tell if she is in her fertile period.

Development of such a birth control test is among 23 projects supported by grants the foundation announced Sunday in what amounts to a wide-ranging, private-sector attack on the population explosion.

Projects newly fostered by the foundation run from promoting quick sterilization surgery for women to research on hormonal and chemical contraceptives for men.

The saliva test for women would most immediately be important to Roman Catholics, forbidden by their church to use any birth control method except the rhythm system. It would determine whether a woman was in the fertile period of her menstrual cycle.

Research on it is being conducted at the Mount Sinai School for Medicine here, which is getting $1,300,000 in Ford grants for research in reproductive biology.

The quick sterilization surgery, also developed at Mount Sinai, employs a cutoscope, a slender telescopic instrument with a built-in light source that is inserted into the abdomen through thin layers of vaginal tissue.

With it, sterilization surgery requires only a short period in hospital and can be done without general anesthesia.

Belleville Man Dies

A Belleville man, Daniel Gaffney, 19 West Moira St., died early this morning of burns sustained when his clothing caught fire at his residence last night.

Police and firemen were summoned to the house about 7 p.m. Sunday when four men in an upstairs apartment found Mr. Gaffney with his clothes ablaze. The men investigated after they heard something fall in the room below them and smelled smoke. They extinguished the blaze before firemen arrived. Little damage was done to the room.

The man was taken to Belleville General Hospital, where he was reported to have second and third degree burns to more than 60 per cent of his body.

Investigation continues in to the cause of the blaze.

Firemen Elect Executive

The Belleville Professional Firefighters Association — Local 497 — elected a new executive for 1969.

The slate of officers for the incoming year are —Paul Stephenson, president; Robert Lloyd, vice president; Robert Armitage, treasurer; Robert Andrus, secretary and Gordon Miller, executive.

The Association maintains a fund for underprivileged children in the city and sponsors a number of projects to raise money. The firefighters are particularly aggressive in helping the downtown merchants with the Santa Claus parade and contribute much time and effort to making children of needy families happy at Christmas.

Lighting Awards Made

TWEED — The Tweed Christmas lighting contest, sponsored by the Tweed Public Utilities Commission, was judged recently by H. A. Beech, Ontario Hydro Belleville and J. A. Thomlinson, Tweed Hydro.

The theme of the contest was, "Let's all help to make Tweed the most beautiful village in Eastern Ontario this Christmas."

Winners were: Harry Thompson, Terrance Rasburn, Kenneth Fisher, Oasis Woodcock, Donald Hodgins, Clifford Colan and Milton McTaggart.

Given honorary mention were: Ralph Smith, Robert Gordon and Stewart Lassard.

Thieves Get $167 in Break

Police are investigating the theft of $167 worth of property from the home of Cpl. George McLean, 404 Bleecker Ave. during the holiday season.

Thieves entered the house by forcing a cellar window open while the owners were away for a week's vacation. The theft is believed to have occurred Dec. 27.

Thieves Steal Peas

WELLINGTON (Staff) — A lot of peas stop. That's what the person or persons responsible for breaking into the United Canners Ltd. warehouse in Wellington are going to have.

According to provincial police in Picton the break occurred some time Saturday, Dec. 28 and 29 cases of canned peas were stolen.

Entry was gained through an office window and the cases were then carried out. Each case contained 24, 14-ounce cans of peas and the total haul was valued at close to $100.

Nancy Greene Top Woman of the Year

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

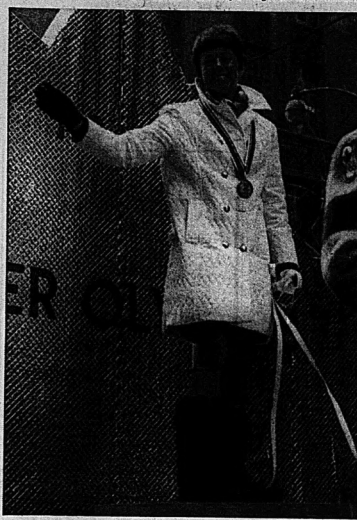
Nancy Greene, already selected by sports editors as the top Canadian woman athlete for 1968, has been chosen by women's editors of newspapers, radio and television stations as Canada's woman of the year.

The world and Olympic ski champion from Rossland, B.C., who since has turned professional, was a runaway winner as newsiest woman of the year in the field of sport. She won the over-all title by a narrow margin over Anne Francis Bird of Ottawa, chairman of the royal commission on the status of women which held hearings across Canada during 1968.

The continuing debate on abortion and birth control edged Mrs. Bird's commission in voting by the 103 editors in Canadian Press' year-end poll as the best women's news story of the year.

Mrs. Bird emerged as the woman of the year in public affairs, with Judy LaMarsh, selected as woman of the year in 1967, in second place. Miss LaMarsh, of Niagara Falls, Ont., who resigned from the cabinet after the Liberal leadership convention in April, also was the public affairs winner last year. Mrs. Grace MacInnis of Vancouver, only woman elected to Parliament in the June 25 election, was third this year.

Two women from French Canada were repeat winners in the fields of music and entertainment. Actress Genevieve Bujold was the decisive choice in the stage, screen and TV division and Montreal singer Monique Leyrac won narrowly in music over folksinger Catherine McKinnon.



Miss Leyrac was voted woman of the year in music in 1966 and was chosen again last year after achieving success in Moscow, Paris and New York. Miss McKinnon was a strong contender this year after numerous TV appearances and a role in the grandstand show at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

Miss Bujold repeated her success of 1967 on the basis of her starring role in the all-Canadian film Isabel, which had its premiere in New York during the season. The film was produced by her husband, Paul Almond.

Adrienne Clarkson was an easy winner in the field of literature and art, won last year by French-Canadian author Solange Chaput-Rolland. Miss Clarkson, best known to TV viewers as hostess of the Take 30 show, is the author of two novels and numerous magazine articles.

Miss Greene also edged youthful golfer Sandra Post in the new category of "young woman to watch," on the basis of her switch from the ski slopes to advertising and promotion.

One editor cast a ballot in the new category for "Prime Minister Trudeau's girl friend —whoever she may be."

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT G. FREELAND

Freeland – Euler

Tabernacle United Church, Belleville was the setting on Saturday December 21, when Doris Elizabeth Euler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl B. Euler, Belleville, was united in marriage to Robert Gordon Cameron Freeland, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Freeland, Scarborough. Rev. Robert Brooks officiated at the ceremony and wedding music was rendered by Clifford Templer who also accompanied the soloist C. Rupnow.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of white velvet brocade featuring a scooped neckline and full length lily-point sleeves, and highlighted with flowing train edged with marabou. Her Spanish mantilla veil was caught to a spray effect headdress and she carried a marabou muff crested with a large solitaire mauve orchid encircled with ivy.

The matron of honour Mrs. Thelma Bishop and bridesmaid Miss Betty Jane Freeland were dressed alike in full length green velvet gowns in Empire style with a multi-colored band accenting the waistline. Each carried a bouquet consisting of one large poinsettia with cascading mums intertwined with holly.

James M. Harvey was groomsman, while the ushers were P. Douglas Freeland and Brian H. Freeland, brothers of the bridegroom.

The wedding reception was held at the Quinte Hotel where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a full length gown of sapphire blue velvet with a white orchid corsage. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a full length gown of pink with silver highlights and a mauve orchid corsage.

On return the couple will reside at 123 Bellamy Rd., Scarborough.

Four Canadian Women Make News in 1968

CP Women's Editor

The status of Canadian women may have been the most talked-about thing about them in 1968. The royal commission on it provoked sneers, cheers, arguments. Social legislation affecting it was news.

The seven-member royal commission on the status of women started its hearings in Victoria in April and finished them in Ottawa in September.

Commission chairman Anne Francis says she expects to hand her report to the government in 1969.

Former Liberal cabinet minister Judy LaMarsh says the report will only be shelved. She has been quoted as saying Prime Minister Trudeau had a "Jeanne Dixon attitude" toward women and thinks of them as adornments rather than as people. Besides, she said, women are too apathetic about their rights to make things happen.

For Miss LaMarsh, 1968 was the year of the runner. She would resign, she wouldn't. She was serious about saying she would contest the party leadership she wasn't. Her memoirs, her possible television show, and an assortment of appointments have all been the subject of speculation, as has her attitude toward Mr. Trudeau.

For the first time since 1945, the number of women in the House of Commons was reduced to one. Grace MacInnis, NDP incumbent from Vancouver Kingsway, was the only one of 36 candidates elected.

Jean Wadds, for 10 years the Progressive Conservative member from Grenville-Dundas in Ontario, lost her seat, as did Liberal Margaret Rideout, first elected in Moncton, N.B., in 1964. Mrs. Rideout has since been appointed a citizenship court judge.

Women's status advanced a few mini-steps in the churches in 1968.

The Presbyterian Church in Canada ordained its first woman minister, Shirley Marie Jeffery of Appin, Ont., in May.

Women's Institutes

ROSLIN WI

The women of Roslin Women's Institute held their regular meeting with the residents at Hastings Manor.

The meeting was opened by the president Mrs. Irene Chisholm who also read a poem "A Message at Christmas."

Program was turned over to the leader, Mrs. W. Chisholm. The Welcome song was given by the CGIT girls of Roslin. A sing-song was led by Mrs. Slingerland with Mrs. A. Bates at the piano. "It's Christmas" was read by Mrs. J. Fargey and written by Mrs. Elmy.

A play was put on by the CGIT girls. A piano solo was given by Mrs. Taylor. A story "Kittens and Babies" was told by Helen Chisholm. A poem, "The Road of Life" was read by Mrs. A. Bates. A solo was rendered by Nelda Redcliffe accompanied by Mrs. Taylor. A story, "The Meadow of Romance" was told by Mrs. H. Chisholm. Helen Chisholm gave a reading followed by a sing-song.

Mrs. R. Yorke thanked the group for putting on the Christmas program.

Everybody enjoyed a social time.

Low – McBride

Emmanuel United Church, Foxboro was the scene of the December wedding when Rev. Abel Parsons united in marriage Linda Mary McBride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. McBride of R. R. No 1, Foxboro, to Gerald Allen Low, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Low of Belleville. Appropriate nuptial selections were rendered by organist Miss Mary Cranston. Soloist for the ceremony was Mrs. Edmund Culen of Toronto, aunt of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full length empire-style gown, featuring long sleeves of sparkle floral brocade. Her chapel train was attached to the dress at the shoulders, while her headdress was a cluster of roses, with fourtier veil. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Ted Ellis. Her full-length gown was of midnight nylon velvet with sky-blue peau de soie trim encircling the empire waist and collar. Tapered sleeves and a matching headpiece completed her ensemble.

Bridesmaids, Mrs. Brian McBride, Renfrew; Miss Joan Low, Kingston; Miss Sandra Low, Belleville and Miss Dianne McBride of Foxboro were attired similarly to the matron of honor. All attendants carried bouquets of white mums.

Best man for the ceremony was Richard Long of Halifax. Ushers were Brian McBride of Renfrew, Colin Allenby, Toronto, Donald Cooper of Quebec City and Paul Middleton of Toronto.

The wedding reception was held at Emmanuel United Church Hall, where the mother of the bride received the guests attired in a one-piece blue lace dress with matching accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom wore a red velvet dress with matching hat and black accessories, completed by a corsage of white carnations.

For the wedding trip to Nassau, the bride chose a two-piece winter wool suit with a matching cape with fur trim. A black hat and accessories, and a corsage of red roses completed her attire. Upon their return, the couple will reside at 204 Queen Mary Road in Kingston.

W.M.S. Rally Held In Roslin

TWEED — A sectional rally of Kingston Presbyterial Women's Missionary Society was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Roslin, recently.

The theme was "Giving of Thanks". Mrs. Norman White president of Roslin W.M.S. welcomed the women.

Mrs. D. C. MacPherson of Stirling presided over the meeting. The worship service was conducted by the Stirling W.M.S. Mrs. G. Haggarty and Mrs. D. Fargey assisted Mrs. D. C. MacPherson in leading the devotions.

The minutes of the rally held in November were read by Mrs. L. Montgomery of Roslin.

Representatives of Madoc, Stirling, West Huntingdon and Roslin were present. The 1969 Rally will be held in Stirling.

Solos were contributed during the evening by Mrs. Arthur Hassell, of West Huntingdon, and Mrs. R. Taylor of Roslin. Poems and readings, using the theme of the meeting, were given by Mrs. William Donan of Stirling and Mrs. J. Bailey of Madoc. Mrs. Fiak of Roslin spoke briefly on the topic "Today's Woman or God's Woman." Mrs. Barton Haggerty of West Huntingdon expressed thanks to all who had contributed towards this successful rally and to the session of St. Andrew's Roslin.

Anything Goes in New Fashions

NEW YORK (AP) — Do your own thing. That's the message the fashion industry is giving the American woman for the coming season.

After years of rigidly dictating just what could be worn where and with what, the designers have decided to let women make up their own minds.

Free-and-easy clothes, designed to be mixed and matched and, in some cases, worn by either sex, have stopped being gimmicks and started being styles.

Women no longer buy accessories to go with one costume. A chain belt originally purchased to wear with a simple shift may find itself gathering the waist of a tunic-topped pants suit.

The "wear-what-you-will" trend is expected to continue in the spring collections shown by the New York Couture Group and the American Designer Group here during the next two weeks.

Pants are sure to take a lion's share of the headlines once again. There will be pants for evening and pants for daytime; pants for the city and pants for the country; pants for him and pants for her. His will be just as colorful and fanciful as hers.

One new item may be a pants suit for the rain.

Skirts—when they're shown—also will allow plenty of freedom. Hemlines probably will remain mini or near-mini.

While daytime clothes generally will be free and sporty—showing shape without forcing women into the armor-like undergarments of the early 1960s—evening wear will be filmy and feminine.

The transparent blouse—see-through, peek-a-boo or whatever—still will be around to delight the men and shock some women.

When you are ready to make these canapes clip this picture and take it to the kitchen to inspire you as you assemble them for your New Years Eve party. Mary Moore gives you two professional hot cocktail snacks today too..

Suggestions for Hot and Cold Snacks Suitable for New Year's Eve Party

By MARY MOORE

My sister-in-law's niece-in-law Tony is having 40 people for a New Years Eve party. These include her and her husband's friends and her children's friends.

I am all for helping Tony with her house party. She wants hot and cold snacks.

CHICKEN LIVER TIDBITS

1 lb. fresh chicken livers cut into quarters about 14 slices side bacon
each cut into 3 pieces
freeze dried chives
soy sauce — about ½ to ¾ cup

Arrange cut bacon slices on counter and sprinkle sparingly with chives. Place a quarter chicken liver on each and roll up and fasten with two toothpicks. Arrange in shallow bowl and pour enough soy sauce over to partially submerge them then turn them over two or three times during a thirty-minute period. Transfer to broiler pan and broil five inches from preheated broiler burner until bacon is golden — turning over once. They require about 12 minutes overall.

HOT CHEESE BALLS (24 to 36 — may be made in advance chilled; fry at serving time)

1¼ cups fine sifted cracker crumbs
4 eggs, yolks and whites separated
¼ cup cheese whiz
¼ cup grated dry packaged Cheddar cheese
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt

Beat egg whites until stiff. Beat yolks with cheeses and seasonings. Sprinkle one cup of the fine crumbs over beaten whites and fold in. (Reserve remaining crumbs for coating balls later.) Fold in egg-yolk mixture until blended only. Sprinkle remaining crumbs on large sheet wax paper. Using heaped measuring teaspoon as your measure, spoon mixture onto crumbs and roll over to coat; then pick up and shape into balls between your palms. Shove to edge of wax paper until you have coated all. In shallow pan heat oil to 375 deg. F. (Do not use your candy thermometer use fat thermometer.) Oil should be ¾" deep. Fry about five balls at a time. Watch closely and turn over with slotted spoon when golden on bottom. Drain on paper towels.

NOTE: Make a practice batch before you attempt these professional cheese balls for guests.

For cold snacks rely on ritz crackers for bases and top with: 1) cucumber slice topped with shrimp and ½ teaspoon lemony mayonnaise 2) swirl of creamed white cheese topped with stoned ripe olive 3) sliced smoked salmon topped with tiny square of lemon jelly 4) liver paste topped with pickeled pearl onions 5) anything else your fertile imagination dreams up.

Student Learns Bridge Playing from Book

By DORIS CLARK

A cocky young fellow just out of college (and I can vouch for the truth of this story..because he was my big brother) was invited to a bridge party.

Now he had never played bridge in his life but if anyone thought he was going to give any such excuse to his new glamorous girl friend, they hadn't counted on Wilfrid.

He went to the party, and I might say played at bridge with the rest of them. As might be expected, he went home with the hobby prize — a book entitled "How to play bridge"!

But he had the last laugh. For he was invited to another bridge party a month or so later and that time he won first prize.

How did he do it? He read the book, then studied it and practised playing bridge by himself.

Amazing, isn't it, the answers you can find in books? If you can read you can stretch your mind.

Dear Doris: My son is five, has co-ordination is poor in things like coloring, but his ability to follow instructions is very good.

The thing that seems wrong is that his letters are reversed. he prints from right to left or left to right...as it pleases him, and comes out with mirror images.

His father is left-handed, but I have never made an issue of which hand Sonny uses. Neither my husband nor I is gifted at sports, or things requiring much dexterity. "Rather clumsy" is another way to say it.

Is there any point in pursuing this reversal thing? — Puzzled.

Dear Puzzled: The sample of his backward printing which you enclosed is all too eloquent of Sonny's reversal tendency. Indeed the question should be pursued, and the sooner the better.

The right kind of specialist, and the right teacher, can help him with the reorienting he needs. Without it he falters.

Canada is not overloaded with experts in this field, but things are improving as we become more aware of the symptoms and what can be done. I'm sending you material on "Children With Learning Disabilities." (Available to readers for 20 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

And you have done all three.

Better use the ignoring treatment. There are other fish in the sea.

Hairdresser Proves Blonde Has More Fun

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently a woman wrote and asked if you thought blonds had more fun. You said you didn't know of any surveys but your own personal opinion was "no."

ANN LANDERS

You are wrong and I proved it.

I am a hairdresser. My natural color is dark brown. Last year, just to satisfy my curiosity, I conducted a personal experiment. I dyed my hair every color on the chart and checked the male reactions for two weeks. I started by going raven's wing black. Coal-black hair is more attention-getting than brown, I discovered by walking through hotel lobbies and sitting in the swingiest cocktail lounges. I kept track of the whistles, propositions and requests for dates. (The last two are not the same.)

From raven's wing black I went to chestnut. Then I tried the copper tones, next the true reds. From burnt auburn I eased into the blond shades. I began to get a lot more propositions as well as dinner invitations when I hit honey blond. By the time I got to platinum, I was so swamped I couldn't keep the names straight.

I became engaged to a wonderful fellow as a platinum blond. The first thing he guy asked me to do was to let my hair go back to its natural color. Funny, isn't it, that men like to date platinum blonds but they want their wives natural? I'm going to be married next month as a brownette.

But facts are facts, Ann. Blonds do have more fun and I proved it. — LUCKY LUCILLE.

DEAR LUCILLE: You are lucky — lucky you have any hair left. A gal who dyes her hair a different color every two weeks could end up bald — not engaged. Congratulations and best wishes.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know you are busy with problems more important than mine but please give me an answer. Thousands of people in your reading audience could benefit from the information.

What does a person do when he is eating out — particularly in the home of a friend — and runs into a bad shrimp, or an oyster that doesn't taste right, or an overripe stuffed olive? Is it best to spit it out in the napkin, spit it out on the table, leave the table and dispose of it in the bathroom, or swallow it. — BEEZER.

DEAR BEE: Let's rule out your last suggestion at once. Under no circumstances should a person swallow food he suspects is tainted. The best solution is to dispose of it in the most inconspicuous manner. Use a fork or spoon to transport it on to your plate, then place it under a lettuce leaf or a shell — out of sight, if possible.

Points for Parents

Father: "Jim, I'm late for my appointment. I'll talk to you later about playing baseball this spring."

Jim: "You just aren't interested in what I do."

Father: "I'm sorry I was so rushed this morning. I really want to know how you feel about playing baseball. Are you going to try out for the team?"

Sometimes the pressures of work may make it necessary to postpone a discussion with your teen-ager If so, don't just forget it. Remember to ask about it later and hope you can pick up the threads of communication again.

U.S. Scientist's Food Warning Is Unduly Alarming: Canadian

OTTAWA (CP) — A United States scientist's warning that some canned baby foods could be dangerous for infants is unduly alarming, a Canadian government researcher said Saturday.

Dr. A. B. Morrison, research head of the food and drug directorate of the health department, said the warnings by Dr. Barry Commoner Thursday in Dallas, Texas, and again Friday in St. Louis, Mo., amount to "a tempest in a teapot."

Dr. Commoner, director of the centre for the biology of natural systems and head of botany at Washington University, St. Louis, says use of nitrogen fertilizer causes high concentrations of nitrates in some foods, notably spinach and beets.

In young babies, the nitrates could cause a chemical reaction that would destroy the blood's oxygen-carrying power, leading possibly to choking and death, he told the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Dallas.

Referring to a Montreal study which found high concentrations of nitrates in commercial brands of spinach and beets for babies, Dr. Commoner said the high levels of nitrogen products in Canadian-packed baby foods exceed recognized safe levels.

Dr. Morrison replied that "Commoner goes around saying these things without any medical evidence to support him."

The Ottawa researcher said an experiment with 20 babies during the last year showed no dangerous chemical change in baby food exposed to bacterial from the mouths of the babies.

HAPPY NEW YEAR

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"We've set a new record! An hour and five minutes to go a block and a half!"

Tea at Four Thing of Past

LONDON (AP) — Tea at four, with crumpets and all that, a thing of the past? — Could be.

People no longer seem to have the time or the inclination for assembly in chintz-lined drawing rooms for a spot of tea, a cucumber sandwich, a hot scone.

A survey taken during the three-day Christmas holiday showed that only a few cafes and restaurants in London were prepared to serve afternoon tea. They were too busy whipping up lunchs, dinners and suppers.

The old English custom of inviting friends home for tea is dying, too. Maiden aunts have gone over to lunch or dinner with their schoolboy nephews home "for the hols."

"Somehow all this side of English life seems just to have faded away," said one nostalgic Londoner.

The Savoy and Ritz hotels long have given up their daily tea dances with string orchestras playing around potted palms. Even Gunter's, the top place for the tea set in London, has become less fashionable.

In the Mother of Parliaments, there's no longer time for tea in the old sense. Instead of whiling away an hour or two with scones and cumpets on the terraces overlooking the Thames, legislators seem to manage only a quick visit to the bar before rushing back to the House.

In universities the tradition is going out for a different reason. Men undergraduates once were allowed only to invite girl-friends to their rooms in the afternoon, meaning tea. Now many university colleges permit the men to invite girls for dinner, regarded as more romantic than tea.

The death of the tradition does not mean the end of factory tea breaks nor the northern English habit of "high tea," a sort of early dinner.

But it does mean that no modern English composer is likely to make a fortune with something like the old hit, Everything Stops for Tea.

English Build Plane For Promotion, Advertising

KIRBYMOORSIDE, England (AP) — Workers in this north England town are bolting together an airborne billboard that next year may be flashing advertising slogans to millions of New Yorkers. It's one of the world's longest, slowest and strangest planes.

The CAMCO V-liner got its "flying girder" nickname from a triangular fuselage of exposed aluminum tubes that gives it the appearance of a horizontal television tower with wings.

The V-Liner's vital statistics: length—278 feet, more than twice as long as a Boeing 707; height 23 feet normal cruising speed-less than 60 miles per hour.

The plane is amphibious, with a flying boat-type hull at each end of the fuselage. There are three propeller engines, two in front and one in back, and space for two pilots, one in front and the other at the tail.

However ungainly it may be, the plane's designers believe it has potentially wide use for advertising, traffic control, mapping and military reconnaissance. They plan to build 480 V-Liners during six years at a cost of about $100,000 each.

A spokesman said two American corporations, First National City Bank of New York and Canada Dry, already have signed agreements to use the plane for aerial advertising over New York.

To a certain extent, the V-Liner will replace the old advertising blimps," said Lewis C. McCarty Jr., who headed a British-American design group. "But it will be 20 times more effective in terms of lower cost and wider audience coverage than the b limps were."

Predicts Long Life

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Dr. Charles William Hall, a research specialist, says science may eventually enable man to live for 300 years. Hall said in the "far distant future, man will have a life expectancy of possibly 200 to 300 years. The ultimate key is understanding the aging process and slowing it down."

Trudeau Most Intriguing Minister at Conference

LONDON (CP) — The mass-circulation Daily Mirror, bracing for next week's conference of Commonwealth leaders, has its eye on Prime Minister Trudeau of Canada.

And it says Prime Minister Wilson of Britain feels the same way.

Of all the leaders due at the London meeting, "easily the most intriguing is one of the new boys, Canada's Pierre Elliott Trudeau," the Mirror's gossip column says.

British officials "may have been hoping that Trudeau would continue to play the honest-broker role perfected by his predecessor, Lester Pearson," the paper continues.

This would involve Canada "acting as a link between the old white dominions and the new brown and black members of The Club."

"But Trudeau has other things in mind," says the newspaper. "He will have much to say which will be music to the ears of the new Commonwealth if not to the old.

"For he is deeply concerned about the growth of racialism and extreme forms of nationalism which has fought in his own back yard."

The Mirror says Wilson does not want the conference "to get caught up in the question of racial tension."

Alcoholism Treatment

Nagging Women an Asset

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The ability of women to nag their husbands is being used by alcoholism treatment centres in the United States to bring addicts to the centres says Robert E. Smith of the U.S. National Council of Alcoholism at Rochester, N.Y.

Mr. Smith described the nagging method Sunday at a conference on alcoholism and drug addiction sponsored by Toc Alpha, the youth arm of the Alcohol and Drug Concern Inc., formerly the Ontario Temperance Federation.

"All women know how to nag, but they don't know how to do it consistently or constructively," Mr. Smith said.

By giving the wives of alcoholics lessons in constructive nagging, the national council of alcoholism was better able to reach the addict.

Mr. Smith said the wife of an alcoholic tends to protect her husband and too often makes threats that she never keeps.

Mr. Smith said that while studies have failed to show that alcoholism is hereditary, the home environment of an alcoholic causes his children to be more susceptible to addiction than if they were brought up in an abstainer's home.

Your Car

Hydraulic Brakes Are Complex

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes: "About a year ago you mentioned that sudden brake failure frequently right after the brakes have been serviced plays a major role in the mechanical failure type of accident. My four year old car with no power equipment has travelled 42,000 miles and is due for its second brake reline job. I want the brakes to be 100 per cent and am quite willing to spend what is necessary for a perfect job. Could you explain the hydraulic brake system and outline exactly what should be done when the brakes are being repaired on a car of this age and mileage?"

The major portion of the brake system in your car comprises a master cylinder attached to the brake pedal, about 30 eet of steel and rubber brake lines carrying hydraulic fluid to four wheel cylinders, four brake drums, eight brake shoes with either bonded or rivetted linings attached, and various springs to control the brake shoe action.

The most important step in assuring a perfect brake job is selecting a conscientious, knowledgeable mechanic who will carefully check the condition of all vital components and carry out necessary repairs to restore normal brake efficiency.

On a four-year-old car showing over 40,000 miles this procedure should be followed. Check the steel brake lines for dents or rust damage and examine the rubber brake lines for evidence of deterioration. (These steel and rubber lines are frequently overlooked and often are the cause of sudden and complete brake failure).

Replace the worn linings with top quality material. Inferior linings can fail due to heat build-up during high speed braking, especially when a vehicle is loaded to capacity. Dismantle the four hydraulic wheel cylinders and the master cylinder and install repair kits or replace the whole assembly, depending on wear. Brake drums must be tested on a lathe and machined if necessary to assure 100 percent contact between the drum and brake linings.

With most passenger cars scored or out-of-round drums should not be machined to a greater oversize than one sixteenth of an inch. Drums machined beyond this limit should be replaced. In the event of oversize drums, the brake linings must also be oversize or processed on an arc grinder to compensate for the material removed from the drum. Replace defective front and rear wheel oil seals and weak or stretched brake springs. Free up, lubricate and adjust parking brake mechanism. Upon completion, pressure test all hydraulic line connections for possible fluid leaks and, finally, road-test the brakes at various speeds.

All this sounds extremely t chnical? It is, but at least it points up the complexities of hydraulic brake systems, and proves that repair costs cannot be established until the system has been dismantled and inspected.

NOTE: Letters from readers with car problems are most welcome, but please include: Year and model, number for cylinders, mileage, standard or automatic transmission, power equipment, brief outline of previous repairs, and a self-addressed envelope.

If Not One Hull, Then It's Another!

By SCOTT BUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Fans went to Chicago Stadium Sunday night to watch a courageous Bobby Hull perform despite a fractured jaw, but went away talking about his younger brother Dennis.

Equipped with a special helmet and a huge bar to protect the jaw, Bobby Hull delighted the crowd of 16,666 by scoring his 32rd goal of the season to help the Black Hawks to a 4-1 National Hockey League victory against Los Angeles Kings.

But Dennis collected his 19th and 20th and continued to give every indication that he is headed towards his finest season ever in the NHL. His best to date was the 1966-67 campaign in which he scored 25 times.

Bobby, playing for the first time since he suffered the broken jaw Christmas night, scored the decisive goal at 18:34 of the second period. Dennis, now with 13 goals in his last 13 games, connected at 6:42 and 19:28 of the same period to give Chicago a 3-0 lead.

Bob Schmautz scored for Chicago and Howie Hughes for Los Angeles in the third period as the Black Hawks moved into a fourth-place tie with Toronto Maple Leafs in the Eastern Division.

Elsewhere Sunday, New York Rangers defeated Montreal Canadiens 3-1, Oakland Seals edged Philadelphia Flyers 2-1 and Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings fought to a 3-3 tie.

Saturday, Los Angeles topped Toronto 4-1, Boston walloped St. Louis Blues 6-2, Montreal took New York 5-3, Chicago downed Minnesota North Stars 4-2 and Oakland nipped Pittsburgh Penguins 4-3.

Two third-period goals by Don Marshall and one by Vic Hadfield helped the Rangers defeat Montreal Sunday before 17,250 at New York and gain a split in their weekend series.

Yvan Cournoyer scored for Montreal at 17:04 of the second period with New York's Harry Howell in the penalty box. But the Rangers, who outshot Montreal 49-35, stormed back in the final period.

Marshall tied the score at 12:08 and then put the Rangers ahead at 13:13 with a 40-foot wrist shot that eluded Montreal goaltender Tony Esposito.

With 34 seconds left, Hadfield scored into an empty net after the Canadiens had replaced Esposito with an extra forward.

The Bruins moved into a first-place tie with Montreal in the Eastern Division by tying Detroit in front of 15,013 Red Wing fans.

Ken Hodge scored two goals

DENNIS HULL

for the second consecutive game and Phil Esposito added three assists for the Bruins who fought back from a 3-0 deficit.

Rookie Grant Erickson was credited with the other Boston goal while Detroit tallies went to Dean Prentice, Ron Harris and Garry Unger.

Hodge started the comeback with a power-play goal at 5:33 of the second period. Just 37 seconds later, Erickson recently recalled from Oklahoma City of the Central League, scored his first NHL goal.

Esposito and Hodge combined to score the tying goal at 12:47, with Esposito feeding the puck to Hodge for his 13th goal. There was no scoring in the third period.

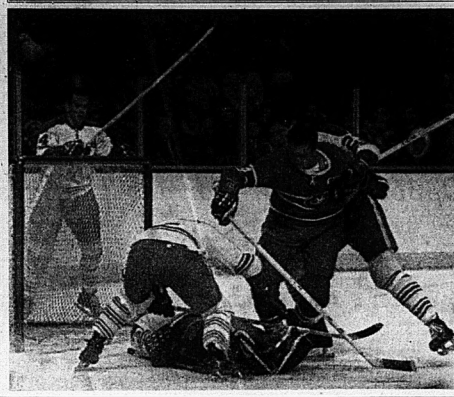
Defenceman Carol Vadnais scored early in the third period on a 55-foot drive to give Oakland its triumph Sunday before a gathering of 12,757 at Philadelphia.

Billy Hicke scored his 13th goal of the season for Oakland in the first period and Forbes Kennedy tallied for Philadelphia in the second.

Vadnais won the game during a power play when his long shot beat Philadelphia goaltender Bernie Parent at 1:22.

The victory moved Oakland to within eight points of first-place St. Louis in the Western Division and three ahead of third-place Los Angeles.

Oakland goaltender Gary Smith stopped 30 Philadelphia shots, including several tough ones. Parent made 27 saves.



Dennis Hull scored a goal and added an assist Saturday afternoon when the Hawks topped the North Stars in front of 14,404 at Minneapolis. Brother Bobby did not play.

Pit Martin scored two goals for Chicago and Stan Mikita and Ken Wharram added one each. Jean-Paul Parise and Wayne Connelly replied for Minnesota. Referee Vern Buffey, snowbound in Colorado, missed the game. The two linesmen split their duties and another linesman arrived late in the game to complete the three-man crew.

Hodge scored two goals for Boston Saturday, with single goals coming from John McKenzie, Ed Westfall, Wayne Cashman and Derek Sanderson. A crowd of 12,339 at St. Louis saw Gary Sabourin and Jim Roberts connect for the Blues.

The Canadiens scored four times in the third period before 17,255 at Montreal Saturday. Jacques Lemaire scored the decisive goal at 15:37 of the third period and Jean Beliveau added an insurance goal in the final minute of play.

Other Montreal goals went to Henri Richard, Bobby Rousseau and Cournoyer. Hadfield had two goals for New York and Reg Fleming one.

Playing to Crowd

Oaks Edge Orillia With 10 Players

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oakville Oaks, with their roster depleted to 10 men through illness and injury, refused to play dead before their largest home crowd of the season Sunday and pulled out a 4-3 Ontario Hockey Association Senior series victory over third place Orillia Terriers.

With 1,425 looking on, the short-handed Oaks took a 4-1 lead into the final period and then held on as the Terriers collected two quick goals.

Bob Polk paced the winners, who climbed to one point behind fourth place Collingwood Kings, with two goals and one assist. Defenceman Don Currie and veteran Bob Hawkins, with the winner at 19:19 of the third period, completed the Oakville scoring. Grant Moore, John Hall and Gary Milroy replied for the Terriers.

The Oaks had less luck in front of 1,500 fans at Galt Saturday as the second-place Hornets handed them a 7-4 defeat. In other weekend action, Belleville Mo-Hawks prolonged Kingston Aces' road game troubles Sunday with a 6-1 conquest of the Aces before only 300 fans at Belleville. The Aces held league-leading Barrie Flyers to a 4-4 stalemate through 10 minutes of overtime at Kingston Saturday and Woodstock A's forced a 3-3 tie with Collingwood Sunday at Woodstock.

In their home ice win over Orillia, Oakville used two forward lines, three defencemen and one goaltender. Marcel Labelle, Terry Cook and Charlie Cipolla were idled with the flu.

At Galt Saturday, the Hornets, led by Howie Dietrich's two goals, moved ahead of Oakville 6-2 after 40 minutes. Adding single goals for Galt, who edged within four points of first place Barrie, were Pete Brennan, Perry Belanger, Don Snider, Bob Ertel and Ron Hergott. Terry Holmes replied for the Oaks with two goals. Captain Bob Bishop and Hawkins both scored once.

Winston Dowdell scored with less than five minutes remaining in regulation time for Kingston against Barrie to force the stalemate. Chris Seale, Ron Ezrl and Syl Apps Jr. completed the Kingston scoring. Mike Dubeau, Corby Adams, Wayne Weller and Bob Forhan scored for the Flyers.

At Belleville Sunday, the Mo-Hawks preserved their home ice success against their Kingston rivals. The two clubs have met eight times so far this season, each winning all four home games.

At Woodstock Sunday, Jerry Harrigan rescued the last-place A's from defeat with a goal less than four minutes from the end of the third period. Chuck Harmer and captain Don Mahoney added single goals for the home side. Roy Rapp, Bill Abbott and Joe Hamley all scored once for Collingwood.

Czechs Stage Revolt

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (Reuters) — The Czechoslovak ice hockey team skated off the ice in protest Sunday night against the refereeing of the final game of an international tournament.

Officials awarded the game and tourney title to the University of Denver.

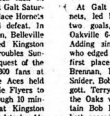
Denver had come from behind to tie the score at 3-3 in the third period when the Czechs were given their second misconduct penalty of the contest.

The Czechs complained bitterly, broke their sticks, stormed off the ice and refused to return.

The Czechs were finally persuaded back on the ice and were ready to resume play after a long delay. But by that time, the game had been awarded to Denver and several of the Denver players had already showered and started packing for home.

Tennis Amateurs To Keep Money, Status

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—The price has gone up for the pro tennis services of Arthur Ashe Jr. and Clark Graebner, America's Davis Cup heroes, and indications are promoters will have to pay through the nose if they're to infuse their troops with fresh new blood.



"This manifesto put out by the four big tennis nations over the weekend will make a millionaire of Arthur Ashe," said one leading official connected with the U.S. team, "in thumbnail, what the big four nations did was recommend a universal player category for tournament competitors, allowing these players to accept prize money without becoming contract pros.

Ashe himself after viewing a three-point recommendation to the International Lawn Tennis Federation by representatives of the United States, France, England and Australia, commented: "Certainly, this will affect my pro plans. I don't think anybody under these circumstances would sign a pro contract."

CHICAGO'S BOBBY HULL sips an egg nog in his home in suburban Addison. Hull's jaw was broken in Wednesday's 6-3 win over Toronto and has been wired shut. Hull resumed action Sunday, scoring a goal against Los Angeles Kings. (AP Photo)

Colts Trample Browns in Cleveland for Super Bowl Berth

CLEVELAND (AP) — "I was in New York, you know. I heard a lot about Joe Namath and the Jets. I am anxious to play against him."

Earl Morrall, Baltimore's rags-to-riches quarterback, was talking in the Colts' locker room Sunday after they had wiped out Cleveland 34-0 to move into a Super Bowl date with New York's Jets Jan. 12 at Miami.

It was Morrall's happiest day, capping many years of frustration by adding the national Football League title to his own Most Valuable Player honors after bouncing from San Francisco to Pittsburgh to Detroit to New York to Baltimore in 13 years as a pro.

Coach Don Shula of the Colts, who lived four years with the humiliation of the 27-0 beating by Cleveland in the 1964 title game, was on Cloud Nine.

There was concern in the locker room about an inquiry to Tom Matte, the halfback who tied a playoff record by scoring three touchdowns on runs of one, 12 and two yards. He matched the record set by Cleveland's Otis Graham in 1954 and equalled by the Browns' Gary Collins in the 1964 game.

An examination showed Matte suffered a mild concussion and a contusion of the lower back. X-rays of his rib cage were negative and doctors reported no apparent damage to his kidneys.

Matte, a former Ohio State quarterback, ran 17 times for 88 yards and caught two passes for 15 yards and a total offence of 103 yards.

In addition to shutting off Leroy Kelly, who gained more than 100 yards seven times in 14 regular season games, the Colts had interceptions by Rick Volk and Mike Curtis, a blocked field goal by Bubba Smith, a fumble recovery by Don Shinnick and four sackers of the Cleveland passer.

It was not one of Morrall's great passing days. He hit with only 11 of 25 for 169 yards, but his play direction was superb.

The Colts, known primarily as a passing team, ran for 194 yards with Matte and Jerry Hill doing the heavy duty.

Baltimore broke the ice with 17 points in the second quarter after a scoreless opening quarter. Following a blocked field goal by Bubba Smith, they moved in range for Lou Michaels' 28-yard field goal. After receiving a punt, they moved 60 yards in 10 plays before Matte went over from the one. Curtis's interception set the stage for a 25-yard move in three running plays, climaxed by Matte's 12-yard burst.

When two illegal procedures penalties disrupted a Cleveland march in the third quarter, the Colts struck again with the third Matte touchdown.

Michael's second field goal, a 10-yarder, and a four-yard touchdown, run by Timmy Brown completed the scoring in the fourth quarter.

Ewbank's AFL Champion Jets To Be Opposition for Former Charges

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Jets, their first American Football League championship consummated by the proper champagne celebration, will arrive in Miami for the Super Bowl Thursday night, four years and one day after Jim Hudson outpassed Joe Namath in the Orange Bowl.

Hudson and Namath are on the same team now, but on opposite sides of the line. Namath, a quarterback at Alabama, has remained at that position. Hudson, a quarterback whose 69-yard touchdown pass helped Texas beat Alabama in that Orange Bowl game, has switched to safety.

The reason for the move and the non-move was all too painfully obvious to Oakland Raiders Sunday as they watched their chances of a second straight title get swept up in the swirling wind at Shea Stadium before a record crowd of 62,627.

The Jets, fired by Namath on offence and Hudson on defence, trimmed the Raiders 27-23 and vaulted into the Jan. 12 Super Bowl against Baltimore Colts, who whipped Cleveland 34-0 for the National Football League crown.

That means Weeb Ewbank's present team will run into his old one. Ewbank coached the Colts for nine years and won two NFL titles with them, making him the only coach to win championships in both leagues.

Green Bay Packers won the first two Super Bowls, beating Kansas City and Oakland, and the Colts will be expected to keep the NFL streak going. Namath was not as accurate Sunday as he's been most of the season—he completed only 19 of 49 passes.

But he got the ball in the end zone when he had to, throwing touchdown passes of 14 yards to Don Maynard, 20 yards to Pete Lammons and again to Maynard for six yards and the winning touchdown with 7:47 left in the game.

Hudson's defensive moves didn't add any points to the Jets' total, but they prevented the Raiders from getting at least eight and possibly more points.

New York was leading 13-10 in the third quarter—Jim Turner had kicked field goals of 33 and 36 yards—when Hudson bolted into the Raiders' way.

On four consecutive plays, he pulled Warren Wells down at the Jet 45-yard line after the split end had caught a 40-yard pass from Daryle Lamonica, stopped Charley Smith with help at the three, stopped Smith again at the two and then jarred Hewritt Dixon to the ground on third down at the one.

The Raiders did some pretty fast scoring too, Blanda's 20-yard field goal after Hudson knocked down the pass to Dixon cut the Jets' lead to 20-16, and on the first play after the kickoff, cornerback George Atkinson intercepted a Namath pass on the New York 37 and raced to the five. Pete Banaszak burst across for the touchdown and a 23-20 lead, Oakland's first and last of the day.

Vets West and Baylor Keep Lakers Atop Division

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Clutch shooting by veterans Jerry West and Elgin Baylor late in the game enabled Los Angeles Lakers to overcome Detroit Pistons 111-105 Sunday night in one of four scheduled National Basketball Association games.

The win saw the Lakers maintain their 4½-game lead in the NBA's Western Division over Atlanta whose 101-99 decision over Baltimore Bullets gave the Hawks their 10th straight victory—a club record.

In other Sunday games, Bob Boozer came off the bench and scored 13 of his 23 points in leading Chicago Bulls to a 102-97 decision over Milwaukee Bucks and New York Knicks, paced by Willis Reed's 34 points, toppled Seattle SuperSonics 120-112 in a game played at Vancouver.

In Saturday's play, Detroit dumped San Francisco Warriors 131-102, Philadelphia 76'ers edged Cincinnati Royals 128-123, Atlanta downed Boston Celtics 110-97, San Diego Rockets dumped Phoenix Suns 136-126 and New York nipped Seattle 111-106.

College Grid Fans Can Anticipate Steady Tube Diet

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The college football season hit full stride with five games during the weekend, and television fans, still weary-eyed from Apollo space spectaculars, can look forward to a steady diet of football until after the New Year.

It started Friday night when Richmond upset favored and previously undefeated Virginia Tech 20-19 in the Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla.

The game was televised as was four more contests Saturday when Missouri defeated Alabama 35-10 in the Gator Bowl, Auburn defeated Arizona 34-10 in the Sun Bowl, West defeated East 16-7 in the East-West Shrine and Gray upset Blue 29-7 in the Blue-Gray all-star contest.

Then there's the Peach Bowl in Atlanta today between Louisiana State and Florida State and the Blue Bonnet Bowl at Houston Tuesday night between Oklahoma and Southern Methodist.

In between were the two professional championships—the National Football League with Baltimore at Cleveland and the American Football League with Oakland at the New York Jets both on Sunday.

And if that isn't enough football, the big four meet New Year's Day in the Rose, Cotton, Sugar and Orange Bowls, pitting against each other eight of the first nine teams in the U.P.I.

In the Friday night contest, the explosive passing combination of Richmond quarterback Buster O'Brien and Walker Gillette was too much for Ohio.

O'Brien completed 29 of 58 passes for 447 yards and four touchdowns. Gillette took 20 of the connections, including one for a touchdown for 242 yards.

Ohio's Cleve Bryant completed 17 of 33 passes for 223 yards and three touchdowns, with Todd Snyder taking all the scoring passes.

In the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Missouri quarterback Terry McMillan scored three touchdowns on short runs and handed Alabama its worst bowl licking ever. However, he never completed a pass and had a pair of losses picked off that gave Alabama its only points.

Alabama gained only 45 yards running and 68 through the air, and quarterback Scott Hunter was so harassed that he hit only seven of 25 throws and was thrown for losses totalling 61 yards.

In Montgomery, a tough Gray defence stole the spotlight. Turning the first of four pass interceptions into a touchdown early in the first quarter, the Grays took a 7-0 lead and the Blues never caught up.

With Jim Marsalis of Tennessee State supplying the spark, the Gray defence routed the nation's collegiate offensive leader, Greg Cook of Cincinnati, who went most of the way for the Blues at quarterback.

Marsalis, voted the game's outstanding defensive player, stole three of Cook's passes as the Grays maintained a shutout until the final quarter when Rich Johnson of Illinois scored the Blues' only touchdown.

In the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Auburn reserve quarterback Tommy Taylor sparked a second-half explosion as he ran four times in five plays, capping his performance with a nine-yard touchdown scamper.

Less than half a minute later Auburn's defensive back Buddy McClinton grabbed a Bruce Lamb pass and ran 32 yards for the touchdown. It was McClinton's third interception of the day, as he gained most valuable player honors for this 34th annual Sun Bowl contest.

In San Francisco, Louis Thomas of Utah recovered a fumble on the East 13-yard line in the second quarter, setting up the go-ahead touchdown and the West went on to upset the East in the 44th annual Shrine college football game.

Two 240-pt later, West quarterback Ronnie Johnson of Oklahoma State hit Thomas with a pass at the one-yard line. Two plays after that Johnson fell across the goal for the go-ahead touchdown.

The East scored first when Ed Podolak of Iowa, playing quarterback, found that despite a backfield of potent runners—Purdue's Leroy Keyes, Michigan's Ron Johnson and Army's Charlie Jarvis—he could do better himself.

After Michigan's Johnson brought the ball to within a foot of the goal line, Podolak bulled over for the score, giving the East a 7-0 lead.

Mo-Hawks Keep Hex on Kingston; Deal Aces Fourth Loss In Belleville

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Coach Davey Jones and his Belleville Mo-Hawks are getting so they would like to see their home-game schedule read: "Kingston, Kingston, Kingston."

The Mo-Hawks handed the Aces their fourth loss of the Senior "A" season here, manhandling the visitors 6-1 in a Sunday afternoon contest before a dismal turnout of 300.

Each of the seven games played to date between the perennial arch-rivals has now been won by the home team.

For the Aces, the loss marked a continuation of a season-long streak that has seen them drop each of their 13 road games.

And for the Mo-Hawks, the win kept them within five points of the Aces in the battle for the senior loop's sixth and last playoff spot. Kingston has a game in hand, and a Mo-Hawk visit to the Limestone City next Saturday evening should prove to be a battle royal.

Scrappy winger Ralph Plane set the winning wheels in motion yesterday, giving the locals a 1-0 lead at 6.01 of the opening period when he deflected home Davey Jones' low shot. Plane has been performing at a goal-a-game clip since returning to the lineup after a month-long layoff with a broken ankle.

With 12 seconds remaining in the period, centre Bob Taylor ended a scoring famine, tipping in Wayne "Weiner" Brown's point shot with each team playing a man short.

The Mo-Hawks unleashed a free-wheeling power-play with Bob Brown off for Kingston early in the middle period, before Jones directed Jack Wilton's point shot past the Aces' Mike Lovett for a 3-0 Mo-Hawk margin.

Trenton product Andy Teeple continued to fly, centring Al Ferguson and newcomer Lorne O'Donnell. Teeple's digging paid off for Belleville's fourth unanswered goal at 13.48 of the second, when he picked up his own rebound off Kingston defender's pads and drove the puck home.

Jones got his second of the afternoon at 2.53 of the final period, skating along the left side and with a Kingston player shadowing him, beating Lovett on the short side.

Larry Holmes' bid for his second shutout of the year — (the other was a 6-0 whitewash of the Aces Oct. 18) — was spoiled when Syl Apps Jr. banged in Charlie Convery's passout at 6.13.

Determined to have the last word, the Mo-Hawks put the finishing touches on the Aces with Ron Riley's tip-in of "Weiner" Brown's point drive at 16.57. For the veteran Brown, who played blueline shifts yesterday, the helper was his fourth assist.

Another new lineup look for the hometown spectators was a Plane-Taylor-Jones forward combination that accounted for four of the six Mo-Hawk goals.

Led by burly Greg Marchen (who served 16 minutes in penalties), the Mo-Hawk defence played one of their better games, restricting most of the 30 shots at goalie Larry Holmes to the harmless variety. Meanwhile the Mo-Hawks were pouring 36 shots at Lovett, hitting a pair of posts, and missing out on at least half a dozen good scoring chances.

The usual Kingston-Belleville frscas began to develop at several junctures, notably in the second period when Ralph Plane poked goalie Mike Lovett in the face mask and escaped without a penalty.

But nothing serious resulted, and the players from both teams even sat down to a New Year's buffet following the game, organized by the Mo-Hawks' Booster organization.

Next action for the local seniors comes Friday night when the Oakville Oaks bus into town for a 9 o'clock game.

Summary

KINGSTON — Goal: Lovett; defence, Edwards, Schwartz, White; Brown, Ball; forwards, Apps, Convery, Graham, Collins, Long, Rook, Saloon.

BELLEVILLE	11	13	12	— 36

Attendance (Paid) 300.

A CROCHET ARTIST — Kingston Aces' forward Bob Collins demonstrates the fine, but illegal art of hooking against the Belleville Mo-Hawks' Andy Teeple. Teeple scored one of the six goals that enabled the Mo-Hawks to skate off with a 6-1 home ice win Sunday afternoon over the Kingston visitors. It marked the fourth time the local seniors have beaten the Aces here this season.

Don Byes Stave Off Late Morrisons' Drive

STAFF — A last ditch effort to salvage a tie failed last night and the short handed Belleville Morrisons dropped a tough 4-3 Jr. "B" verdict in Peterborough to the powerful Don Byes.

Coach Floyd Crawford pulled goaltender Paul Hopkins with thirty seconds remaining in the game and the Morrisons outmanned Peterborough in their own end with Ray Summers and Brian Coughlin both missing golden opportunities to tie the score.

The Morrisons were tied 1-1 at the end of the first period, but took a 2-1 lead in the second only to see the Don Byes surge back with three quick goals for a 4-2 lead.

Belleville narrowed the margin to one goal but could not get the equalizer, despite the extra attacker in the last thirty seconds of the game.

Peterborough's Bill Ellis opened the scoring at 3.41 of the first period, but Belleville got that one back at 17.31 when Gord Donaldson put a pass from Jerry Candler and scored on a waist-high drive from 20 feet out.

Captain Ray Summers scored but Morrisons second goal at the 33-second mark of the second period in a goalmouth jumup after he and Brian Coughlan had a two-on-one break.

Peterborough who moved into first place in the six team junior league as a result of the win, took advantage of the fact that Belleville had only two lines and one extra forward after Dennis McCormick came up with a pulled thigh muscle on the first shift of the game.

The Don Byes played three lines and were down Belleville, taking the lead in the third period on two goals by Jim Benn, and one which proved to be the winner by Phil Grady.

Gord Donaldson, who played both left wing and defence, scored his second goal at 8.39 on a shot from the point during a power play, to pull the Morrisons within one goal of the Peterborough club.

The cellar-dwelling Morrisons' next game is a Friday encounter in Trenton against the third-place Golden Hawks.

Sports On All Fronts

LONDON, ot. (CP) — Johnny Bing captured the featured $2,200 Preferred-International Handicap Pace in his first start at Western Fair Raceway Saturday. Driven by Guy LaRush, he was clocked in 2:12 4-5, fastest time of the afternoon.

* * *

LONDON (Reuters) — All the top English soccer teams were frozen out Saturday as arctic conditions gripped Britain and caused postponement of 35 English and Scottish League games. Football pools were cancelled and betting companies held bettors' money for use on future games. Only two games were played in the English First Division.

* * *

MIAMI, Fla. (CP) — A $2 ticket which won a record $53,369 on Friday's Big Perfecta at Tropical Park race track was cashed Saturday by a tourist from Maryland. The man, who refused to give his name, took the payoff in cash before the start of Saturday's program and said he planned to "make further investments in Saturday's card — including the Big Perfecta." The payoff was on a combination of 12-10-3-5-4. The previous record of $51,894 was set just three days earlier by a Miami taxicab driver.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George Allen, fired as Los Angeles Rams' coach, will coach the Western Conference team in the 19th annual Pro Bowl football game at the Coliseum here Jan. 19. Tom Landry of Dallas Cowboys will pilot the Eastern Conference team. They were picked by the Los Angeles Times and the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner, co-sponsors of the event. A spokesman said Allen had been selected on Tuesday, two days before he was fired.

Smith Fuels Lose to Oshawa; Come Back to Win Consolation

STAFF — Belleville's Smith Fuels peewees, defending Ontario champions, were defeated 9-1 by Oshawa in the first game of the Lindsay peewee tournament Saturday, but came back to win their next two games and capture the consolation trophy in the invitational tournamcnt.

Smith Fuels nipped Peterborough 6-5 in their second game, and had little trouble in defeating Cobourg 6-2 to win the consolation title.

Eric Powell scored Belleville's only goal in the first round loss to the powerful Oshawa club, who won the A division title and the right to enter Port Huron Michigan's Silver Stick peewee tournament to be held at the end of January.

* * *

Steve Kirby with a pair of goals and Mike Crawford, Peter Crawford, Bruce Sutherland and Eric Powell with single goals led Belleville to their narrow victory over Peterborough.

Trenton Midgets Ousted

STAFF — The host club emerged with top honors at the three-day Orillia midget hockey tournament Saturday by scoring a goal in the last minute of play to defeat Toronto Marlboro 3-2.

Trenton Lions' midgets were eliminated in the semi-finals by the champion Orillia club, while Belleville's Blake Kerr Imperials were knocked out 8-1 by the Marlboros in the third round of the 16-team invitational tournament.

Belleville suffered a 5-2 defeat to Hamilton in the first round of the tournament but downed Detroit 4-2 in the second round before losing out to the Marlboros.

Cliff Janitsch and Terry Meagher scored for Blake Kerr's Imperial midgets in the loss to Hamilton while Terry Meagher and Allan Genereaux scored two goals each in the win over Detroit. Mike Rollins accounted Belleville's lone goal in the loss to the Marlboros.

Clean Weekend Sweep By City Minor Teams

Western Tire juveniles dumped arch - rival Trenton 11-5 and Smith Fuels peewees tripped up Napanee by a score of 4-2 as belleville minor hockey teams had a light schedule of OMHA league games on the weekend.

Belleville Legion 99 novice "B's" defeated Cobourg 3-1 in an exhibition game Sunday at the Belleville Arena for their third straight victory.

Reid Mallory's hat trick paced the juveniles to their victory over Trenton. Wilson, Mitchell and Mulvihill each fired a pair of goals for Western Tire and single goals went to Hopkins and MacLaughlin.

Wannamaker with three goals and Norton and DeMille with a goal each accounted for the Trenton scoring.

The novice "B's" downed Cobourg 3-1 as John Janopolous, Ron Dorchak and Danny Duffy scored single goals.

Food City Novices Eliminated by Champions

STAFF — Belleville Food City Novices suffered a 3-1 loss to Oshawa Saturday and were eliminated in the semi-finals of the AA class championship of the Thousand Island international "atom" hockey tournament played in Brockville.

Paul Hayman's third period goal and Bruce Hamilton's outstanding netminding were not enough for the locals as Neil, Ford and Young scored for the Oshawa club.

Oshawa went on to capture the grand championship of the tournament Saturday by defeating Bowmanville, Ont. 1-0 on a goal by Steven Young.

Oshawa earlier had won the AA class championship with a 2-1 win over Montreal North. Bowmanville took "A" class honors by downing Lindsay 3-2. Host Brockville won the consolation championship with a 2-0 win over Burlington, Ont.

Twenty-four teams from Ontario, Quebec and the United States were entered in the competition.

SWINGS!

That's the principle behind the pendulum clock, invented in 1657. Earlier clocks were found only in cathedrals and public towers; today it's a rare home that doesn't contain at least one time-keeping device. The days of the sundial and the hourglass are gone and the modern world depends upon accurate clocks.

If the days of your older clock are gone in your home, chances are that a home somewhere in this area would love to use it.

Montreal Police Plan Demonstrations To Protest Decision on Pension Fund

MONTREAL (CP) — Projected demonstrations by Montreal policemen before city hall and the Quebec legislature will be the last occasions on which they will use orderly means of protest in face of threats to their collective rights, says a spokesman for the Montreal force.

Roger Lavigueur, president of the Policemen's Benevolent and Retirement Association, made the statement in a speech Sunday to a meeting of policemen trying to decide what to do about the Montreal administration's decision to stop payments to their employees' pension fund for the next two years in a bid to reduce a municipal deficit.

But the president of the policemen's association, which administers the pension fund for 4,500 current and former members of the force, told the meeting the move would result in the eventual disappearance of the fund and threatened police reprisal in the form of an armed coup d'Etat.

"If the governments of Montreal and Quebec continue to make this kind of blistering law, we will do what they do in South America; we'll take up our weapons and depose them all," he said.

The decision of the city administration, led by Mayor Jean Drapeau and Lucien Saulnier, chairman of the city executive committee, was backed earlier this month when the Quebec legislative assembly gave third reading to a municipal bill containing a clause enabling Montreal to suspend for five years' payments to city employees' pension funds.

Mr. Lavigueur, a detective-sergeant, drew applause and cheers, when he continued:

"We are the only para-military force in Quebec. We constitute a real force de frappe and, if we have to use it to safeguard our property and our rights, we'll do it. Our rights cannot be wiped out by a band of vicious and evil politicians.

"If the people of Montreal, if the people of Quebec, do not wake up, it may happen that the police forces of the province will have to take over.

"And if the public does not support us, policemen will be forced to take steps to safeguard their rights and their own property."

After the meeting, the association president was asked by a reporter if he had been pressure about the possibility that police might one day take over the government.

"It could happen, it may happen, if the lawmakers treat us the way they have with this bill," Mr. Lavigueur said.

To Your Good Health

Shrinking in Old Age Is Normal

By Dr. George C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Have been told that as one grows older the body shrinks. Would like to know the reason, and when this occurs.

Shall soon be 71. Reasonably well and active. Seem to be having one inconvenient and annoying ailment. When I do a bit of walking or stooping, lose control of bladder. But there is no desire to void. Would you suggest a gynecologist or urologist? — Mrs. B. D.

Yes, the body usually shrinks with age, why worry about it? It shrinks with weight loss. If this is not on a voluntary basis (if you aren't on a weight - losing program) a weight loss rather often occurs in later years. There is a natural tendency to eat less, hence loss of weight.

With decrease in physical activity, likewise quite expectable, there is a decrease in muscle size as well as tone.

The dwindling of later years is due to a decrease in the fat under the skin, again a form of shrinkage.

Often there is a tendency to stoop, which results in an apparent loss of height, and in some instances bone changes in the vertebrae cause an actual decrease.

As I said, why worry about it?

As to your bladder problem, it sounds like what is called stress incontinence and may appear on addition of either a gynecologist or urologist or both.

There may be structural changes in the bladder area resulting, perhaps, from childbirth. These changes are accentuated by age, but they may be correctable.

A loss of tone of the muscle at the bladder is not unusual in older women. Medication helps this.

If infection is present, you may need the attention of a urologist, but I suggest seeing a gynecologist first.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please advise on the use of indomethacin or phenylbutazone in treatment of gouty arthritis. Is probenecid available the same as indomethacin? Recently my blood uric acid was 4.5. — W. L.

The two drugs are entirely different in use and purpose. Indomethacin is frequently effective in relief of pain from other forms of arthritis. Probenecid, on the other hand, is a "uricosuric agent," that is, it helps the body release uric acid, and in that way protects against further attacks of gout.

The former is used as repository to stop pain; the latter is taken daily and continuously after an attack of gout if the uric acid level in the blood is too high. Your reading of 4.5 is normal.

This is a pretty condensed explanation. I suggest that you get my booklet, Gout, The Modern Way to Stop It, for a more detailed account of how to attack gout and how to prevent attacks. Send 30 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Thosteson, in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., for the booklet.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a routine physical check and a rectal specialist said there are four or five polyps in the rectum. He said it was not a natural condition, but he did not insist on an operation.

Can they cause trouble, and should they be removed? — Mrs. R. S.

He may not have "insisted" but it sounds to me as though he suggested removal. Yes, rectal polyps can cause trouble, and if they belonged to me I'd have them removed without delay. Ordinarily it is not unduly difficult.

To Mrs. R. S.: Neither cancer nor Hodgkins disease is catching. You've watched the articles; that's all that's necessary.

After Four Miscarriages

Sophia Loren Gives Birth to Baby Boy

GENEVA (AP) — Flowers and congratulations poured in today for Sophia Loren, made radiantly happy by the birth of her first child after four miscarriages.

After 11 years of marriage to film producer Carlo Ponti, the 34-year-old actress gave birth by Caesarean section Sunday to a seven-pound 11-ounce boy at the Geneva State Hospital. Mother and son were reported in perfect health.

The baby was named Carlo Jr.

"Thank you for my baby," were Miss Loren's first words after she recovered consciousness and her gynecologist, Prof. Hubert de Watteville told her of the birth. Then she telephoned her mother in Italy.

Child Named Carlo Jr.

GENEVA (AP) — Actress Sophia Loren gave birth Sunday to a seven-pound, 11-ounce boy, fulfilling what she said was her greatest desire—to have a child. Her doctor said mother and son were in perfect health.

The child was named Carlo Jr. after Miss Loren's husband, producer Carlo Ponti.

Since her marriage to Ponti in 1957, the 34-year-old Italian actress has had four miscarriages, the latest early in 1967.

The birth apparently was premature. On Friday, Prof. Hubert de Watteville, Miss Loren's gynecologist, said the baby was expected in mid-January.

Miss Loren, on doctors' orders had been resting in seclusion since July in a luxury suite of the Intercontinental Hotel.

There were reports that the delivery had been by Caesarean section but de Watteville refused to comment.

Ponti, 55, had a look at his son before his wife woke up.

"He is beautiful—dark blue eyes and light brown hair," he told reporters. European television viewers saw the baby briefly Sunday night. "He looks exactly like his father," said a Geneva housewife.

De Watteville, an internationally known specialist on difficult pregnancies, told reporters he felt the role of nutrition was decisive and he made sure that Miss Loren received the correct balance of hormones, vitamins and minerals.

Miss Loren is expected to stay in the clinic for about 10 days.

She is scheduled to resume her movie career in September, co-starring in Giovanna with Marcello Mastroianni. The film will be shot in the Soviet Union and tells of an Italian woman in search of her missing husband after the Second World War.

Underground Security

Deep in the Laurentian Range at North Bay, Ont., a Canadian Forces military policeman opens one of the 19-ton blast doors leading to the underground headquarters of the Northern NORAD region. The 10-foot-square doors can be closed in a matter of seconds to protect the vital defence installation from an enemy attack. The Northern Region is the largest in the joint Canadian-United States defence force, charged with the air defence of North America.

Prisoner Under Guard Escapes from Hospital

OTTAWA (CP) — John Albert Harris, 21, of Toronto, committed Dec. 13 to stand trial early next year on a charge of possessing forgery instruments, was taken from Civic Hospital Friday by a man brandishing a revolver and wearing an glasses and a hat pulled down low over his face.

Harris was operated on last Sunday to remove part of a spoon from his stomach.

He was under 24-hour guard in the hospital, and the third to escape prison custody there in the last two years.

His liberator put tape over the mouth of guard Thomas Fudge, 55, and handcuffed him to a water pipe with his own handcuffs.

Pressure Player

When the pressure is on, this steel and rubber device made by the Tube Turns division of Chemetron Corp. in Louisville, Ky., comes in handy for piping fabricators. Called a "swel- plug" pressure tester, it expands to seal piping assemblies for testing, eliminating costly procedures such as welding caps over pipe ends.

Close Ups of War

TV News Coverage Dramatic

NEW YORK (AP) — The most dramatic moments of television in 1968 came not in its show business function but in its news coverage.

Television cameras permitted the world to share in the tragedy of two assassinations; to react to disturbances on U.S. city streets; to see war closeup, and to glory in an adventure that took men around the moon.

It was a year in which many North Americans attended, through television, the funeral services of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. We shared the vigil outside the hospital where Senator Robert F. Kennedy lay dying. We saw the president of the United States as he told us he would not seek re-election. And television took us through every step of the complicated and sometimes turbulent process that led to the election of his successor.

The world is still marvelling at the way television permitted us to follow the astronauts 250,000 miles into space and back.

Television also presented thoughtful and thought-provoking documentaries on the problems of the Negro and the troubles of U.S. cities. A report on hunger in the United States was a shocker. Day in and day out we saw the agony of Vietnam. And there was baseball, hockey, basketball, golf and football and more football.

There were some especially happy events on the entertainment side. There was, for instance, that fine adaptation of th stage play, A Case of Libel, some absorbing original drama, including The People Next Door. Vladimir Horowitz was presented in a glorious hour of music.

A slam-bang, fast-paced comedy hour made its debut last January and soon Laugh-In had become the most popular weekly program. A situation comedy with two attractive Negro performers, Diahann Carroll and Marc Copage, made its debut in September and soon Julia was the season's most solid hit.

Perhaps the worst was the industry's own, the Emmy Awards. What kind of a year has it been? A year when, for all the griping, controversy and fall-out, the average television set turned on for almost six hours a day.

Barbara Jane Mackle Relates Her Ordeal Sealed in Coffin

MIAMI (AP) — FBI agents scuffling near her buried prison sounded like the return of her kidnappers says Barbara Jane Mackle, but she didn't care any more.

For 83 hours, the 20-year-old Miss Mackle lay in a wooden, coffin-like box buried under Georgia red clay and pine needles. Then the searchers came, FBI agents acting on instructions telephoned after $500,000 ransom was delivered.

"I could hear the footsteps," Miss Mackle said.

"I thought it was the kidnappers coming back for me. I had been there so long I really didn't care."

Gene Miller, a Miami Herald writer, said in a copyrighted story that it was 4:15 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 20, when FBI agents in white shirts, neckties and business suits approached to within 10 yards of where Miss Mackle was buried.

One of the agents spotted the ventilation tube protruding inches above the ground and shouted into it for Miss Mackle to knock, Miller reported.

"I could hear him," Miss Mackle said later. "I kept rapping."

The agents began digging frantically, using their hands, a tree limb, and a rusted bucket.

One agent ran for a tire iron to use in removing screws holding the lid on the wooden box.

"When they opened it, there were faces all around, looking," Miss Mackle recalls.

She couldn't walk. Gently, the agents lifted her.

"How are my parents?" were her first words. Then she looked at the agents. "They were all crying."

The interview with Miller was the first time Barbara Jane filled in the missing portions of the kidnap story.

She told of her abduction Dec. 17 from an Atlanta motel room and being given a tranquillizer as she was driven to the open grave.

"I was woozy, but I knew what was happening. I tried to talk them out of it."

Miss Mackle lay sprawled on the damp earth. Her abductor placed a sign lettered "kidnapped" near her. A photo flashlight bulb went off.

Then came a march to the grave. The man took a ring, a watch, and yanked the buttons from Miss Mackle's flannel nightie. He wanted them for identification.

She heard the screws tightening the lid, then the shovel and earth thudding over her head, the stomping, the packing. And, finally, the terrible stillness.

For perhaps 2½ hours she had a light she could turn on and off. Then it went out.

In Miami, the FBI filed kidnapping charges against Gary Steven Krist, a 23-year-old escaped convict from California, and Ruth Eisemann-Schier, 26.

Five days later—after a chase through the swamps of Hog Island on the southwest Florida coast—Krist was captured. Police recovered $498,000 of the ransom Mackle paid.

Threats to Kill Crew Won False Confession

WASHINGTON (AP) — The captain of the U.S. spy ship Pueblo has reported that threats to kill his crew one by one contributed to his false confession to violation of North Korean waters, authoritative sources disclosed Saturday.

This and other details of systematic terror tactics are contained in a detailed report submitted to State Secretary Dean Rusk by Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher who was freed along with his 81 surviving crew members last Sunday.

The report was submitted in response to President Johnson's order for a thorough investigation after Bucher's first reports of beatings and intimidation at the hands of the North Koreans during the Americans' 11-month captivity.

U.S. officials say further details will be made public after the investigation has been completed.

Short of taking punitive military action—which is not on the picture—the only thing the United States can do about mistreatment of the prisoners is to publicize it as widely as possible.

In a statement tape-recorded at the San Diego naval base hospital where he has been in seclusion for several days, Bucher told his personal story.

Authorities said it includes an account of North Korean threats to execute members of his crew, one at a time in his presence, until he yielded to demands that a confession be signed.

Bucher said the North Koreans tried to terrorize him by pretending to fire empty weapons at him.

"They decided that wasn't going to be effective, so they ... resorted to consistently shooting the most junior members of the crew in my presence."

U.S. sources said the terror tactics against Bucher and his crew began almost immediately after the Pueblo was seized last Jan. 23 while on an intelligence mission off the North Korean coast.

On March 4 a North Korean radio broadcast a so-called "open letter" addressed to President Johnson. The letter said the Pueblo had intruded into territorial waters at five different points over a 10-day period prior to its capture. The letter called on the United States to admit the intrusion, apologize and give assurances that there would be no repetition.

The North Koreans released the Pueblo crew after the United States repudiated in advance and then signed a document which acknowledged violation of Korean waters, offered an apology and promised there would be no more such incidents.

Thirteen Injured

DESCHAMBAULT, Que. (CP) — Thirteen persons suffered minor injuries when a CPR passenger train collided with a stopped freight train near this community 35 miles northwest of Quebec City Saturday night.

Eight of the injured persons were released from hospital after being treated for their injuries.

All of th injured persons were travelling on the Montreal-to-Quebec City passenger train when it collided with the freight train, stopped while trying to get on a siding.

Memory Can Be Transferred With Extracted Brain Tissue

DALLAS, Tex (AP) — The mysterious faculty of memory appears to be encoded in molecules in the brain, new experiments show.

The evidence comes in findings that what one animal learns can often be transferred to the brain of another animal through an extract of brain tissue.

Further, differences now are being found in the size or chemistry of the molecules that transfer different kinds of specific information or lessons learned by the animals.

The new studies prolong into memory were described Sunday to the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Drs. Georges Ungar and Ejnar J. Fjerdingstad of Baylor University College of Medicine.

Dr. Ungar reported experiments with 2,810 animals, mostly rats, which normally prefer darkness to light. They were given electric shocks to make them fearful of entering a dark box.

Extracts from their brains were injected into mice. These mice spent an average time of 63 seconds in the dark box, compared with 118 seconds by mice given extracts from brains of rats not trained to avoid the dark. Each testing period lasted 180 seconds.

The conventional idea has been that memories depended on changes in the electrical activity of the brain.

Various experiments now indicate that a short-term memory of a few hours may be dependent upon electrical activity, but that long-term memory involves a chemical or physical change, Dr. Fjeringstad said.

Initial experiments in transferring memory were performed 10 years ago by Dr. J. V. McConnell and associates at the University of Michigan, using flatworms.

Since then 15 laboratories have reported positive findings in memory transfer, but other researchers have reported failures.

Castro Designs Cake for Eaton

HAVANA (AP) — Cyrus Eaton, Canadian-born American industrialist, celebrated his 85th birthday in Cuba Friday with a cake personally designed by Prime Minister Fidel Castro, it was reported during the week-end.

An aide declined to state the purpose of Eaton's trip here, but indicated it was another of his efforts to smooth relations between the Communist and non-Communist worlds.

There was no indication that Eaton had met with Castro during his visit, which began a week ago.

Strictly Personal

Measures System Ancient

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

If a slow-moving country like England can finally get off its bum and change its monetary system, it ought to be more than time for the U.S. to move the whole system of weights and measures into the Middle Ages into modern times.

Great Britain, as you know, is transforming its coinage from the old cumbersome sequence-shilling and pence to the decimal system, so that all transactions can be computed more quickly, accurately and evenly. Until now, you've practically needed an abacus to make change in a British shop.

We have the same problem in reverse here. Our currency system is simplicity itself, but our weights and measures are horribly outmoded, complex, senseless and erroneous. Like Britain and all of Europe, we ought to get on the metric system as soon as possible.

Measurements like "one inch," or "one acre" should be replaced by metres and millimetres all of which are divisible and multiplyable by 10s thus saving schoolchildren millions of hours of tedious and unrewarding memorization that could better be spent on more meaningful subjects.

Consider our tangled system. We have linear measure — feet, yards, rods, furlongs and miles; square feet will have square measure; and cubic measures, all in odd numbers and sometimes even in fractions. We have liquid measures in pints, quarts, gallons, hours and hogsheads. We have dry measure in quarts, pecks and bushels.

We have apothecaries' fluid measure — in fluid drams, fluid ounces, pints, quarts and gallons. We have Troy weight in pennyweights, ounces and pounds. We have avoirdupois weight — in grains, drams, ounces, pounds, hundredweight and short tons.

None of these computes rationally into any of the others, and all together they make no sense. An inch, in this instance, was originally the length of three medium-sized barleycorns placed end to end! And an acre was originally the amount of land which one yoke of oxen could plough in a day!

The metric units in use everywhere in the civilized world are models of simplicity and uniformity. Ten millimetres make a centimetre, 10 centimetres a decimetre; 10 decimetres make 1 metre, and so on. The same with square measure, cubic measure, liquid measure and weights. Our kids might hate school a little less if they could get out from under the burden of this yoke of mathematical oxen.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For Dec. 31st.

Your birthday today: Your coming year is one long effort to establish a sounder base of operations. Complications are caused by the needs of people on whom you depend. The conservative approach works out best, particularly among long-term associates. Today's natives think in terms of protection and safety.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Just happened to you: Your Five coincides with favorable, fun-inspiring influences. Fill out the last of the year with a fillip. Put don't let excesses spoil your fun — and tomorrow's possibilities.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): A last minute item of sheer luck comes in the course of today. Offer a prayer of thanks, then go on to celebrate the turn of the year.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Re-organize stalled or diverted personal plans. Prepare in frolic through a long party: make sure you have co-operation to help and protect.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Year end festivities should be very conservative. You will later see this as an odd day in which accomplishment is at a near austerity.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Diligently clear up last minute details this morning. Social affairs are due to begin this afternoon and run far into New Year's morning. Pace your self.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Take the wayout possibility of the year's meanderings this morning to fix a tax detail at year end; close all transactions. Modern your celebrations to near austerity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Clear the decks. Social doings will probably intrude before you get very far; keep notes as to where to pick up again. The outlook is promising, financially and spiritually. Celebrate well tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Clear out the job for the year with dispatch and vigor; but do not pretend to a finality. Some of the best is yet to come.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Phase out the formal business of the day early. Get on with the social amenities for seeing the year out in leisurely, moderate style in this gala sort of day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Review your habits and make resolutions for the coming year. Your intuitive faculties bubble to the top if you will abstain from excess and pray a little.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Aside from a creative project, abstract any routines; you've gone as far with them as can be expected now. Rest an hour or two before your party-going tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Finish every transaction possible before the day vibrates with festivity. Then join the parties with a determination to be in good shape at the final moment.

Hydro Crews Labor to Restore Power to Niagara Peninsula

TORONTO (CP) — Hydro crews from as far away as North Bay were called in the Niagara Peninsula and Simcoe areas Sunday as an ice storm caused widespread power disruption.

An Ontario Hydro spokesman said it will be sometime today before power is restored to 6,000 customers, including about 2,700 at Simcoe, 30 miles south of Brantford, and another 500 in St. Thomas.

The storm, which coated some lines with three inches of ice, extended from Sarnia in the west to northern New York state where power failed and water lines snapped in the cold.

Many of the roads on the peninsula, covered by a six-inch snowfall Friday, were cleared but then became icy and treacherous as rain and sleet continued Saturday and most of Sunday.

Some residents in St. Catharines and Niagara Falls were forced to stay in motels Saturday night when their power failed.

While much of southern Ontario chipped out of the ice, the Ottawa Valley was clogged with a seven-inch snowfall.

The CNR's transcontinental train from Vancouver, due to pass through Ottawa Sunday night, was eight hours behind schedule.

Ottawa's snowfall of 7.8 inches from Friday night to Sunday morning raised the month's total to 26.2 inches compared with a 30-year average for December of 20.8 inches.

Traffic on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway from Windsor to Belleville moved at only 20 miles an hour Sunday. Hazardous driving conditions were reported throughout the southern part of the province.

The rain turned to snow in areas north and west of Toronto. Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., reported a four-inch snowfall. London had eight inches and Trenton five.

In Toronto, police asked motorists to stay away from the downtown area. Many parking lots were still jammed with snow.

Three Toronto people died during the combined snow, rain and sleet storm, two after shovelling snow and another in a traffic accident.

Police at Niagara Falls, Ont., said many people had offered food and shelter to those without power.

A police spokesman said: "Some people have had to get out extra blankets and those with fireplaces are taking full advantage of them. Others have been moving in with friends and neighbors."

A hydro lineman, John Palmer of Stratford, was injured in the Aylmer area when he fell from a pole after his spikes apparently became clogged with ice.

Across the border in New York state, the storm downed 200 power lines in Niagara County. Parts of the cities of Lockport and Niagara Falls remained without power late Sunday.

Conditions were even worse for some families in Niagara Falls and the village of Middleport where temperatures dropped to 19 degrees and water lines broke. Many families had to be evacuated when they were without water, light or power.

The Chatham area had a different problem. Rain that pelted the area for 18 hours caused flooding in Comber, 25 miles southwest of Chatham, and flooded stretches of Highways 77 and 18.

In Oshawa, three taxi companies took their cars off the roads as snow-clearing equipment was to work.

Snowmobiles were a common sight in downtown areas of Barrie, Orillia, Collingwood, Midland and Owen Sound.

Auschwitz Slaughter Avoidable

Canadian Says Warning to Hungarian Hebrews Was Kept Secret by Budapest's Jewish Council

FRANKFURT (AP) — A Canadian professor contends that 600,000 Hungarian Jews killed by the Nazis at the Auschwitz extermination camp could have been saved had the Budapest Jewish Council warned them in time instead of co-operating with the Nazis.

Dr. Rudolph Vrba, 43, associate professor of pharmacology at the University of British Columbia, in an interview gave an account of his escape from Auschwitz and his efforts to warn the world of the fate threatening more than 1,000,000 Hungarian Jews.

Vrba, testified last Friday at the trial here of two former SS (Elite Corps) colonels charged with the mass murder of Hungarian Jews during the war.

Vrba, a native of Czechoslovakia and a Jew by birth, said he was deported to Maidanek concentration camp near Lublin, Poland, in June, 1942, and two weeks later transferred to Auschwitz.

In the spring of 1944, he heard that 1,000,000 Hungarian Jews were to die at the notorious camp and decided to flee and tell the world about the crime that was going to be committed.

Together with another prisoner, he hid in early April, 1944, underneath a pile of construction wood within the outer security zone of the camp which usually was not closely guarded.

After spending three days in their hideout with hardly any food, the two finally made their getaway and eventually crossed the Slovak border.

In Cadca, Slovakia, he informed the Jewish Council which in turn passed on the information to the Bratislava and Budapest Jewish councils, Vrba said.

But, he said "The Budapest Jewish Council were co-operating with the Nazi authorities who promised them that they would allow some 1,000 select Jews to travel to Switzerland if they hid from the Jewish community the truth about what was in store for them at Auschwitz."

Thus, he added, Hungarian Jews did not put up any resistance when they were taken to the Auschwitz death camp, believing that they were merely being "resettled."

Vrba continued that only after Swiss newspapers June 22, 1944, published his story about the Hungarian Jews and copies of his report were sent to U.S. President Franklin D. Roosevelt and the Pope, protests from several governments, including the U.S., British and Swedish governments, forced the Hungarian head of government, Admiral Horthy, to stop the deporting of more Jews from the country.

Court Rules Strax Suspension Legal

FREDERICTON (CP) — Mr. Justice J. Paul Barry of the New Brunswick Supreme Court has ruled that physics professor D. Norman Strax has been legally suspended by the University of New Brunswick.

Dr. Strax was suspended Sept. 24 for what the administration termed his "disruption" of normal university activity, "specifically operation of the university library."

Mr. Justice Barry's judgment, filed with the Supreme Court registrar during the weekend, also awarded the university $2,000 "exemplary" damages.

The judgment also upholds a university injunction barring the professor from entering campus property and restraining him from "causing any nuisance or disturbance at the university which would likely have the effect of disrupting normal operations."

Dr. Strax was suspended after his involvement in demonstrations protesting the introduction of student photo-identification cards on campus.

Trouble in India

Tibetan Refugees Raid Chinese Embassy

NEW DELHI (AP) — About 400 screaming Tibetan refugees, most of them women and children, stormed into the walled Chinese Embassy compound today and smashed windowpanes, flower pots and street lights.

The demonstration began as a peaceful protest against Peking's latest nuclear explosion and the reported intimidation of Indian editor Frank Moraes by Chinese road technicians in Nepal last week.

The refugees, shouting "Mao, Mao, go to hell," burst through police rope cordon and poured through the compound's open iron gate. They attempted to lower the Chinese flag but were thwarted by police who dragged many demonstrators from the compound. The police arrested 47 Tibetans and M. L. Sondhi, a member of Parliament from the Hindu nationalist Jan Sangh party and the organizer of the demonstration.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Hemstock and family of Owen Sound were Christmas holiday guests with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gardner.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bright of Campbellford and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Myles and children of Huntsville, Alabama spent Christmas Day with Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Haggarty and family.

Mr. William McLaren spent the Christmas holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Alex Kennedy and daughters in Campbellford.

Miss Janice Gilmour of St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto spent the Christmas holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gilmour.

Miss Linda Dafoe of Peterough Teachers' College spent the Christmas holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Dafoe.

Mrs. Wilson Morrison, editor of the Indian Express newspaper group, and an American photographer, Marilyn Silverstone, reported they were insulted and threatened last Thursday by Chinese technicians as they drove along a Chinese-built highway in Nepal.

The two escaped unhurt, and the Indian government protested Chinese interference with the movements of an Indian national in Nepal.

Cunard Refuses To Accept Liner

SOUTHAMPTON (AP) — Britain's newest ocean pride, the liner Queen Elizabeth 2, steamed homeward at half speed today amid a growing uproar over her trouble - filled shakedown cruise.

The Cunard Line announced it had refused to accept delivery of the 65,000-ton ship, which cost more than $100,000,000, until the builders cleared up "thermal expansion" problems in the ship's two turbine engines and completed their work in the passenger and service areas.

Making 14 knots, the liner was expected to reach Southampton Thursday. The repairs are expected to take at least three weeks, and Sir Basil Smallpiece, Cunard's chairman, cancelled a warmup four-day cruise Jan. 10 and the new Queen's maiden transatlantic voyage to New York Jan. 17.

More than 2,000 persons had been booked for the two trips.

In Britain, demands increased for a government inquiry into the QE2's troubles. About two-thirds of her construction costs were paid from government loans. Newspaper commentators all agreed the ship's faults went beyond the troubles expected on any shakedown cruise.

"The public wants a complete account of what went wrong, how it happened and where the blame is to be laid," says The Daily Express.

The Daily Telegraph comments: "For an acceptance trial to be failed by a ship of such prestige must be unprecedented in modern times."

The liner left the Clydeside shipyard in Scotland last month for speed trials during which it developed a fault that forced cancellation of a Christmas charity cruise.

It sailed Dec. 23 from Greenock, Scotland for a 10-day shakedown cruise to the Canary Islands. Aboard were 500 Cunard employees and their families to test the ship's facilities and 250 workmen who were to complete outfitting the vessel.

Engine trouble developed Christmas Eve, when the starboard high pressure turbine started pounding rough. The rpbe out of balance, a fault that was later detected in the port turbine as well. Speed was reduced immediately.

Smallpiece and Anthony Hepper, chairman of the Upper Clyde Shipbuilders, which built the QE2, flew out to the liner Wednesday. They conferred through the night, and, at a Sunday morning news conference, Smallpiece announced the decision not to accept delivery.

Cernik Resigns As Czech Premier

PRAGUE (AP) — Premier Oldrich Cernik handed the resignation of his 23-member government to President Ludvik Svoboda Sunday in a brief ceremony shown on Prague television.

Svoboda accepted the resignations but asked Cernik's government to remain in office until a new federal regime is sworn in Jan. 1.

The president also asked Cernik to submit the names of members of the new government, which a television commentator said Cernik would again head as premier. The new cabinet is to have only seven ministers. Other ministries will be shifted to the federal Czech and Slovak government units.

Meanwhile, well-informed sources reported that Czechoslovak leaders now forming the new government are pressing their most liberal colleague, Joseph Smrkovsky, National Assembly president, to accept a demotion without a fight.

The Russians have made it clear they no longer want to deal with Smrkovsky. Their public regards Smrkovsky as the main hope for salvaging some pre-invasion reforms and is demanding that he remain in office. Workers have threatened a general strike if he goes.

Some sources say Premier Oldrich Cernik and President Ludvik Svoboda have been pressing Smrkovsky to accept the lower post willingly, as a disciplined Communist, and avoid touching off a national wave of protest.

A high-level Soviet delegation now in this country, apparently consulting on the pending government changes, were understood to have urged Smrkovsky's demotion.

DISRUPT ADIOS

The northern lights are pretty but they play havoc with radio communication.

The automobile insurance companies in Canada have taken a few bumps out of the road to accident recovery.

Maybe the accident wasn't your fault. Then again maybe it was. But the important thing now is for you to stop worrying and get better.

Sometimes it's difficult to determine who was responsible for an accident. Until the matter is decided the parties involved can suffer the financial burden imposed by medical bills and salary loss.

This creates a lot of worry. And worry slows the healing process. To overcome this the Automobile Insurance Industry in Canada will introduce new benefits on January 1, 1969. They will provide stipulated weekly compensation benefits, or lump sum payments in the event of death or permanent disability. In addition, the coverage extends to the payment of hospital and medical costs up to a stated amount, and not covered by other insurance plans. The coverage is for car owners, their families living at home, and their passengers, without the necessity of waiting to determine who is at fault.

These benefits also apply to the car owner and his family even if they are injured while driving in another car or as a pedestrian involved in a car accident.

Contact your insurance representative and ask him to include this valuable coverage in your policy. He'll pave the way for you.

New Cold Wave Coming Preceded by Snow, Rain

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Residents of Western Canada can breathe a little easier today but Ontario and Quebec face the prospect of another storm and colder temperatures. The British Columbia lower mainland and Vancouver Island got snow today, but temperatures climbed.

A storm developing on the Pacific Coast was expected to push warmer air across the Prairies, which suffered temperatures as low as 45 below during the weekend.

Temperatures across many parts of the Prairies were expected to rise to about five below today.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Brisk westerly winds will bring a fresh blast of Arctic air to southern Ontario today. Temperatures will drop sharply. In the lee of Lake Huron and Georgian Bay, frequent snowflurries and occasional snowsqualls will develop. Only occasional flurry activity is expected elsewhere.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario, still recovering from a weekend of snow and rain, today faces more of the same with temperatures expected to drop sharply tonight and New Year's Day.

A storm moving northeast across the Great Lakes Monday night brought a mixture of snowflurries, wet snow and rain to most areas.

The weather office said colder air would follow the storm as it moved out of Ontario later today and the outlook was for a cold, cloudy New Year's Day with snowflurries or snowsqualls in northern areas of the province.

The forecast brings bad news for residents of Norfolk and Haldimand counties, located on the Lake Erie north shore, where many people are still without heat in their homes resulting from a weekend ice storm.

Freezing rain in the area, 40 miles southwest of Hamilton, left hundreds of homes still without power and telephone service Monday night and repair crews did not expect to restore full service to all homes until tonight at the earliest.

Israel Under Fire

Canada Feels UN Motion Too Strong

Russia Presses For Peace Move

From AP-Reuters

New York Times says that nine days before Israel's commando raid on Beirut airport, Russia proposed to the United States that the two countries join in a new effort to promote a Middle East settlement.

The Times dispatch from Washington says the Soviets renewed earlier suggestions for a phased Israeli withdrawal from territories captured in the war of June, 1967, a declaration by the Arab states ending their "state of belligerency" with Israel and a Big Power guarantee of peace in the Middle East.

Some U.S. officials were disappointed that the Soviets did not make new substantive proposals, The Times says, but others were encouraged that the Russians were trying to reopen efforts by the major powers toward a peaceful settlement.

The United States is drafting a reply to the Soviet initiative, the Times says.

In Paris, Soviet Ambassador Valerian Zorin gave qualified backing to a French call for a Big Four meeting on the Middle East situation.

"I believe," he said in an interview, "there is a good enough haze for our countries to move into common action in the interests of a peaceful solution on the Middle East problem, including the four Big Power members of the Security Council."

Arab Woman Dies As Bystanders Hit

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli troops accidentally gunned down an Arab woman and three other bystanders in shooting to halt a "suspicious person" near Abraham's Tomb in occupied Hebron today, the army announced.

The woman and the suspect died of their wounds.

An army patrol spotted an Arab who was acting suspiciously near the tomb, where an Arab was killed in a clash between saboteurs and troops Monday.

The patrol called on the Arab to surrender, but he ran off. The troops opened fire and killed him.

American Captive 5 Years

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. Special Forces officer held captive by the Viet Cong for more than five years has been freed by South Vietnamese infantry during a sweep deep in the Mekong Delta, authorities said today.

The Green Beret trooper, a lieutenant, had been a prisoner longer than any other captive rescued during the Vietnam war.

Emaciated and suffering from malnutrition, he was flown to a hospital at the Special Forces headquarters in Nha Trang, 200 miles northeast of Saigon.

Danes Also Balk

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — All 15 Security Council members except Canada and Denmark were reported to have agreed in private to a resolution condemning Israel for its attack on Beirut Airport and giving Lebanon "appropriate redress" for the loss of 13 aircraft, informed sources said today.

The sources said Lebanon agreed to the proposal after informal negotiations with the United States.

The draft resolution condemns Israel "for its premeditated military action in violation of its obligations under the Charter and the ceasefire resolutions."

It also expresses concern about the need to ensure free and uninterrupted international civil air traffic and said "Lebanon is entitled to appropriate redress for the destruction it suffered."

The draft resolution also issues "a solemn warning to Israel that if such acts were to be repeated, the council would have to consider further steps to give effect to its decisions."

Although Canada strongly condemned the Israeli attack before the council Monday night, it was believed Canada and Denmark oppose the draft resolution because they feel it's far too strong.

New Year's Eve Choice

Carp or Champagne

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Celebrators plan to welcome 1969 in varying styles ranging from family gatherings to nightclub frolics with New Year's Eve menus featuring everything from boiled carp to vintage champagne.

In cities across North America and throughout Europe the hotels, restaurants and cabarets were booked solid as merrymakers prepared to start 1969 with the traditional noisy celebrations.

For those who preferred it, New York offered a free outdoor happenings—with soft drinks—in Central Park and entertainment provided by 20-foot-tall puppets.

At the other end of the economic ladder there was a $55.50-a-head bash in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria featuring the music of Guy Lombardo's band.

In London, clubs reported bookings sold out. In Paris, the French Institute of Public Opinion said 71 per cent of the population expects a grim 1969 financially but there seemed no shortage of francs to spend on New Year's Eve.

Italians in Rome prepared once again to observe a favorite tradition: As the bells of the city's 500 churches peal out the new year the signors and signoras heave out anything unwanted —pots, pans, chairs and whatnot —from upper storey windows.

For Berliners the celebration means boiled carp, doughnuts, hot grog, firecrackers, jammed night clubs and lots of parties in private homes.

In Madrid, the celebrators traditionally eat 12 grapes as midnight strikes and thousands wander the streets.

Israel Fails to Win Support As UN Debates Beirut Raid

NEW YORK (AP) — Israel remained virtually without support in the UN debate as it reiterated that the Beirut raid was in retaliation for an Arab guerilla attack on an Israeli airliner at Athens airport last week. One Israeli passenger was killed in that attack.

Answering Lebanese claims for more than $40,000,000 in damages for 13 destroyed aircraft, Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah replied:

"The life of one Israeli citizen is worth much more than all the metal and engines of planes destroyed by the army unit. Who will pay for the loss of life?"

In Tel Aviv, 1,000 mourners attended the funeral of Leon Shirdan, 50-year-old maritime engineer who was killed in the Arab attack in Athens. Labor Minister Joseph Almogi represented the government at the ceremony and denounced "world hypocrisy" in declaring:

"When this man was murdered the world kept quiet. When Israel struck back, [illegible] human life and wrecked only machines, then the world registered shock and its conscience was aroused."

A Middle East Airlines spokesman said in Beirut that three U.S. lines—Pan American, Trans World and American—have cabled offers of "anything within reason" to help the Lebanese airline, crippled by the attack on an El Al airliner in Athens provoked the Israeli reprisal, indicated its next strike also would be against Israeli civil aviation.

It was the "means the enemy itself has chosen" a Popular Front statement, distributed here said.

loss of its 13 planes. The spokesman said Air France also has put three planes at its disposal, and the Soviet Union's Aeroflot has offered "unlimited help."

In Washington, the state department said it was "encouraged" by the response of the U.S. airlines.

The Israeli Army reported that Arab guerillas slipped into Israel from Lebanon early today, fired six bazooka rockets into a frontier settlement and escaped. The rockets damaged a water pipe and brought down an electric line, but no one was injured, an Israeli spokesman said. It was the first incident reported on the Israeli-Lebanese border since the Israeli attack on Beirut airport.

Trent River Foam Reported as Natural Occurrence

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Mysterious foaming in the Trent River last October was probably a natural phenomenon, the Ontario Water Resources Commission believed.

The foam, which baffled explanations at the time, is mentioned in a recent OWRC survey of pollution control progress in the Quinte area.

The report, which surveys local municipal and industrial waste control measures, was released today by Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP Quinte, who has made anti - pollution needs a crusade in Legislature.

His outspoken criticism sparked an on-the-spot tour by top OWRC officers to the Bay of Quinte in early October. The report summarizes the situation since that time.

Excessive foaming in the Trent below Batawa is believed "a natural occurrence, resulting from the breakdown of algae" says the report. A similar phenomenon occurred in 1967.

No blame was attached to the nearest industry — the Bata Shoe Company. OWRC found no harm - causing material in plant wastes.

Anti - pollution progress by other area industries mentioned in the report include:

Trenton:

Domtar Newsprint — The company is hopeful that its mill wastes can be disposed into new, expanded municipal sewer works. The OWRC is helping solve the economics of the problem. New equipment will reduce the waste content discharged into the municipal system.

Domtar Chemicals — Waste treatment equipment is expected to be fully modified by early 1969.

Trenton Dyeing and Finishing, Knox Gelatine, Stokely Van-Camp — Wastes from these three plants will be discharged into the town sewer system when a trunk sewer is completed early in 1969.

Belleville:

H. Corby Distillery — Pilot studies have been completed and installation of full-scale waste treatment equipment is scheduled for spring of 1969.

Union Carbide — Major waste matter, phenol distillates have been trucked to Toronto since the beginning of 1968. Studies now completed show the remaining wastes can be "satisfactorily" treated in the proposed enlarged city sewerage works.

Sidney:

Miller Bros. — Improvements have been made. However, all OWRC objectives are not being met and further improvements are underway.

OWRC Involved

Sidney Surveys Water Need

Posed with the possibility of a minor population explosion, Sidney township has sought help from the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

The OWRC has been asked to prepare proposals for township water and sewage installations under provincial-government ownership.

The township application is noted in an OWRC report on water and pollution-control facilities in the Bay of Quinte zone released today by Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP Quinte.

But there is nothing "concrete" about the township move, deputy reeve and reeve-elect Jack M. Bush emphasized today.

All Sidney is seeking is further advice on how to tackle the water - supply - disposal problems posed by increasing population in a municipality that does not possess these services.

For the township, the water supply situation is still fluid. Other possibilities include participation in a Lake Ontario pipeline project meeting regional needs.

Stimulus has been given the township's move by the possible development of a huge subdivision — Hastings Park. Located north of the present Hastings Manor on Highway 2 on the eastern outskirts of Belleville it, conceivably, one day could house 10,000 people.

The situation for the township is urgent and "something has to be done within the next couple of years," says deputy reeve Bush.

While there are other alternatives — a possible service hookup with either their Belleville and Trenton urban neighbors — the Lake Ontario pipeline is still "the big factor."

The Sidney spokesman also believes there has been a recurrence of interest in the pipeline proposal among members of other councils.

He says the OWRC report also mentions the scheme — less hopefully.

His comments: "This proposal did not receive the complete endorsation of the area municipalities. Therefore, no further action has been taken related to its development."

Fire Probe Under Way

NAPANEE — Investigators today expect to confirm the cause of a fire yesterday that took the life of a six-year-old girl.

Effie Kyvelos, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Kyvelos, died when fire swept a one-storey duplex here yesterday.

Today, Ontario Fire Marshall's Office inspector Del Hope, of Belleville, said he expected to complete his investigations into cause of the blaze later today.

Police Chief Joseph Paquette said any decision on an inquest would await the outcome of Insp. Hope's investigations.

Mrs. Kyvelos and her five-year-old daughter Debbie were visiting relatives in Montreal when the fire broke out.

Dense smoke prevented the girl's father and her uncle from reaching her and her body was later recovered in an upstairs bedroom.

Fire chief F. W. Patton said the fire started in the kitchen, and spread rapidly through the home.

with the wording and in consultation with Ottawa for instructions.

A second resolution that would call on the Security Council to impose sanctions on Israel if it refused to pay reparations was reported going the rounds. It was not believed to be getting enough support to be worth submitting to the council.

The council, meeting for the second time in two days on the new Middle East crisis, was adjourned at about 1 a.m. EST today until 3 p.m. EST.

Canadian Ambassador George Ignatieff, making the first official Canadian statement on the Israeli attack, said it was "deplorable."

"It is obvious that the Israeli attack seriously risks bringing about a rise in tension and further violent incidents in the Middle East," he said.

"This kind of reprisal must also be regarded with deep concern by all countries upholding the rights of persons to use civil air carriers to move safely by air from one place to another."

IN MEMORIAM

FAIRMAN, Drew — In loving memory of our mother, who passed away December 31st, 1967.
—By her loving family.

KINGSTON — In loving memory of a dear mother, Emma Kingston, who passed away, January 1, 1967.
Though her smile is gone forever,
And her hands we cannot touch,
Still we have so many memories,
Memories we treasure much.
Memories of a mother loving,
With which we'll never part,
God took her home, it was His will,
We have her in our hearts.
—Sadly missed and remembered by her son Leslie, daughters Alelia, Norma, grandchildren families.

MUNNINGS — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Edith who passed away January 1st, 1968.
Sadly missed but beautiful memories remain.

SAGER — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother Myrtle Erma Sager, who passed away January 1st, 1968.
Gone but not forgotten,
As it is sadly missed,
By a daughter, Mrs. Ivy Hinkley.
Thoughts of her are always near,
Memories treasured dear,
Children-in-law Violet and Jean Brown, Richard and Dale.

Trenton May Get New Air Service

TRENTON — The Trenton Chamber of Commerce expects to be notified shortly by Eastern Provincial Airways Ltd. early in the new year, as to the possibility of an additional stop at the Trenton Municipal Airport here.

The visit of a commercial terminal was as the result of a survey taken by Provair, Inc. during the month of October, which showed Trenton has a ready stop in the new network.

Currently the airline is also stopping to get a terminal in Kingston and if this comes through Trenton should be next on the list. The city service would run twice a day from Montreal to Toronto.

Chamber manager, Jack Wilson stated that action on the matter will begin in 1969 after the festive season is over.

Things got up during the holiday season but we expect to hear from the company early in the new year," he said.

The company proposes to establish the terminal at CFB Trenton providing it obtains government approval. In Pembroke such a terminal was erected and a prefabricated building was used. The cost of the building to the municipality was $5,000.

Mayor James MacDonald has said he has not been approached with the idea but favors such a terminal for Trenton.

Ald. Lannery Gould, would be labelled "airport match", in Trenton.

For it is then that the Prince Edward-Hastings Liberal Association, represented by a special five man committee, will present a brief to the cabinet in the hope of obtaining an airport in southern Prince Edward County.

The international strip would be for jumbo jet circulation and has an estimated cost of some $120 million.

William Lane, chairman of the committee, has not given any date as to when a delegation is expected from the cabinet.

If, the results to these two requests are favorable the Canadian Forces Base here may no longer be Trenton's only link with air travel.

Sidewalk Scene

Down there — somewhere — there's a sidewalk. Scene as snowplow tries to clear pedestrian walks at Queen and William streets yesterday was typical of Belleville in wake of big weekend an owfall.

Blow That Snow

Snow shoveling, once a backbreaking job, appears to be a way to entice junior to work. This Rossmore youth was caught clearing the walk at the front of the house early in the morning without the usual prompting from his parents. He was using the family's new electric blower to the envy of the neighbor's youngsters.

Taxis in Demand New Year's Eve

TRENTON — Trenton's two largest taxi companies are New York's Eve as a night that will have all of their cabs going non-stop to keep up with the demand that is unparalleled throughout the year.

A spokesman for Graham's Taxi said all 13 cabs will be running but from past experience this may not be enough.

"You wouldn't believe, it only takes one year," he said, "and I don't know if 10 cars would be enough."

"We're so busy that we wouldn't book calls ahead of time."

And Gould's Taxi will have all of its eight cabs running throughout the festive night and early morning.

A spokesman for the company said that rush hours the drivers rarely meeting but for this company night cabs are run every night throughout the year.

For Graham's fare or five cabs keep the night vigil on regular nights. But the upcoming New Year's Eve promises to be anything but regular.

But the drivers will be trying to get to the calls as quickly as possible. "And if you have been celebrating, by the short walk," cab officials say.

Skating Offered

Free skating in Belleville promenade is under way again this year.

For several days last week and again yesterday hundreds of local youngsters turned out at the Belleville arena for the free afternoon skating program.

Skating continues this afternoon from two until four o'clock and on Wednesday and Friday at the same time.

The program is sponsored by the Belleville Kinsmen Club.

Council Service Educational: Todd

TRENTON — "Serving on this council has given me an education that I couldn't buy."

Councillor Edward Todd last night thanked council, the mayor and clerk-comptroller O. W. Lazier for the help they had given him in his past two years in office.

Councillor Todd ended his term last night as he was defeated in the Dec. 2 elections and will be replaced by Stanley Ketcheson in council.

In his last meeting he mentioned the friendship he was defeated at the polls because he took a definite stand on an election issue. "I did what issue this was he was not saying.

"In my term on council I have never misused a meeting nor have I failed to take a stand on any issue," stated Councillor Todd.

His has said previously that he has not decided whether or not he will run again and adds he is not committed either way.

Mayor James MacDonald expressed thanks on behalf of council to Councillor Todd saying that his interest in public works was especially worthy of merit.

The mayor also expressed his thanks to council.

"We accomplished a lot and I am especially happy with the work of the committee," he said.

"Each committee chairman showed great interest in his work," he concluded.

The mayor said he looks forward to accomplishing even more in the new year.

Prince Edward Board Set to Hire Director

PICTON (Staff) — Between 18 and 20 applications for the Director of Education for Prince Edward County have been received by the county board of education.

Although a committee of the board may meet tomorrow to discuss the candidates it is doubtful if a decision will be reached since the closing date for the applications is not until noon tomorrow.

Ernest Shortt, hired last month by the county board to be administrator for the Prince Edward School system, stated that no decision would be made on the applicants before the next board of education meeting on Jan. 13.

Before that time however, a special committee will view the applications and make a recommendation to the board.

Mr. Shortt explained that applicants for the position must be qualified on Ontario department of Education regulations, meaning they must hold either a secondary school principal's certificate or an elementary school inspector's certificate.

Although Mr. Shortt did not estimate the salary the director of education would receive he did say that it would be negotiated with the man himself and be comparable to wages payed across the province.

The average wage at this time according to Mr. Shortt runs between $23,000 and $25,000.

Besides advertising for the director of education the county board has also placed advertisements out for one bookkeeper, one assistant bookkeeper, a secretary, purchasing clerk, stockroom clerk, typist and maintenance supervisor.

Mr. Shortt indicated that about 40 applications have come in for these positions but no decisions have been made.

It is not known when the county board special hiring committee will meet but Mr. Shortt said there would definitely be a meeting held before the Jan. 13 regular meeting.

Under the law which established the county systems, no school board is required to hire a director of education until July of 1969.

Bitter Exchange Marks Final Council Meeting

By ROBERT AVERY
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Trenton town council staged its last meeting of the year yesterday in much the same vein as previous ones — a bitter, acute table verbal exchange over the Trenton Cold Storage owner.

Councillor Gerald Weaver introduced, heated debate into the meeting when he opened a public works committee recommendation that the abolition of the sewer built by the town in 1967 be cleaned at the town's expense.

"You are asking the ratepayer to pay $600 to make a sewer operational when it was declared by our solicitor that this was the responsibility of Trenton Cold Storage," charged Councillor Weaver.

Councillor Ted Parker said Trenton Cold Storage had complied with its end of the agreement by extending the existing sewer to open water. It was up to the town to clean out the part which had been constructed last year, he claimed.

"This argument has gone on too long. It has no worth to me but we all know that it means something to Councillor Weaver," fired Councillor Parker.

"If you want to worry about cricket add cheese . . . ," began Parker.

"This is not cricket and cheese," said Councillor Weaver. "But I think you are asking the ratepayer to bear — it is not his responsibility."

Councillor Fred Tripp entered the discussion by firing a verbal lashing at Councillor Weaver.

"The whole thing is a play on words, let's not twist the facts because we all know how one's mind can be changed," said Councillor Tripp.

Councillor Parker then asked, "Do I accept the recommendation to clean this up and be done with it."

"I'd rather spend money on cleaning the sewer than on the advertising of the Hardy report which brought us nothing but grief," he continued.

The Hardy report reviewed the town's methods of attracting industry and suggested changes be made in its industrial promotion.

Councillor Parker labelled the publicity attached to the report as "Councillor Weaver's doing."

His move to bring the matter to a head was endorsed by Councillor Tripp, who, with a parting salvo at Councillor Weaver, asked the items be put to a vote "to stop the nonsense that has come from the far end of the table for the past year."

An amendment by Councillor Weaver to delete the article concerning the cleaning of the sewer from the committee report received, in a 3-3 split. Mayor James MacDonald cast his ballot against the motion with the comment "I can't see this foolishness continuing."

Council again split on accepting the committee report and Mayor MacDonald again cast the deciding vote in favor of adopting the report.

Voting in favor of Councillor Weaver's amendment were Councillors Duncan Mac-Donald and Douglas Kinney. Councillor Edward Todd joined Councillors Parker and Tripp in the vote.

Course Offered

Hastings county farmers wishing to start a set of farm records will again be offered assistance from the Stirling office of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food.

Toward this end a meeting has been tentatively set for Tuesday Jan. 7 at the Stirling Legion Hall where such assistance will be offered.

Douglas Tipper, county agricultural representative, points out that farmers requesting farm loans are required to prove their need and ability with a set of records that give farm management information.

Ameliasburg Plans Bonfire

AMELIASBURG — The township's annual Christmas tree bonfire celebration is being continued this year.

Introduced as an event to give Centennial year a bright, warm send-off, participation was an enthusiastic the Community Centre committee decided to try it again last year.

The tree burning ceremony was even more successful and also showed signs of growing into a favorite event with movemobile operators who offered night rides over the smooth surface of Roblin Lake.

The ceremony has additional value as a method of ridding township officials of a tree disposal problem they were called upon to consider each year.

The bonfire this year is in the village park starting at 8 p.m. Friday night.

Credibility Gap

In the preaching of the word of God there are those who rely almost exclusively on the Scriptures, ignoring the activities of the outside world, transient and temporal as it is. The day of the hellfire and brimstone preacher is not yet over. Others are more worldly and relate the Scriptures to the events of the day in a manner that compels a congregation's attention.

Dr. Billy Graham falls into the latter category. With Dr. Graham sin is still sin, but there is also much of the man-of-the-world about him. Global travel has made him a realist.

As much as an orator like Dr. Graham impresses with his Scriptural knowledge, allied to familiarity with world affairs, the quality of the spellbinder is also very apparent. Such a speaker roots the listener to his seat, not so much with the content of his address but with the timbre and strength of his voice, and by the emphasis placed on this or that point, phrase or even word. The pause for effect . . . the wave of the arm, come to mind in this regard.

In a recent Sunday morning TV address a preacher was saying that nowadays national leaders make statements that no longer are believable, or if they are made in all sincerity then the public at large chooses not to believe them. Instead of it being a lie, however, the modern idiom terms it as the "credibility gap."

The speaker went on to say the Chinese had coined a new parable for a situation of this nature. "White men's words," it notes, "fool only white men." Well, all this was entertaining enough. He spoke derisively of modern idioms, "gobbledegook," as it has come to be called, and at the circumspection that makes it difficult at times to believe what politicians are saying. But his impact was largely that of the spellbinder. As for the Chinese, when the West gets any news of that vast land from which little emerges, they have their credibility gaps as well.

And that great statesman, Sir Winston Churchill also had a word for it. To the wartime leader a lie was not a lie but a "termiriological inexactitude."

Restless World

Student protests all too often give the appearance of mob rule. You know, a procession of speakers to a microphone on a dais on a college campus or in a city square. Hundreds stand around listening. Then they all march off, making sound and fury, and possibly only a minority know exactly what the protest is all about.

The mob. It has been said, is a weak and brainless thing — all movement for the better takes place in the minds of individuals. The Queen in her Christmas message had such a philosophy in mind when she made this observation:

"The nations belonging to the Commonwealth have in their hands a well-tried framework for mutual help and co-operation. It would be shortsighted to waste this modest step towards brotherhood because we are too busy with the distractions of the moment."

In other words, progress in this world is essentially slow, and often painful. Young people look at society and discern there is a great deal wrong with it. Yet it has ever been thus; improvement can only be effected by patient application of individual and collective skills allied to principles based on the love and brotherhood of man. Such progress will never be gained by demonstrations alone, or by the orgy of rioting and destruction that often accompanies them.

Aid for India

It is not only the large and affluent countries which give aid these days. Furthermore, assistance by individuals and small groups also count for a lot. For instance, a number of fishermen from St. Pierre-Miquelon have been showing their counterparts in India how they can increase catches by fishing from dories instead of the traditional catamarans.

The idea of using dories was conceived by Senator Henri Clairveaux of St. Pierre-Miquelon (French Islands off the coast of Newfoundland) when he visited India in 1967 on a parliamentary mission. Then, last winter, four volunteer fishermen from the islands, equipped with two dories, travelled to the Indian state of Madras. They showed fishermen from that area from five to six times the amount of fish they could land using catamarans.

If any country needs to know more about modern methods of raising food and combatting poverty generally, it is India. It has been making considerable progress of late with its land harvests. Now, this new offer of aid, from such an unusual source, will go still further toward improving the economy of that part of Asia.

The Anatomy of "Gobbledegook"—from A to Z

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA, — To help you prepare for the New Federal Year here in the nation's Capital — and the better to understand the particular and often peculiar patois of Parliament — here with the Revised Edition of the Working Politician's Alphabet for 1969.

It is the short A to Z guide to the real meaning of some of the more commonly used words in that political double-talk variously known as "officialese" or more accurately, "governmental gobbledegook."

. . . A is for Amendment . . . an obvious improvement to any bill which no government in its right mind possibly can accept if the opposition comes up with it first.

. . . B is for Budget . . . that piece of financial sleight-of-tongue with which any self-respecting finance minister can make big tax increases look little.

. . . C is for Consideration . . . what any government always promises for proposals it hopes people will forget.

. . . D is for Debate . . . that parliamentary talkathon which drones on and on usually without changing anybody's mind.

. . . E is for examination what any cabinet minister pledges for any proposition, no matter how far out, by any delegation.

. . . F is for Fiscal Policy . . . something only the president of the Bank of Canada and the federal finance minister have the nerve to claim to understand though not necessarily at the same time nor even in the same way.

. . . G is for Government . . . the party in power, fiercely dedicated to the unshakable conviction of being the best-of-all-possible administrations and capable of improvement only by perpetuation.

. . . H is for Handout . . . what the government calls any request for subsidy or financial aid for any pressure group when proposed by the opposition; or a serving of processed news, flavored to the administration's special taste.

. . . I is for, what else but In Due Course . . . which is when the government is good and ready, and not a moment sooner.

. . . J is for Jelly fish . . . what the opposition calls government backbenchers when they vote for something, nobody but the cabinet wants.

. . . K is for Kite . . . frequently flown by key cabinet ministers to test the political wind's velocity.

. . . L is for Leak . . . another form of Kite, attached to a "Now, don't quote me, but" string.

. . . M is for MP . . . one who hopefully keeps count of Senate vacancies.

. . . N is for National Security . . . that delightful mystical state-of-the-nation, zealously guarded by each of the parties against the assaults of its rivals.

. . . O is for Opposition . . . the party firm in the faith that there's nothing wrong with the government that a change would set for.

. . . P is for Public Interest. . . . that which it never seems to be in when the opposition asks a politically embarrassing question of the government.

. . . Q is for Question . . . what the opposition calls those flashhooks it baits for cabinet ministers with big mouths.

. . . R is for Royal Commission . . . a cooling device for hot political potatoes.

. . . S is for Security . . . which seemingly is inevitably in jeopardy when a knowledgeable opposition asks the government a sharp, searching and embarrassing question on defence.

. . . T is for Taxation . . . that which is down before and up after an election.

. . . U is for Unconstitutional . . . what the federal government says of most politically unacceptable provincial proposals.

. . . V is for Votes . . . and these, traditionally accepted by winning candidates with becoming if unconvincing humility, are what the whole thing is about.

. . . W is for Whip . . . that MP-Who-Is-Joe and has to stick around while many of his party are keeping up their memberships in the Long-Weekend-Tuesday-to-Thursday Club or Joining Junketeers Unlimited.

. . . X is for, well, just X . . . the politician's precious status symbol with the voters.

. . . Y is for Yea . . . what MPs say when they're for something

. . . Z is for Zealous . . . which all members of all parties insist they are for the public interest.

Education—A Crisis of Discipline

Orillia Packet and Times

The mounting crisis which is disrupting education, to varying degrees, at every level of schooling from kindergarten to university, stems from a single cause, a lack of discipline. In a variety of ways, the once-unquestioned sway of the teacher in his classroom has been mitigated or undermined, and his means of enforcing his authority have been progressively restrained and restricted.

A generation ago, the teacher was unchallenged master of his schoolroom, respected by pupil, parent and principal; his right to punish the unruly making his authority clear to the meanest intelligence. Whatever its shortcomings, the system produced generations of students accustomed to self-discipline, to the subordination of self to standards set by society, and by its maintenance of order it allowed teachers to impart knowledge of every sort to attentive pupils under conditions which now would be regarded as utterly primitive.

Today, despite revolutionary improvements in school curricula and their presentation, and accommodation and teaching aids beyond the wildest dreams of an older generation, a serious malaise affects teacher and student alike.

In our universities today, a lack of discipline is affecting not only the relationship between professor and student, but even the functioning of the university itself. A whole generation of students is arriving at university level without the basic self-discipline formerly inculcated by years of public and secondary school training.

Despite the attractions of ever-mounting salaries, many of today's most promising teacher prospects are convinced that education is not a rewarding field for the future, because of general student indiscipline and lack of teacher authority to deal with it. The academic world, sheltered refuge of so many great minds, is being overrun today by bearded hordes of undisciplined barbarians.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 31, 1968 . . .

Thomas Alva Edison first demonstrated the incandescent electric lamp 99 years ago today—in 1879—when he was 32 years old. It was one of 1,000 inventions patented before his death in 1931. They range from conceptions as simple as the megaphone to such as complex as the teleprinter. Edison invented the phonograph and experimented with talking and silent movies.

1857—Ottawa was chosen the capital of Canada by Queen Victoria.

1945—Bermuda removed a ban on private cars.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—Hitler said in a grim New Year's message to the German people that there will be no victories "but merely survivers and annihilated"; Allied planes bombed Paris and other targets; 15 striking coal and oil mining unions rejected President Roosevelt's proposed basis for arbitrating their war dispute.

B.C. Plan Would Reshape Provincial Boundaries

Montreal Gazette

Premier W. A. C. Bennett's brief to the postponed constitutional conference, in a bold play in the continuing round of negotiations going on about the country's future. The major recommendation in the brief, one to reshape the provincial boundaries to create five new provinces out of the old ten (and the Northwest Territories), is the most startling new idea to be thrown into the debate in sometime.

The idea is not new. At least Maritime Union has been talked about since 1864 and is being studied seriously right now. The Prairie provinces were once one jurisdiction. It is true also, that the provinces have added to their territories over the last 100 years. In other words, there is nothing sacrosanct about the present boundaries or provincial jurisdictions.

But Mr. Bennett's proposal, if economically sound, is not likely to be politically palatable especially as in the rehashing of the provincial boundaries, he proposes to take the most developed, and potentially richest, part of the North for B.C.

The spectacular oil and mineral development of the North in the last few years has centred around the mouth of the Mackenzie River in the Arctic and offshore. For example, Aklavik and Inuvik and the Norman Wells pool are well - known to most Canadians and particularly would all be included in the new province of British Columbia. This is where the action is and it is natural that B.C. would want part of it. However, it is doubtful if the rest of the provinces, and particularly the federal government, would agree.

Every Canadian, through the federal government, has a considerable stake in the development of the North, and it isn't likely that the federal government, as its trustee, will turn over these share options just when it appears that the biggest dividends are to come.

She Was No Lady

(Richard J. Needham in The Globe and Mail)

It's difficult for men to act like men when women don't know how to act like women. I was on the train from Kingston to Toronto. When it stopped at the Union Station, and people began getting off, there was a slight woman of perhaps 40 in front of me, lugging a huge and heavy suitcase. I asked, "May I carry that for you?" she smiled and said, with a Southern Ontario accent, "Do I look that helpless?"

"Aw, c'mon — don't chicken out now."

Belleville Looks to An Exciting Commercial Future

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Belleville is about to enjoy the most exciting and eventful times of its life. Within the next three years there will be more progress, expansion and change than in the past thirty.

There will be a rapid and almost startling transition from a semi-rural retirement community to the swinging hub of a major regional development.

Leading the swing will be the most imaginative and impressive hotel-shopping-automotive complex to be seen anywhere along 401 between Toronto and Montreal.

This $3,000,000 showpiece at the 401 entry to the city will catch the eye of the leaders who place new industry, share the tax burden and create hundreds of new jobs.

The purchasing power from this new source of employment will be distributed widely to increase sales and business throughout the entire community.

The opportunity to find employment in their own city will regenerate the contribution of youth.

Since its inception, nearly 90 per cent of high school students and graduates have fled Belleville for greater career opportunities in Toronto, Montreal and other centres. Now young people will stay and return to man the new regional plans, and expanding Community Colleges and experimental, civil aerial and power projects which the Ontario and Federal governments are encouraging to relocate throughout Eastern Ontario.

Economics Minister Stanley Randall recently told a local audience of his government's intention to set a growth pattern for Eastern Ontario. The ball which started to roll in Trenton won't stop until it reaches the Quebec border. Millions of dollars of industry, which is being driven out of Quebec by the unrealistic policies of the Union Nationale, is now relocating in Eastern Ontario. Belleville will get its share of these plants.

Some local plants are now utilizing the Industrial Departments forgivebable loans for expansion.

The transition from near stagnation to expansion will duplicate the same return-to-youth movement which took place in Kingston when the coming of the L. L. Dupont and Aluminium plants raised the population from 25,000 to 60,000 in a few years.

Much of this population acceleration was due to the quick family formation which results as the average age of citizens becomes younger.

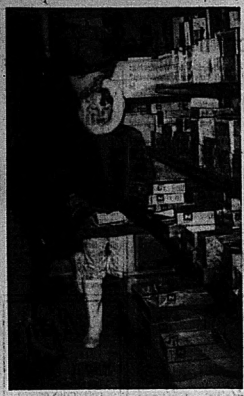
Anticipation of a younger citizenry is a major factor in commercial research which projects an increase from the present figure of 127,000 people within a 25-mile radius of Belleville to close to 300,000 within the next 10 years.

We are most fortunate to live in one of the most promising areas of Canada's wealthiest province. Despite the contention of some that Belleville lacks the buying power to support four major shopping districts — an improving future indicates there is enough for all.

The west side shopping plaza faces a future which should test present zoning and site limits. The residential build-up between Trenton and Belleville is accelerating and subdivision developers recently announced plans for a new 18,000 city which will overlook Towers with concentrated buying power.

On the east, vacant land beckons for hundreds of new homes on Bridge St., the Holy Road and Pine St. extension, which when completed, will greatly enhance the shopping prospects of the east side Shopping Plaza.

While the future emphasizes the necessity of urban renewal for downtown shopping, the building of dozens of high rise apartments near the river will give downtown merchants the greatest accumulation of buying power they have ever enjoyed.



A look at the map of this city reveals that Belleville is only 60 per cent occupied with buildings within the confines of the present-city limits. The servicing and development of vacant areas will uncover a great potential.

If the present rising ratio of apartment blocks to single family homes is maintained, Belleville could easily house a population of 150,000 within its present limits.

Since most of the high rise apartments will be built within walking distance of downtown it is obvious that renewal of this shopping area offers exciting possibilities.

We are fortunate to live in a friendly city entering a period of growth, change and opportunity.

Postal Hike Reduces Sales

With its pre-Christmas postal hike the federal government dealt Canadians both a boon and a blow.

The boon was bestowed on those seeking an excuse for trimming their Christmas card list.

The blow landed on the Christmas card manufacturers but the knock-out punch may not register until next summer.

Also affected along the way are those who count on employment at the post office for extra seasonal pin money, not to mention stationery retailers, whose card sales dropped drastically this year.

"The government's timing was way off in raising the postal rates," said Miss Dorothy Matthews, manager of James Texts.

Unsealed cards required a five-cent stamp this year, two cents more than in 1967. Sealed cards were carried for six cents.

The result was a drop of about 29 per cent in the number of greeting cards and letters handled by Belleville Post Office during the holiday season.

"We handled about the same number of parcels as last year," reported postmaster Roy Wainwright, "but the volume of cards mailed dropped drastically.

Although the post office hired the usual number of extra employees to process Christmas mail, it cut down on the number of hours worked by each employee, and let most go earlier than usual.

However, citizens' reluctance to send cards will have no effect on the government's treasury.

"The revenue on Christmas mail just covers the cost of hiring extra help," Postmaster Wainwright said.

Merchants' inventory figures tally with the postmaster's estimate of the record drop in mail volume.

James Texts reported its Christmas card sales were down 20 to 25 per cent this year, and one retailer estimated the drop in his card sales at 40 per cent.

All reported a large carryover of greeting cards. Even at half price in the post-Christmas sales, cards were moving slowly, probably because cold weather and snow kept shoppers at home.

"People have been looking for a reason to trim their card list for years, and the postal hike, announced just before the holiday season, gave them an excuse," said stationer Mrs. Dorothy Clarke.

A greeting card salesman told her the situation held true in communities along Highway 2, but Toronto sales were steady. On the other hand, another salesman said sales of boxed cards in large Toronto department stores dropped 20 to 30 per cent.

"Customers told me they were not sending cards locally," Mrs. Clarke said. Sales of individual cards, probably for out-of-town mailing, held up, she said.

"The falling off in card sales may have far - reaching effects," said Miss Matthews. "We order Christmas cards in February. If orders are cut across the country this year, many people in the greeting card industry will be out of work by summer."

But Postmaster Wainwright expects the volume of mail to return to its usual level next year.

"People who cut their mailing list this year were embarrassed to receive cards from those they had omitted," he said. "Next year the scramble will be on to correct the omission and return the greeting."

Music Plays Role In Teaching Gospel

OTTAWA (CP) — Capt. Jay Wade of London, England, who is in Salvation Army circles, here recently, spread his gospel — through pop music.

The believer, who's person he met in 1955 in Hong Kong, is a member of the Salvation Army's international staff band.

Music comes naturally to her. "My father, Brig. Reginald Wade, is a musician and composer," she said.

Following her arrival in Canada, Capt. Wade toured local churches and schools in various Ontario cities.

"It's tiring. You're thinking all the time to get the titles of songs across, hoping the audience will receive the message. The demands, physical, emotional and spiritual strength..."

Minutes of the last meeting in the absence of Mrs. Foote. The treasurer's report was read by Mrs. R. Farmer. Membership report brought up to date by Al Montgomery with 39 memberships, which included 27 family memberships.

A few trips is to be scheduled for later in the year. Warner Quarry, Madoc, and possibly a gem course he had within the framework of the Christian church.

Now Capt. Wade has returned to Salvation Army circles in his traditional Salvation Army music ministry.

Music comes naturally to her... "My father, Brig. Reginald Wade, is a musician and composer," she said.

Following her arrival in Canada, Capt. Wade toured local churches and schools in various Ontario cities.

Ballet Director Appointed

TORONTO (CP) — Betty Oliphant, principal of the National Ballet School, Monday was appointed associate artistic director of the National Ballet Co.

Miss Oliphant has been associated with the National Ballet Co. since its formation 18 years ago, but since 1959 had devoted herself mainly to establishing the school.

The National Ballet Guild board of directors said Miss Oliphant will assist Celia Franca, founder of the National Ballet Co.

Miss Franca offered her resignation as artistic director in November, but was persuaded by the guild to retain the post.

Successful Living

Poem Suggests Thought for the New Year

BY DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Re your advice to the widow who lives alone and talks too much. I thought it was a little cruel. I will admit that it hit the nail on the head as far as I am concerned, but do you not think that also think what makes people who live alone talk too much?

Their own case. It is deep-seated loneliness. When my family come to see me or invite me to their home, I get so excited, I am like a little dog with two tails. I talk and talk and when I get home I do a thousand deaths worrying over it.

I try and try, and pray every night that I might overcome it but — and this is a big but — I try to talk cheerful and figure if I can make somebody laugh every day, I have done something worth while.

I am a regular "sounding board" for a few people. One lady, who is a shut-in sometimes phones me at 12 o'clock in the night and talks for an hour because she cannot sleep and is in pain. After a few of these experiences, a person has to let off steam.

In my opinion, the widow who lives alone and talks too much needs to be made feel that she "belongs". You know, she could have worse faults!

However, your article did some good. I am going to try harder. The question is, will it stabs me bitter? — A Talker

Dear Talker: Bless you, I hope not. The results might not be all bad. Indeed some. Yes. But why not give your host the same privilege? Good conversation is an exchange of ideas. You have shown you can listen in the middle of the night!

Confidential to Wondering: Isn't it time for a showdown? If your more-than-steady is getting the ring-ting, I'd question his good intentions. I don't know his age or yours, but something pretty difficult is going on.

X-kiss with the social side of your child care agency would help you to see what's what and take a pain or even straighten out your own.

What's troubling you? Write it on paper to Doris in the first step towards solving your problem.

A New Year of Hope and Peace
Hopefully, this year your will see peace and hope and love all over and peace throughout the world.
For a glad and gay, we thank you!

Ann Landers

Transvestite Actions Still Not Normal

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As a woman who is married to a transvestite, I want to thank you for pointing out that men who enjoy dressing up in women's clothes are not necessarily homosexuals. Bob and I were both pleased to see this in your column. There is so much ignorance on the subject and few people are willing to discuss it openly.

We were quite unhappy, however, with your statement that transvestism is a deviation, or, to use your phrase — "normal." It isn't. Just because something is different, Ann Landers, doesn't mean it isn't normal.

ANN LANDERS

My Bob is all man. He is 6'2", weighs 190 pounds, and there's not an ounce of fat on him. He works with a construction gang and enjoys manual labor. No one knows about our secret game but us. Once or twice a week, after the children are asleep, Bob puts on his wig and high heels, pastes on his false eyelashes, slips into a nylon dressing gown and scents himself generously with cologne. We have a ball. I call him Bobette and he's my best girl friend. This part of our life has added zest to our marriage. We look forward to these wonderful evenings. It's exciting and we aren't hurting anybody.

I wish you'd be more broad-minded and not give your readers the impression this is wrong. — BOBETTE'S WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: I didn't say it was wrong. I said it wasn't normal. If you and your husband want to be girl friends, it's all right with me. Ann.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Two months ago my 73-year-old aunt had a fire in her apartment. We felt sorry for her and invited her to stay with us until she could find another place. Aunt Nettie is a well-to-do widow. She is not trying to save money. In fact, she pays us $125 a month for room and board. (We can use the income.)

My husband told me last night that he would pay Aunt Nettie $125 a month if she'd leave. The woman has no taste and no judgment. When the phone rings she runs to answer it because she likes to talk — and she'll talk to anybody, whether she knows them or not.

Yesterday Aunt Nettie told the minister I was in the bathroom and to please call back. This evening she said to heavens knows who, "Vera and Tom are having an argument. Please call later." (I still don't know who it was.)

My mother says we should be charitable and overlook her faults. My husband is boiling. What do you say, Ann? — GRRRR-RR.

DEAR GRRRR-RR: Your marriage is worth more than $125 a month, isn't it? Well get color and find Aunt Nettie another place to live at once. She is a disruptive influence in your home and you know it.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Rich Egg Nog for Entertaining

By MARY MOORE

On national TV network I decided about the good cooks in Canada.

Keep up the good work. Those evenings around your dinner table are the memories that your grown children will cherish in later years.

Remember that some cook psychologists claim that eye-appeal wins half the battle. Co-ordinate your menu with your finest serving dishes — especially if the food is of the humble variety. For instance hoist made pea soup served from an iron soup tureen you inherited from your grandmother is much more glamorous than soup served in the kitchen soup bowls. Or a plain cake served on a cut glass pedestal takes on status. You, my dear cook-friend, are the one who selects your setting — and, if you have a child, I beg of you pass on the exclusion of it to him or her that the helper shows the hospitality. 1969 the year you save your meals extra eye appeal.

I have looked over all of the Christmas and New Years recipes I have given you in the past two years and decided I didn't repeat the recipe for a New Years egg nog. I am correcting that omission now.

RICH EGG NOG FOR ENTERTAINING (Without spirits this will serve sixteen 4 oz. glasses)

6 eggs, yolks and whites separated
¼ cup sugar
3 cups (6 percent or 32 percent) cream
2 cups milk
Nutmeg

Beat the whites until stiff, with ¼ cup of the sugar. Without washing the beaters beat the yolks until thick and lemon-colored with remaining ¼ cup sugar. Stir cream and milk into yolk mixture to blend them. Fold in stiffly beaten meringue until incorporated. Sprinkle with nutmeg. If spirits are to be added stir in just before serving egg nog ice cold. Ten to 16 ounces of spirits (or sherry) will not be excessive for this amount of egg nog base.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I wish we didn't have to go to the New Year's Eve party. I'd rather celebrate with the children."

Father: "People would think there was something wrong if we sat home on New Year's Eve. We've always gone to the club dance."

Customs should change as families grow, and no custom should continue if it becomes a burden, no matter what "others might think."

Friend: "See you at the dance tonight."

Mother: "I'm sorry but we're going to skip it this year. Now that the children are older, we let them stay up to see the New Year in, and we like to be with them."

Baby Foods Safe

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Health Minister Matthew Dymond said Monday reports from the United States that commercially-prepared baby foods may be dangerous to infants "have no basis in fact."

"Mothers using commercially-packaged baby foods have no cause for concern that the nitrate content of these foods is in any way harmful to the health of their children," Dr. Dymond said in a statement.

The health minister said he has reviewed the safeguards on commercial foods with the food and drug directorate of the federal department of health and welfare.

Dr. Harry Commoner, who first voiced fears about the safety of baby foods at a scientific congress in Dallas last Thursday, "is a botanist, not a medical scientist or nutritionist," Dr. Dymond said.

"He has offered no scientific proof of his statements and, in my view, has only succeeded in causing fear and apprehension in the minds of parents for the safety of their infants."

Prairie Indians Beat Cold

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE, Alta. (CP) — One hundred thirty-eight Indians from the Hobbema reserve, 45 miles south of Edmonton, are proving that life in a tent at 30 degrees below zero can be comfortable or at least tolerable. But with one or two modern innovations such as plywood.

This was reported Monday by Tom Campbell of the Edmonton Journal who visited Chief Robert Smallboy, 67, and the men, women and children of the Ermineskin band who followed the chief into the mountains of central Alberta last summer to start life afresh. They aimed to revert to the ways of their forefathers.

There were no cries for help.

The Indians camp of about 30 tents, each with a stove pipe sticking from it, is almost covered by trees a few hundred yards off the David Thompson Highway.

The village appeared clean and bright.

The outside walls were banked with snow to a depth of two feet. Sheets of plywood covered each wall to a height of three feet. Plywood also covered most of the floor.

Heat was provided by a small coal and wood stove and a round tin heater. Fir, cut by chain saws, provided fuel.

1969 Time For Action --Stanfield

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Stanfield called Monday in his New Year's message for 1969 to be a year of action.

"Last year a majority government was elected and rules of Parliament reformed. We can all agree that is a time for study but there is a time for action. 1969 must be a year of action."

He noted that many of the problems of a century ago still exist.

"They are easy to identify: at home, poverty, unemployment, unequal opportunity and a continuing suspicion of our fellow citizens; and in the world, tension among large nations and an explosive inequality between rich countries and poor.

"New problems have arisen: inflation, a destructive conflict between the provinces and Ottawa, the accelerating separateness of the young, and a growing awareness that the continuing economic development of Canada will require us to challenge established patterns and consider new methods, markets, initiatives and associations."

Regional Identity Top Need

Visualizing a Quinte - area regional government composed of Hastings and Prince Edward counties, Belleville and Trenton and the township of Murray, Hastings clerk - treasurer Carl Bateman told Rotarians yesterday that while it fell short of the minister's criteria as to population — 120,000 compared with the minister's minimum of 150,000 — nevertheless it fell within the other guidelines.

These, he said, included a sense of community identity, a balance of interests, a financial base adequate to carry out the regional programs, and usable by other institutions.

In a regional council of about 20 persons, Mr. Bateman envisaged each regional representative being responsible for between 6,000 and 7,000 persons rather than the 8,000 to 10,000 suggested by the minister.

Belleville would have five representatives — the same as it has on the county education board — Hastings would have seven, Trenton two or three, Murray one and Prince Edward County three or four.

"To me the concept of the board of education is becoming acceptable to the people in the area and I would suggest that a regional government formed on the boundaries I have outlined would also meet with community acceptability," said Mr. Bateman.

In offering such a solution, Mr. Bateman said he was aware his proposals would not find complete favor with either the Minister of municipal affairs or the residents of the counties, cities and township concerned.

However, he offered it as a compromise solution that might find a degree of acceptability by the majority.

"Local government," Mr. Bateman went on, "is the backbone, the structure and the fabric of our country. Large centralized governments are the first steps toward dictatorship. They destroy the right of local self-government and although they may be created to be more efficient they tend to become bureaucratic, removed from public influence and neither responsive nor responsible.

"On the other hand small units of government acting independently are not in a position to adequately serve the needs of their citizens. If small local communities turn their back on the problems of their neighbors and act in isolation from one another they are likely to pay more for their governmental services and will eventually reap a harvest of social and political tension. Good fences do not necessarily make good neighbors."

Mr. Bateman said that as the time of decision drew near as to which form of regional government they were to have, he hoped political leaders would look beyond their boundaries and be prepared to legislate for the orderly development of a total community.

Budget Deliberations

County clerk Carl Bateman and Mrs. Bernice Hunt make the final postings for the 1968 budget report. The county's fiscal year ends with the calendar year and an operating surplus is expected.

Court Preparations

Sheriff Ross Bailey and Mrs. Helen Aselstine, deputy local registrar of the supreme court, prepare the docket for sitting of the supreme court beginning Jan. 13.

Hastings County Administration Has Busiest Year in History

As the year draws to a close Hastings County administrators look back to one of the busiest years in the county's history.

"This has been a difficult year from a budget standpoint" said county clerk Carl Bateman yesterday. "But it looks as though we are going to finish the year with an operating surplus."

"It has been an up and down kind of year" he continued. "Although we lost responsibility for the administration of justice we assumed responsibility for all welfare services in the county, including the municipalities of Trenton and Belleville.

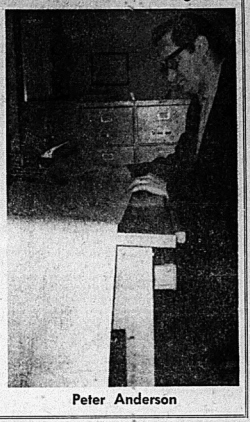
On Jan. 1, 1968, the province of Ontario took over the cost and responsibility of administrating courts formerly under the jurisdiction of the county and the city.

Although the year may be drawing to an end the machinery of justice goes on forever. Over the holiday season Ross Bailey county sheriff, has been preparing for the sitting of the supreme court scheduled for Jan. 13. Mr. Justice Henderson, formerly of Kingston, will preside.

"So far, we have no criminal work on the docket," said Mr. Bailey. We have ten or 12 jury cases scheduled and 60 or 70 non - jury cases."

At the registry office, where all land transactions in the county have been recorded since 1790, registrar W. N. Hurst looked back on his busiest year to date.

"We handled more land transferred this year than ever before, about 10,000," he said.



"Since 1950, the business in this office has increased four times over," he added.

Mr. Hurst attributes this to the growth of Belleville and Trenton and to interest in the Highlands of Hastings as a resort area.

"Toronto apartment dwellers are buying summer cottages in the north as never before," he said, "In their rush to get out of the city they think nothing of paying $20,000 for an old stone house. All this activity eventually lands in our office for recording and filing."

For county engineer, Peter Anderson, the heaviest part of his year ended about a month ago as weather conditions terminated work on roads and bridges.

"We have done everything we can do before spring and now we're starting to think about next year's program," he said.

Sportstime: Rinks Cleared at Zwick's

Snow, Snow and More Snow

By today most city sidewalks should be open and clearance crews should be finished in time to take a New Year's holiday, says city engineer Wilbur Purcell.

The mammoth moving job was in full swing yesterday as fleets of trucks were marshalled to clear the leftovers from the weekend's hefty 12-inch snowfall.

Through the day the trucks rolled westward to vacant land flanking the city dump where snow was unceremoniously dropped by the ton.

By nightfall, the dirt-grey mounds had given the area the look of a lunar landscape.

But the same fallout that made work for scores, provided fun for hundreds.

Centre of winter sporting sprees was Zwick's Island where swarms of holidaying youngsters were joined by their parents in an afternoon-long romp.

Some sported the sophistication of snow vehicles. But tradition doesn't die so easily. The major activity was on newly-plowed skating rinks and nearby hills ideal for tobogganing.

...Before we take the annual sniffle for a new year and glasses filled with spirits, may I say that in inaugurate the event, it's time for that annual pause to consider the resolutions...

...now the time for resolutions — those things you undertake to break before you even make them.

...very sissified for beautiful in the sporting world, considering some of the murderous bits of behavior we have seen during 1968.

...Here are a few plausibilities:

...South American golfing star Roberto De...Vicenzo: "I resolve to carry a pencil shar...ener with me at all times during tournament play."

...The Ottawa Rough Riders' Vic Washington: "I'll never stop taking those basketball lessons."

...Dancer's Image owner Peter Fuller: "I don't care, if I ever see another aspirin tablet!"

...Bobby Hull: "To enjoy my retirement as ...much as possible."

...Nancy Greene: "To stay off the slopes ...and on the GM payroll."

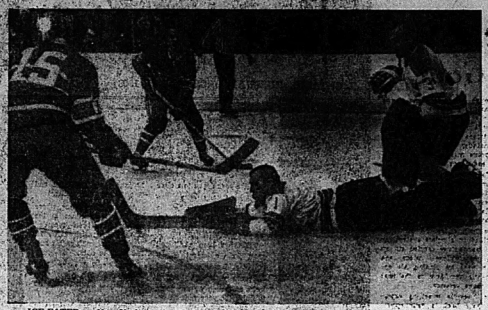
...High-jumper Dick "The Flop" Fosbury: "To keep all appointments with my chiropractor."

...St. Louis Cardinals' pitcher Bob Gibson: "I plan on reading a book called "Never Underestimate Your Opposition." (written in the spring of 1967 by Hector "Toe" Blake).

...Hector "Toe" Blake: "To write another book, this one entitled, "Prescribed Methods of Growing Back 13 Years of Chewed Fingernails."

...And yours truly resolves never again to make a prediction . . . unless it's a sure thing, like the Edmonton Eskimos for the 1969 Grey Cup or Boston Bruins for this season's Stanley Cup.

...There are many things we could wish on, for, and from people in the coming years:



...FOR the Canuspectacle Softball League: a continuation of last year's well-earned success.

...FOR the Belleville Mohawks: a hundred goals for the remainder of the season. Come to think of it, a few hundred more loyal spectators wouldn't do any harm, either.

...FROM the Trenton Valley Softball League, executive, Eastern Ontario Intermediate hockey organizers, and several other errant groups (non-combatants): a note now and then to let us know if you're still in existence.

...ON everyone who appears against one of my predictions: a plaster of your wife's bingo chips.

FOR YOU ALL, A PEACEFUL, PROSPEROUS 1969.

More Hair, Fewer Minutes For Fleming

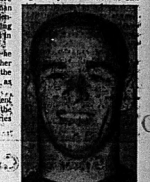
NEW YORK (AP) — Reg Fleming of New York Rangers has developed a new look this season — more hair and less penalty minutes.

...may be only a coincidence, but Fleming, now a regular on the Rangers after he did time with the Eastern Hockey League's Providence Reds, has shown a more businesslike attitude.

He has scored five goals in New York's last six games to help the Rangers pull out of a slump and move back into third place in the National Hockey League's Eastern Division.

Fleming has a string of nine straight seasons with more than 100 penalty minutes. But sidelined by an ankle himself, spending more time on the ice and less in the penalty box.

"I don't know what it is," he said Monday. "I'm hitting other guys as much as ever but the referees aren't on my back as much.



Fleming recalled an incident during the weekend when the Rangers split a two-game series with Montreal Canadiens.

"I ran into Serge Savard and I thought I'd be going off. But then we ran to whistles if we linger. He refers feather-over as soon and said, 'watch out, you're jumping on them!' I really, what do you expect? he's a big boy and I'm five-ten."

The reason you're getting off so easy!' reasoned Emile Francis, Rangers' general manager and Fleming's boss, "is because you let your hair grow. You've got an innocent look."

Fleming cringed at that crack.

Bernie Geoffrion, coach of the Rangers, admitted that Fleming's early work — when the still had the grew cut — left him less than confident. "I told him it wasn't helping with the work that he had to skate better to stay with my club."

Fleming is a labored skater much like Geoffrion was when the Boomer was an active player.

Fleming had one goal, by 3 games under, ... the Rangers made. Then he hit a hot streak and the Rangers started winning again.

Bob Still Tops

Younger Hull Surges to Sixth Spot

MONTREAL (CP) — Less than four weeks ago left winger Dennis Hull of Chicago Black Hawks was mired in 32nd place in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race with six goals and 16 points, while his famous brother and team-mate, Bobby, was in top spot — 18 goals and 25 points ahead of Dennis.

Bobby is still on top today with 49 points, including a league-leading 23 goals, but Dennis has scored at such a rate during the interval that he now has 20 goals and is tied for sixth place in the standings with Red Berenson of St. Louis Blues. Both have 39 points.

In Chicago's last 11 games, Dennis has scored 14 goals and added nine assists for 23 points. In the 10 games brother Bobby played — he missed one last game — he collected 10 goals and seven assists.

Dennis has had varying success since breaking in with the Hawks during the 1964-65 season when he scored 10 goals and earned four assists in 55 games. The next season he counted only one goal and five assists in 23 games with Chicago before going to St. Louis, then in the Central Pro League.

The 1966-67 season was his best as he hit 30 in a 72-game year along with 17 assists that year. He added "seasons" he played 74 games and had 21 goals and 15 assists, plus a goal and three assists in 11 playoff games.

While Bobby still has a 39-point lead over Dennis, his closest rivals are shaving his margin. Bobby's three points ahead of Detroit Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins, who moved into a second-place tie with right winger Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, each with 46 points.

However, while the league leader is off to a slow start, he is ...er in assists with 30.

Tied for fourth place are Chicago's Jim Pappin and Stan Mikita with 42 points each.

St. Louis Blues continue to dominate the goaltending scene. Veterans Jacques Plante and Glenn Hall have combined to shut out the opposition several times.

Hall, has three shutouts, and Plante four and the pair are ahead in the Vezina Trophy race for top netminding honors with a combined goals-against average of 2.24. This mark is substantially better than second place Montreal with a 2.50 average and New York Rangers next, Toronto, tied at 2.55.

Swedish Stars Shade Canucks In Dying Seconds

KARLSTAD, Sweden (CP) — Karlstad All-Stars, reinforced by five players from other teams in the Swedish Hockey League, defeated Victoriaville Tigers 4-3 Monday night with a goal in the last five seconds.

Phil Malone, who tried out with Sherbrooke Beavers two years ago, scored the winning goal at 19:55 of the third period.

Among the five reinforcements the All-Stars used was veteran forward Ulf Sterner of the Swedish national team, one of his country's best players. He scored a goal.

Victoriaville, Allan Cup champions, now has won one and lost two on its European tour.

The Tigers opened the scoring in the first period when Jack Michel teamed up with Norm Pepin for the goal. Michel and Pepin caught the All-Stars with only one man back, and Michel got the goal. Pepin made it 2-0 before the period ended.

In the second period the Tigers had a wide margin of play but were able to pick up only one goal, a neat backhander by Pepin that made it 3-0. Mike LaBrosse and Clement Bourdeau both hit the goal post. Just before the session ended Lars Anderson scored for the All-Stars.

The All-Stars dominated the play in the third period. Sterner's neat corner shot made it 3-2 and Sven Johansson knotted the count just before the halfway mark.

In the closing seconds, Malone batted home a loose puck for the winning goal.

The crowd of 4,016 cheered the wide-open battle as both teams went all-out. Only five penalties were called. The Tigers got four.

Former Toronto Priest Coaches Japanese Puck-Chasers

VANCOUVER (CP) — At least one Canadian will be cheering his head off for the Japanese hockey team that opens a 17 game Canadian tour New Year's Day in Victoria.

He's Father Bob Moran, a former Toronto man, who is coach of the Seibu hockey team which arrived here Monday.

Father Moran, a former player with the Lachine, Que. Maroons, went to Japan four years ago as a missionary. When members of various hockey clubs in the Tokyo area learned he knew something about hockey, the priest was collared for coaching.

He's not the only Canadian with the Seibu squad. Their star player is Melvin Wakabayashi, born at Chatham, Ont. of Japanese descent. He was an all star on the Michigan University hockey club.

Another United States college grad, Tom Bowman of Providence College in Rhode Island, is the last line of defence for the touring squad. Haugh, a native of St. Paul, Minn., played goal for the U.S. national team from 1963 through 1967.

The Seibu squad is one of the five "big league" teams in Japan. They are not National Hockey League caliber, but are the best among 600 teams that play hockey in Japan.

Behind the five major league clubs are sponsored by industry — mill, paper, steel and automotive — and a haven't reached the point where they attract 13,000, but they usually draw around 10,000. Games in the five cities that represent against the Hokkaido national team (which they lost 14-0).

Hockey has come a long way in Japan since an unidentified Canadian professor at the University of Hokkaido introduced it 40 years ago. They have enjoyed the on-the-ice patronage of Hirohito during January and February, and the professor thought the Japanese should learn some thing about Canada's national sport.

Last year the Japanese devised an artificial ice plant that can be installed for temporary use. They have shown Tokyo's

THOMPSON, Man. (CP) — Sweden blanked Thompson Hawks 14-0 Monday night in an exhibition hockey game against the northern Manitoba senior amateur squad. Hawks goalie Murray Long was peppered with 53 shots by the Swedish Visitors while Thompson managed only 25 against the visitors. The Swedes came on strong in the first frame, scoring seven goals and overwhelmed Thompson for five more in the second. Hits Edgy Anders Hedberg and Hakan Pettersson fired in three goals each. Lennart Selander got a pair and singles came from Tommy Abrahamsson, Per Arne Hubinette and Kent Persson.

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — Bob Beamon, the New Yorker who won an Olympic gold medal with a world record jump of 29 feet, 2½ inches, has been named Sportsman of the Year in a poll taken by the Bulgarian sport agency BTA. BTA said Monday it polled news agencies of countries in the East and West and Beamon won with 111 points.

College Wrestler Grapples With Goal

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff reporter

The sandman is beating a steady pace these days on the Chisholm family doorstep. Mrs. Chisholm is trying to get Ted, 12, ready for bed. Ted, a product of Moira Secondary School, is also trying to get ready for bed. He is trying to get ready for a wrestling match that will be held in the Moira gym tomorrow night.

Ted's mother is trying to get him ready for bed because he has to be up early tomorrow and get ready for school. Ted is trying to get ready for the match because he has been training for it for the past two months and he wants to be in top shape.

Ted's father is trying to get Ted ready for bed because he wants him to get a good night's sleep before the match. He is also trying to get Ted ready for the match because he wants him to win.

Ted's brother is trying to get Ted ready for bed because he wants to watch television. He is also trying to get Ted ready for the match because he wants to see him win.

Ted's sister is trying to get Ted ready for bed because she wants to read him a story. She is also trying to get Ted ready for the match because she wants to see him win.

Ted's dog is trying to get Ted ready for bed because it wants to play with him. It is also trying to get Ted ready for the match because it wants to see him win.

Ted's cat is trying to get Ted ready for bed because it wants to sleep on his bed. It is also trying to get Ted ready for the match because it wants to see him win.

Ted's goldfish is trying to get Ted ready for bed because it wants to swim in its bowl. It is also trying to get Ted ready for the match because it wants to see him win.

Ted's parakeet is trying to get Ted ready for bed because it wants to sing him a song. It is also trying to get Ted ready for the match because it wants to see him win.

Ted's hamster is trying to get Ted ready for bed because it wants to run on its wheel. It is also trying to get Ted ready for the match because it wants to see him win.

Ted's turtle is trying to get Ted ready for bed because it wants to crawl on his pillow. It is also trying to get Ted ready for the match because it wants to see him win.

TED FORDHAM

The daily practice sessions include running to build up wind and endurance, rope climbing, skipping, pushups, situps and wrestling.

Guelph University coach Orlando Iacovelli runs his squad through their daily hour and a half practice in a different manner. He starts with a two minute warming and then concentrates on individual instruction. He reminds the practice to improve manoeuvres and build up endurance.

Ted has decided to switch from the high school and collegiate type of wrestling to freestyle wrestling which is the style in Olympic and International competition.

In both styles the match is decided on a points system for the manoeuvres carried out by the wrestlers. Besides the man who by pinning his opponent's shoulders to the mat for three seconds.

In freestyle wrestling opposing your back to your opponent costs you points, but in high school wrestling you have to execute a manoeuvre to score points. Another difference is that freestyle pits two standing opponents against each other at the start of each of the three rounds. There is a one minute rest between each of the two-minute long rounds.

Freestyle wrestling is the only way to advance where the collegiate level and Ted has already won two Ontario freestyle championships and has twice placed third in the Canadian freestyle championships.

His next objective is a place on Canada's team at the British Empire Games in 1970 and also a spot on the Canadian team at the next Pan-American Games.

According to Ted, speed and the ability to apply holds well are more important than strength in wrestling. He also stresses that the ability to apply a small amount of mind power well and consistently is more important than a wide variety of manoeuvres.

"A lot of people think that wrestling is what you see on television and it's not. I think they should go to a high school match and see what it's really like," he says.

He's A Peach

ATLANTA (AP) — Unbeaten and Mike Hillman received praising Louisiana State for driving the Tigers 80 yards in the final minutes for a 31-27 Peach Bowl conquest of Syracuse Florida State Monday night.

The dazzling quarterback hit a pair of key passes and ran 14 yards in the three-yard line to put the Tigers within striking touchdown, which Maurice LeBlanc scored on a plunge with 2:26 left to play.

Hillman had tossed a pair of touchdown passes earlier to set up a bundle of Bengal setters which allowed Florida State to jump into a 13-0 lead.

Arizona Loses Mudra

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Darrell Mudra, former Missouri athead football coach of the University of Arizona, saying he did not want his contract renewed for next year. The surprise resignation came after the Wildcats wound up in a tie for second in the Western Athletic Conference with an 8-3 record, which was then a Sun Bowl bid. They lost to Auburn 34-10.

Astro Bowl First Course On Menu

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Houston is the site tonight of the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl between Southern Methodist and Oklahoma.

That will be the appetizer setting the stage for the big New Year's Day menu of U.S. college football bowl games—the Rose at Pasadena matching Southern California and Ohio State; the Cotton at Dallas with Tennessee facing Texas; the Sugar at New Orleans with Georgia against Arkansas; and the Orange at Miami with Penn State against Kansas.

The week's post-season action got started Monday night in the Peach Bowl at Atlanta where Louisiana State rallied behind Mike Hillman's quarterbacking to beat Florida State 31-27.

An overflow crowd of 60,000 is expected in the Astrodome tonight for the Astro Bluebonnet which has moved indoors following nine weather-troubled years in Rice Stadium.

Oklahoma and SMU both logged 7-3 records during the regular season and feature explosive offences.

USC and explosive O. J. Simpson, the Heisman Trophy winner, will find out just how good Ohio State's defence is in the Rose Bowl Wednesday. Simpson will have running competition from the Buckeyes' Jim Otis, a tough fullback, and rollout quarterback Rex Kern.

In the Orange Bowl, third-ranked Penn State would figure to be a major problem but they will have to go some to give Kansas any more headaches than the Jayhawks encountered in their own conference—the tough Big Eight.

Three Big Eight teams—Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma—all beat Florida and Missouri whacked Alabama in the Gator Bowl 35-10 last Saturday.

Gordie Howe's HOCKEY

Gordie says: In different colors and I'm kinda glad to see that Sutter scored in a uniform of Colorado.

Hockey has also caused some sorrow as well as joy. Many times in a declaration is being heard that a player is being lost quite unfairly. Being unfairly doesn't help.

I still get butterflies even after 22 years in the game. Hayley Lakes said I acquire the first game butterflies. Boy, I sure do. I still get that sinking feeling when I step out. 700th goal in Pittsburgh recently. Those pulling the nerves type butterflies, when you're young.

To me, really, there was no difference between the 6th and goal No. 700. But the fact that goal No. 700 was a game winner, it does intensify the joy from the fans and newsmen, but also my satisfaction of being a whole, complete reference to hockey. So the goal was special.

Finally, I was glad when it was over. Although it was pleasant to attain any plateau for a couple of games while I scored the big goals. We played New York on Saturday after the Pittsburgh game and against the Bruins I didn't get a shot on net in the whole game.

Maybe I had a bad game. But for my own peace of mind I'd prefer to blame it on a nervous hangover from the Pittsburgh game.

But back to nerves, butterflies. I think it is a natural thing for a player to have a little bit of butterflies. Defending myself before a game. It's then the butterflies take command and it is bad.

Mo-Hawks Go Oak-Chopping

STAFF — The Belleville Mo-Hawks will be out to pick up their winning points this week-end and tighten up the eight team OHA Senior "A" standings in a pair of games which will shed some light on the league's playoff picture.

Belleville, in second place with 34 points, plays host to the fifth place Oakville Oaks Friday night at the Belleville Arena and travels to Kingston Saturday night for a game against the Frontenacs, who have a five point lead over the locals in the battle for the sixth and last playoff spot.

Coach Davey Jones' club will be seeking their first win over the Oaks, who defeated Belleville 9-2 in Belleville and 7-2 in Oakville earlier in the season.

Jones would also like to break the pattern in the Kingston - Belleville series which has seen each club win on home ice, but lose on the road. Belleville holds a four game to three advantage to date in the two game series between the arch-rivals.

The Mo-Hawks will also be out to increase their scoring total, which at 78 goals, is the lowest in the league, but has picked up slightly in the first five games of the second half of the league schedule.

Left-winger Ralph Plaza, recently recovered from a broken ankle, has regained his form and has three goals and two assists in the last five games. Defencemen Ian Wilson and Jack Wilson has two goals and five assists over the same span, while right-winger Al Ferguson has two goals and four assists and centre Andy Turple and playing-coach Davey Jones follow with two goals and three assists each.

DAVEY JONES

The Mo-Hawk scoring leaders to date are:

	G	A	Pts.
Davey Jones	23	13	36
George Godson	10	24	34
Wayne Brown	7	11	18
Eddie Marineau	5	13	17
Ron Riley	6	10	16
Jack Wilson	3	12	15

Czechs Come Back On Nats

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Czechoslovakia overcame a 2-2 outside period deficit to defeat Canada 4-3 in an exhibition hockey game Monday night.

The teams battled through a 1-1 first period tie before Canada got the edge late in the second period on a rugged Czech defence.

The Winnipeg squad of Canada's national team opened the scoring and held the lead for more than 18 minutes before there was a reply.

Pyan Huck netted the opener, followed by Gary Begg and Morris Mott in the second period. Huck scored another in the second frame on a breakaway but it was disallowed and called back as an offside.

Fyantisek Sevcik, Jan Suchy, Joseph Golonka and Milan Mrdovic shared the Czechoslovakian scoring.

The victory gives the Czechs a 3-3 split so far in their Canadian tour. In their series with the Canada squad, the games are split 2-2.

The winning goal of the game came when Mrdovic broke down the ice past a Canadian defenceman and deflected off goalie Wayne Stephenson's pads.

In the first period, Canada and Czechoslovakia split their goals on power plays. Canada missed a second chance when the puck hit the Czech goalpost.

In the second time, Stephenson won applause when he made spectacular saves. Golonka and Jaroslav Jirik made almost certain scoring shots on quick breakaways, only to have the puck fended to safety.

A total of 14 penalties were called in the game, the Czechs taking eight.

Canada outshot the visitors 38-24.

Extensive Thefts Occur in Thailand

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bribery, forgery, collusion and government laxity led to massive thefts of aircraft and other fuels intended for vital United States military operations in Thailand, federal investigators say in an unpublished report to Senator William Proxmire (Dem.-Wis.).

The report of a 10-man general accounting office team reveals that at least 5,500,000 gallons of petroleum products were stolen during 1967 in the country where hundreds of U.S. Air Force bombers and fighter planes employed in the Vietnam war are based.

The full extent of the financial loss to the government is not known at this time, said the report, explaining that the investigators were unable to determine how many more millions of gallons of fuel had been illegally siphoned from the military supply system.

Proxmire, who requested the investigation, released the report to The Associated Press.

He said it disclosed "a shocking failure" by the government to properly police its supply system, and said there should be a further inquiry to determine whether any of the jet fuel, gasoline, diesel fuel and lubricants ended up in Communist hands.

The defence department, in a reply attached to the report, said that as a result of an investigation by the air force, "action has been taken against U.S. personnel ranging from fines to five years at hard labor in one instance." It did not list any names.

The thefts were accomplished, the report said, principally through bribery of U.S. personnel and forgery of receipts—many of them made out to military units that didn't exist.

To illustrate the widespread nature of the thefts, the report cited spot checks which showed that in one 10-month period, 52 per cent of all gasoline stored in Thai service stations for use by U.S. military vehicles was stolen. It disclosed, too, that 40 per cent of all diesel fuel shipped to one air base in 1967 never arrived.

Winter Slows Turbos

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian National Railways' new Turbo-train express passenger service from Toronto to Montreal was cancelled Monday and two runs from Montreal to Toronto were late in arriving.

The 12:45 p.m. departure from Toronto was cancelled because of a leaking fuel line and the 6:10 train did not make the run because of what CN officials termed the effects of winter weather on the equipment.

The 12:45 from Montreal, which is scheduled to make the trip in three hours and 59 minutes, arrived at Toronto's Union Station at 9:07 p.m. and the 6:10 pulled in at 11:40 p.m. Officials gave battery trouble as the reasons for delay.

Trudeau To Meet Students

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Prime Minister Trudeau will participate in a question-and-answer session with Canadian students in London where he will attend the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers next week.

In an Ottawa dispatch, the newspaper says several hundred students in London have indicated interest in such a session with Mr. Trudeau and that the 400-seat Westminster Theatre has been booked for a teach-in Jan. 12.

Pearson Praises UN's First Leader

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister Lester Pearson paid tribute Monday to the late Trygve Lie as "a man of integrity, great courage and completely devoted to the ideals of the United Nations."

Mr. Lie, the first secretary-general of the UN, died in his native Norway Monday at the age of 72.

Mr. Pearson, who was involved in the birth of the UN when he was under-secretary of state for external affairs, released the following statement when he learned of Mr. Lie's death:

"I knew Trygve Lie from the founding of the UN and I greatly valued his friendship.

"He was a man of integrity, great courage and completely devoted to the ideals of the UN. His contribution to the growth of the world organization as its first secretary-general was an essential one.

"He will be greatly missed but his work for international peace and progress will not be forgotten."

"Parties, parties, parties! Why can't we just stay home and get stoned!"

'Hands-off Our Money' Say Montreal Police

MONTREAL (CP) — Brushing aside offers of support from a political group and labor, the Montreal Police Benevolent and Pension Society maintained an aggressive stance Monday night to back its "hands-off our money" demands.

Det.-Sgt. Roger Lavigueur, 53, president of the 4,500-member group, said threats made Sunday that the society could enlist police aid to depose the provincial government were only threats.

"They needed to be told how we felt. But they should recognize we are the body to do it."

Neither Mayor Jean Drapeau nor Executive Committee Chairman Lucien Saulnier has commented so far.

The society, which administers the $42,000,000 pension fund for past and present Montreal policemen, had reacted to provincial legislation which absolved the City of Montreal from paying its share into various municipal employees' pension funds for a two-year period.

Mr. Lavigueur said he feared the legislation could be the beginning of trouble for the pension fund.

"Teh city's till is empty and ours isn't. You know what that could lead to. It took 25 years to build up this fund."

He feared the city might manage to get the legal power to "take money out of the fund" and warned that the city "faces danger, that should be understood."

At two Sunday meetings of police, Mr. Lavigueur said Mayor Drapeau and Mr. Saulnier had acted "like a thief in the night."

The city, facing a $27,000,000 budgetary deficit for the current fiscal year, has raised property taxes 23 per cent and attempted to pare all expenditures, including deferment of pension fund payments.

Mr. Lavigueur said the political group, which he refused to name, was among many which have offered support for the society's posture.

"And Marcel Pepin (leader of the 225,000-member Confederation of National Trade Unions) was at our meetings Sunday. He offered his support.

"But we don't want it."

Instead, the society and the police force in general now sought to be more independent.

"We want more power to be self-governing."

The police pension group has also threatened a march on the provincial legislature when it opens sometime in February.

The mayor, speaking on a radio program Sunday, said pension funds of civic employees were not endangered by the legislation.

The income from the various funds was more than enough to pay all pensions and administrative costs.

He forecast the city's financial situation would show improvement in 1969—if violence and demonstrations were avoided.

Kennedy Seeks to Lead Liberals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of Edward M. Kennedy privately give him little chance of winning the No. 2 Senate Democratic post in a bid that apparently is a first step toward a possible 1972 run for the White House.

But win or lose in the challenge he issue Monday, the 36 year-old senator from Massachusetts seems likely to shed at least partially his role as a follower of the leadership team and emerge as a new leader for Senate liberals.

Politicians generally thought this was one of Kennedy's objectives in seeking the job of whip or assistant leader now held by Louisiana's Russell B. Long, who wants to keep it.

Although a usually thankless job that mainly involves rounding up colleagues for roll calls, the assistant leader has traditionally stepped up when the top post became vacant and has helped such previous whips as Hubert H. Humphrey and Lyndon B. Johnson.

Kennedy said he has the support of Vice-President Humphrey and of Humphrey's running mate in the Nov. 5 election, Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine.

His candidacy also won a quick pledge of support from Senator Philip A. Hart of Michigan who earlier pressed Muskie to get into the race.

The test for Kennedy will come at a closed meeting of all Senate Democrats Friday. Long goes into the meeting with almost solid support of southern colleagues and an unwillingness on the part of some northerners to dump him.

"PLENTY OF FREE PARKING SPACE"

NEW DELHI (AP) — Pondicherry, capital of the old French enclaves absorbed by the republic of India in 1954, has been put under federal presidential rule following a reported administrative breakdown. As a federal territory, Pondicherry had been allowed to elect its legislature. That body now has been dissolved.

LOSES RIGHTS

Racial Strife Grows

LONDON (CP) — Arnold Smith says black-white racialism and a backyard mentality creeping over the world threatened the Commonwealth and other international institutions.

"Men everywhere are in danger of losing some of the will and impetus to co-operate on the broad international scale which was a mark of the 1940s and early 1950s," the Canadian-born Commonwealth secretary-general says in a year-end report.

His comments, issued today, come just a week before the opening of the 28-country Commonwealth prime ministers' conference, the first in two years.

Leaders from 26 of the member countries, all except Kenya and Pakistan, have indicated they will personally attend the Jan. 7-15 meeting. Kenya President Jomo Kenyatta, 79, is too old to travel and will send a deputy. President Ayub Khan has political problems in Pakistan and will send his foreign minister.

Informants said discussion is likely to centre on such issues as Rhodesia and Nigeria, the need to provide more centralized technical aid to underdeveloped countries, ways of encouraging increased Commonwealth travel among the young, easier access to educational facilities and a financial program to disseminate more Commonwealth information through Smith's secretariat.

Smith deals in his report with the failures to find solutions to the crises in Rhodesia and Nigeria and to the disappointing lack of progress in the United Nations trade conference—UNCTAD II—in New Delhi last winter.

Rhodesia, he says, involved more than racial justice. It involved respect for the UN and the rule of law. The outcome, if it failed to provide justice for the majority blacks, could do serious damage to the UN and the Commonwealth.

Smith laments that his efforts to bring both sides together in the federal-Biafran war in Nigeria have borne no fruit. Even prospects of providing more relief in the war area fluctuate with changes in the military situation, he said.

World Watches Trial

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Foreign diplomats are showing a keen interest in the trial here of South Africa's best known newspaper editor, Laurence Gandar.

The International Commission of Jurists and the International Press Institute engaged a Johannesburg attorney to act as observer for them.

Gandar, named by the institute in 1966 for his "courageous stand on press freedom," is known internationally for his condemnation of apartheid.

He is editor-in-chief of Johannesburg's Rand Daily Mail and has the support and sympathy of Liberal organizations and individuals who oppose South Africa's race policies.

His trial, now adjourned to Feb. 17, is the sequel to reports of torture and brutality in jails which created a sensation 3½ years ago.

Three white former guards and two African ex-prisoners who supplied information about prison conditions already have been jailed on charges of publishing false information.

The editor said at the start of his trial that he acted in accordance with the role of the free press in publishing the reports.

State Prosecutor Hendrik Lieberberg says the freedom of the press is not at stake. He accused Gandar and his reporter Benjamin Pogrund, also on trial, of conducting a malicious campaign to vilify the prisons department. They gave one-sided reports, he said, and rejected information favorable to the prisons.

IT WORKS BECAUSE-IT SWINGS!

That's the principle behind the pendulum clock, invented in 1657. Earlier clock were found only in cathedrals and public squares; today it is a rare home that doesn't contain at least one timepiece of this type. The days of the sundial and the horizon are gone and the modern world depends upon accurate clocks.

If the days of your older clock are gone in your house, chances are that a home somewhere in this area would love to use it.

St. Leonard Group to Widen Drive Against English Schools

MONTREAL (CP) — Le Mouvement pour l'integration scolaire will expand its drive to make any more during the coming year to open new English-language public schools in French-speaking parts of the Montreal area, the movement's president said Monday.

Raymond Diendiere outlined the 1969 activities and the 1970 plans for the movement at a news conference.

The movement was formed last April by about 25 citizens of suburban St. Leonard.

During the coming year, Mr. Lemieux said, the movement will continue to enter petitions with school boards to persuade them to adopt the government's policy of French-language-only instruction in public schools.

The movement was successful in late 1968 in obtaining adoption of a policy of French-only instruction in St. Leonard public schools. Under the policy the board will offer only French-language classes in elementary schools each year until all French instruction is offered in all grades. The policy was put into effect this year in Grade 1.

It also would exert pressure to bring about a "more equitable" re-apportioning of public funds to French-language schools.

These measures would be taken "while awaiting a general settlement of the language issue.

Mr. Lemieux said a fund campaign will be launched this year. The movement had seven signed up "so far" a year ago and the number of members "depends on the dynamic direction" of the fund raising.

Also planned were a public information program and conferences with other groups.

Hearing Aids Us Think

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

At an International Design Conference in Aspen, a few summers ago, a psychological researcher described an experiment he had conducted in "listening" to people.

Interviewing a random group of subjects, he asked them to use a microphone that read them "white noise" — a kind of static that is not activated by the subject's voice so that he can't hear himself talking.

In this situation, where the interviewer can talk to the subject and hear what he says, while the subject can hear only the interviewer and not himself, some surprising results show up. One of them, he reported, "is that people reduce their ability to control their speech."

As an example the researcher gave, one man when asked "How do you and your wife get along?" might reply, "We get along just fine," and then add quietly, "That's a lot of crap." When the taped interview is played back to him, he doesn't at all remember making the latter remark.

We all censor our thoughts before speaking, for a number of reasons, some good and some bad. But what is interesting is that if we can't hear ourselves speak, we lose the self-control over our "hearing" unconscious. And, "auditory discrimination" means exactly what they are saying or as without the "discernment" of white noise.

This inability actually to "hear" what we are saying is a lot of what is behind a lot of "inattentiveness," which is usually considered to be caused by conscious or unconscious rejection of the person to whom we are talking. Or the other friend, perhaps, called "absentmindedness." The opposite of this is when we actually "hear" what they are saying or are without the "discernment" which allows them to censor their true thoughts unconsciously, and to say what they are "speaking" with persuasive fervor.

A good politician is also an unmitigated liar; phrases and terms as it issues from his mouth, and it is only under the most careful analysis of her words that the mood of the audience. (This is why, for the most part, we are very skilful politicians and politicians when reading a prepared script, which is usually written by someone else, without any deviation or "ad-libbing" from the environment.)

When we hear ourselves, we are more like the old lady on the witness stand who, when asked if she believed in God, replied, "I know what I think until I hear what I say!" And only after we hear ourselves can the majority of us are thinkers at the way it sounds to others.

Thus, if somebody makes a statement of ours is misunderstood with a heavy emotional charge.

When rebuked by his wife after a party, a friend very recently said: "But I only told the truth." Well, I certainly didn't doubt it to sound offensive. But, quite often are we did not think to sound offensive, does "hear the comment level. For other, we say is what we are making or purpose, even though the hidden intention may be clearer to others than to ourselves.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

Your birthday today: The coming year concerns preparation for the coming decade which will come into reality in 1970. You have grown past the need for many old ways and old hardships. Discard nothing without meditation; but much must be viewed in a new light. Only the first half of the following year, Today's natives are usually gifted with a keen memory for details and a knack for sketching pictures.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Put all the effort you can muster to advance these first three weeks; take care not to exceed your limits. Today's N. Short journeys, information searches are favored. Make your resolutions about health care.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Take counsel with older people for a good deal in group management of resources. Do not hesitate to send home the file. Gather loved ones for the evening.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Pursue a conservative (but positive) course. Avoid strong expressions of your probable changes of mood. Romantic interests are strongly favored later in the day.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Review plans which are to last for long periods of time. You may find yourself treasure-hunting in newly discovered areas. Pursue romantic inclinations this evening.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): The accent is on finances, perhaps a little speculation if you can afford the risk. Round up relatives not seen for awhile and learn some interesting news.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Avoid harshness in pointing out details and shortages which are so clear to you. Take a recreation break; visit beyond your regular territory.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): People around you tend toward humor. Stay on a strictly cash basis; omit credit. Check your budgets, resolve firmly to lessen your spending habits.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): There's more than the usual reward for today's efforts. Protect your health; avoid undue exposure to adverse conditions. Old friends provide interesting activities, new hobbies.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): If marriage is an issue of your life now, talk about it; get things settled today. Differences with mate are open to solution. Give thought to your financial situation. Accept advice when you know the adviser's quality.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): This month is the peak of your early cycle; attempt to further your career and position in the world. Settle any issues of parents or older people near you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Think about making your creative projects more applicable to more people. Quiet checking of financial matters can prevent potential loss. Romantic and sentimental interests are favored.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): During this healthy day of much talk, news, opinion, give thought to methods of property matters. Friends do something that lets you know how you count with them.

For Jan 2nd,

Your birthday today: Your year ahead is an adventure-in new beginnings; some come of as you planned, many more are brought about by friends. Whatever abilities, things and habits you bring forward from last year tend to be more and more helpful as changes loom for simplicity. Today's natives often have natural skills to remember and organizing facts and figures; some have achieved extraordinary feats in scientific fields.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Arguments are easy; wait for the whole story before you answer. Patience with mate is essential; this is more in the situation than you first realized. Evening hours are smoother.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Hasty moves are tempting but unwise. Transportation and appointments depart from plans and schedules. Start early; prepare alternative courses if possible.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): No conflicts are started by others; it is you who complicate matters. Financial arrangements are best left alone if you are not following sound advice.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Put forth your best effort today. Firm agreements with partners. Friends may bring you a key to large opportunity. Wells from a short little time for tidying up your home, you're likely to do something of the sort.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Look carefully for hidden factors, and do what you can to avoid bypassing somebody you care for. Although they try your patience, conservative approaches pay better.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Hours spent in friendship and money; aside from this it's a good day. Let new people into your life when you decide they are dependable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): All sorts of more or less favorable things happen today. Close up promptly at the right time. Pursue sentimental interests this evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): There's more movement in your round of work and social contact than you bargained for. Financial situations may be straightened out if you react quickly to a favorable opportunity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Participation in a new project is indicated. Give the proposal careful scrutiny. Group and family concerns invite fresh activity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Daytime activity tends toward new resources and patience. Quick, new moves are not favored. Cooperate rather than squabble. Save your energy for the latter part of the day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Expect the unexpected to arise from all sides, especially from people at distant places. As nerdy as it seems, it is worth stick to tested routines at a normal pace.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Concentrate on the beautiful thing in your life. Friends and family are determined to follow a contrary course. Compromise a bit. Outright disagreement is not productive now.

Quinte Residents Are All Set For New Year's Eve Hoopla

And the prices people are paying to have fun and enjoy themselves ranges from $5 to $25 a couple.

Many of those desiring to dance, eat and make plenty of noise as the old year comes to an end and a new one starts made reservations well in advance. The manager of the Trenton Country Club reported the tickets for the big New Year's Eve party were sold out two weeks ago at $25 per couple for members and $30 a couple for non-members.

The charge includes dancing from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. and a sumptuous smorgasbord but drinks are extra.

In Belleville the gala event scheduled for the Army, Navy and Air Force premises in Belleville offers a package deal with no restriction on quantity at $20 a couple. The last available tickets were going well early yesterday afternoon.

The officers at CFB Trenton expect a "wild" and crowd at their function. Mess members pay $10 a couple and $25 a couple for guests. Each member is permitted just one extra couple due to a restriction on space.

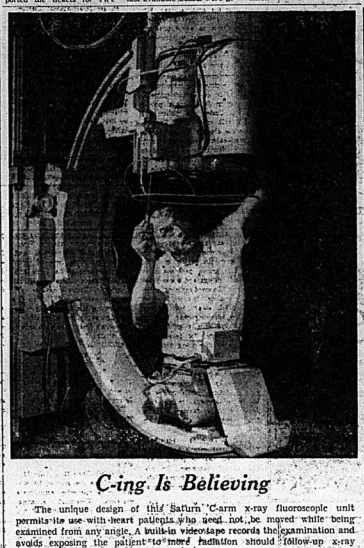
The pattern of celebrations appears to be much the same right across the Quinte area. There seems to be no lack of enthusiasm for having a good time.

The one exception was encountered by the corporals at CFB Trenton. The dance they had planned had to be cancelled "because not enough tickets were sold."

The corporals, however, look forward to what has been described as "a real swinging affair" at a party they are sharing with the junior ranks at the latter's Dunnes Club. Tickets are selling at $5 a couple for members and guests.

The price covers music for dancing, a buffet lunch and the favors. There is an additional charge for liquid refreshments.

Comparable in price is a party being sponsored by the Belleville branch of the Royal Canadian Legion. For $6 a couple, dancing with all the other requirements for making merry on New Year's Eve, goes on the celebration turning out to be a bang up success.



The Legion at Trenton sold the last ticket at $10 a couple two weeks ago. The Sergeants at CFB Trenton experienced a good response to a cabaret-styled dance at $10 a couple for members and $20 for the extra couple.

The commercial places in both centres advertise dining and dancing with an assortment of "extras". The cheapest is $12 per couple and the most expensive $15. The drinks are available at regular bar prices.

One of the choices in the city is available to members of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club and their friends. The price per couple is $15 which does not include drinks at club prices.

The Belleville Shrine Club members and their guests will ring out the old and ring in the new at $6.

The survey also showed that a great many Quinte couples planned house parties while others arranged to take in a movie as part of a night out on the town.

Canadian Degrees Lack Prestige States Queen's Professor

TORONTO (CP) — Students with Canadian university degrees lack the freedom of those with degrees from American universities, says Prof. Richard Simeon of Queen's University in Kingston, Ont.

Prof. Simeon says that although a student "can go anywhere in North America with a Yale degree, he can't get many posts outside Canada with a Canadian degree."

His remarks are contained in a two-part series in The Globe and Mail.

The survey, by reporter John Kelsey, indicates that Canadian professors soon will be outnumbered by immigrant professors, primarily from the United States.

Dr. Frederick Elkin, an American sociology chairman at York University in Toronto, said: "If two men are of equal quality, we prefer the Canadian.

"But we will hire a teacher from the U.S., Britain or France before hiring a not-so-good Canadian."

The survey finds there were about 237,000 undergraduate students and 24,000 post-graduate students in Canada in 1967. There were nearly 17,000 professors, of whom about 8,000 are immigrants, mostly Americans.

It also produces these facts and comments:

—Nearly 68 per cent of the professors at Simon Fraser University in British Columbia are Americans.

—York's sociology department has six Americans, nine Europeans and one Canadian professor.

—A course in comparative Soviet-American government, at University of Toronto uses only U.S. textbooks because the teacher says they are the only reliable sources.

—At Waterloo University, four different courses in American literature are offered, but the only Canadian course is not offered in the 1968-69 academic year. Also, six of seven humanities and social science departments have American heads.

—One political science teacher said the overwhelming number of Canadians trained in the U.S. and the number of Americans in Canada mean a strong orientation to American problems in all new Canadian graduate schools.

"So our professors see the most important problems as the Vietnam war and the Negro question and they even create parallels between the American black and the Quebecois," he said.

H. G. Thorburn, head of the political studies department at Queens said:

"We are developing an elite trained by a small cadre of social scientists who are teaching a particular core of values . . . not rooted in our society's history, and who don't necessarily understand or value our society."

However, Prof. Frank Milligan, assistant director of the Canada Council said:

"We've had to rely on foreign staff in the past 10 years, and not just Americans. They have made our new universities possible."

He added that 44 per cent of applicants for Canada Council grants in 1969 will go to Canadian graduate schools, "and soon half will go to Canadian universities."

". . . Many universities in Canada now have graduates they would recommend to Yale or Harvard or other U.S. schools as teachers, and they would be accepted."

Odeon Theatres Reject Movie Against Smoking

OTTAWA (CP) — The anti-smoking film King Size, $40,000 successor to the federal health department's award-winning cartoon The Drag, has been vetoed by Odeon Theatres Canada Ltd., the film's booking agents said Monday.

As a result, contract arrangements may also prevent it from being shown in schools or on television.

Barry Mather, New Democrat MP for Surrey, said he hopes the Commons health and welfare committee will investigate "the quashing of the film" during the committee's inquiry into smoking.

The film, made by the National Film Board of Canada for the health department's anti-cigarette smoking campaign, had been scheduled for first showing at Toronto's Carlton-Odeon theatre Christmas Day.

Ed Gaspar, assistant manager of the theatre, said Odeon Theatres rejected it about four days before Christmas because it seemed "irrelevant" and "wasn't much of a short."

The health department paid $40,000 for it because it "is every bit as good as The Drag, if not better," a health department spokesman said.

The Drag was nominated for an academy award and won at least six awards at international film festivals.

Columbia Pictures of Canada Ltd., booking agents for King Size and for its predecessor The Drag, said the veto on King Size was imposed by the exhibitor.

King Size is the fairy story of a little boy who gets caught up in the smoke ring frugn an advertising sign and is carried off to the Land of King Size. There he meets various friends held slaves by smoking. In the end, he makes his escape from the Land of King Size with a little dog.

Harder the Drinking Water The Lower the Death Rate

DALLAS (AP) — The harder your drinking water is, the less is your chance of dying from heart disease or brain stroke.

Where you live affects longevity. The risk that middle-aged men, 54 to 64 years old, will die prematurely is lowest in the Great Plains states, and highest along the East Coast. The reason for this is not known.

Too little of the element zinc in the body interferes with growth and development, with fertility, and healing of wounds.

These are some findings from new studies of health, geology and chemistry and medical geography, described Monday to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

It all has to do with the vital importance of tiny amounts of certain elements, mainly metals, in the human body. Geology and geography get tied in because they all come originally from rocks that determine the composition of soils and waters, and hence the composition of plants and animal flesh that humans consume.

There are regional differences in the distribution of some of these elements.

Studies here and abroad make it very clear that there is an association between the hardness of water and the death rate from heart disease and stroke, said Dr. H. Mitchell Perry Jr., of Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis.

The harder the water, the lower the death rate, but why this is so is not yet clear.

PROVIDING GRAIN

TOKYO (AP) — Peking's New China news agency says 5,000 tons of rice will be sent to pre-Peking Chinese in Hong Kong by Kwangtung province. The goal, the agency said, is "to support the struggle of the patriotic countrymen in Hong Kong against British imperialist
